Women Athletes

Set Four World Records

VANCOUVER (CP) — Doris Brown of Seattle lowered the world indoor women's record for the mile and was named outstanding female athlete at the Canadian indoor track and field championships Saturday.

Hers was one of four world indoor records set by women runners. The new standards were established by Una Morris of Clairmote College, Calif., in the 300, Cece Carter of Oakville, in the 600, Miss Brown of Seattle in the mile and the Central Ontario AAU team in the women's 110 relay.

Almost unnoticed was the personal high in the shot put by Parry O'Brien, 34, named the meet's outstanding male athlete.

O'Brien, of Pasadena, Calif., made a toss of 64 feet which shattered the old Canadian open mark of 61 feet, eight inches.

Miss Brown lowered the women's mile to 4:52 from 5:04. She overtook Roberto Picco of Toronto near the three - quarter mark and finished with a rush.

Joan Fisher — subbing for Marg Turner of Lockeport, N.S. —Judy Dallimore, both of Ottawa, and Cathy Chapman and Jenny Wingerson of Toronto combined to keep Ontario in front from the opening gun in the women's relay. They bettered the old world indoor record mark of 51.5 seconds by 1.5.

O'Brien was competing against field of shot putters that included European record - holder Vilmos Varju of Hungary and Canadian record holder Dave Steen of Toronto.

Varsity Blues In Playoffs

TORONTO (CP) — University of Toronto Blues clinched the third and last playoff spot in the Ontario-Quebec Intercollegiate Basketball League Saturday, defeating McMaster Marauders 118-86.

A record was set and another tied in the game. Both teams combined for 81 field goals, breaking the old mark set in the 1964-65 season by one goal.

The record equalled was in field goals attempted. The 217 shots that went up matched the 1964-65 mark set in a game between McGill University Redmen and Toronto.

Everton Ties Burnley

Liverpool Thumps Blackpool

LONDON (Reuters) — Liverpool increased its lead at the head of the First Division of soccer's English League to nine points by trouncing lowly Blackpool 4-1 Saturday as second-place Burnley played a 1-1 tie with Everton.

Snow sweeping Scotland caused postponement of all the Scottish Cup second-round ties and all the First and Second Division Scottish League fixtures.

Manchester United, third in the English League's First Division, slipped and slithered to a 2-2 tie on a muddy field at Stoke, while Leeds United slammed Nottingham Forest 4-0.

A 31,000 crowd at Tottenham saw six goals scored in the first 26 minutes. Tottenham led Fulham 4-3 at half time, but there was no further score after the interval.

RETAINS LEAD

With the top teams in the Second Division playing each other, Manchester City stayed at the head of the standings thanks to a first-half goal by inside - right Johnny Crossan which enable it to beat third-place Coventry City 1-0.

Huddersfield kept the margin between itself and the leader to a single point by mastering fourth-place Bristol City 3-0. Bristol City's defeat means that it slips in the promotion race and now is five points behind Manchester City.

Hull, placed second in the Third Division, gained only one point from its 3-3 away tie with Queens Park Rangers and now is one point behind Millwall, which has a game in hand.

With four teams to be promoted from Division IV, Chester, Tranmere and Torquay are racing neck and neck, level on points. Tranmere, which beat Crewe 3-1 Friday, leads on goal average, followed by Chester—which figures in a 2-2 tie at Lincoln—and Torquay.

All eight Scottish Cup second-round ties will be played midweek. But the third-round draw will be made as scheduled today.

Gas House Hockey League

Sunoco tripped the Komets 5-1 and Mustangs edged Marysville 2-1 as the Gas House League playoffs got under way last night.

Sunoco goals were shared by Buddy Hill, Gerry Brennan, Ross Empy, Charles Gazley and Bobb Lambert. Larry Fritz and Hugh Petrie got the only assists.

George Westfall netted the Komet tally, aided by Lee McBrian.

Rod Turner and Leo Holland scored a goal each in the Mustang win. Dave Bell had an assist.

Carm Milligan was the Marysville marksman, aided by Wayne Pascoe.

Mosel Stroke Behind

Homenuik Takes Panama

PANAMA (AP)—Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg overcame a three-stroke deficit, sank a four-foot birdie putt on the 17th hole, and won the Panama open golf tournament Sunday with a final-round 73 and a 72-hole total of 283.

Homenuik, a 140-pounder, fell behind Stan Mosel of the United States after a four-over-par 39 on the front nine, but sank two birdies on the home nine for a 34.

Mosel, meanwhile, went three-over on the back nine after pulling ahead with a 35, and finished one stroke back at 284 after his 73.

Defending champion Art Wall and Wes Ellis also made runs at Homenuik on the front nine but fell back.

Ellis started out six strokes back but pulled even with a front-nine 33. He, however, ran into a two over par at No. 13 and settled for an even-par 72 and a 285. Wall, seven strokes back at the start of the round, closed with a brilliant 32 but soared to a 37 on the back nine and finished at 286.

Under Way Today

Student Curlers Ready

By DON ANGUS

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — With pre-bonspiel warmups and social activities ended, 11 youthful Canadian rinks step into the hacks at Memorial Stadium today to battle for the Canadian schoolboy curling championship.

The 44 teen-age curlers paraded to church Sunday night and then gathered at a local curling club for the important draw. The leads of each rink selected a sealed envelope containing a draw number and the schedule for the five-day bonspiel was complete.

Newfoundland's first national sporting event gets under way at 2:30 p.m. NST (1 p.m. EST) with 10 rinks moving into the five lanes for the opening round. Wayne Steski's Northern Ontario rink from North Bay, the only repeater from last year's round-robin tournament, drew a bye fom the first round.

STIFF OPPOSITION

The draw gave Danny Herder and his St. John's, Nfld. rink of all 14-year-olds a stiff match for the first game. Newfoundland, in the national bonspiel since 1956, was pitted against Alberta, skipped by Brian Howes of Calgary.

New Brunswick, led by Bev Groves of Edmundston, meets Leslie Hollands' Quebec four from Arvida; George Wilson's Manitoba quartet from Charleswood is matched against Nova Scotia, skipped by Don Glinz of Truro; Prince Edward Island, represented by Keith MacEachern of Charlottetown, is to oppost Bill Ross of Humboldt, Sask.; and Doug Engstrom's Prince George, B.C., rink is to play Ontario, skipped by Mike Boyd of Kingston.

In the day's second round, Nova Scotia is matched against Saskatchewan, British Columbia against New Brunswick, Alberta against Ontario, Newfoundland against Northern Ontario and Manitoba against Quebec. Prince Edward Island got the bye.

The schoolboys curl 10 ends instead of the regulation 12 and the championship is decided on the best won-lost record at the end of the 11 rounds. Three rounds will be played Thursday.

It took six policemen to break it up.

It was a disastrous weekend all the way around for the Regals, who lost 9-3 to Galt Hornets Saturday night.

TROUNCE WOODSTOCK

And not to be outdone, Oakville Oaks trampled Woodstock Athletics 11-3 Sunday.

Dick Cherry paced the Aces with four goals. Ed Long added three, Tom Carty two and Charlie Convery, Stew Muirhead, Ron Earl, Davey Jones and Bob Collins one each. Harry Shaw, Terry Oliver and George Montague scored for Guelph.

Evening With Carol Channing Disappointing to Reviewer

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The Daughters of Orange, an NBC news department special Sunday night, was an enterprising example of how routine library film material can be woven into a rather gossipy, romantic television feature.

Aline Saarinen narrated the stirring recent history of Holland's royal house.

She told us of Queen Wilhelmina during the war years and of the rigid upbringing of her daughter, Juliana, who ascended the throne in 1948.

The juiciest portion was the retelling of the family and government crisis created by the queen's association with a woman mystic.

There were stories of two royal romances — Princess Irene's determination to marry Prince Carlos of Bourbon-Parma, followed by Princess Beatrix's controversial choice of a German who served in the German army during the Second World War.

Biggest disappointment of the weekend was CBS' An Evening with Carol Channing.

David McCallum seemed out of place in a variety hour, but worked with the star through a dull multi-lingual sketch. Miss Channing started one number as the face of Mona Lisa and wound up doing the Frug in a leotard. George Burns, once again, made jokes about his singing and cigar-smoking.

Recommended tonight:

The Strolling 20s, CBS, 10-11 EST, Harry Belafonte's memoir to the Harlem of another day with Sidney Poitier, Diahann Carroll, Duke Ellington and Sammy Davis Jr.

Diana Varsi Saga Long Has Puzzled Movie Town

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—She has a vivid memory of the date: March 19, 1959. "I believe it was about 10 o'clock in the morning," she adds.

That was the time at which Diane Varsi walked out on one of the most promising acting acting careers in recent Hollywood history.

She has returned briefly to the town for which she has no fondness. She appeared last week in a two-part Dr. Kildare drama at MGM. As soon as she finished, she hurried back to her home in Brooklyn.

The Diane Varsi saga long has puzzled the movie town. In two years she starred in four films, won an academy nomination and critical acclaim, then vanished from Hollywood.

She had dropped out of high school in San Mateo, Calif. After working as a model and restaurant hostess, she hitchhiked to Hollywood in search of an acting career.

Producer Jerry Wald recognized in her the quality he was seeking for the role of Allison McKenzie in Peyton Place (Mia Farrow now plays it on TV). Under Mark Robson's sensitive direction, she created a portrait of Allison that received academy recognition.

SUFFERED COLLAPSE

While appearing as Gary Cooper's daughter in 10 North Frederick, she suffered a nervous collapse. Then she announced she was leaving her contract with 20th Century-Fox to live in Bennington, Vt.

Why did she leave?

"I can't tell you," she says today. "I could, if it only concerned myself. But it concerns other people as well, and that is why I can't talk about it."

Her co-workers at Fox recall her as a frightened, birdlike girl who was bewildered by sudden success. They say she also was disillusioned by the way certain studio officials treated her, and she vowed never to return to acting until her seven-year contract ended. It is now terminated.

She is 28, tall and willowy, with brown hair extending to her waist. She remains withdrawn, although those who saw her Dr. Kildare performance report it was emotion-charged.

Where has she been in the last seven years?

"In San Francisco mostly, but also in Vermont and the state of Washington," she remarked. "And now Brooklyn. I went to New York last spring to make a picture there and in Philadelphia with Dick Gregory and Don Murray. I had a place in the country, but now I want to work, so I'm living in Brooklyn. No particular reason.'

During her absence, Miss Varsi married artist Michael Hausman, by whom she had a daughter. She has a son by a previous marriage.

Will she return to Hollywood? "If I have to," she sighed, with little enthusiasm. "I want to act now, and I'll go anywhere, even Hollywood."

Wins First Snowmobile Championship

BARRIE (CP)—Lionel Beaulieu of Sudbury was declared the first international snowmobile racing champion Sunday at the Barrie winter carnival.

Beaulieu led a field of 18 professional drivers from Ontario, Quebec and the United States in the two-day event.

The victory carried a $1,500 cash award and a trophy

Sharing second place were Steve Ave of Hurley, Wis., and Claude Vandal of Ile Perot, Que. Both received $625.

A prize of $250 went to Jeannot Desaurmeaux of Ste. Eustache, Que., and Conrad Poitras of Sudbury, tied for third in over-all standings.

The championships were run in three sections: Cross-country, slalom and speed sprint.

Beaulieu gained most of his points by winning the 20-mile cross-country in 38 minutes and 50 seconds. Ave, the U.S. national champion, was second in this event.

Canadian Curling

Provincial Rinks Named

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hersh Lerner defied the advice of his doctor and has earned a chance to atone for a dismal showing he made three years ago in the Canadian curling championships.

Lerner, a 32-year-old Winnipeger, won the right to represent Manitoba in the 1966 championships scheduled March 7 to 11 in Halifax by defeating Bruce Hudson of Winnipeg 11-7 Saturday.

Lerner's rink was one of four who gained the Canadian finals with provincial victories during the weekend.

Lerner's win Saturday gave him the best-of-three Manitoba final against Hudson in two consecutive games. Lerner won the opener 10-7 Friday night.

Ron Northcott of Calgary qualified Saturday to represent Alberta by defeating Dave Gerlach of Stettler, Alta., in the final. With Northcott were lead Fred Storey, second Bernie Sparkes and vice-skip George Fink.

Charlie Sullivan captured the New Brunswick title, bringing the provincial championship to a Saint John entry for the first time in nine years and the fourth time in the 36-year-history of the event.

The last representative to be decided was Northern Ontario when Bill Grozelle of New Liskeard defeated Don Harry of Copper Cliff 9-8 in a sudden-death playoff that blasted until late Sunday night.

Grozelle completed the field of 11 rinks which will compete for the Canadian title. Earlier qualifiers were:

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

SCOUT WEEK SERVICES

NAPANEE — Scouts, Cubs, Guides and Brownies of the Napanee Valley District are joining their fellow members all over the world in celebrating Boy Scout Week, February 20-27.

As many as could attended church services, in some cases with their parents. Roman Catholic boys and girls attended 8 a.m. Mass in St. Patrick's Church. Third Napanee Scouts and Cubs, who meet in Trinity United Church, were joined by the 2nd and 3rd Napanee Guides and Brownies in a colorful church parade and service in that church. Grace United Church had a special service for Scouts and Cubs in the evening.

Each of the three Scout troops and Cub packs will attend a father-son banquet this week, the 2nd Napanee at Grace Church Monday evening, the 1st at the Church of St. Mary Magdalene Tuesday, and the 3rd at Trinity United Church Wednesday.

Robert Casey, district commissioner, attended the mass at St. Patrick's Church, the service in his own church, St. Mary Magdalene's Anglican Church at 11 a.m. and the service in Grace United Church in the evening.

Horticultural Society Hears Naturalist

NAPANEE — Perhaps because it was the second time. A G. ("Jack") Austin of Wooler had spoken to the Horticultural Society, he was greeted Friday night by an enthusiastic gathering which filled the auditorium of the memorial building. Members of the Rod and Gun Club and of the Nature Lovers' club had been invited and they were there in force. Children and grown-ups alike found much of interest.

Each time he has spoken here Mr. Austin has given a different aspect of himself and his love of nature. His philosophy, however, remains the same. A man who really sees nature and loves it is a man who worships God who is its Creator. And the lover of nature is the lover of the good in mankind, looking for the good and not the evil. The inspiration for his own life and work had all come from nature, he said.

SLIDES SHOWN

The photography was outstanding in the slides the audience was privileged to see. Birds, flowers, especially wild marshes and the animals and birds which inhabit them, all were subjects for his camera and all were described by him with sympathy and understanding.

Although he has visited other lands and photographed their life and their landscapes, Mr. Austen holds that he has found the best coloring in Ontario. He loves the lakes and the forests here, the wild flowers and the wild creatures.

Many of his pictures were unusual, such as one of a snake swallowing a hapless frog, and a second one of newly-hatched kildeers. Within 30 minutes after they leave the shell, these birds are up and away, he stated. One picture showed trilliums with four rows of petals instead of one. The site of this find is being kept secret, for fear the small patch will be destroyed by those who do not know its value.

Mr. Austin was introduced by Mr. Lynn Crossman and was thanked by Mrs. Hugh Ramsay.

COLLECTS BUTTONS

The president, W. F. Barrett, introduced Mrs. Austin to the audience, telling them of her private hobby, collecting buttons. She has 11,000 of them, all classified, on cards which cover the walls of the basement recreation room in their home in Wooler.

Catalogues from various seed merchants and nurseries were on display, and in some cases extra copies were distributed.

The secretary, Miss Letha Scott, was kept busy before and after the meeting writing membership cards. Last year's total has not yet been reached.

President W. F. Barrett announced that the next meeting would deal with annual flowers.

Neighbors Mark Birthdays In Hospital

NAPANEE — By strange coincidence, two men who had lived across the road from each other for close to half a century until five years ago, found themselves in opposite beds in the same room in the Kingston General Hospital. Both are also having birthdays this week.

Til Asselstine and Robert ("Bobby") Hodgston both lived on the Switzerville Road, about a mile out of town. Mr. Asselstine left there five years ago after the death of his wife.

Mr. Hodgston and his wife remained in their home across the road until about a year ago when both became ill. Mrs. Hodgston has since been with her daughter, Mrs. Vernon Ackerman of RR 2, Bath. She has been blind for 27 years and is now almost totally deaf. Mr. Hodgston has been in and out of hsopital ever since leaving his home, and is with his son in Kingston part of the time.

Mr. Asselstine is 85 years old Monday, February 21st. Mr. Hodgston will be 91 years old next Wednesday, February 23.

Unfortunately, they will not be together to celebrate their birthdays. Mr. Hodgston underwent further surgery last Friday and is now in another room.

Napanee Personals

NAPANEE — W. S. Exley, who is 93, and who is in Kingston General Hospital with a broken pelvis, is reported to be showing slight improvement.

Douglas Exley, vice-principal of a public school in Fort William, and Mrs. Marian Howitt, a teacher in Toronto, spent the weekend here with their mother, Mrs. W. S. Exley, and visited their father in the Kingston General Hospital. Mrs. Howitt is remaining for the week, but her brother had to leave Sunday to take up his duties the following day.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Austin of Wooler were guests on Friday of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Barrett of the River Road, on the occasion of Mr. Austin's addressing the Horticultural Society.

Mr. Ward Wartman of John Street is recovering from surgery in Kingston General Hospital.

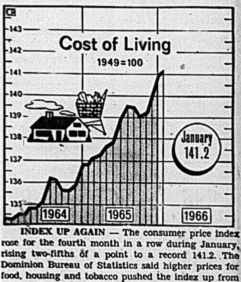
Pat Harrington of Minden, and his fiancee Miss Heather Duncan of Haliburton, spent the weekend with Mr. Harrington's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Caldwell of the Deseronto Road.

Second term examinations begin Friday in the Napanee District Secondary School.

A rink from the Napanee Curling Club played in the bonspiel in Marmora Saturday, winning the first two games, but losing the third. Audrey Mills was skip, R. P. Wilson vice-skip, Ken Klinck second, and Ralph Dale, lead.

Arthur Thompson of Toronto, and Mrs. George Irving and Mrs. William Arbourne and their husbands, all of Oshawa, called to Napanee by the illness and death of their father Walter Thompson, are remaining for a few days.

At a meeting Sunday afternoon in the County Hospital, due to open soon, members of the auxiliary, received a briefing on their duties as guides for the open house being held next weekend.



INDEX UP AGAIN — The consumer price index rose for the fourth month in a row during January, rising two-fifths of a point to a record 141.2. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics said higher prices for food, housing and tobacco pushed the index up from 140.8 in December. This time last year the index stood at 136.9. The index is based on 1949 prices equalling 100.

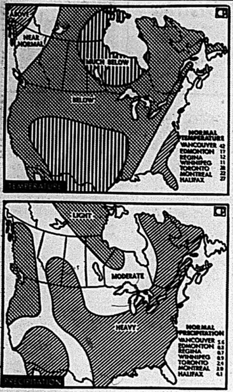
2,000 Men Put Finishing Touch To Montreal's Subway System



COLD AND WET — Nearly all parts of Canada will have temperatures below or much-below normal from mid-February to mid-March, according to the 30-day weather outlook of the United States weather bureau. These low temperatures will be accompanied by moderate to heavy precipitation. However, the northern half of British Columbia and the Atlantic provinces will have near-normal temperatures, and most of British Columbia will have light precipitation.

Other normal temperatures are New York 38; New Orleans 58; San Francisco 52. Other normal precipitations: New York 3.6; New Orleans 4.7; San Francisco 3.1. (CP Newsmap)

By MICHAEL BLAIR

MONTREAL (CP)—In seven months the echo of machinery and the shouts of workmen will give way to the whine of electric motors — and Montreal's Metro will be in operation.

Meanwhile at three different underground levels more than 2,000 men are putting finishing touches to some sections of the subway system, laying rails in others, and deep under the St. Lawrence River they are punching through the last 200 feet of rock to complete the tunnelling project.

Descendng into the multi-level Berri-Demontigny station in the east end of the downtown area, where all three Metro lines converge, is like a trip into an underground cavern.

The voices of workmen still echo and naked electric lights throw shadows across the concrete pillars and spidery forms of escalator frames.

Twin concrete tracks at three levels run past the vacant 500-foot long platforms and swing into the tunnels.

Two of the three Metro lines will open in September and, when the third opens in April, 1967, an estimated 122,000 persons a day will pass through Berri-Demontigny, the key station in the system. A peak of 1,600 persons a minute will pass through at rush hours.

COPIES PARIS SYSTEM

Metro, at a cost of $213,700,000, takes its name and many other inovations from the Paris system. It will have broken existing subway construction records when 12.9 of its 15.9 miles of line open just over four years from the start of construction.

By contrast, the second phase of Toronto's subway system, the first east-west line and a north-south extension, totalling 11½ miles, will have taken a little more than six years to build when the new line opens Feb. 26.

Innovations in Montreal's Metro system include a fully automatic central control, cars with rubber wheels and steel guide wheels, and automatic transfer machines which will integrate the existing bus fleet with Metro.

The city works department started building Metro May 23, 1962, with technical assistance and engineers provided by La Regie Autonome des Transports Parisiens (Paris Autonomous Transport Board), less than a year after council approved the project.

The cost then was $132,000,000. Since that time council has approved extension of one line and construction of another to service Expo 67 and municipalities on the south shore of the St. Lawrence.

LINKS STATIONS

It is made up of three lines—Nos. 1 and 2, which will open in September and serve the downtown area and the northern end of Montreal Island, and line No. 4, the line to Expo. The crosstown stations will have connecting tunnels to the CNR and CPR stations and major buildings.

Line No. 3, a surface transportation system running north from the downtown area and now operated by the CNR, was temporarily shelved when the city and suburbs failed to agree on cost sharing needed to change the 17-mile line into a rapid transit system.

Lucien L'Allier, Metro's chief construction engineer and general manager of the Montreal Transportation Commission, which now operates about 2,000 buses, said in an interview he is "very pleased" with progress.

Metro will be capable of handling 60,000 passengers an hour in the 369 bright blue and white cars being built in Montreal by Canadian Vickers Ltd. at a cost of $45,513,918, and delivery of cars, which started last August, will be completed by the end of this year.

Each train or "element" is made up of three cars, and during rush hour three elements will be joined to make a nine-car train capable of hauling 1,440 persons.

Mr. L'Allier says the rubber wheels offer a number of advantages including quieter operation and shorter stopping distances than steel wheels. In case of a flat tire, the steel guide rails will support the car.

FASTER THAN BUSES

The trains, which have a top speed of 50 miles an hour, will normally operate at speeds between 20 and 32 miles an hour with a 90-second interval between trains — much quicker than the average speed of eight miles an hour for buses during rush hour here

Automatic control equipment, making the job of driver and conductor on each train almost unnecessary except in emergencies, is supplied by Cie. Generale d'Automatisme of France. It keeps track of all trains, monitors and inspects lines, and changes switches from the central control room in Berri-Demontigny.

Completely automatic trains have already been successfully tested in London and Paris underground systems.

Automatic transfer machines, which will issue and accept or reject transfers, will be installed in all stations and on buses at a cost of $2,560,000. A further 2,000 persons are employed in making accessories for the system, which has a 90-per-cent Canadian content.

VARY DESIGNS

Mr. L'Allier said the stations are well on the road to completion. To provide variety of construction and decor the 26 stations were given to 16 different architects to design. City architects designed 10.

"This will enable us to provide as much architectural variety as possible and give the stations an individual flavor."

Pierre Weil, director general of the Paris system, said construction of the system will be the quickest of any major subway network up to at least 1970.

"In fact, the record to be established in Montreal will be hard to beat for years to come," he said.

By way of comparison, the system will have cost approximately $13,000,000 a mile, much less than the estimated $20,000,000 a mile which Toronto's subway cost.

The difference in price however rests mainly in the soil structure beneath the individual cities — Metro was tunneled through rock, an easier and cheaper method than in Toronto where it was mainly dug from the surface through difficult soil conditions.

MONTREAL METRO NEARS OPENING — In seven months Montreal's subway system will start operation on its fleet of rubber-tired trains. Metro's cars will operate at speeds up to 50 miles per hour, running on concrete tracks. In front of the main tires are steel guide wheels. Large front windows give excellent forward vision but the operation of the trains will be almost entirely automatic. (CP Photo)

Income Tax Tips

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

Workmen's Compensation payments and pensions are not income for any purpose under the Income Tax Act, but I have found many cases where the taxpayer has turned his compensation cheques over to his employer and received full pay instead. When filing his return the taxpayer should deduct from his income the total compensation received. He should make this deduction on the line indicated as "Other Deductions" and state why the deduction is made.

The employer is quite correct in issuing a T4 slip showing the amount of wages paid to the employee in the year, but in few cases does the T4 slip show the employer's reimbursement for wages paid due to his receiving the employee's compensation cheques.

In cases where a mother living with a son receives a monthly cheque from the Compensation Board due to her husband having been killed in industry, such cheques need not be considered when figuring the mother's income to determine if he can claim her as a dependant. It is only her income of a taxable nature that would have any bearing on his claiming her as a dependant. In cases of doubt, check with your district income tax office or a letter to me following the instructions given below will bring you correct information.

For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: I am totally disabled and my only income is a monthly Workmen's Compensation cheque. Should I keep filing non-taxable returns?

Answer: No.

Question 2: My wife was injured in industry. She now receives a monthly compensation cheque. She has no other income. Can I claim full exemption for her?

Answer: Yes.

Eagle Taken By Students As a Prank

LONDON (Reuters)—Regina, the female of a famous couple of eagles at London Zoo, turned up 200 miles away in Manchester Friday after being kidnapped in what apparently was a student stunt.

Thursday night, intruders sawed through a lock in the "maximum - security" cage where Regina was kept with her mate, Goldie, after Goldie had twice in a year made highly - publicized escapes to a treetop perch in a nearby park.

After an anonymous telephone call to police Friday Regina was found in a tea chest outside the headquarters of the Manchester University students' union.

BLAST KILLS WORKER

Propane Gas Explodes

WARKWORTH — One man was instantly killed, a second injured, when an explosion ripped through a reservoir at the federal medium security prison site six miles east of here today.

Dead is Chancey Cox, 38, of Havelock, the father of two children. Injured was Bruce Johnston, 35, R. R. 4 Havelock, father of eight children.

The blast — blamed on propane gas — tore the eight-inch concrete roof off the building housing the water reservoir for the prison now under construction.

An official of the Mitchell Construction Company of Brampton said both men were working on the reservoir when the explosion occurred.

He said that Cox was inside the 20-foot square building and Johnston was handing him down a propane gas tank from the roof when the accident happened.

THROWN 50 FEET

The body of the dead workman was found on a roadway about 50 feet from the scene. A fellow worker said Johnston was thrown about 20 feet from the roof into a pile of straw.

Taken to Campbellford Memorial Hospital, the injured man was later transferred to hospital in Peterborough. He was believed suffering spinal injuries, but was reported in satisfactory condition.

Another worker in a truck near the explosion said the blast sounded "just like dynamite."

"It shook the windows and the doors of the truck," he said.

It was the first serious accident at the $8,000,000 penitentiary site since construction started 10 months ago after a sod-turning ceremony by Prime Minister Pearson.

Member Faced Eviction

TORONTO (CP) — Edward Sargent (L—Grey North) was threatened with eviction from the legislature Monday after the speaker found his comments on the British Mortgage and Trust Corp. were out of order.

Mr. Sargent made a speech on the subject last Thursday which drew comment outside the house from former premier Leslie Frost. The Grey North member rose on a question of privilege to reply to Mr. Frost's statements.

When he started a denunciation of the government handling of the trust company case, saying the government had broken the law by not revoking the firm's charter, Speaker Donald Morrow told him to get to the point of privilege.

"I'm going to come to it eventually," said Mr. Sargent.

He was again called to order after he said the government broke the law by making money

Intend to Leave Southern Africa, British Guiana

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain will withdraw its forces from Aden and Malta, the government announced in its annual defence white paper today.

Britain also will not maintain garrisons in British Guiana or southern African territories for much longer, the government document said.

The government policy document also announced that Britain will buy 50 F-111 "swing-wing" supersonic bombers from the United States by April, 1967.

Plans to build a new aircraft carrier for Royal Navy air arm have been abandoned but the present carrier force will continue as far as possible into the 1970s, the document said.

Britain will go ahead with its orders for American Phantom jet aircraft for the Royal Navy, but on a reduced scale.

WON'T BUY BOMBER

The defence review disclosed that France had been told Britain would not buy the French Mirage four-jet bomber.

But Britain gave firm assurances this would not affect the Anglo-French program for a swing-wing aircraft to take over from the F-111 aircraft in RAF service by the mid-1970s.

Nor would this affect an Anglo-French agreement to develop a projected short-range strike and trainer aircraft—the Jaguar.

Orders will be placed soon for the first of a new, more powerful class of guided missile ship, known as the type-82 destroyer, which will be equipped with the Sea Dart surface-to-air guided weapons, Ikara anti-submarine weapons and new Anglo-Dutch radar.

On commitments to NATO and in Europe, the defence review said Britain plans to strengthen its air support for conventional ground forces in Germany but will reduce its nuclear-strike aircraft based there.

Britain also hopes to cut the level of its naval forces at present earmarked for NATO.

The review made plain Britain will consult its allies about these proposed changes.

But Britain will maintain its ground forces in Germany at about their existing level provided some means can be found for meeting the foreign exchange costs of these forces.

The review said Britain will

Sea Lord Resigns

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's first sea lord, Admiral Sir David Luce, resigned today in protest against the Labor government's defence policy.

Luce asked for his retirement, scheduled for August, to take effect at once.

He will be replaced by Admiral Sir Varyl Begg, former commander-in-chief of British forces in the Far East.

Resignation of the first sea lord, senior naval member of the Admiralty Board and chief of naval staff, followed that of his political chief Christopher Mayhew, the navy minister, Saturday.

One of the reasons for Mayhew's resignation was that Britain will buy American F-111 "swing wing" bombers instead of building new aircraft carriers.

Defence Secretary Denis Healey announced Luce's resignation "in the light of his inability to accept the decision of the cabinet on the future of aircraft carriers."

Other members of the admiralty board would remain in their posts "for the good of the navy," Healey said.

Luce, 60, held his top navy job since 1963.

Before that he was commander-in-chief of British forces in the Far East, and British military adviser to the South-east Asia Treaty Orgahization.

Attack CF-5 Jet Bomber

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—The CF-5 jet bomber ordered by the RCAF is a $215,000,000 blunder or an absolutely first-class plane for Canada, depending on whom you believe in the Commons.

A parade of 15 Conservative MPs and Defence Minister Hellyer seemed to be describing two completely different aircraft Monday as debate on defence spending estimates continued for the second full day.

Terry Nugent (PC—Edmonton Strathcon.) had this to say about the CF-5:

"I can only conclude that no matter how much it is improved, the decision to buy it will be a mistake. . . . I hope the prime minister will be able to defend this decision to pur-

NATO Sharing of Nuclear Arms Sours Wilson-Kosygin Parley

MOSCOW (AP)—The government chiefs of Britain and Russia talked for almost two hours on world problems today in an atmosphere clouded by differences over the Viet Nam war.

British Prime Minister Wilson and Soviet Premier Kosygin began their round of meetings in the Soviet leader's Kremlin office in front of newspaper men and television cameras.

Tass news agency reported the talks "touched upon international problems and also Soviet-British relations." It did not elaborate.

As the exchanges began, Pravda, organ of the Soviet Communist party, published a blast against what it said are Western plans to arm West Germany with nuclear weapons.

A dispatch from the paper's Washington correspondent described a meeting of five NATO defence ministers in the U.S. capital last week as "another step along the road of Bonn's possession of nuclear weapons."

This is to be a major topic in the Kosygin-Wilson talks.

The word from both Soviet and British authorities as the meeting got under way was that there seems little chance of progress toward an agreed position on the Viet Nam crisis.

Britain and Russia are co-chairmen of the Geneva conference which produced the Indochinese peace settlements in 1954. Wilson came to Moscow hoping to persuade Kosygin to revive the co-chairmanship system.

He is asking the Soviet Union to join Britain in a call to contestants in Viet Nam to negotiate.

But Kosygin's response, if Soviet press commentaries are indicative, almost certainly will be negative

Kosygin has contended that the Soviet Union at this time has no role to play in peacemaking and that it is up to the Americans to stop bombing North Viet Nam as the indispensable prelude to talks.

Britain's backing of American policy in Viet Nam, the Russians maintain, represents another obstacle to peacemaking.

A dispute seems to be shaping up also on moves for an East-West treaty to stop the spread of nuclear weapons. Wilson intends to press for agreement but here again the chances seem slender.

Kosygin and his colleagues appear resolved to maintain their insistence that West Germany must have no part in inter-allied nuclear policymaking.

Manpower Conference

Jurisdictional Problem Hobbles Vocational Training Program

OTTAWA (CP) — A union leader contended today that a jurisdictional clash between provincial labor and education departments is one of the major bottlenecks to the development of vocational training programs in Canada.

M. J. (Mike) Fenwick of Toronto, an official of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC), said education departments are so overloaded with other problems that they are giving low priority to vocational courses.

Yet these departments were unwilling to turn the field over to labor departments because they are jealous of their jurisdiction.

He said that the training branches of the two Ontario departments "are hardly on speaking terms."

Mr. Fenwick said an answer to the problem might be the creation of provincial manpower departments following the lead of the federal government.

His paper led off the second day's discussion at a four-day conference on manpower training sponsored by the Canadian Labor Congress.

It is being attended by 150 delegates, mainly from labor unions across the country. Observers are on hand from provincial labor departments, industrial groups and universities.

Mr. Fenwick also criticized what he said was a lack of promotion for adult retraining programs: "The man on the street hasn't a clue that they exist."

Many unions and employers are unaware of them, he said.

There should be a national conference of labor, management and governments to formally launch on-the-job training programs.

Mr. Fenwick, a vice-president of the Ontario Federation of Labor, reported on a survey the Steelworkers Union carried out last summer to determine the extent of training in the steel industry.

Four out of five plants had no apprentice training program. Only 1,404 of the 97,605 workers in the plants covered were receiving any form of training to improve their skills.

The metal mining industry was experiencing a serious labor shortage but its answer was to seek recruitments in foreign labor markets. This was "the traditional policy of poaching on the labor markets of others" so often followed in Canada.

Sound of Music, Dr. Zhivago Top Nominees for Oscars

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Sound of Music and Dr. Zhivago tied for top honors Monday in academy award nominations.

The two films scored 10 nominations apiece and were followed by Ship of Fools with eight.

The academy, which last year awarded all the acting Oscars to foreigners, this year chose 12 foreigners out of the 20 acting nominations.

Julie Andrews, 1964 winner for Mary Poppins, was once more nominated, this time for playing another melodic nanny in The Sound of Music. Two other English actresses were nominated: Julie Christie for Darling and Samantha Eggar for The Collector.

Another previous winner, Si[illegible]ne Signoret (Room at the [illegible] '959), was picked for Ship of Fools.

Sole American among the top actresses was Elizabeth Hartman, who played a blind girl in A Patch of Blue, her first film.

Former winner Laurence Olivier (Hamlet, 1948) won a seventh nomination for his Othello. Fellow Shakespearean actor Richard Burton was selected for The Spy who came in from the Cold and Viennese Oskar Werner was named for Ship of Fools.

They were joined by Americans Lee Marvin for Cat Ballou and Rod Steiger for The Pawnbroker.

Nominees for best picture of 1965: Darling, Dr. Zhivago, Ship of Fools, The Sound of Music and A Thousand Clowns.

Stanley Mann, a Toronto native now living in London, and John Kohn, co-authors of The Collector screenplay, were among those nominated for an Oscar for best adaptation. Mann and Kohn adapted The Collector from the novel of the same title.

Nominated for best supporting actor were three Britons: Ian Bannen for The Flight of the Phoenix, Tom Courtenay for Dr. Zhivago and Frank Finlay for Othello. Competing with them are Martin Balsam of A Thousand Clowns and Michael Dunn of Ship of Fools.

Also representing Britain were two nominees for best supporting actress—Joyce Redman and Maggie Smith, both of Othello. Americans in the category are Ruth Gordon of Inside Daisy Clover, Shelley Winters of A Patch of Blue and Peggy Wood of The Sound of Music.

A surprise in the nominations for best director was Hiroshie Teshigahara, who was named for the Japanese film Woman in the Dunes. He is the first Asian to be nominated for best director.

Two-time winner David Lean was named for Dr. Zhivago and three-time winner William Wylie for The Collector. Another former winner, Robert Rise, was selected for The Sound of Music and newcomer John Schlesinger for Darling.

Other nominations include:

Best foreign - language film: Blood on the Land (Greece); Dear John (Sweden); Kwadan (Japan); Marriage Italian Style (Italy); The Shop on Main Street (Czechoslovakia).

Best song: I will Wait for You from The Umbrellas of Cherbourg; The Shadow of Your Smile from The Sandpiper; The Sweetheart Tree from The Great Race, and the title songs of Cat Ballou and What's New, Pussycat?

The Oscars will be presented April 18 with the customary hoopla at Santa Monica, Calif., Civic Auditorium. Bob Hope will again conduct the festivities for the 38th annual celebration.

Manpower Conference

Quebec Not Interested In National Approach

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec's labor minister told a conference on manpower training Monday that his province isn't interested in a national approach to manpower development.

Carrier Fortin said Quebec is a special labor market with problems different from those of the English - speaking provinces. They could best be solved under provincial policies.

He said Quebec could not accept a national labor mobility program, offering assistance to move workers to new jobs in other parts of the country, because it would drain skilled workers from Quebec.

"If a special manpower policy for Quebec is not formulated, we incur the risk that technical training programs under federal-provincial agreements will tend to drain our province's stock of skilled work-

Truck Strike in Fifth Week With Near Riot, No Settlement

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Ontario truckers' strike entered its fifth week Monday with scattered picketing, one near-riot and no settlement in sight between negotiators for 6,500 striking teamsters and 55 trucking companies.

Five locals of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) are involved in Toronto, Hamilton, London, Windsor and Kingston.

In Brantford, five truck drivers were arrested and charged with assault after a battle with about 16 policemen that erupted Monday outside the non-union Victoria Transport Ltd. office.

The five, members of the Teamsters Local 879 representing truck drivers in Brantford, Hamilton and parts of the Niagara Peninsula, were among 50 pickets outside the transport company's main office.

The battle started when policemen attempted to arrest several men following an attack on Leonard Dunham, 36, a Victoria Transport driver, as he attempted to take a truck through company gates.

Meanwhile, two busloads of strikers from Hamilton reinforced Brantford members in picketing five industrial premises — Keeprite Products Ltd., Agnew Surpass Shoe Stores Ltd., Noakes Transport Co., Ladish Co. of Canada Ltd. and Renold Chains Manufacturing Ltd.

A truck driver who made a delivery at Renold Chains found 30 pickets blocking his way. He was allowed to leave with his tractor, leaving the loaded trailer behind.

In London, Ont., about 30 striking teamsters protested the use of a trailer owned by a company involved in the trucking strike.

The men dispersed after pointing out to police that the trailer, used by the Canadian Pacific Railway to bring freight from Montreal, carried only Quebec licence plates.

The trailer belonged to Smith Transport Ltd., one of the companies involved in the contract dispute between the union and the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau.

Goods continued to move in the province as railways, leased trucks and non-union truckers handled the increased business diverted to them.

Representatives of shippers said there are some delays in the transport of merchandise, but these are not serious. The greatest inconvenience is felt by some of the smaller communities normally dependent on trucks for supplies.

To handle increased freight-shipping orders, Air Canada placed a four-day embargo Friday on durable freight from New York, Chicago and Cleveland. Since then, the airline has accepted only live goods and perishables.

The embargo is expected to end at noon today.

Spokesmen for the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways said there has been an embargo on perishable goods since about the second day of the strike.

Some of the striking truckers have obtained other jobs, either driving trucks, taxis or working in factories.

In Hamilton, union spokesmen said Friday they would interview landlords of two striking Hamilton truckers faced with eviction for non - payment of rent.

Marshall Jaffray, chairman of the strike relief committee, said the union would assure the landlords they will be paid the rent owed them.

Union and transport bureau representatives said conciliation board hearings probably will continue throughout the week in Toronto.

Indian Chief Says Indians Have More Trouble in Que. Than Any Other Province

By DAN BJARNASON

TORONTO (CP)—An Ontario Indian chief says Canadian Indians have more trouble and hardship in Quebec than in any other province.

Chief Wilmer Nadjewan, chief of the Cape Croker reserve, said in an interview Monday that Quebec Indians have poor communication with provincial government officials and have difficulty getting anyone to take a sympathetic interest in their problems.

He declined to cite specific problems or incidents, but added: "Through acquaintances and friends I have talked to in Quebec, I believe conditions to be poor for Indians there."

Chief Nadjewan was in Toronto to attend the formal launching of Tillicum, the centennial project of the Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation.

Tillicum, Chinook for friendship, seeks to promote understanding and spur interest in the education of Indian children.

Chief Nadjewan, 44, sees little likelihood of a civil rights type movement for Indians getting under way in Canada similar to the one organized by Negroes in the United States.

It's not in the nature of Indians to protest in picket lines or participate in passive resistance, he said. They are not fatalistic. But they do consider themselves to be part of nature although not its servant.

Indians must "develop a new sense of values" before they can overcome their apathy and improve their lot, he said.

"If an Indian can integrate into urban middle class life and is happy — then in his case this is a good thing. On the other hand some Indians could never adjust to life off the reservation and it would be cruel to tell him he should move."

Reserves are neither good nor bad in concept, Chief Nadjewan said. "It all depends on the individual's wants. You can't make a general rule about what's good or bad for any Indian."

He predicted the reserve system will continue in some form for a long time. Some reserves will have to be given because they won't be economically viable, but on others there is much opportunity for small industry.

Chief Nadjewan said society's attitude to Indians is changing.

"Before, Indians were told, 'This is good for you, therefore do it.' now Indians are offered alternatives which they can accept or reject."

Annual Income Better Answer Says Director

HAMILTON (CP) — The absence of massive federal programs in the wake of the declared war on poverty is prompting Canadians to shout "phoney war — phoney politicians,' Reuben C. Baetz of Ottawa, executive director of the Canadian Welfare Council, said Monday night

He said in an address to the annual meeting of the Big Brother Association of Hamilton that if the war on poverty has become a phoney one "we might do well to take a look at ourselves—the voting public."

He suggested the lack of massive federal programs is due to too much preoccupation with provincial rights and too many people ready to support an old age pension increase when a better answer is a guaranteed annual income.

ELECTORATE SLOW

The electorate is slow in demanding a "hotter war on poverty" because it is not sufficiently aware of the real conditions of the poor.

His proposed solutions:

—Increase the incomes of those now living below the level-necessary to sustain life adequately.

—Ensure adequate health care for all because "poor health can be both a cause and a result of poverty."

—Improve sub-standard housing.

—Improve opportunities for education.

—Discover "new means of 'getting through' to the poor in direct and personal ways.

AL WATERSON

Rambler Dealer Opens Agency In the City

After a period of about 18 months during which time there has been no Rambler agency in the city, Belleville is to again have an American Motors dealership.

Scheduled to open on Wednesday, Feb. 23, the new dealership will be known as Al Waterson Rambler Ltd., 30 College Street West. A full line of new Ramblers, plus used cars will be offered.

In the automobile business since 1937 and a Rambler dealer at Maple, north of Toronto since 1959, Mr. Waterson comes to Belleville in the automotive field. His dealership in Belleville will open with a staff of eight increasing to about 10 after the business is established. Included will be a staff of three salesmen.

There will be a three car showroom with adequate garage servicing space and a paved used car lot. A full line of Rambler parts will be carried.

Married with two small children, Sandy and Christine, Mr. and Mrs. Waterson live at 554 Victoria Ave.

Easter Seal Objective Set At $5,500

Easter Seals time is approaching again—and it was a working luncheon yesterday for Belleville Rotary Club which joins with Rotarians throughout the province in helping crippled children through this campaign.

Last year's campaign raised a little over $5100 and this year the club is aiming at $5,500. Yesterday, members prepared more than 12,500 Easter Seals envelopes for mailing throughout the city and district.

Rotary President Ernest Burnham said today that the club will shortly make public a map showing the confines of the area to be covered in the campaign. Belleville is taking over sections previously covered by Trenton and Stirling.

Funds raised by the campaign enable the club to send children to camp at Merrywood-on-the-Rideau, as well as helping the young people in other ways—providing medical facilities. treatment and the like.

Dr. Hugh Cameron of Toronto will speak on the work of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children at next week's meeting of Rotary. He is a brother of club member Rod Cameron.

Guests at the meeting will include students, nurses and others who have volunteered their services in past campaigns and who are assisting Rotarians in the current one.

Enos David is chairman of Rotary's Easter Sales committee.

OFFER REWARD

LONDON, Ont. (CP) —City council offered a $500 reward Monday night for information leading to the arrest and conviction of four passengers who beat a city bus driver unconscious a week ago. Carl Wagner, 22, London Transportation Commission driver, was left lying on a sidewalk Feb. 14. One suspect has been arrested.

Erinsville Native Writes Two Books

A newcomer to Belleville whose sister has had two books published in the United States describes the author as "the clever one in a family of 12". The family was born and raised at Erinsville, 17 miles north of Napanee.

Mrs. Mark Marien, 271 John St., a resident of this city for three months, said Monday that her sister, Patricia Flynn (Mrs. Harvey Peate) is now combining talents with her husband on a third book.

Using her maiden name, Patricia Flynn, as a nom de plume, Mrs. Peate wrote two books dealing with the subject of secretarial work. The first was called "So You Want To Be An Executive Secretary" and the second, published recently, "The Complete Secretary".

Residents of New York City, the Peates (he's a book binder) are now working on a book on Greece. They have visited that country the past two years.

Offers to Sell Fire Hall Site

TRENTON—Mrs. Ian Birch (nee Margrethe Crowe, formerly of Trenton) of Marathon, Ontario, has written to town council offering land on Joseph street for a fire hall.

Mrs. Birch said in her letter that she had read that the town needed land for a fire hall and said she was willing to sell four lots, owned by herself and her brother.

Council voted to take no action as the lots would not be suitable for the purpose.

Town Wants To Cut Their Water Off

TRENTON — Town council voted last night to advise the public utility commission that council "wishes" utility workmen to shut off the water of users who fail to pay the sewer charge on their utility bill.

Since January 1, 1965, the town has lost $1,997 from delinquent water users who have failed to pay the 30 to 50 per cent sewer charge on their water bills (those serviced with sewers pay 50 per cent; non-serviced owners and tenants, 30 per cent.)

The PUC agreed to collect the sewer charges for the town but so far has taken no action to force water users to pay the town-instigated tax.

Town solicitor Roderick Campbell has been instructed by by-law to take proceedings to add the delinquent sewer charges to owners' tax bills.

Meanwhile, council moved last night to instigate an extensive trunk sewer installation, designed to see all the town serviced by 1968. Consulting engineers Gore and Storrie will be hired to draw up plans for installations in unserviced parts of town and parts of the installation will be carried out this year; some in 1967 and the rest finished up in 1968.

Petition Seeks Tiled Ditch

TRENTON — Forty people have signed a petition asking town council to tile a ditch running along the east side of the Queen Elizabeth schoolyard.

Two members of the Q.E. Home and School club came before council last night to present the petition. One club member said the ditch was a health hazard and a danger to children playing in the area. He said one boy had nearly drowned in the ditch last year.

The matter was referred to the public works' committee.

NOW COVERED

Trenton council last night dealt with a "cheerful" letter from the Pitt Insurance Company which suggested councillors should be insured against loss of life, dismemberment or injury while in the course of duty.

Councillors, however, are insured under a blanket town policy, so no action was taken (other than a few shudders at ideas invoked by the letter).

Scrapyard "Necessary Nuisance"

TRENTON — Local realtor James Day came before town council last night to ask that land on McCaw's and Meyers Island be rezoned to tolerate locating of a scrapyard.

Mr. Day hopes to sell the land to Jack Zigman or another dealer. The Trenton and Suburban Planning Board has recommended that the request be denied in order to preserve the beauty of the riverbanks.

However, Councillor Paul Tripp and the members of the Industrial and Economic Development Committee, augmented by Councillor Douglas Kinney, will investigate the possibility of establishing a salvage yard in the area and ways and means of making a dealer keep the yard in a proper condition.

All councillors agreed that a scrapyard was a "necessary nuisance," in any community and that a yard on the island would not be observed from the river. Residents living in the area would be contacted and asked for their objections, if any, before the land was officially re-zoned.

DST APRIL 24

TRENTON — Trenton council last night passed the necessary by-law making Daylight Savings time effective 12.01 a.m. Sunday, April 24 to 12.01 a.m. Sunday, October 30.

Council also voted to change the procedure by-law to permit regular council meetings to start at 7.30 p.m. rather than 8 p.m.

This change will give council some hope of getting business attended to by the legal deadline of 11 p.m.

Councillor Edward Todd insisted the deadline not be extended beyond 11 p.m. If two-thirds of council votes to continue thirds of council votes to conlog Todd says he'll "end" it as far as he's concerned and walk out.

SEWER BID $15,700

TRENTON — The low tender — of four bids — $15,743.70 for installation of an extension to the Victoria Ave. trunk sewer, submitted by L. C. Carr, Electric, was accepted by town council last night. There is a rider that the engineer, Eric Aldersey, be asked to investigate an alternate method of laying the sewer in one section, which would save the town a few hundred dollars.

The town also will sign agreements with the CNR for introducing sewer pipes under tracks for the Victoria trunk and also on Front Street in the vicinity of the new bridge.

TALKS ON L.O.D.A.

TRENTON — Donald Kingdon, manager of the Lake Ontario Development Association came before town council last night seeking renewal of its membership in L.O.D.A.

Mr. Kingdon outlined an extensive L.O.D.A. program for 1966, including industrial, and tourist promotion and a "clean" water program.

Council had decided at a Committee-of-the-Whole meeting February 7 to recommend the town not renew its membership this year, but, in the light of last night's presentation by Mr. Kingdon, promised to "think it over."

ROBARTS INTERVENES

Premier Robarts intervened in support of the rules and the speaker told Mr. Sargent to sit down.

"I will not sit down," said the member, and government supporters called for the speaker to name him — which means banishment.

Mr. Sargent finally sat after the speaker warned him that if he didn't sit down he would have the sergeant-at-arms remove him.

In other business:

—J. R. Simonett, minister of energy and resources, introduced a bill to allow the government to build a rail spur to the Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. mining site near Timmins from the main Ontario Northland Railway line. The legislation would allow the government to lease the 18-mile line.

—Bills were introduced to regulate and license all nursing homes; to allow an unmarried mother to change the name of her child, and to allow the Law Society of Upper Canada to take faster action on claims against it by defrauded clients of members.

Attorney - General Arthur Wishart said the Law Society legislation will allow the Society's benchers to delegate their powers over the compensation fund to referees as well as to a committee of their own number in order to avoid delay.

Health Minister Matthew Dymond said the nursing home bill will allow the minister to revoke a licence where the standard of care is felt to be inadequate or where the nursing home is unclean, unsanitary or without proper fire protection. Nursing homes now are licensed by municipalities.

Hugues Lapointe Named Quebec's Lieut.-Governor

OTTAWA (CP) — Appointment of Hugues Lapointe, 54-year-old former minister in the federal Liberal government, as the new lieutenant - governor of Quebec was announced today.

He will be sworn in later today in Quebec City by Lucien Tremblay, chief justice of the Quebec Court of Queen's Bench.

Mr. Lapointe, son of the late Ernest Lapointe, long-time justice minister in the Liberal government of the late Mackenzie King, has been agent - general for Quebec in London.

He was minister of veterans affairs in the cabinet of former prime minister Louis St. Laurent. He entered the federal cabinet in 1949 as solicitor - general, and from 1955 to 1957 was postmaster-general as well as veterans minister.

Mr. Lapointe, who was telephoned in London Monday by Prime Minister Pearson, flew to Canada today. He was to go directly from Montreal to Quebec City for the swearing-in ceremony.

He succeeds Paul Comtois, 70, killed in a fire which swept the lieutenant - governor's residence at Quebec City early Monday.

The death of the lieutenant-governor created a vacuum in provincial administration. There is no automatic provision for the duties of lieutenant - governor to fall on a deputy when he dies.

Three Escapees Given Terms at St. Catharines

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Three escaped convicts sentenced to additional terms Monday for discharging a shotgun to prevent arrest still face charges of rape, kidnapping, auto theft and escape.

John Eaton, 25, of Moose Jaw, Sask., was sentenced Monday to five years on the shotgun charge. Three-year terms were given Thomas Brydges, 21, of Elmira, Ont., and Ross Harold Dankwardt, 20, of Kitchener.

They pleaded guilty after charges of attempted murder were dropped.

The three escaped from Collins Bay medium-security prison at Kingston two weeks ago by driving a truck through a gate.

The attorney-general's office in Toronto said Monday additional charges could be laid by Crown attorneys in the areas where the offences are alleged to have occurred. However, no prosecution applications have as yet been received.

NABBED AT ROAD BLOCK

A fourth prisoner who took part in the Feb. 9 escape, Thomas Fuhrman, 18, of Kitchener, was recaptured later the same day. The others were arrested at a road-block here Feb. 12.

The attempted murder charge was laid when shots, fired as a speeding car approached a road block here, narrowly missed city Detective William Murdoch.

Other warrants were taken out as all police forces in south-central Ontario joined in a manhunt for the three following the escape. Warrants charging kidnapping and rape were taken out by provincial police after a Scarborough, Ont., woman reported she had been accosted by three men and held a prisoner for a total of 14 hours.

Soo Tries To Close Kresge's

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. Justice J. L. Wilson of the Ontario Supreme Court Monday deferred judgement on an application by Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., on an injunction to restrain S. S. Kresge Co. Ltd. from remaining open for business during hours forbidden by city bylaws.

"This is of general interest and I must give it some thought," said Mr. Justice Wilson.

Several communities have failed to obtain convictions after bringing some store operators into court. Some businesses, even when convicted, paid their fines but remained open just as before.

Sault Ste. Marie bypassed the criminal courts to apply for an Ontario Supreme Court injunction ordering Kresge's to close at 7 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Saturday and at 9:30 p.m. on Thursday and Friday.

Alan Vandevery, the city's lawyer, claimed the firm ignored the bylaw. The store was outside the city's jurisdiction until January, 1965, when two adjacent townships were absorbed.

Kresge's lawyer, George Finlayson contended the city did not act in good faith in passing the bylaw. Within two months the city passed a "discriminatory" bylaw affecting the shopping centres it had absorbed, he said.

REDUCE SENTENCE

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Court of Appeal Monday reduced a conviction to manslaughter from non-capital murder against Earl Bernard Nantais, 28, of Windsor. His life sentence was reduced to five years. The charge arose out of a brawl in a beverage room Aug. 29, 1964, in which Lawrence Mailloux, 28, of the Windsor suburb of Sandwich East was fatally stabbed.

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin said Monday there is "a very real possibility" that members of the International Truce Commission in Viet Nam—Canada, India and Poland—will be able to play a useful role in starting peace negotiations on Viet Nam.

He told the Commons that he does not think it would be realistic to expect an immediate call for resumption of the 1954 Geneva conference which ended the eight-year civil war between France and the Communists in Indochina and established the commission.

Mr. Martin added:

"There are obstacles which should be removed before such a conference can be usefully called.

"At the present tme the road to a conference may be long. We all hope it will not be. However, whether it is long or not, a beginning will have to be made and we think the commission powers may be able to help the parties make such a beginning."

Canada has proposed to India and Poland a reconvening of the Geneva conference of which Britain and Russia were co-chairmen.

MUST BE UNANIMOUS

Mr. Martin said any action agreed upon by the commission members would have to be unanimous. He was awaiting reactions from India and Poland.

Mr. Martin confirmed that Victor Moore, senior Canadian delegate on the commission, visited Hanoi a few days ago and conferred with the premier, foreign minister and armed forces vice-president of Communist North Viet Nam.

He said in reply to questions by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and NDP Leader Douglas that Mr. Moore had a "very fruitful" and "useful" discussion with these officials.

The talks had covered "the kind of matter that would be of interest and concern to anyone in this house who wanted to see a ceasefire effected and who wanted to see an end to the conflict in Viet Nam."

"The fact that members of the commission are able to have access to the government at Hanoi is, in itself, a hopeful fact," Mr. Martin added.

IT'S HELPFUL

"The fact that discussions (Mr. Moore's) did take place is a helpful fact."

Mr. Martin also said he is not hopeful that much headway can be made on the Viet Nam problem at the United Nations at this stage.

"I do believe, however, that there is a very real possibility that members of the international commission will be able to play a useful role.

"The commission powers have had a long and close association with the Viet Nam problem and they are the only group of nations with ready access to both sides."

Mr. Martin also said he received an "encouraging response" from UN Secretary-General U Thant and U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk for his idea of reconvening the Geneva conference. Mr. Martin was in New York and Washington late last week.

Believed Car Dealer Took His Own Life

TORONTO (CP)—George Hogan, 37, secretary of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association and one of the political party's most dynamic speakers and writers, died suddenly at his home Sunday night.

The CBC, in a national radio newscast Monday night, quoted the coroner's office as saying Mr. Hogan took his own life.

Mr. Hogan, a car dealer, held key executive posts in the Conservative party from his days as a student at the University of Toronto.

He sought election to the legislature for Toronto Woodbine in 1963, and to Parliament for York West in 1965, but was defeated both times, last Nov. 8 by Liberal Robert Winters.

Pension Plan Satisfactory To CN Workers

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian National Railways today announced that its employees who belong to unions will be covered by the company's pension plan which is co-ordinated with those of Canada and Quebec.

In a prepared statement, the company said the union workers had previously said they did not want the co-ordinated plan and would continue to pay toward separate plans—a private one and the state plan.

The co-ordinated plan was then offered to the non-union employees.

However, at a meeting late last year, the statement said, the union "reconsidered their earlier position" and agreed to join.

Under the co-ordinated plan, employees pay only one premium while those who stay out of this scheme pay two separate and smaller premiums.

ers, since most of our workers are bilingual.

They can go to work in English speaking provinces while the reverse does not hold true. As a matter of interest, facts disclose that apart from managerial positions few skilled English - speaking workers agree to come to work in Quebec as they are not French-speaking."

"We don't want to make Quebec a concentration camp," he said at one point. It would be the concern of the province to see that there were proper economic inducements to keep workers from moving elsewhere.

One union delegate suggested it was "a pretty serious mistake" to look at manpower needs on a provincial basis.

Mr. Fortin said Quebec is ready to co - operate with other provinces on manpower matters.

"We don't want to live apart but we want to live under our own French - speaking system."

Immigration Minister Marchand told the conference that the new federal manpower department, which he is to head, looks at the problem of manpower training as one of national urgency.

He said the manpower mobility program introduced last year will be improved and expanded.

A new research agency was being established to make an inventory of national manpower, surveying labor shortages and surpluses.

Hasty Pees Carry Out Exercise at Point Petre

PICTON (Staff) — If anyone had been daring enough to brave the temperatures of this weekend, and visit the southernmost area of Prince Edward County, they would surely have thought they were in another world. Perhaps one of ghosts or even goblins. Not to be outdone by Camp Picton's First Canadian Guards, troops of the famed Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment conducted winter exercises at Point Petre.

Eight army tents, snuggled in the snow and surrounded by light bush, housed some 40 enthusiastic militiamen, while chill winds whipped across the countryside.

Despite Mother Nature's subzero temperatures, reported to be aboue 20 degrees below zero on the Point, the men stood up well. They created an eerie picture as they conducted their night patrols dressed in white, winding their way through brush and over rough terrain wearing snowshoes and shuffling along like ghosts in the dim light. As though this were not enough, they were up early Sunday morning on a platoon attack exercise. Difficult as it was to see these troops at night it was equally difficult to discern them during the daylight. Wearing the white suits they appeared to melt into the snowy landscape.

According to officials interviewed by The Intelligencer reporter the exercises were considered a great success. The men slept in reasonable comfort, cooked their own meals from pack rations and not one showed signs of any ill effect from the arduous weekend activities.

Although all of the 130 troops were not engaged in the survival and tactical training exercises, there was training going on for the balance of the troops left at Camp Picton. Officers conducted their tactical training there while the balance of the troops were engaged in driver training, signals and other recruit training. On Sunday morning the new Padre of the Regiment Capt. R. Nash of Carrying Place conducted a Padre's hour for personnel on the Camp. Commander of the Regiment, Col. R. D. H. Willcocks, has requested that any students interested in the full-time six-week summer ocurse should contact the Belleville Headquarters of the Battalion immediately as the deadline is near.

Canada's Initiative

The war in Viet Nam is building up to something. But just what it is remains obscure at the moment. The conflict itself grinds on, but it is not really "escalating," as was feared, and there is still hope that continuing peace feelers will bear fruit.

Canada is behind the latest move toward initiating negotiations. External Affairs Minister Paul Martin said in Washington Saturday that a cautious Canadian peace initiative so far has drawn "nothing but the most favorable response."

Simultaneously, a report from Ottawa reveals that Victor Moore, senior Canadian delegate on the International Control Commission in Viet Nam, has been in touch with North Vietnamese officials in Hanoi within the past 10 days. Canada, the report says, is attempting to reconvene the 1954 Geneva conference which ended the war between France, then the ocupying power, and Communist rebel forces.

The success of Canada's initiative depends on the co-operation of its fellow members on the old control commission, India and Poland.

The next few weeks will likely reveal whether the long drawn out agony of Viet Nam is to continue, or whether reason will prevail. The outlook is no more encouraging than at any time in the past few months, but at least there seems to be a fundamental desire among all but the communist camp to settle the dispute by negotiations. Ultimately, the communists too may decide that this is the only course open to them.

Just Routine

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin's discussions with U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk last week included domestic issues which tend to be submerged these days by such problems as the Viet Nam conflict.

Thus it is a little incongruous to note that Mr. Martin was also engaged in talks aimed at reconciling Canada's 12-mile fishing limit with adjacent American waters on both coasts.

Newfoundland, Hudson Bay and the St. Lawrence Gulf are also involved, but Mr. Martin said he hopes that base lines can be applied now for actual measurements of the Canadian limit.

Other matters of mutual concern at the Washington meeting included the impact on American firms in Canada of the U.S. balance-of-payments restrictions on investment, and U.S. regulations affecting some Canadian companies whose stocks are not listed on the U.S. market.

Canada's Paul Martin is a man of many parts, as befits his position. Sometimes affairs of state involving situations like Viet Nam must be pushed aside. In their place are such run-of-the mill subjects as the fishing limits off the shores of this continent.

A Swinging Place

The city of Stratford has benefited enormously from its Shakespearean Theatre. Not only does it provide classical entertainment from the works of the bard and other great playrights, its fame abroad has given the Western Ontario community a magnetic appeal it would never have achieved otherwise.

The presence of the theatre, moreover, has given an impetus to other cultural activities in the area. Recent events in the city are a case in point. For example, Stratford Agricultural Coliseum was the gathering place for demonstrations of ethnic folk dancing. People from a wide area saw dances by groups representing Hungary, Lithuania, Italy, Scotland and other countries. Music was supplied by a Dutch group.

It has been winter carnival time in Stratford and other festivities during this period have included square dancing and a carnival ball sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. The latter inspired some imaginative costumes and plenty of fun.

Shakespeare, no mean exponent of the humorous arts when the occasion demanded, would doubtless have approved Stratford's initiative of late. It is a real swinging place they have there on the banks of the Avon!

Quebec Tragedy

Quebec Lieutenant-Governor Paul Comtois' death in a fire that destroyed his century-old home will be mourned by all Canadians.

The cause of the fire is as yet unknown, although there have been reports of a series of explosions heard at the start of the blaze. If that is so, a thorough investigation will be necessary.

Aside from that, the fact that the flames raced through the structure with awesome rapdity is a reminder of the hidden dangers that lurk behind the walls of older homes constructed mainly of wood, as this one was.

Fire, as this one confirms, is no respecter of persons.

"I say, old boy, there seems to have been a slight diplomatic foul-up!"

Federal Landlords Must Now Play Role of Lamplighters

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — We taxpayers ought to get around some time to striking a medal in honor of Walter Rudnicki, Director of Planning of the Indian Affairs Branch of the Citizenship and Immigration Department, and one of the great unsung heroes of the Federal Civil Service.

This same Walter Rudnicki is saving us who-knows-really-how-many-thousands-of-dollars, except that it is well up in the six figure bracket, possibly even approaching $500,000.

Well, it was like this — and it could happen only in the darkest bureaucratic jungles of Federal Ottawa.

Back a while ago, the multi-Works Department and the owners of a new $500,000,000 office building the Government was renting here in the Capital got into a hassle as to who was going to pay for the replacement of a burned-out light bulb worth all of 50 cents.

It filckered out in the office, in that $500,000,000 building, occupied by Walter Rudnicki, who then was Director of Welfare in the Citizenship Department's Indian Affairs Branch.

And while they argued — for two long winter months — about the burned-out electric bulb, he made out with a candle.

UNCERTAIN CHANNELS

There they were, the giants, locked in the battle of some sort of a financial jurisdictional dispute.

In one corner, the proprieters of the plush new seven-storey structure, built largely on borrowed money secured by the advance promise of a Federal rental lease.

There in the other, the Public Works people, biggest single construction organization in all Canada, responsible for the building of almost all Federal structures across the land and in its coastal waters, from a $20,-00,000 postal terminal to a $500 dock in some Newfie outport.

And up there in the ceiling of Walter Rudnicki's office, the offending bulb Out.

A patient man and a Civil Servant of enough years to know the Immutable, unchanged and unchanging ways of the Bureaucracy, he well understood that he must allow "a reasonable time" for the matter of the replacement of the bulb to go through channels.

So realistically, after sending word along the departmental chain of command to the building superintendent or the Public Works maintenance representative, he let six weeks go by.

Then something snapped.

Recklessly he went out and bought himself a couple of candles.

And with even wilder disregard for the bureaucratic niceties, he shot off a few letters hither and yon where they might do some good, explaining that while he had been eating more than his share of carrots to sharpen his sight in the candle-lit gloom, he was finding it a bit of a trick not to skin his shins on the filing cabinets or string himself up on the office coat-racks.

In a few days, strangers in overalls began wandering into his office to survey the situation.

STILL NO ACTION

They peered up at the burned-out bulb from various angles, flicked the wall switch, nodded their heads knowingly, and left

But never returned

Finally, the Minister of Public Works, a practical politician who can break through "channels" if he is in the mood, heard about it.

Whatinhell was going on, he wanted to know, that getting a replacement for a light bulb should be almost as difficult and complicated to negotiate as a Federal-Provincial tax deal.

So they told him — and he told them to cut the red tape, get a bulb and a ladder and a departmental maintenance man, fix the light and argue afterward about who wsa going to have to pay.

And that they did.

So from that day forward, the Public Works Department, when signing leases for rented office space for the Federal Civil Service, has made a point of writing it into the lease — or the vast majority of leases, for there are still a few exceptions — that the landlord pays for what they call "re-lamping," while the Government pays the power bill.

Trivial?

Well hardly. Just peek into the Public Accounts of Canada, the current edition, and find that in the buildings the Public Works Department itself owns, the cost of bulbs last year in Ottawa headquarters offices ran $145,278, and in Government quarters in all other cities and towns, $254,094 or a total $399,-372.

But the Government's demand for office space is such that it spends $4,448,033 for additional accommodation it rents in Ottawa and $4,417,855 across the rest of the country. That totals $8,866,000 for rented buildings where the landlord, thanks to Walter Rudnicki, now pays the "re-lamping" cost and nobody works by candlelight.

Pensioner's View Of City Tax Rate

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

City Council has been in operation for six weeks, and has managed to get out our first tax rate for 1966.

At the end of 1965 they appealed to the public for their vote and support, pledging sound and economical planning for the interest of all voters. The year previous it was agreed that ten councillors could do a better job than 14 and save the city a lot of money.

What happened the first council meeting of 1966? They raised their own salaries with the savings and did not ask for the vote of the taxpayers at all. This is money paid by the people, and in my estimation, was not called for. However, as the federal government did the same thing I suppose it is all right for our council to follow suit.

Another thing, why does Belleville demand the taxes in five payments (when in Toronto they pay it in three), with a threat of interest after the due date, which should not occur as they are getting the money in advance.

A few years ago we paid the year's taxes by December 16. Our city council of 1966 was a bad investment for the old-age pensioner. On February 15, they demand the first installment by March 1 — all in 14 days. Would they be kind enough to say where the $10½ million they have thrown away lies, so that in our spare time we could go treasure-hunting to pay our way.

Our income is $900 a year and there are not many pensioners with $50 to $80 in cash on such short notice. There is a vast difference between being rich and poor, between $10,000 and $900. The rich have got it in hand and the poor get it in the neck.

God help those who are left to pay the $17,000,000 in five years that our Mayor says will be our debt. Go slow! Pay as you go has been my motto—something good for all to follow.

The plight of a pensioner.

Measles Vaccination Should Come Early

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Let me finish the topic we discussed yesterday: Measles Some other readers have asked questions that deserve answers.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have read that measles can be a serious disease, something like 500 deaths a year from it and its after effects.

Is there a definite season for it? Should I vaccinate my children now or wait until there's an imminent epidemic?

What is the recommended age for vaccination? —, Mrs. R. A.

Yes, measles is as deadly as you have read. But it damages many times more than it kills, so anyone who regards measles as a "harmless" disease is foolish.

Measles, for reasons we don't know, habitually recurs about every two or 2½ years. Other than that, there is no particular season. It can come at any time of the year.

Don't wait for an epidemic. Have your children vaccinated immediately, so their immunity will be firmly established. Ideal age for vaccination is six months, or at least by one year, but measles vaccine is still reasonably new, and if an older child hasn't had the disease, right now is the best time for the vaccination.

• • •

Dear Doctor: What about vaccine for measles and German measles? — Mrs. R. T.

Get this straight: measles (rubeola) and German measles (rubella) are two separate diseases.

Regular measles vaccine is now available in adequate quantities, and will prevent the serious harm which otherwise it can cause.

German measles however, usually is a mild disease except when it infects a woman in early pregnancy (in the first three or four months). The danger in that case is that the baby quite often will be harmed, even though the mother is not.

German measles vaccine is not yet available, but it will be ultimately.

• • •

Dear Doctor: My baby received two shots of measles vaccine from our family doctor and suffered absolutely no ill effects.

I wanted my daughter, 3, and son, 5, to have the vaccine, and I took them to the City Health Department. About 10 days afterwards they both broke out with spots and had quite a temperature.

Our family doctor said they had developed hard measles, and I should keep them indoors for a week. At his suggestion I also called the health department, and the director said he had never heard of such a thing but that I should be glad to have the measles over with.

I would just like some reassurance. — Mrs. R. O.

There are three or four types of measles vaccine in use, all good. Some have a greater risk of causing rash and fever — but it is still what we call modified measles, and not a case of true measles with its possible risks.

Other vaccines minimize the chance of such reactions but do not give full protection unless a second or booster shot is given.

I am not ready to say that any particular type is best, but all have their individual advantages. With further experience I presume that we may settle on one as the most satisfactory for all-round use. There's no need to worry, however, no matter which type is used.

Human Factor Is Vital

Windsor Star

Mankind has met many new improvements in his way of life with protest. A current ex- will do with it is a measure of his intelligence.

The nvention of the wheel must have revolutionized the thinking of very ancient peoples. It held dangers but its benefits were incalculable The coming of the wheel was second only to the discovery of fire.

Now we are in a modern era of discovery. The wheel, the computer, the precision of modern mathematics have replaced manual labor to a point where workers who spent a lifetime at a trade are being outdistanced. They are no longer necessary. Their training and their hands have been immobilized.

But mankind has been ever the conqueror of his own inventions. Automated processes will do everything demanded of them and more than most can believe. But the human element is still present. Machines may be designed to improve upon the capabilities of man. They still require human judgment to tend them. A loose screw, a climatic change, a faulty piece of metal, a failure of electrical energy, any of these can make impotent the machinations of the new magicians of industry.

Always the human element must be a part of modern industry. That is why it is important that young men and women of today learn the skills of modern production. The best minds of our nation warn that productivity is the key to material success. Even if workers don't recognize this, the man without modern technical skills is a lost soul in the job markets of the world. He will succeed as a useful member of society to the extent that he recognizes his skill is still valuable in other aspects of industry. Why should not a skilled tool maker find his niche in a smaller plant once he is replaced in the maze of big industrial production? There have never been enough of his trade to go round.

Layoffs in industry are inevitable in the automated age. But the need for these skills is far from ended.

Suicide and Car "Accidents"

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Returning from lunch with my editor one day recently, I got out of the elevator and began walking down the hall. Suddenly, without warning, I began to stagger, the world spun around me, and I would have fallen to the floor had he not caught me. In a minute, the dizzy attack was over.

My doctor, later that afternoon, diagnosed it as a middle-ear infection, in which the delicate sense of balance is affected — a quite common occurrence, although it had never happened to me before.

What if this attack had taken place, not in the hall, with someone to hold me up, but on the highway, while I was at the wheel of my car? Surely, I would have spun out of control, with calamitous results to myself and possibly others.

This kind of sudden and severe attack — of one type or another — must account for much of the nearly 100 percent rise in one-car accidents over the last 10 years. It is now the second largest category of fatal auto crashes, and the one we are least able to learn the cause of.

Heart attacks are certainly responsible for a considerable share of these inexplicable crashes, in which no other car is approaching or passing, and there are no adverse conditions of road, weather or obstacles.

One doctor I spoke with about the matter suggested that the enormous increase in drug-taking in the last decade may also be a large factor in this frightening increase of one-car accidents. Tranquilizers, pep pills, antibiotics, all these and more, he said, are potentially disturbing to the reflexes — and much more so when they are combined with even small quantities of liquor.

Besides heart attacks and drug - induced spells, he went on, many medical men and statisticians are making an educated guess that a high percentage of these crashes are suicidal in intent. Among the more sophisticated and affluent, the auto is replacing the gun, the razor and other weapons as an instrument of self-destruction.

"For two reasons," he pointed out. "First the element of shame, and second the matter of insurance. A person contemplating suicide often doesn't want his wife and children to suffer from the stigma — so he runs his car into a bridge abutment and dies in an 'accident.' Then, too, since many insurance policies exclude payments in case of suicide, such an 'accident' is almost impossible to prove as willful self - destruction."

In a book, "Criminal on the Road," published in England last year, the author concludes Barricades went up in Paris 118 years ago today—in 1848—when the French government forbade public protests by the parliamentary opposition against corruption and for electoral reform. Two days later Louis Philippe, the last Bourbon king, abdicated and the workers were in control of Paris. The success of this revolution sparked similar outbreaks in every country of Europe, except Spain and Russia. The protests ranged from peaceful petitions, in England and the Low Countries, to full-scale revolution in Vienna and Berlin. The more violent actions brought the more violent repression as the months went by. However, the universal character of the revolutions of 1848 formed Karl Marx's idea of a coming proletarian uprising.

Would Register Nursing Homes By New Bill

TORONTO (CP)—A bill to allow the government to license and regulate all nursing homes in the province was introduced in the Ontario legislature Monday by Health Minister Matthew Dymond.

The legislation empowers the health minister to revoke a licence where the standard of care is felt to be inadequate or where the nursing home is unclean, unsanitary or without proper fire protection.

Fines of up to $200 are provided for persons found guilty of operating an unlicensed home.

The cabinet will be authorized to draw up regulations for the inspection of nursing homes. The regulations also will set out terms of management and operation.

At present nursing homes in Ontario are licensed by counties and municipalities. The province is taking over the job to provide uniform regulation.

negotiate with its NATO allies on this point.

Dealing with overseas bases, the review said Britain will have to retain substantial forces in Hong Kong for some time.

It plans to keep its military facilities in Malaysia and Singapore as long as the governments of those countries agreed Britain could do so on acceptable conditions.

But the review said Britain also has begun to discuss with Australia the possibilities of establishing military facilities there if necessary.

SETS CONDITIONS

The white paper spelled out three fundamental conditions limiting Britain's defence role outside the NATO area:

1. Britain will not undertake major operations of war except in co-operation with its allies.

2. Britain will not accept an obligation to give military help to another country unless it is ready to give the necessary facilities to make such help effective.

3. There will be no attempt to maintain defence facilities in an independent country against its wishes.

The defence budget for 1966-67 was estimated at £2,171,000,000 ($6,513,000,000) compared with £2,120,000,000 ($6,360,000,000) for the last financial year.

But, based on 1964 prices, the review said this amounted to a £72,000,000 decrease compared with last year and meant the government was nearing its declared target of pegging defence costs to £2,000,000,000 at 1964 prices by 1969-70.

DISPUTE BREWS

The government's defence review was published against a background of a major dispute brewing over the government's defence policy.

Navy Minister Christopher Mayhew resigned his post Saturday in protest against what he called the government's "dangerously mistaken" defence policy.

Today, Admiral Sir David Luce, first sea lord, submitted his resignation on the grounds of what Defence Secretary Denis Healey described as his "inability to accept the decision of the cabinet on the future of aircraft carriers."

Past Governor of Kinsmen Addresses Local Members

Past Governor Lee Hummel of Montreal was the guest speaker as the Belleville Kinsmen Club marked the 46th anniversary of the organization and the beginning of Kinsmen Week, Monday night.

Thirteen past Kinsmen were included in the large turnout at the meeting at the Shrine Club.

Mr. Hummel stressed the importance of Kinsmenship to Belleville and to Canada in his address.

"If members are to derive the benefits that Kinsmenship offers, they must strive to do what they can for their club," emphasized Mr. Hummel.

Jim Schultz outlined the history of the organization of the Kinsmen Club and explained the club's purpose.

Don Thomas, assisted by Orliff (Boiler) Lloyd, summarized the history of the Belleville Club.

FORMED IN 1920

The first Kinsmen Club was formed in Hamilton, Ont., on Feb. 20, 1920. There are now 400 clubs with 13,000 members.

In the intervening 46 years, Kinsmen have raised $25,000,000 for various projects. At present, they are planning the National Kinsmen Institute on Mental Retardation, to be built in Toronto in 1970 at a cost of $350,000.

Besides supporting this national project, the local club is maintaining and operating its Memorial Swimming Pool, is financing an eye clinic which spends up to $1,200 annually for glasses, and is sponsoring minor sports.

The local club was organized in 1934. The first president was William McIntosh. Projects it has undertaken in the 32 years of its existence include the purchase of safe driving school equipment for the city police department and the original sponsorship of the Hastings Tuberculosis Association.

Chairman of the Monday meeting was Roland Belanger. He installed six new members into the club.

Ed Nicholson showed a film of the 1965 Grey Cup game and Harry Rollins entertained with three speeches.

Contagious, Even Commercials.

I agree . . . it certainly is a problem.

A fellow was telling me what commercials have done to him. Especially beer commercials.

Sam Banal sat quietly on the sidewalk, moaning and philosophizing about his situation.

"Hi Sam," I said.

"Commercials," he replied.

I thought that was a funny name to call me, especially when he knew my right name, but I've been called worse.

"How are you today Sam?"

"Terrible."

Sam never was one to mince words.

"Nice day isn't it?"

"No."

"Think the Yankees will make a comeback Sam?"

"How can you bother about such trivialities? There are so many serious problems in the world. There are commercials. The new psychology."

"There is?"

"Yes."

This wasn't the old Sam I knew. He was never like this before. He had changed. I told him so.

"Everybody's changed," he said. "The whole world has changed. Nothing is simple anymore. Everything's a problem."

"It's not all bad Sam. Why just think of some of the wonderful things. Just think of . . . "

"No don't! I don't want to think. I can't. It's got me. I'm a failure. Life is cruel."

"Cruel?"

"Yes, cruel."

"But why Sam?"

"All my life I've been a drunk. I was an honest drunk though. You've got to grant me that much. I just raised a bit of money, got drunk and slept it off. The pattern was always the same . . . money, drunk, sleep. No problems. Very simple. But now. Now everything's changed. I've got it. I'm a failure."

"Why Sam? Why?"

Oh can't you see?" he sobbed. "Can't you see?"

I admitted it. I couldn't see.

"You see it!" he screamed. "You see it! You're being polite! You know I'm a failure. You know it!"

"Why I've never met a man in my life that could drink you under the table Sam."

"That makes it worse. That makes me a bigger failure. There's more to it than drinking. Can't you see?"

"No."

"Don't spare me," he cried. "Don't cater to me. I realize I've got it."

"Got what?"

"Don't cater!"

"I'm not Sam."

"You are! You know I've got it!"

"When did you get it?"

"Last week."

"Where?"

"In the hotel."

"What happened?"

"There I was . . .," he was sobbing now . . . "watching television. That's all. Nothing more. I could hardly see. The room was smokey. My eyes were glassy. But I saw enough. I couldn't escape it. And now I've got it."

"Got what?"

"Don't cater me!" He took a swing at me now.

"How did you get it?"

"I was watching this program. It was a good program. A western. I was enjoying it. I've always been a drunk. You know that. But I've been happy. I never bothered anyone."

"Yes, yes. Go on Sam."

"The show went on for five minutes or so before it happened. Just as the bad guy was about to shoot the good guy. I was all keyed up. I'm very emotional you know."

"I've noticed."

"It happened then."

"What happened?"

"It."

"What?"

"The commercial."

"So what?"

"It was a beer commercial."

"So."

"Can't you see?"

I was beginning to feel stupid. He kept assuming I should be able to see. But I had to be honest. I couldn't see.

"I drink beer."

I admit, I wasn't startled at his confession.

"I always drink beer. I always have. But I never knew the responsibilities involved. I just thought you could drink and that was it."

"What responsibilities?"

"The ones in the commercials. The beautiful girls. The big cars. The executive position. The bankroll. The suavity. The whole bit. I don't have any of it. I'm a failure. I've got it."

"Got what?"

"It."

"Is it contagious?"

"Yes."

"Oh no."

"I'm afraid so."

"What is it?"

"An acute commercial complex."

"Not acute!"

"Yes, acute. I've tried to stop drinking because I don't have all those things you're supposed to have, but I can't. I just can't. I really tried. I'm just human. Commercials control me just like they control everyone. There's no choice. I've failed. Somebody's got to help me."

And so I watched, sadly, as they carried Sam off. He was screaming. His arms and legs were swinging wildly. He was frothing at the mouth.

There is no chance for Sam.

"Another victim of commercials," I said. "Somebody should do something about it."

I was mad. I was ready to fight. I stopped a passerby to explain. She turned slowly, patted her head, smiled and said, "Wouldn't a Dow go good now?"

A-a-a-a-a-a-h!

AOTS Hears Talk About 'Faith at Work'

The February meeting of Bridge Street A.O.T.S. Men's Club was addressed by Rev. J. W. Lamb, pastor of Holloway Street United Church, and included guests from Eastminster, Holloway St. and Tabernacle Men's Clubs.

President Dave Thompson, as chairman welcomed all present. Grace was offered by Rev. Alfred Poulter. Past-president George Greatrix was appointed sgt.-at-arms for the meeting, David McLintock was song leader, and Alec Gordon, pianist.

Appreciation to the ladies for their very capable services was expressed after the meal by Bryson Leslie.

The devotional period was taken by Glenn Shaver.

Rev. William Lamb, in his message emphasized "Faith at Work," as of increasing interest to laymen of our present-day church. "Faith at Work" is not a new organization, nor a new club, but merely a system of meetings in small friendly groups where personal feelings and religious experiences may be recounted in all sincerity, and discussed with the others present. It is essentially a lay movement for men and women, in as much as religious doctrines, or differences, are not debated at an ecclesiastical level. It would be expected that theological beliefs and liturgical practices might be mentioned at times, but such references would have little argument in a consideration of Faith at Work.

"Faith at Work" need not be confined within denominational boundaries, but for the purpose of organizing such groups as church membership list, and at times a church meeting place, would facilitate the desired arrangements. Most of the groups would meet in the homes of the members, where good fellowship would be a natural resultant, with tea or coffee served if desired. Additional chairs for neighbors and friends of the host and hostess would be entirely in order.

A "Faith at Work" Conference is scheduled for Bridge Street and Tabernacle Churches during March 24th to 27th. Visiting teams from outside will coach the local churches in setting up their programs. The key to a successful conference is a maximum participation by the members of the churches concerned. There should be no spectators, each person is invited to take part in the conference. It is anticipated that this program will bring new life to the church, plus a greater degree of honesty and fellowship to all participants.

Mr. Lamb was introduced by Ted Milliken and thanked by Jack Ireland.

Rev. Alfred Poulter gave the benediction.

TORONTO (CP) — When Debbie Wilkes pirouettes, then shoots, opposing goaltenders often as not bend to pick the puck out of the net.

Debbie is the high - scoring centre for York University's girls' hockey team.

She is also part of the Canadian pairs figure - skating team that won third place in the 1964 Winter Olympic Games. But she has given up competitive skating.

"When Guy (former partner Guy Revell) turned pro, I decided to go to university," Miss Wilkes said in an interview. "I had two levels to go to become competent in singles skating and so far I've completed one.

"You have to be exceptional to get anywhere in singles because there is so much good competition, whereas there isn't in pairs.

Miss Wilkes and Revell could still be the recipients of the 1964 silver medal, for second place in the Winter Olympics that year.

RETURNED MEDAL

The West German couple who won it have decided to return the medal to the Olympic committee because of allegations that they did not adhere to Olympic amateur regulations.

The U.S. pair in that event, would take over third spot, the Canadians second.

Debbie has come to love hockey which she says she once hated with passion.

"It's surprising when I think of it," she said. "I used to loathe the game. That was because when we were practising pairs, hockey players were always making references to male skaters as being something less than manly.

"But now I love to play the game. I can skate well enough but I have trouble stick-handling."

The records don't show it. The flying centre scored three goals in a 7-3 victory over Ryerson Polytechnic girls.

Debbie, in her first year at York, wants to enter honors psychology. She intends to finish her education, but when that is done "I hope to capitalize on the time and money that has gone into my skating. Teaching is a strong possibility."

The Belleville Community Nursing Registry supplying 24 hour call service can be reached by phoning 962-1480. It provides an important community health service by centralizing calls between the public, medical profession, Belleville General Hospital and hospitals of the surrounding community.

Mrs. E. Linscott a former registry member gave the late director Mrs. Ida (Scotty) Campbell's report.

The report reads as follows: Many important changes in the entire health field have acted to change nursing in the past decade. Chief among these forces are the various forms of health insurance, the exploding population, which lowers the ratio of physicians and nurses to population, technical advances, extension of hospital services and an increased demand for better patient care.

Nursing service is the main objective of B.C.N. Registry by Registered Professional Nurses. This is a privilege to ensure the hospital and community of this important service. A profession embodies expertness of function and performance gained. Through specialized knowledge and skill, its goals are the protection of the public from incompetence by the application of their knowledge and a degree of social and economic status and security. A professional nurse emof character rather than self phasizes service, and quality interest and material gain.

BEDSIDE CARE

Private duty nursing, providing total bedside care, is recognized as invaluable in promoting a patient's progress, mentally through security, encouragement and skilful understanding and physically by early ambulation.

Private duty nursing as a career cannot be measured with a slide rule; it just doesn't fit in with any product or personal income. Each is a product of one's own experiences, with no interest other than providing comfort and the best possible care to the sick patient entrusted to the nurse's ministrations.

22 YEARS SERVICE

The B.C.N. Registry has been providing such necessary nursing service to this area for the past 22 years, during which time there have been many changes which have required tolerance and patience with all peoples concerned.

There were five new members for 1965. These ladies are most welcome to the organization. The tabulated calls were 592, showing a difference of two calls over 1964, although 217 were unfilled due to a depleted call board. There were times when the active members waited a number of days before receiving their call for duty.

There were 39 calls to private homes. Trenton Memorial Hospital has received service from this registry for private and staff duty. Ambulance calls were filled and six practical nurses placed in homes.

Total membership at present includes fur single and 19 married, however due to unforeseen circumstances, there will be more changes in 1966, as families are relocated, sickness and retirement affects membership also. There are five associate members.

In closing Mrs. E. Linscott added: "In tribute to the memory of Mrs. Campbell, I would like to quote a definition I once heard of a friend, "One who knows all about you, but likes you just the same".

Peanut Butter Feud in U.S. Has Little Application Here

A peanut butter feud raging in the United States between the Food and Drug Administration and manufacturers of peanut butter has little application in Canada, The Intelligencer has learned.

The feud began in the United States in 1959, after Food and Drug Administration investigators found one company producing peanut butter with only 75 per cent peanuts. The administration proposed a 95 per cent peanut standard in 1959 but, after a survey, dropped it to 90 per cent in 1961. During hearings now being held in Washington, the government proposed a standard which would declare no artificial flavor, color or sweetener could be used in the spread.

Lawyers for the manufacturers have argued during the hearings that the other ingredients, including vegetable oils, sucrose, honey and seasonings, make peanut butter more palatable and prevent it from turning rancid.

ENTER FRAY

Now a women's group, the Federation of Homemakers, has entered the fray. The women, led by Mrs. Ruth Desmond of Arlington, Virginia, are holding out for 95 per cent peanuts in peanut butter. "We think it's time to reverse this trend and take the chemicals out of food," says Mrs. Desmond.

Dr. Wilhelm C. Heuper, retired chief of the Environmental Cancer Division, National Cancer Institute, appealed during the hearings to the American government to bar chemical coloring or flavoring from peanut butter. He said peanut butter was fine in its natural state, and "needs no artificial coloring or flavoring".

NO ADDITIVES

Dorothy Batcheller, Belleville home economist, says that as far as she knows, peanut butter made in Canada has no artificial coloring or flavoring. Sugar, dextrose and salt, added by Canadian makers to their spreads, are classified as natural foods.

Hydrogenated peanut oil, used in the homogenized variety of the spread, is a liquid peanut oil subjected to a process called hydrogenation to turn it into a solid fat. This is the reason the oil in homogenized peanut butter does not separate out.

Monoglycerides, chemicals added by some manufacturers to their spreads to make them smoother, are the only substances which can be properly classified as "additives", Miss Batcheller said.

In Canada, peanut butter is a non-standard product, a spokesman for the Food and Drug Directorate of the Canadian Department of Health and Welfare told the Intelligencer. This means the government sets no standards for the composition of the spread or the proportion of ingredients. The law requires only that jars of peanut butter be labelled with a list of ingredients, recorded either by percentage, or in descending order of proportion. Food and Drug inspectors regularly check on accuracy of labelling.

Belleville housewives can find natural peanut butter on the shelves of local stores. But they will have to shop carefully and read the fine print on the labels to find a spread containing only crushed peanuts and salt.

TWO TYPES

A spot check by the Intelligencer of the shelves of a local supermarket revealed two types of spread containing nothing but peanuts and salt. Both were the unhomogenized variety — the kind that forms a layer of oil at the top. One was a crunchy spread, the other plain

Homogenized peanut butter — the spread whose oil doesn't separate out — is a more complex product. All brands checked listed hydrogenated peanut oil in addition to peanuts and salt. Some also contained dextrose, sugar or monoglycerides. Percentages of ingredients were not listed on the labels; they met government requirements by listing contents in descending order of proportion.

Price is a rough guide to the contents of a jar of peanut butter. The spread containing only peanuts and salt is usually the cheapest.

Fourteen volunteers travelled by chartered bus to Kingston, Thursday to entertain the patients of Mowat Division, Ontario Hospital. A Valentine's Party was the entertainment for the February visit, and the patients enjoyed an afternoon of dancing, bingo and euchre. CHICKEN STEW WITH DUMPLINGS

Everybody in this audience is entering the campaign to beat the meat problem. Mrs. Betty V. wrote telling me her mother's chicken and dumplings were terrific, with thick white gravy and carrots and onions, and that she was yearning to reproduce them. A grand excuse for me to stew up a batch which I did.

OLD-FASHIONED CHICKEN STEW WITH DUMPLINGS
(Serves 4)

One 2½ to 3-pound frying or roasting chicken, cut up, 3 cups cold water, 1½ teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper; 3 medium-large carrots cut into chunks; 4 medium-small onions; ¼ cup milk; 5 tablespoons flour.

Dumplings Ingredients::

¾ cup unsifted all-purpose flour; 2 teaspoons single-acting baking powder; ½ teaspoon salt; ½ cup milk.

Into stewing pot put cut up chicken (the butcher will cut this for you if necessary), add water and salt and pepper, cover and simmer for 40 minutes. Then add the carrots and onion and cook 35 minutes longer. Meanwhile make dumplings sifting together the flour, baking powder and salt. Stir in ½ cup milk until batter is smooth. After the vegetables have been cooking for 35 minutes drop dumpling batter on top of boiling stew from a moistened tablespoon. Cover at once and cook 12 minutes longer without lifting lid. Carefully remove dumplings with slotted spoon to edges of preheated serving platter. Skim out meat and vegetables and arrange at centre of platter. Garnish with parsley. Mix together to a smooth paste the flour and ¼ cup milk and stir into broth until thick. Pour gravy over chicken stew or serve separately in preheated gravy boat.

NOTES: (1) If you want to extend these amounts for a family of four with big appetites use a 3½-pound chicken and double the dumpling recipe.

(2) You will notice that the dumpling recipe does not c for shortening. These are foolproof dumplings for amateurs and experts. I deliberately reserved and chilled one in some of the gravy and reheated it the following day and it still retained its dry light texture.

Ann Landers

Barber Shop Romeos Plague Manicurist

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please come up with some badly needed answers for manicurists who work in barber shops.

I'd like to know why eight out of ten customers seem to think the only reason we cut cuticles during the day is so we can make contacts for night work.

Please don't tell me to quit this job and go to work in a ladies' salon. Men tip three times as much as women and it takes half as long to give a man a manicure. Just tell me what to do when a jerk tries to hold hands in the finger bowl and wants to play kneesies under the manicure table. Thanks. — THE REDHEAD.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR REDHEAD: Keep the cuticle scissors handy and in evidence at all times. And when a jerk tries to play kneesies under the table, give him a kick that will knock a hole in his sock.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Is there something wrong with me or has news reporting become pathologically twisted? I don't even want to mention the third possibility — that this sick obsession with Mom has completely taken over our country.

I refer to the enormous number of men of achievement (and notoriety) who insist on being photographed with their mothers. Today's front page featured a G.I. just back from Viet Nam embracing Mom. Yesterday it was an astronaut. Swimming champions, concert pianists, spelling bee contestants, sweepstake winners, governors and Hollywood actors. Harvey Lee Oswald, too. They all want Mom to be there when they get their pictures taken.

Why don't these guys ever get in a picture with Dad? Women live longer than men, but all these missing fathers can't be de I have travelled extensively and I don't recall seeing pictures Mom plastered all over the pages of European or Asian newspapers. Can it be that we Americans are living in a matriarchy and don't know it. — W.B.S.

DEAR W.B.S.: We Americans are indeed living in a matriarchy and if I didn't know it before I began to write this column, I know it now.

One of the problems of our society is that Dad has either abdicated his paternal responsibilities in his mad quest for the almighty dollar, or Mom has shoved him into the background and taken over because she wants to run everything.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a minister's wife who agrees with your stand that a minister does not have the right to drop in on members of his congregation without calling first. And now, will you please help out the countless ministers, and their wives, by informing members of their congregations that they should not drop in on us without calling first?

I can't remember the last time our family enjoyed an evening alone. We get barged in on at mealtime, bedtime and sermon-preparation time. When my husband is called out at odd hours of the night he goes willingly, since this is an important part of his work. But most clergymen have families, just like the butch or the banker, and they do want to spend some time at home.

A minister and his wife cannot afford the luxury of being candid. Please say it for us, Ann. A million thanks. — MUTED.

DEAR MUTED: I didn't have to say it. You did. And there is no better authority than you, Madame. Thank you.

Cases Recalled by Woman 30 Years on Police Force

OTTAWA (CP)—A young girl dying of abortion and a 72-year-old prostitute were some of the most memorable cases encountered by Alice Goyette in 30 years on the Ottawa police force.

"Circumstances have a lot to do with the making of a criminal," says the grey-haired matron, recently retired from her senior position. "During the depression years, poverty, overcrowding and need drove mothers and young girls to do desperate things."

She joined the force in 1936 when she was a young widow with two small sons to support. Her early duties included staking out bawdy houses and calling in arresting officers "when I thought the time was right."

"Putting the girls in jail was doing them a favor in those days. It was one way they could get a meal."

Mrs. Goyette says she has seen immorality and prostitution grow from a small-time racket into big business.

She never wore a uniform and never went on an assignment without her hat and gloves. In the early days of investigation work, she says she felt a uniform would antagonize the prisoners. A motherly, gentle person, she admits she is probably regarded as "one of the old school."

FACES WERE FAMILIAR

Magistrate Glenn E. Strike, who heard her nervously present her first case, was on the bench the day she made her last appearance in court.

"She has a fantastic memory for names and faces, a remarkable insight into people's character and an ability to win their confidence," he said.

In one morning Mrs. Goyette could usually produce a pre-sentence report that normally takes two weeks to prepare. "And she's seldom wrong," said the magistrate.

One of her last investigations ended on a comic note.

The prisoner was an elderly woman suspected of her first shoplifting offence. Examination of the buxom accused revealed she had two pounds of melting butter hidden in her brassiere, and in the same general area half a pound of ham, a package of cheese, a home permanent kit and four cartons of cigarettes.

Mrs. Goyette says of all the hundreds of prisoners she met, few were bad. "Most are just foolish, simple woman. You have to remember everyone is human. And everyone has some good and bad in him."

Business Women Critical Of Income Tax Provisions

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—Income tax regulations came in for some timely criticism Monday when a delegation from the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women presented their annual brief to Prime Minister Pearson.

The nine-member delegation, headed by President Nazla Dane of Toronto, represents about 7,000 women across Canada.

The BPW asked that working wives be allowed to earn up to $950 and still be classified as dependents on their husband's income tax return. They recommended that wives working in their husband's business receive "proper compensation," and that husbands be allowed to deduct these wages as a business expense.

Revenue Minister Benson, who attended the 90-minute meeting, said the whole "very complicated" problem of personal exemptions was under consideration by the royal commission on taxation which reports in a few weeks' time.

"I hope they will find a simple solution," he said, but there was not "any simple solution" to taxation problems.

NICHOLSON APPROVES

A request for research into part-time work for women met with approval from Labor Minister Nicholson. He said a large-scale study was needed to discover reasons behind women's decisions to accept a part-time position.

Two resolutions in the brief asked that forensic clinics be set up for sex criminals and mentally disturbed prisoners. The prime minister said responsibility for these matters would be transferred from the justice department to the solicitor general's department where they could be dealt with in detail.

To resolutions asking for royal commissions to bring divorce and abortion laws into line with "the realities of Canadian life," Mr. Pearson said he hoped seven private members bills on the order papers now would focus attention on the problems and stimulate public discussion.

And in response to two resolutions on equal pay for women, Mr. Pearson said the main problem was enforcement, and urged women to report any known breaches of the Female Employees Equal Pay Act, which says that women should receive the same pay as men for doing "substantially identical" work.

Various Factors Responsible For Child's Heart Condition

JOHN B. ARMSTRONG, M.D.
Canadian Heart Foundation

The heart you save may be the heart of a child, perhaps not yet born.

Or maybe it's a "blue baby", half a continent away, who will soon be given the gift of a full life by a miraculously complex and delicate open-heart operation.

Or it could be your own healthy youngster, who will be protected from the dreaded rheumatic fever aftermath of a "strep" infection by prompt treatment with penicillin.

All these young hearts and thousands more are the direct and dramatic beneficiaries of a mere two decades of medical progress. Twenty years ago, the outlook for a blue baby—a baby born with certain defects of the heart and blood vessels — was poor. Open-heart surgery was still in the realm of science fiction, and heart-lung machine were only projects on an investigator's drawing board.

Before medicine had a sure-fire weapon — penicillin — to knock out streptococcal infections, "strep" throats cast a sinister shadow of rheumatic fever whenever they struck. And because there were no defenses, they might strike again and again, each time carrying the threat of more damage to the victim's heart.

Even the statistics are dramatic. The death rate for rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease among children and young adults 5-24 years of age has declined 83 percent over the past 20 years. As many as 10,000 Canadians probably owe their lives to heart surgery. And for the thousands of youngsters with a history of rheumatic fever, protection is available against repeat attacks, while the menace of initial onset has been lifted for untold thousands now growing to adulthood.

And then there are the babies who could never have been born before the era of open-heart surgery. Surgical repair of a number of inborn or acquired heart defects has enabled many women to conceive and bear children. Necessary corrective surgery has even been carried out during pregnancy, with survival of both mother and baby.

Each year we gain new knowledge and new weapons, giving a chance to live and grow normally. As scientists learn more about the manner in which heart defects arise in the developing embryo, even the frontier of life before birth will be breached.

Medical research will one day find the answer to the big rheumatic fever question: how do streptococcal infections trigger an attack of rheumatic fever, why are only a small percentage susceptible, and what causes the heart damage rheumatic fever may leave in its wake? This knowledge can help us to consign rheumatic fever to medical limbo, along with such former scourges as smallpox and polio.

Your Heart Foundation has been an important motive power propelling heart disease research in this country since the first Heart Fund campaign in 1958. The money given by Canadians, year after year, has been the sustaining power, making medical progress possible, and also making it possible for your Heart Foundation to translate this progress into life-saving educational and community programs.

Successful Living

Reader Says Looks Are Over-emphasized

DEAR DORIS: I, too, have counselled a great many young people, not only when teaching, but now as a grapho-analyst. So I would like to chip in a few remarks for "Fourth Year Varsity", who is skinny and ugly, so he says, doesn't like homely girls and feels the beauties reject him.

DORIS CLARK

Now, my lad, I don't believe it is the girls at all. The trouble is in yourself. Do you have to be skinny? Why can't you find out how to be plump? Instead of bolstering up your ego by being seen with the beauty queen candidates you could learn to appreciate the homelier ones. Often they are the very nicest. And they are dependable, usually. They have to have what it takes and they find this out early and go to work on themselves instead of relying on lovely looks and all the glamor.

Why don't you do the same? You can't be such a charmer or looks wouldn't matter. Any young man, stress that any, who wants to learn to be gentlemanly and unfailingly considerate can get to date the most wonderful girl in the crowd. Canadian women of all ages fall for good manners like wheat before the scythe. They even go all out for criminals and confidence men very often because these rogues have good manners.

Besides, I don't believe your personality is so darned wonderful as you say it is or you'd have thought this up for yourself.— GREAT AUNT GRETA.

DEAR AUNT: Words of wisdom! Thanks for chipping in. I hope "Fourth Year Varsity" takes note.

Man in Street Getting Little Good News About Nuclear Weapons in World

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The man on the street is getting precious little good news these days on the nightmarish topic of nuclear weapons.

Millions of readers have followed with a sort of unhappy fascination the search that has gone on in the region of Palomares, Spain, ever since a United States H-bomber crashed there more than a month ago.

Now the Soviet Union has accused the U.S. of violating the 1963 partial test-ban treaty by contaminating Spanish soil and coastal waters as a result of its nuclear patrols.

That treaty was the last big step in nuclear-weapons control. Britain's Prime Minister Wilson, in his visit to Moscow next week, wants to discuss extending the treaty to include underground tests. He also hopes to discuss measures against proliferation.

Fears were expressed in the British Parliament this week that some of the radioactivity from the underground tests escapes through the earth's surface and contaminates the atmosphere.

The latest Soviet blast Feb. 13 was almost as big as the record test conducted a year ago—and that one did cause contamination, scientists say.

WILL DISCUSS PROBLEMS

The 17 - nation disarmament committee, which began sittings in Geneva Jan. 27, must wrestle with all these problems but it has given priority to non-proliferation, an extremely urgent issue.

There are a dozen countries now which could build their own nuclear weapons in a short time. India would need only slightly more than a year, it is estimated, from the time of decision-taking to detonation of the first bomb. Such countries as Canada, Israel, Japan, Australia and Sweden are well up on the list.

The Palomares incident—whether dangerous or not dangerous—gives a glimpse of what life might be like if possession of nuclear weapons began to spread, with attendant dangers of accident, let alone warfare.

Spanish Information Minister Manuel Fraga Iribarne assured reporters there is "no danger from radioactivity on land or sea" following the crash in which four H-bombs—one apparently still missing—are said to have fallen on land and in the ocean.

TOOK AWAY SOIL

But this does not explain why U.S. authorities lifted hundreds of tons of topsoil and carted it away for burial in a tunnel, or why the population of Palomares went on a tinned-food diet and reported for repeated medical checks.

Despite the spectacular search operations at sea by submarines and surface craft, one version of the Palomares situation is that the bombs which fell on land has caused much more concern to the U.S. authorities than the ones which fell in the water.

One report says that if the bomb casing split on impact, radioactivity might be released from the trigger mechanism even though there was no explosion. This could not only cause health dangers but also betray secrets about the bomb to an enemy who was able to obtain soil samples.

Attack

chase this aircraft—a decision which has alarmed everyone in this House and in this country."

Mr. Hellyer later had this to say for the defence:

"Experience with the F-5 in Viet Nam indicated that the Canadian CF-5 will be absolutely first-class in the ground support role.

SUITS CANADIAN NEEDS

"The CF-5 has many advantages which particularly suit the Canadian requirement. It is light, relatively unsophisticated, relatively inexpensive, easy to maintain, dual - engined and therefore very safe, and has a supersonic dash capability which gives it a self-protection within its own flight environment."

Mr. Nugent and other Conservatives questioned the range and other features of the CF-5, comparing it with the Avro Arrow that was scrapped by the Diefenbaker government in 1957.

Jack Horner (PC—Acadia) said the government is blindly going ahead with a "wasteful expenditure of $215,000,000" for a plane that has been turned down by the United States Air Force.

"This aircraft has been tried in Viet Nam and it has been proven that it is not a good combat plane."

Mr. Hellyer said RCAF Hercules transports will be equipped with booms to refuel the CF-5 on long flights. The CF-5 often needed a long runway to take off with a full load but it was shorter than for DC-8 jetliners and CF-104 interceptors.

A preliminary report on the USAF trials in Viet Nam showed that the F-5 could fly many missions each day, was stable and easy to pilot and simple to maintain. The final report was expected in April or May.

Mr. Hellyer said the integration of the three services is cutting administrative costs and setting a pattern for armed forces throughout the free world.

Total defence spending has been reduced by $85,775,739 in 1964-65 but further cuts would not be possible at this time because of commitments to Western allies.

He had cut defence spending by $143,000,000 in the two years he has been in charge of his department.

Considering the mounting cost of equipment and salary increases to service and civilian personnel, this amounted "to a real annual saving of $100,000,000" over the years.

Mr. Hellyer said his department's total spending in the fiscal year beginning next April 1 will be 18 per cent of the Canadian budget compared with 24 per cent in 1954.

He noted he had been criticized for the retirement of 500 RCAF pilots in 1964. Most of them would have been on retirement leave "in the normal course" at this time, he said.

Recruiting for the armed forces was down five per cent in 1965 over the previous year but this wasn't out of line considering the booming economy and the fact that young Canadians are staying in school longer.

He also said steps had been taken to provide new opportunities for French-Canadians and even more were being contemplated.

Mr. Hellyer said it is nonsense to claim that integration of the services is causing low morale. Integration was accepted by servicemen and admired by many other countries.

NEVER OWNED RIFLE

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—A U.S. federal district judge ruled Monday that the 6.5 - millimetre Mannlicher-Carcano rifle used to kill President John F. Kennedy must stay in the possession of the U.S. government. Judge Joe Estes agreed with government lawyers that since Lee Harvey Oswald ordered the weapon through the mails under a fictitious name, he never legally owned it.

Income Tax Tips

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax office.

By D. W. DAVIES, C.A.

When the taxpayer signs his name on the first page of the return, he certifies it is a true statement of all his income. If this is not so, then he has filed a false return. When this is found out by the Income Tax Department such taxpayers are dealt with most severely if the tax evaded is of a substantial amount.

Where the taxpayer has forgotten a T4 slip for just a small amount or overlooked other income of a trifling nature, it is usually accepted as a natural oversight and only the additional tax is assessed plus interest from April 30.

When a taxpayer has filed a return and afterwards discovers he has omitted an item of income, he should not file an amended return. The proper procedure is to wait until the Assessment Notice is received, then write to his local district income tax office, giving the details of the omitted income, and request that his original return be adjusted.

The most frequent item of income is interest on savings bonds. The taxpayer should note that every time he cashes a bond coupon, he signs a form at the bank known as a T600 for the amount of interest received. If he had taken the time to read this form he would have seen it was a report to the income tax office showing he had been paid that amount of interest. The income tax department matches these forms to the taxpayer's return and if the interest shown has not been reported, it will be added to his income and additional tax assessed plus interest.

For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: If I forget an item of income, should I file another return?

Answer: No. After you receive your assessment notice, write your local tax office, advising them of the omitted item and ask that your original return be adjusted.

Question 2: I paid my tax in full on April 30, but I have been assessed an amount for instalment interest. Why?

Answer: You probably did not have tax deducted at the source on 75 percent of your income, so you should have paid your tax quarterly. The interest assessed is on the quarterly payments you should have made.

Are Now Confident All Work Will Be Completed for Expo '67

By MICHAEL BLAIR

MONTREAL (CP) — Confidence is overflowing at Expo 67—confidence that the big exhibition will be fully completed before opening day, April 28, 1967.

The atmosphere permeates the temporary quarters of the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition high in downtown Montreal's Place Ville Marie, where most of the executives can see Expo construction five miles away by just looking out the window.

"That bridge was finished three months ahead of schedule using the critical path method of construction," said one executive as he pointed to the $10,500,000 Concordia Bridge linking MacKay Pier to Ile Ste. Helene, both of which along with Ile Notre Dame form the 986-acre site.

Behind their enthusiasm lie the computers that are guiding the course of everything and everyone at Expo.

The computers talk and Expo jumps.

"They enable us to keep track of everything, and when they talk we take action," said Andrew Kniewasser, Expo general manager.

The computers' major job is to make sure all construction schedules filed with the exhibition are possible, and if they are that contractors adhere to them.

DELAYS AVOIDED

"All participants must file a critical path plan to make sure we know how long construction will take, and when regular construction reports are filed the computer makes sure everything is on time.

"When it's not, we find out why and remedy the situation before it gets out of hand."

Through constant checks and cross-checks, said Mr. Kniewasser in an interview, all construction is on time and the $425,000,000 worth of building will be underway by spring.

The target for completion of all major pavilions and facilities is January, 1967, a full three months before the exhibition opens.

Despite rapidly approaching deadlines, countries, companies and municipal governments are still announcing their participation.

Tenders are currently out for Montreal's proposed $11,000,000 tower project, which will offer about the same attractions as the scrapped Montreal - Paris tower. It will be 1,066 feet high—or 325 metres, to celebrate the 325th anniversary of Montreal's founding.

Will it be completed on time? Yes, says the computer which has digested the details.

OLD RECORD TOPPED

Recently Brazil and Kenya announced their participation to boost the total number of nations at Expo to 70, far exceeding the old record of 45 which participated in the 1958 world's fair at Brussels.

Their governments cover a wide range of ideologies, all of which will intermingle at Expo.

They include the Soviet Union, United States, Korea, Haiti, Israel, United Arab Republic, Britain, Ireland, Ethiopia, India and Australia—representing every continent and area of the globe.

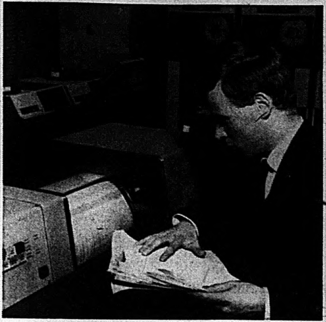
Expo will also represent the two Canadian cultures—French and English—with all 10 provinces participating. Ontario will spend $5,000,000 to tell its story and the Quebec government an estimated $4,000,000.

To date, more than 700 Canadian companies have announced they will participate, many of them with joint pavilions representing certain areas of industry.

The most recently announced major pavilion by a private company is an aquarium to be built by the City of Montreal and financed by the Aluminum Company of Canada at a cost of $2,000,000.

Computers agreed with humans—all the fish can be in by opening day.

Tomorrow: Building going ahead full steam on site of Expo 67



KEEPS WORK ON SCHEDULE — Data processor Roger Withers works over critical path programs in the Expo 67 project control centre. The corporation uses computers to keep track of building and other programs connected with the exhibition. Organizers are confident it will be ready by opening day April 28, 1967. (CP Photo)

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

Sports Editor

During King Clancy's first term with the Toronto Maple Leafs in 1930, a priest talked him into donning a cassock and helping out as a "ringer" in a hockey game between two Roman Catholic seminaries.

"By Heaven" recalls Clancy "that was the roughest game I've ever been in."

The above in an excerpt from Dave MacDonald's fine piece "Canada's Games Scores Abroad" condensed in the March issue of the Readers' Digest.

Macdonald recalls quips, sallies, anecdotes and other colorful whatnot even if he does goof by stating the world ameteur championship was taken over by Russia in 1955. He probably didn't hear about teams like the 1958 Whitby Dunlops and the 1959 Belleville McFarlands.

Players rarely hear incitements to mayhem but there is the case of the Quebec player who hurled hunks of raw meat into the stands with:- "You wolves have been howling for blood all year. Maybe this will keep you quiet."

Then there's the woman who thinks a tough defenceman resembles her husband. When he gets "conked" she feels better.

Stitch marks identify the real pro. There's "Scarface" Lindsay and Bill Gadsby with over 500 suture marks adorning their manly beauty. When Ranger goalie Chuck Raynor was having a dozen inserted he remarked dryly "Y'know, a guy could get hurt in this game."

I question MacDonald's statement that Rocket Richard, "in his heyday received far fan adulation than Bobby Hull. Richard used to stop traffic" he writes, "and once was paid $25,000 not to play lest his lustre dim with age."

Fan dedication to the sport reached the heights years ago. Back in 1906 in a grudge match between Cobalt and Haileybury, a Cobalt lwayer bet $50,000 - a fortune - and went broke. The Haileybury winner rewarded his team handsomely - with a silver mine.

Then down in Glace Bay, Nova Scotia, 5,000 miners chipped in to buy a rink for their own semi-pro team, then threatened to strike when their star goalie was disqualified on a technicality.

In the heat of battle fans are fickle. Top stars are champs one minute - and chumps the next. Way back when Gordie Drillon was the hero of Toronto fans they switched from praise to "razz" for loafing on the job.

When a newspaper photo showed six Maple Leafs serving as pallbearers at the team doctor's funeral, one wag sent it to the coach with the query: "Is Drillon carrying his share of the load?"

And Saturday night is the "old man's night" at the television set. Over 6,500,000 fans both sexes are said to watch the NHL tilts. It's a sacred rite, not to be denied. When Ottawa police were called to a rowdy domestic fight last winter, the husband pleaded extreme provocation. She turned off the hockey game."

And that feeling goes for the rest of the family. Not long ago a Montreal player who flubbed an easy shot was pained to hear his own son razzing him from the stands. Later, at home, he demanded an explanation.

Junior without batting an eyebrow replied. "When you score, you're my father. But when you miss an open goal, daddy, you're a bum."

The strain of responsibilities tends to make goalies age fast. An NHL veteran watching Terry Sawchuk play asked "How old is that boy?" He was told 24.

"Next year," the veteran remarked sadly "he'll be 34."

Detroit's young sensation Roger Crozier developed an ulser when he was 17. Chicago's Glenn Hall still gets nauseated before a game.

In the sudden-death overtime period to end the 1954 Stanley Cup finals the Habs' goalie was about to catch a long easy shot when one of his own mates swung in front of him and accidentally knocked the puck into the net — at a cost of $1,500 in bonuses for each member of the team. After stewing all summer over that one shot. McNeill gave up his $15,000 job. "No money" he said, "is worth that misery".

Orr Sets Score Record

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) The one goal scored by Oshawa General's Bobby Orr in his team's 4-4 tie with Montreal last Saturday gave him an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A scoring record for rearguards in a single season.

That was the only point Orr scored, however, and he dropped to third place in the standings behind Andre Lacroix of Peterborough Petes and team-mate Dan Grant.

Orr has 35 goals and 54 assists in 42 games. Last year, while playing in all 56 games in which his team participated, he had 34 goals and 59 assists for 93 points.

Lacroix added three goals and three assists last week and now has 112 points on 36 goals and 76 assists.

Grant has 90 points on 42 goals and 48 assists. Mickey Redmond, third member of the Petes' prolific line, is in fourth place with 39 goals and 48 assists.

Ted Ouimet of Montreal leads goal-tenders in the league's goals-against average with a 3.09 mark. The Flyers' Bobby Ring holds second place with a 3.18 average, while Brian Caley of the Petes is third with 3.20.

Vancouver Told To 'Fight Like H...'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A committee protesting the National Hockey League decision not to grant Vancouver a franchise will wire a protest to Prime Minister Pearson Thursday.

FRANK SELKE SR.

A spokesman for the National Hockey League Franchise for Vancouver Committee said Monday the wire, to be sent after a mass meeting Thursday night, will ask Mr. Pearson to intervene in obtaining a franchise for the city.

The committee is also organizing a mass petition to submit to the NHL board of governors.

Frank J. Selke, vice-chairman of the board of Montreal Canadiens and for 35 years a major voice in NHL affairs, arrived in Vancouver Monday and said the city should "fight like hell" to get a franchise.

All the new franchises went to proposed U.S. teams.

Selke arrived from Montreal to meet officials of the Pacific National Exhibition who will build a giant $8,000,000 trade-sports arena on Vancouver's exhibition grounds. The arena project will go ahead although the franchise bid was unsuccessful.

"I'm here at the invitation of the PNE and I'm not speaking for the Canadiens or the NHL right now," he told reporters on his arrival by plane. "Tomorrow I'll try and tell you how I'd fight like hell, but not today."

He said he wanted to help Vancouver "in whatever way I can" to get an NHL franchise. He added he believes he knows why the city's application was turned down "but I'm not about to say just yet."

Schoolboy Curling

Ontario, Saskatchewan Tops

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — They got there by different routes, but Ontario and Saskatchewan were tied atop the Canadian schoolboy bonspiel standings Monday night after two rounds of play.

Kingston Collegiate and Vocational Institute coasted to an 11-3 victory over Brian Howes' Alberta rink from Calgary in the second draw, while Saskatchewan had to struggle through an extra end to earn its 10-9 decision over Nova Scotia.

Kingston skip Mike Boyd and Bill Ross of Humboldt, Sask., each had 2-0 win-loss marks.

Other members of the Kingston rink are Christopher Boon, lead, Jack Hamilton, second, and William Stephenson, vice-skip.

Ontario defeated British Columbia 9-6 and Saskatchewan drubbed Prince Edward Island 12-5 in the round-robin tournament's opening round Monday afternoon.

QUEBEC PULLS THROUGH

The best trick of the day was Quebec's sleight of hand in pulling a win out of thin air in its second-draw game against Manitoba. The Arvida team skipped by Leslie Hollands edged George Wilson's Charleswood entry 7-6 after trailing 6-0 as late as the seventh end.

A single point in the eighth end and three in the ninth brought Quebec within range. A missed takeout attempt by Wilson with Arvida lying three in the final end let Quebec steal the match and even its record at 1-1.

On the two other lanes Monday night, British Columbia, skipped by Doug Engstrom of Prince George, counted a single point in the 10th end to nip Bev Groves' Edmundston, N.B., foursome 8-7, and Wayne Steski's Northern Ontario rink from North Bay gained its first victory with a 7-6 decision over Newfoundland after drawing the bye in the first round.

Keith Maceachern's Prince Edward Island rink from Charlottetown sat out the second-round bye.

In the first round, Alberta defeated Danny Herder of St. John's 12-5; New Brunswick downed Quebec 9-6; and Don Blinz of Truro, N.S., skipped his crew to a 9-7 victory over Manitoba.

Waterloo U. In Playdowns

GUELPH (CP) — University of Waterloo Warriors tuned up for the Wilson Cup playdowns at Windsor Saturday as they waltzed to an easy 75-41 victory over University of Guelph Redmen Monday night.

It was the final Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association basketball league contest of the regular season for both clubs.

Bob Eaton led the way for Waterloo with 23 points. Neil Rourke added 13 points, Dick Aldridge 12 and Bob Pando 10.

Ty Burch paced the losers with 19 points and Bill Brown followed with 14.

Waterloo will be one of four teams contesting the O-QAA championship at Windsor. Other entries are University of Windsor Lancers, defending champions; University of Toronto Blues and Queen's University Golden Gaels.

Playoff Chances Slim

Kingston Jolts Rollins' Hopes

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Belleville Rollins' chances of catching a Junior playoff berth hang by a mathematical string today after the locals dropped a tough 6-4 decision to the front running Kingston Frontenacs here last night.

This loss, combined with Peterborough's 5-4 win over Trenton, in Lakefield, left Belleville four points back with only two games left to play. They go to Oshawa Friday and the same two clubs are back here Monday.

Rollins can tie for fourth by winning both their games while either Peterborough or Trenton lose all theirs.

Rollins battled uphill all the way before finally taking a 4-3 lead early in the third. But, despite outshooting the visitors 14-8 on the period, they faltered. Kingston led 2-1 at the end of the first and 3-2 after forty minutes.

A last great chance came when two Frontenacs were penalized, at 18.00 and 18.15, with the score 5-4. Rollins pressed and came close before lifting Brant for another attacker at 19.15. Again they missed by a hair and finally Frontenac ice general Dennis Kearns worked in close to hit the empty net with the clincher at 19.47.

Kearns had two goals and two assists but shared the spotlight with three-goal performer Rod Graham. Ed Leeman added the other goal.

Bob Boyle again paced Rollins with one goal and two assists while Carl Boomhower got one of each. Doug Potts and Jim Pringle also scored and Harold Townsend had one helper.

The winners held an overall shooting edge of 37-35 and drew seven of 11 minor penalties.

Pete Fleming, unable to buy a goal lately, missed giving Belleville an early lead when he stole the puck and walked in alone at 4.45. He deked Coates but his shot missed. Graham opened the scoring at 11.42 and Potts tied it with a sizzling slapper at 17.47. Kearns scored a fluke goal at 19.15, deflecting a shot home while flat on the ice with Potts atop him.

Boomhower's persistence earned him the equalizer after 55 seconds of the middle frame. Another slider along the ice on a rebound, by Graham, again cost Belleville hte lead at 15.14.

In the third, Pringle netted a high backhand on Boomhower's setup with the clubs five aside at 1.43. Boyle put Belleville ahead for the only time when he kept plugging in close at 5.16. Graham blasted home the 4-4 goal at 9.08 and Leeman's soft shot, with Rollins shorthanded, won it at 15.38.

Rollins had 14-year-old defenceman Mike Healey and forward Ray Summers dressed and neither looked out of place. They are from the ousted city midget squad.

The Strollin' 20s Nicely Produced by Bellafonte

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The Strollin' 20s, CBS' special Monday night, was a nicely understated memoir to New York's Harlem of almost 40 years ago.

An all-Negro cast of performers spoke the words of poet Langston Hughes and sang and danced to the music of Duke Ellington.

Some of the performers—Sammy Davis Jr., George Kirby and Diahann Carroll — gently kidded the dancing, comedy and singing styles a bit. But Sidney Poitier, who guided the audience on its stroll down Lenox Avenue, looked back on it all with warmth and love—even the rent partie and the Charleston.

It was a delightful and unusual program, put together with taste and honesty by Harry Belafonte.

In the latest national Nielsen ratings, covering a period of two weeks ending Feb. 6, Batman dropped out of the top 10 to come in 11th and 12th on the list. ABC's new series had rated eighth and ninth in the previous list—two ratings since it is on twice a week.

Leaders were, in order, NBC's Bonanza, ABC's Bewitched, CBS' Red Skelton Hour, Gomer Pyle, Lucy Show, Beverly Hillbillies, Green Acres, Hogan's Heroes, Andy Griffith Show and NBC's Get Smart.

Three of the top 10 were new series this season—Green Acres, Hogan's Heroes and Get Smart.

Recommended tonight:

Young People's Concert, CBS, 7:30-8:30 EST, Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic Orchestra with teen-age piano soloits and young conductors as guests.

Hawks, Wings Lead Pack In Points

Rousseau Moves Up

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Canadiens picked up four points in National Hockey League action over the weekend to gain sole possession of second place but failed in a bid to catch the league-leading Chicago Black Hawks.

The Hawks lost to Montreal 5-2 Saturday night but won their game with Boston Bruins 5-1 Sunday. Detroit Red Wings which had shared the number two spot with Montreal after last Wednesday's game fell victim to fifth-place Boston Saturday night and lost 5-1. However, Detroit won their game with Toronto Maple Leafs 4-1 Sunday.

The Bruins had defeated Detroit both Wednesday and Saturday night but were unable to overcome the Hawks Sunday. Detroit had won their previous nine games against Boston but the tide turned Feb. 6 when the teams tied.

Toronto still holds fourth place with a comfortable lead over Boston who are only two points ahead of cellar-dwelling New York Rangers.

The Hawks golden jet, Bobby Hull, returned to the scoring race in the game against Boston Sunday after having been held pointless in Saturday's game with Montreal.

SCORES GOAL

He picked up a goal against Boston, his 47th tally of the season and only three off the record for goals scored in one season.

He also picked up an assist which gives him a point total of 77 and top spot in the standings. Runner-up is Norm Ullman of Detroit with 64.

In other games over the weekend, Toronto was beaten 3-1 by New York Saturday night and Montreal beat New York 5-3 Sunday night.

Bobby Rousseau of Montreal moved into fifth place in the scoring listings with 56 points after Alex Delvecchio of Detroit was unable to pick up a point in two games.

Stan Mikita of Chicago held onto third place with 62 points followed by Gordie Howe of Detroit in fourth with 60 points. Behind sixth-place Delvecchio, who has 54 points, are Jean Beliveau of Montreal, seventh with 52, and Henri Richard, eighth with 51.

HAWKS ARE FIRST

In league standings, Chicago is first with 65 points, Montreal is second with 63, Detroit third with 61, Toronto fourth with 53, Boston fifth with 36 and New York is last with 34.

The next games are scheduled for Wednesday night when Boston will be at Montreal, Toronto at Chicago and Detroit at New York.

Paul Andrea, the 24-year-old right winger from North Sydney, N.S., is doing all right in the Central Professional Hockey League scoring race for someone who left the league last week.

Andrea, formerly of Minnesota Rangers, was called up to the parent New York club in the National Hockey League last week. But he still holds down second place in scoring with 66 points and leads the league in goals with 32.

One point ahead of him in first place is Art Stratton of St. Louis Braves. The Winnipeg native has a league-leading 48 assists and also has 19 goals for 67 points.

Nine points behind Andrea are Bill Inglis of Ottawa and Andre Boudrias of Montreal, teammates with Houston Apollos. They share third place with 57 points each.

World Figure-Skating

Rain Pelts Alpine Resort

DAVOS (CP-AP)—The best of Canada's current crop of amateur figure skaters were on hand as the 1966 world championships were officially opened Monday night in this rain-pelted Swiss Alpine resort.

Heading the Canadian skating invasion are Petra Burka, 19, of Toronto, the defending women's singles champion, and Donald Knight, 18, of Dundas, Ont., Canadian senior champion who placed third in the 1965 world men's singles.

Skaters representing 13 countries gathered in Davos' city hall to hear the mayor welcome them and declare the event opened. Competition begins today.

Persistent drizzle hampered final practice sessions on the open-air Davos skating rink.

SKATERS COMPLAIN

The skaters were unanimous in complaining about the weather, which was getting steadily warmer. A warm wind blew fog over the adjacent mountains and this, combined with rain, made the natural-ice practice rink useless.

Competitors were given limited time to practise on the main rink, which has artificial ice, but found its surface uneven and treacherous for figure skating.

Miss Burka, voted outstanding woman athlete of Canada in 1964 and 1965, is regarded as possibly the best women's free skater in the world. Of Dutch and Czech parentage, she is coached by her mother, Ellen Burka. She has been a member of Canada's world team since 1962. At the 1964 Winter Olympics at Innsbruck, Austria, she placed third, and last year she took the world title.

Also competing in the women's singles are Valerie Jones and Roberta Laurent, two 17-year-olds from Toronto.

Knight, a red-haired student who stands only five feet, four inches and weighs 125 pounds, is coached by Sheldon Galbraith of Toronto.

Palmer Doubles In 'Gold'

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP)—Arnold Palmer is far ahead in golf winnings so far this year with more than twice those of his nearest opponents after finishing among the first five in all tournaments in which he played.

The Professional Golfers Association reported Monday that Palmer has won one and been among the first five in four other tourneys to earn $32,438, including $14,412 in official events.

Joe Campbell is next in official winnings, but Billy Casper is slightly ahead of Campbell in total money with $15,346 to $15,102. The official, unofficial and total figures are for tournaments through the Tucson Open.

1. Arnold Palmer, $14,412, $18,025, $32,438; 2. Joe Campbell, $12,100, $3,002, $15,102; 3. Billy Casper, $10,899, $4,455, $15,346; 4. Gene Littler, $9,961, $507, $10,468; 5. Ken Venturi, $9,675, $575, $10,250.

Finish Second, Juckes

TORONTO (CP) — Gordon Juckes, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, stood alone Monday night in his opinion that the Canadian national hockey team will finish second in the world championships at Ljubljana, Yugoslavia.

Before boarding the plane with the team and six officials, Juckes said: "Naturally we're trying for first, but I doubt if we'll make it.

"I'm not a defeatist, but if we finish second I think we'll be fortunate."

Ken Broderick, one of three goalkeepers on the team, thought otherwise and his promise to bring back the world title brought cheers from the other players.

BOSTON (AP)—Boston Red Sox announced Monday the signing of five more players, leaving 11 still outside the fold for the 1966 season. The latest to return signed contracts were pitchers Dan Osinski and Jose Santiago, catcher Russ Nixon, first baseman Tony Horton and rookie outfielder Reggie Smith.

- "The Blues" — Some of the best veteran exponents of the blues will be seen this week on CBC-TV's Festival from 8:30 to 9:30. The influence of blues is felt in many music idioms, and its beat pulsates through gospel singing, folk music, and jazz. Even the raucous thumping of contemporary "rhythm and blues" and "folk-rock" is deeply rooted in the tradition of the blues. Among those appearing in this concert will be Sonny Terry and Brownie McGhee, Jesse Fuller ("the one-man band"), and Muddy Waters.
- Beginning at 9:30, Festival presents the 90-minute drama "The Murderer." Adapted from one of the classic tragedies, Dostoevsky's "Crime and Punishment," this CBC production shows that, despite its age, the gripping tale has a strangely contemporary flavor in its intimate understanding of the relation between good and evil which exists in the hidden recesses of the human mind. "The Murderer" is the story of a proud young man who feels he must test his superiority over what he calls "the louse-in-the-street" by killing an old woman and playing a cat-and-mouse game with the police."

Nicklaus Gets Bee Treatment

Here's Mud In Your Eye

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP)—Jack Nicklaus had a pained, puzzled look and a handful of mud plastered on his face.

Little gobs of mucky good dribbled down from his forehead while he stomped around the Zwartpkops Country Club course muttering:

"Lady, are you sure this is gonna work?"

Nicklaus and Gary Player were on the eighth tee of their first 18-hole round in a $50,000, six-match special challenge series when a swarm of angry bees boiled out of a tree and descended on players and spectators.

Both Nicklaus and Player were stung on the face and arms and given first aid. Five spectators were stung so seriously they were taken to a hospital for treatment.

"I've got just the remedy," a woman spectator said to Nicklaus. And she scooped up a handful of mud and slapped it on Jack's forehead.

He wore it for about 10 minutes before play was resumed and then scraped it off.

Player had a two stroke lead at that point, and they agreed to skip the eighth and the bees, each writing in a par four.

Player picked up another stroke on the ninth, but Nicklaus closed birdie-eagle-birdie and gained a tie, each finishing with a three-under-par 69.

The second match in the series was scheduled today at Bloemfontein, 240 miles southwest of Johannesburg

Montreal's Zardini

Crash Kills Canadian Sledder

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP)—Daredevil bobsledding crews were expected to continue their mercurial descents down the ice-slick Mount Van Hoevenber chute today after attending a requiem mass for former world champion Sergio Zardini of Montreal.

Zardini, the father of two small children, was killed Monday when his 800-pound sled crashed on the treacherous Zig-Zag curve during four-man competition for the Diamond International Trophy.

Despite the second death of a noted bobsledder in less than three weeks—Germany's Anton Pensberger was killed during the eventually-suspended world championships Feb. 6—the competitors were expected to continue with two-man runs today.

Zardini, an Italian who came to Montreal two years ago, and his Canadian crew started their run down the dangerous course earlier than they were scheduled after U.S. bobsledder Joe McKillip listened to his pleading wife and decided not to compete on the icy course.

The course had been made treacherous by recent sub-zero temperatures, track officials said, so that sleds tended to slide sideways through a curve on the one-mile run instead of riding with it.

A wooden superstructure is in place at the top of the Zig-Zag to prevent sleds from going off the track, and as Zardini's sled sped down the chute on its run, the sled cracked into the railing.

The four crew members were scattered on the track as the sled continued to plummet down the course and across the finish line. Race officials and spectators rushed on to the course, covering the bleeding men with blankets.

Zardini was dead on arrival at hospital.

One crew member, Mike Young of London, Ont., was in hospital but reported in satisfactory condition. Paul Levesque of Montreal was treated and released. Bob Storey of Toronto escaped injury.

Meet Top Three

Final Stages Tough For Nationals

LONDON (CP)—Canada's national hockey team will meet its toughest opposition in the last stages in the world amateur hockey championships March 3-13 at Ljubljana, Yugoslavia.

Canada, seeking its first world title since 1961, is scheduled to play its last three games in the round-robin tournament against Czechoslovakia, Russia and Sweden—teams that have finished ahead of Canada for the last three years.

The schedule for the eight-team championship group gives Canada three night games, two in the morning and two in the afternoon. Ljubljana time is six hours ahead of Eastern Standard Time and the latest Canadian face-off will be at 2:30 p.m. EST.

The schedule lists no games for March 4 and March 7. The Canadians have a rest March 9 and March 12 as well.

Canada's games: (All times in EST)

March 3—United States 2:30 p.m.; March 5—Poland 4 a.m.; March 6—Finland 7:30 a.m.; March 8—East Germany 2:30 p.m.; March 10—Czechoslovakia 7:30 a.m.; March 11—Russia 2:30 p.m.; March 13—Sweden 5 a.m.

In Winnipeg, a crowd of about 500, most of them school children, turned out with good luck wishes when the Canadian team left here Monday for Europe and the world championships.

The entourage consisted of 19 players, including playing-coach Jackie McLeod, special adviser Rev. David Bauer, publicity director Phil Reimer, trainer Bill Bozak, team physician Dr. Jack Waugh and Gordon Juckes of Melville, Sask., secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

CFL Opens Annual Meeting

CALGARY (CP) — Representatives of all nine Canadian Football League clubs gathered here today for an annual meeting expected to be dominated by discussions of possible formation of a single autonomous league.

A Committee of One League reported in Winnipeg earlier this month that objectives common to the eastern and western conferences should be established as an early step toward formation of the autonomous circuit.

Announcement of the 1966 CFL schedule and the annual draft of graduating Canadian college players will also take place during the meetings.

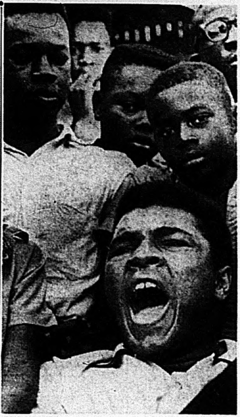
Illinois Governor Demands Apology

Clay's "Big Mouth" May Cancel Fight



CASSIUS CLAY

CHICAGO (AP)—The draft board has cleared the way for Cassius Clay to meet Ernie Terrell for the heavyweight championship but now Clay must clear another serious hurdle threatening the fight by apologizing for what the Illinois governor termed "unpatriotic remarks."

A final verdict on the scheduled March 29 bout will not come until Friday when Clay is scheduled to fly from his Miami training quarters and apologize for remarks attributed to him following his reclassification to 1-A by the Louisville draft board last week.

The latest threat to the often-threatened fight came with a sudden explosion Monday by Illinois officials as Governor Otto Kerner, Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley and other political figures urged the Illinois athletic commission to call off the fight.

At a press conference in Springfield, Ill., Kerner termed Clay's statements "disgusting."

Commission chairman Joe Triner announced that Clay had called him from Miami and told him he would apologize to the governor, the commission and to the public "for having his big mouth make the statements that he did."

MADE ELIGIBLE

The board last Friday changed Clay's classification from 1-Y to 1-A, making him eligible for the draft. That apparently rankled Clay, who was quoted as saying:

"I am a member of the Black Muslims, and we don't go to no wars unless they're declared by Allah himself. I don't have no personal quarrel with those Viet Congs."

Clay also was quoted as saying that through the taxes collected on every fight he has the government picks up enough money to buy three jets.

The Pentagon corrected Clay, pointing out that the price of jet planes range from $2,500,000 to $10,000,000.

Triner, asked if he believed political pressure brought throughout the state might force the licence to be revoked, said:

"Governor Kerner told me that he would be satisfied with an apology from Clay."

Triner did say, however, that he would withhold any decision until Clay makes his appearance Friday at noon.

Davis Cup

Canada Meets Finland

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP)—The United States and Mexico have drawn byes in the first round of the American zone in this year's Davis Cup tennis competition.

Only six nations have entered the zone competition. The draw made by the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia Monday night pits the British Caribbean against Venezuela and Argentina against Chile in the first round.

In Toronto, Sydney Hermant, vice-president of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association, said Canada is not in the American zone this year. Instead it will play Finland in May.

He said Canada had been in the American zone for many years and was forced to play against the United States or Mexico and "we were beaten before we started."

Playing against Finland gives Canada a good chance to win because, like Canada, Finland is a small country with a lot of amateurs.

In the North American zone, the United States will meet the winner of the British Caribbean and Venezuela series in the second round and Mexico will play the Argentina-Chile winner.

Dates for the matches will be announced later.

Seneca Chief To Entertain Mohawk Pupils

Upwards of 120 children from grades four to eight of the Quinte Mohawk School will get an insight into ten-pin bowling on Thursday between 3 and 4 p.m.

The Indian youngsters will be the guests of the Brunswick Bowl which tomorrow and Thursday features the appearance of a full - blooded Seneca tribesman Chief Halftown of Philadelphia.

During his stay here the chief will visit city schools and appear at the Bowl Wednesday and Thursday evening for free instructional purposes.

It will be the first time in the chief's bowling career that he will entertain Indian children.

The youngsters will be transported to the Bowl by the buses operated by Mrs. Lucretia Maracle.

The chief is a direct descendant of the chief who signed the Seneca peace treaty with the United States in 1794. Under the terms of that treaty he receives a token grant of calico and money from the U.S. government each year.

He is a topflight bowler averaging as high as 197 in league play.

Count E. de Villefranche, French nobleman, sportsman and car enthusiast was skeptical that a new Ford could ride quieter than a hand fitted Citroen Chapron made by the greatest custom coachbuilder in France . . . but then he drove the Ford.

Count Villefranche didn't believe a '66 Ford could ride quieter than a custom-built Citroen

...until he drove the Ford.

Ford's Quiet Man, who recently demonstrated the exceptional quality of the 1966 Ford to owners of some of the world's most expensive cars, here discusses the '66 Ford XL with Count Villefranche at Chateau Villarceaux outside Paris.

Compare your car with the quiet of Ford's solidly built body. Take a "Quiet Test" today.

"Ah, your Ford is not only beautiful, it is quieter!" said Count Villefranche, after driving the '66 Ford.

No wonder the Count was surprised. He drives a very quiet car himself. The Citroen Chapron "Majestie", the most exclusive car made in France today—custom built by the great Henri Chapron. The "springs" of this car are spheres of nitrogen, the body is all leather-lined, even the roof, and every part is fitted by hand.

But when the Count had finished driving the Ford XL, he said "It seems to me most remarkable that a factory-made car like this Ford could be more quiet, more grand luxe, than a car made individually by craftsmen".

Compare your car with a '66 Ford and you'll begin to understand the Count's surprise. Ford's quiet ride is the result of more built-in quality—a strong, solid body with quality to compare with the world's most expensive automobiles. It gives you years of dependable operation, years of satisfying ownership.

You also get Ford's wonderful new ideas for your comfort and convenience. Stereo Tape players. Silent-Flo ventilation. A "Magic Doorgate" on wagons that swings open like a door, or swings down like a tailgate. And a host of other features first offered by Ford.

Drive your car to your Ford Dealer. Then compare the quiet ride you get from Ford's solid quality.

Leaders for the 2nd. Napanee Girl Guides are Mrs. Maurice McCracken as captain and Mary Madden as lieutenant. They meet in Trinity, also. The 3rd Napanee Guides, meeting in the Memorial building, have Mrs. G. F. McArthur as captain and Susan Penny as lieutenant.

Mrs. Werk Poole is Tawny Owl and Mrs. Ed- Hooper is Brown Owl for the 1st. Napanee Brownie Pack, which meets in St. Mary Magdalene's Church; Mrs. A. F. Cockburn, Brown Owl, for 2nd. Napanee Brownies has no Tawny Owl to assist, but makes use of her Packies: Helene Belair, Judy Cockburn and Nancy Owen. Brown Owl for the 3rd. Napanee Brownie Pack is Miss Lily Jean Rombough, with Miss Margaret Pugh as Brown Owl, and Mrs. Randall Wagar as a second assistant.

QUEEN'S SCOUT ASSISTS

The 3rd. Napanee Scout Troop is led by Kenneth Coleman, with the assistance of Queen's Scout Clive Whitfield, not yet old enough to be appointed officially. Cub Pack leaders are Mrs. Eleanor Tack and Mrs. William Dibb.

Additional leaders present were Mrs. D. C. McVicker, Division Commissioner and Mrs. James Belair, District Commissioner.

The service itself was an impressive one, with the boys and girls taking a leading part. The flags were paraded and placed at the front by color bearers Karen Gillott, Sandra Wagar, Bonnie McDonald, Judith South, Frank Moreland and Randy Moreland. Scout Jay Schermerhorn announced the hymns throughout and Christine Casey and Cathy Alkenbrack read the Scripture lessons.

The minister, the Rev. E. Irvine Johnstone, a King's Scout, presented Guide Religion and Life awards to Cathy Alkenbrack, Nancy Poole and Judy Robertson. He also presented Cub Religion and Life awards to Peter Davis, George Demill, Terry Howie and Frank Moreland. During the service in Grace Church that evening four other Cubs, also in Mr. Johnstone's class, received their awards from the minister of that church. They were Bobby Snider, Tommy Cox, Brian Wayte and Brian Swenson.

SERVICE AT ST. PATRICK'S

Approximately 25 Scouts Cubs, Girl Guides and Brownies attended the 8 a.m. Mass in St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church Sunday morning. Two were from Newburgh and the rest from Napanee.

Leaders accompanying them were Mrs. James Belair, district commissioner for the Girl Guides for the Napanee Valley district; Miss Lily Jean Rombough, Brown Owl for the Third Napanee Brownies; Mrs. Eleanor Tack, leader of the Third Napanee Cubs, and Robert Casey, commissioner for the Napanee Valley District Boy Scouts.

Monsignor Leacy welcomed the boys and girls, and drew attention to the unselfishness and the devotion of their leaders.

Fire Destroys Frame House In Hawley

NAPANEE — Fire totally destroyed the frame home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Asselstine of Hawley Sunday afternoon. Flames were first seen in the ceiling of a bedroom by their daughter, Mrs. Donald Real, a teacher from near Pickering, who, with her husband, was at home for the weekend. Mr. Asselstine is of the opinion that sparks from the chimney caught in the cedar shingles and were fanned by the high wind. There was a wood-burning stove in the kitchen.

Bath volunteer firemen, neighbors, and a tank truck from Napanee faced a hopeless job, hampered by near-zero weather, high wind, and lack of water. The two-storied frame house was reduced to ashes in a short time. Neighbors and firemen stayed at the scene all night in case sparks should ignite other farm buildings.

Much of the furniture from the lower storey was saved, and neighbors came with trucks to take it away where it could be sheltered. Very little was saved from the second storey.

There is insurance, but no estimate has yet been given of the loss. No one was injured.

Hawley is on the Hamburg Road, nine miles south of Napanee and four miles north of Bath.

Put Last Minute Touches On New County Hospital

NAPANEE — Will the Lennox and Addington County Hospital be ready to receive its first patient March 1, the date set as a goal? Those who roamed its corridors and visited its various departments Sunday had grave doubts, but "Come back tomorrow at this time and see what a lot is accomplished in one day", administrator James Hepburn said hopefully.

Members of the auxiliary were there in force getting acquainted with the building prepratory to acting as guides for Open House next weekend, when the public will be allowed to visit areas of the hospital which will be closed to them once patients arrive.

The basic work is done, but there is still a lot of finishing up and cleaning ahead for contractors, including electricians, and for the cleaning staff. But floors and walls are in place and finished, and cupboards and filing cabinets are ready. Some of the furnishings for the patients' rooms are in the basements, with beds promised any day now.

EQUIPMENT STILL PACKED

Much of the equipment is still in cases, and some has not yet arrived. But March 1 is still a whole week away. Meanwhile, a man of 91 who is now in Kingston General Hospital is counting the days until he can come home to "our own" hospital.

While the general impression was one of confusion, an impression of spaciousness and brightness was even stronger. Corridors are wide, rooms are large enough that patients will not feel shut in. Walls and ceilings are in pastel shades, so unobtrusive in coloring that it is hard to remember just what that color is. All color highlights will be in the draperies, visitors were told, and most of these are ready for hanging.

Meanwhile, everyone connected with the work is optimistic that the goal can be reached. "The progress in the last two weeks has been fantastic". one official said

The budget for the approval of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission is to be in the mail Tuesday night, James Adams, the accountant, stated.

Hopes Are Dim For More Trade With Red Lands

TORONTO (CP) — Prospects for increased trade between Canada and Communist countries during the next decade are dim, a University of Toronto professor says in a trade study published Monday.

Prof. Ian M. Drummond says Canada may hope for continuing large grain sales to China for some years, but grain sales to the Soviet Union and Eastern European communist states will dwindle during the next 10 years.

"Our other exports have always been small, and they will continue to be small," he says in the study called "Canada's Trade with the Communist Countries of Eastern Europe," sponsored by the Canadian trade committee of the Private Planning Association of Canada.

He describes as a strategic device talk that Communist countries cannot continue to buy much more from Canada than they sell to this country.

"If the Communist trade planners attach especially high value to Canadian goods, they will find the means to pay for them, whether or not Canada imports heavily from the Communist countries," Prof. Drummond says.

Canada has a role to play in helping the Communist countries fit into a system of multilateral trade by which the Western countries find the foreign exchange for buying necessary imports by balancing trade surpluses with some countries against deficits with others.

"We can gently urge our Western European allies to abandon their attempts to force bilateral balancing on the Communist countries," and "we can reason with the United States on the subject of credit," Prof. Drummond suggests.

Veteran Sea Captain Sees Bluenose II Leave Halifax

By DON ANGUS

HALIFAX (CP)—An 85-year-old retired sea captain who saw the wreck of the schooner Bluenose on a rocky Haitian shore in 1946 watched a faithful copy of the famed fishing and racing vessel sail out of Halifax Harbor in mid-January bound for the Caribbean.

Capt. C. B. Mason of Pleasantville, N.S., stood on the shore of this city's Point Pleasant Park and saw Bluenose II tack down harbor in full sail.

"I believe I could still go aloft and take in a topsail; I'm sure I could," he said.

The veteran of 56 years at sea had inspected the new Bluenose just two hours before she cast off her mooring lines and headed into open water and a cruise to the Caribbean islands.

He scrambled through the hatchway to go below with almost as much agility as he probably showed as an 11-year-old boy in his first summer at sea aboard a fishing schooner out of one of Nova Scotia's south shore ports.

In an interview in a luxuriously-appointed room of the Bluenose II, owned by Oland and Son Ltd., Maritime brewers, Capt. Mason recalled the last time he saw the original Bluenose "with tears in my eyes."

He was skipper of the motor vessel Kent County, out of Miami and bound for Haiti, when he was called on deck to see the battered hulk of the Nova Scotia schooner that had run aground about three weeks earlier.

"The masts and the bowsprit were gone and the bottom was ripped out.

"Tears came to my eyes to see such a famous ship lying there on the shore. She should have never been allowed to leave Nova Scotia."

The Bluenose, winner of many international races and renowned as the fastest vessel on the fishing banks, was sold during the Second World War to end her days as a dreary, diesel-powered coastal freighter in southern waters.

Capt. Mason served aboard the Bluenose under skipper Capt. Angus Walters during most of the craft's races against Gloucester, Mass., schooners and was a crew member when the vessel was honored at Britain's Diamond Jubilee celebrations in 1935.

He remembers the races. "I stood by Capt. Angus and steered the Bluenose. Sometimes I stood in water up to here," he said, marking an imaginary line across his chest.

Capt. Mason said the Bluenose, now pictured on the Canadian 10-cent piece, should have been kept in Nova Scotia to preserve the distinguished record of the three-masted fisherman.

"They've kept the Victory, you know, Lord Nelson's flagship, in concrete in Portsmouth, England, for over 200 years. Something should have been done to keep the Bluenose."

The Bluenose II will travel 9,000 miles through the Caribbean before she returns here in late April.

Commonwealth Official Outlines Work to IODE

CAMPBELLFORD — Bemersyde Chapter I.O.D.E. held its annual meeting on Thursday night in the Parish Hall with 38 members in attendance.

Mrs. D. Watters, Commonwealth relations convener gave a comprehensive report on Arnold Smith secretary - general of the Commonwealth, a quiet diplomatic Canadian whose job is to keep the Commonwealth intact and solve the many problems which seem to have erupted after nine years of of relative peace following the Suez problem.

In August, Singapore broke away from Malaysia; In September India and Pakistan went to war over Kashmir; in October the Rhodesian trouble started and in November Rhodesia rebelled against British rule, in December the Organization of African Unity tried to get its members to break off diplomatic relations with Britain.

Smith has been most outstanding in successfully solving many of these problems.

VARIOUS REPORTS

Mrs. J. M. Benor read a report of the year's activities, during which time there was a fashion show, a birthday tea, an opportunity sale, an annual dinner, sale of candy bars and a Remembrance Day observance at the public school.

Mrs. J. Trimble reported 169 articles had been sent to headquarters along with 15 lbs. used clothing.

In the field of education, prizes had been given to top pupils in the Elementary and Separate Schools, prizes to top pupils in history in Grades 9 and 10 in High School, an interest free loan to a student to attend Kemptville Agricultural College and a subscription to an Agricultural magazine to the adopted school in Jamaica.

An adopted child in Lebanon was also taken care of as well as donations to provincial and national appeals; also a donation for the purchase of film strips was given to Merryvale School.

NEW OFFICERS

The slate of officers was presented by Mrs. J. F. R. Douglas as follows: Regent, Mrs. G. Vandewater; first vice regent, Mrs. F. M. Rutherford; second vice regent, Mrs. D. Bennett; secretary, Mrs. J. M. Benor; treasurer, Mrs. D. Hughes; standard bearer, Mrs. E. Cryderman; "Echoes" secretary, Mrs. W. Murray; services at home and abroad, Mrs. D. Meyers.

Conveners are: Public relations, Mrs. F. Palliser; commonwealth relations, Mrs. D. Watters; world affairs, Mrs. D. Grant; membership, Mrs. J. Trimble. Members were formed into five groups of 14 members each, and each with a councillor and convener drawn from the group. Some group activities were arranged, one a fashion show and another a rummage sale.

Mrs. G. Shunert was elected to represent the IODE Chapter at the meetings of Campbellford and District Association for the Mentally Retarded.

PRESENTATION

At the annual dinner held previously the retiring regent, Mrs. W. A. Kingston was presented with a crystal vase in appreciation of her work as regent for the past two years.

Man-in-News

Canadian Diplomat, V. Moore, Knows War and Its Price

By GRAHAM TROTTER

OTTAWA (CP) — Victor Moore, the 48-year-old Canadian diplomat who talked in Hanoi with North Viet Nam's leaders a few days ago, is a man who knows war and its price.

An infantry officer in the Second World War with the Canadian Scottish Regiment, he was badly wounded in Italy in 1942 and spent the rest of the war in German prison camps. He also spent much time in hospital. Because of his war wounds, he still wears specially-built shoes.

Nor is dealing with Communist leaders a new experience for him. He spent two years with the Canadian embassy in Moscow, from 1956 to 1958, ending up as first secretary there.

He is hand-picked for a delicate job: Canada's senior delegate on the international truce commission in Viet Nam. The commission, whose other members are India and Poland, is the one international body with direct dealings in both the rival war capitals of Saigon and Hanoi.

HIGHLY RESPECTED

Vic Moore's personal qualities stand him in good stead there. Among his colleagues in the external affairs department he is respected for his discretion, his ability to get along with people, his quiet, patient way of going about his work and the sympathetic manner in which he sees the other fellow's point of view.

Victor Campbell Moore was born in Victoria on Jan. 25, 1918, the last year of the First World War. He received his bachelor of arts degree from the University of British Columbia and then went to war, serving in England, North Africa and Italy.

He came out of the war a captain, with a mention in dispatches and leg wounds that required extensive postwar hospital treatment. He joined the external affairs department in 1948 and has served in Bonn, Moscow, Stockholm, Karachi and The Hague.

It was from The Hague, where he had been counsellor since the summer of 1962, that he was summoned home to Ottawa late last year for briefings of his new assignment. After a month here, his first home leave since 1959, he left two days after Christmas for Viet Nam.

HAS SWEDISH WIFE

His Swedish wife, Christina, son Johnny, 13, and daughter Catharine, 7, stayed behind in Ottawa. She hopes to spend two months with him in Viet Nam this summer.

The Moores share a love of art, music and the outdoors.

A man of about six feet and 185 pounds, he is powerful physically. He has a fondness for tennis—he tries to get on to the court at least three times a week—and hiking and canoeing.

He is a moderate drinker, sticking strictly to wine and beer at home. He puffs through two packs of cigarettes a day, having given up several times on pipes because he became impatient with them.

Languages are a strong point. He is fluent in German, French and Dutch, and so-so in Russian. He picked up the German language in his prisoner-of-war days and developed a great interest in German literature and philosophy. He has studied at Georgia Augusta University in Goettingen, Germany.

Geo. Hogan, 37 Dies at Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — George Hogan, Conservative candidate for York West in the Nov. 8 federal election, died at his home here today. He was 37.

A native of Toronto, Mr. Hogan was president of Hogan Pontiac-Buick, a firm his father founded.

He was a political columnist for the Toronto Telegram.

Cause of death was not immediately known.

Mr. Hogan first came to prominence in 1948 when, at age 20, he infiltrated the University of Toronto Peace Council and exposed its Communist leanings.

He became interested in politics at Malvern Collegiate and was an early member of the Young Conservatives in Danforth riding.

He was campaign tour manager for PC Leader John Diefenbaker in 1957, 1958 and 1962.

U.S. Wants de Gaulle To Put Cards on Table

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States keeps waiting for President de Gaulle to put all his cards on the table about revising NATO.

It still is waiting because the French leader's press conference Monday really added little new to what has been said before or assumed.

De Gaulle said foreign troops in France after April 4, 1969, will have to have French commanders—as American bases in Britain now have British commanders.

April, 1969, is the 20th anniversary of NATO and the first date that any member country can withdraw.

A substantial body of opinion here assumes that de Gaulle probably does intend to take France out of the military establishment but still lean on the mutual-security phases of the alliance.

But the French president isn't saying precisely what he has in mind and does not appear to be anxious to do so despite American reports that France and the U.S. in 1966 would clarify their attitudes.

One unconfirmed report here is that the U.S. has refused to give France a bilateral defence pact if it leaves NATO.

De Gaulle's firmly-held views that the U.S. is badly mistaken in Viet Nam, coupled with the U.S. obsession about events there in relation to other global areas, does not improve the climate for reaching a better understanding of the French view.

U.S. planning has been prepared for any French decision to opt out of the NATO military structure. In that case the NATO headquarters in France would be moved elsewhere.

One view is that de Gaulle will be more precise about NATO after he visits the Soviet Union in June.

His reception there, where he may want to touch on the German reunification question, could have a lot to do with how far he presses his desire for a looser NATO arrangement.

President Johnson is being credited here by foreign and other diplomats with a cool and calm attitude toward France, contrasting with the clash of views which President Kennedy unleashed.

The last presidential warning to Europe, saying no one nation could stand in the way of progress by others, came last May from President Johnson. There has been nothing much since, despite some heated private reaction to the de Gaulle views that the war in Viet Nam is a "stupid" one.

One possible reason for the U.S. restraint is that American allies in Europe are equally patient with France on other matters and the U.S. doesn't have to underline its concern about the threat to NATO unity which it sees in de Gaulle.

Syrian Socialist Govt. Overthrown, Leaders Arrested And Borders Closed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Left wing army officers in Damascus overthrew the socialist government of Syria before dawn today, arrested government leaders and closed the country's borders.

The coup d'etat—the 15th for bled Syria since 1949—was reported by Damascus radio in a series of communiques that indicated the rebels planned to speed up the country's march toward socialism.

Army units seized power at 3 a.m. while Damascus slept, and arrested Gen. Amin Hafez, Syrian head of state and chairman of the presidency council, Prime Minister Salah Bitar and Defence Minister Gen. Mohammed Omran.

As military communiques announced the coup, opposition was mounting in northern Syria. A radio broadcast from Aleppo in the north, Syria's largest city and its business capital, declared the army garrison there was against the rebellion.

The Aleppo broadcast denounced the revolutionaries in Damascus as "military adventurers" and demanded the release of Hafez, Bitar and the other political leaders.

The military garrison in the central Syrian city of Hama also was reported against the Damascus coup.

The Aleppo broadcast, indicating that trouble might erupt in the country, demanded that power be handed back to the old regime, with Hafez as head of state and the international command of the Baath part as the government.

The garrison in Aleppo claimed it was getting messages of support from the populace there, and charged the rebels in Damascus were "working against the interests of the people."

Damascus radio said the coup was a shuffle of power inside the ruling Arab Baath (reawakening) socialist party that came to power itself in a rebellion in 1963, but the list of those arrested indicated the Baath regime had actually been obliterated.

Between blares of martial music, broadcast communiques said Hafez and the others would be brought to trial and "crushed." They were denounced as "rightists" who had betrayed Syria's socialist revolution.

The communiques did not identify the rebel commanders, but they appeared to be a group of extremist officers and politicians known as "the young Turks" who have advocated a speedup of socialism in the past.

The leader of the extremist wing is Maj.-Gen. Salah Jedid, former chief of staff of the army who was ousted from power last year.

The broadcast did not make it clear whether the rebels shot their way into power or whether the coup was bloodless.

All communication with Syria was cut off. Telephone lines were disconnected, borders were sealed and airports and seaports ordered closed.

Bitar took the premiership Jan. 1 after assurances from the military that the Syrian Army would go back to barracks and stay out of politics.

Hafez, who ruled the country as chairman of the presidency council, had survived several previous attempts to overthrow him. The most violent was in July, 1963, when he executed some soldiers and arrested or exiled leaders of his opposition.

Violence Erupts In Truck Strike, Talks Go On

TORONTO (CP) — Violence erupted in Ontario's trucking strike Tuesday as negotiators for five teamsters' locals continued to meet company representatives in talks aimed at settling the five-week-old dispute.

In Hamilton, about 100 men surrounded a truck from Brantford and by the time police arrived they had flattened both front tires, slashed tarpaulins, twisted off a rear-view mirror, broken a headlight and torn up the bills of lading.

The connecting link between cab and trailer of a transport truck was pulled as the vehicle moved through a picket line in Etobicoke, a Toronto suburb. The trailer dropped to the pavement and traffic was blocked for several hours.

A flare was thrown into the cab of a tractor-trailer owned by Harbor Express Co. of Toronto, causing $450 damage.

The strike by 6,500 members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) was precipitated Jan. 13 and 14 by a walkout at several Toronto terminals, one week before a scheduled province-wide strike.

ORDERS HALT

The Ontario Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, representing 55 trucking companies, then ordered the companies to cease operations. The bureau said a strike against one was a strike against all.

The Hamilton incident occurred when a truck owned by Victoria Transport Ltd. of Brantford, a non - union firm, parked near the local Teamsters' headquarters.

The driver, who had left the truck for a cup of coffee, said the 100 men had moved away in the direction of the union office before police arrived.

Meanwhile in Brantford, five union drivers arrested Monday during a scuffle with police near the Victoria Company's premises were remanded in court to March 15.

Warren Dugas, 57, Arthur Smith, 34, George Orgar, 28, William Harker, 33, all of Hamilton, and Robert Pickering, 33, of Paris, Ont., were released on bail.

Conciliation talks were con-

Warkworth Blast Is Probed

BRIGHTON — Investigation by Provincial Police and the Ontario Fire Marshal's Office continued today at the federal medium security penitentiary site, near Warkworth, scene of yesterday's fatal explosion.

Inspector R. J. Simmons, of the Fire Marshal's Office, arrived Tuesday night and was back early today at the site of a reservoir house where a blast killed one worker and injured a second.

He told reporters he could not release results until his inquiries were completed.

The investigation is under the direction of OPP constable Tom Guy of Brighton.

Meanwhile funeral arrangements for Chancey Cox, 42, of R. R. 3 Havelock, killed in the explosion, are completed. The father of five children, aged from 9 to 15 years, will be buried Friday after services St. Andrew's United Church Marmora.

Bruce Johnston, of Havelock, injured in the same blast, today was reported continuing in satisfactory condition in a Peterborough Hospital.

An inquest has been ordered by coroner Dr. D. W. Burgess, of Campbelford. A date for the inquest, said Dr. Burgess, will depend on Johnston's release from hospital.

Work at the penitentiary site resumed immediately following the fatal accident.

Distinguish 'Glimmers of Hope' As Wilson Meets Kremlin Chiefs

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Prime Minister Wilson of Britain resumed talks with Soviet leaders today, following up reported "glimmers of hope" on Viet Nam and disarmament.

Wilson met Premier Alexei Kosygin and other top officials for their second round of discussions since the British leader arrived here Monday.

Earlier today Wilson told reporters, "it is too early to judge whether there has been any progress."

He said he continued his talks on world problems with Kosygin Tuesday night during a break in a ballet performance they attended.

Although basic Russian and British positions on the main points of international tension remained deadlocked at the start of the talks, British source said there were still hopes and chances of a "continuing dialogue" were good.

Although one British source said the meeting with Kosygin was cordial but showed "no give at all," another said "we saw one or two glimmers, one or two hopes, it was not completely negative."

Informed sources said the British side was interested in trying to reach some sort of agreement on ways to get things moving at the Geneva disarmament conference.

Britain felt there was some chance of fruitful discussions on expanding the existing nuclear test-ban treaty to cover all tests, including those underground, the sources added.

Wilson also was scheduled to have talks with Communist Party Chief Leonid Brezhnev today. His meeting with Brezhnev had not been on the program and was arranged during the night, British sources said.

British sources said that Wilson will take up the case of Gerald Brooke, a young Englishman serving an 18-month prison term for passing out anti-Soviet literature in Moscow. Efforts are being made to get Brooke released and it is considered possible that the Soviet leaders will agree to this as a goodwill gesture.

Grain Movements Slow

Agriculture Federation Asks Government Nationalize CPR

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Greene suggested a broad federal study of grain movement problems Tuesday after the Canadian Federation of Agriculture asked the government to nationalize the privately-owned Canadian Pacific Railway.

At the same time, CFA President James Bentley said the Canadian wheat board had advised him that sales of 200,000,000 bushels of wheat were lost in the current crop year because of lack of rail transportation.

Mr. Greene was present as the federation presented its big brief to the cabinet. Much of it was concerned with allegations of slow movement of Prairie grain by rail to shipping terminals.

Speaking after the meeting, Mr. Greene said he was just posing a question, but perhaps it was time for a government agency or commission to take a "careful look" at the whole grain handling system to work out ways to make it more effective.

Mr. Bentley read the federation's annual brief to the government to Prime Minister Pearson, Mr. Greene and several other cabinet ministers.

It said nationalization of the privately-owned railway would make possible a single, integrated system of rail service that would most rationally serve the interests of the people. The other major railway, the CNR, is publicly owned.

However the CFA's "most immediate and crucial policy request" was for a guaranteed minimum price of $4 a hundredweight to the dairy farmer for his milk.

"Canadian consumers are faced with a real prospect of shortage of dairy products and accompanying rising prices if action to increase returns substantially is not taken.

"The competition for labor particularly is making it extremely difficult for even first-class producers of milk, both fluid and manufacturing, to stay in business."

The federal government already supports manufacturing milk returns at a national average price of $3.50 a hundredweight. However, the federation said this policy is not satisfactory, partly because it does not apply to all sectors. A $4 minimum for everybody should be instituted in the new dairy year starting April 1.

Mr. Greene said the federation brief was "a very responsible document, not shooting all over the place."

There was "scarcely anything in this brief we shouldn't take a look at."

Mr. Greene steered away from the nationalization idea.

Curtailing Navy's Role Irks House

LONDON (CP)—Igniting an explosive clash that may reach its full fury in a national election, the Labor government announced it will rely more heavily in the future on air power purchased from the United States while the role of Britain's sea carrier force will gradually be reduced.

But Britain's role as a world peacekeeping force, while reduced, will be continued to some extent into the 1970s, Defence Minister Denis Healey told a noisy, unruly Commons Tuesday as he unveiled the government's long - awaited defence white paper, which aims to curtail annual defence spending to a limit of £2,000,000,000 ($6,000,000,000) by 1970.

The proposals, which include a shutdown of Britain's big Middle East base at Aden by 1968 and withdrawal of British troops from British Guiana and Southwest Africa, triggered an unroarious parliamentary and press debate that swept into the government's own ranks and into the traditionally silent military hierarchy.

Christopher Mayhew, the navy minister who quit Saturday because the government wouldn't build another aircraft carrier, linked the defence plan with the mood of Britain before the Second World War, describing the moves as "the classic crime of peacetime British governments."

URGES WITHDRAWAL

Rather than demanding that the forces do too much with too little, he urged Britain to withdraw from a world position. He pictured Britain as trying to carry out a world role with borrowed money—"with the sound of our gunfire drowned by the rattle of collecting boxes."

Adding to the government's embarrassment, Sir David Luce, 60-year-old first sea lord and chief of naval staff, an-

Hellyer Under Attack

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservatives picked up an Irish shillelagh and some old newspaper articles Tuesday and used them to belabor the government on defence policy.

Debate in the Commons on defence department spending estimates for the 1965-66 fiscal year ranged over two main points — Conservative allegations that the Liberals did an about-face on nuclear policy in order to get elected in 1963 and expropriation of part of the little village of Shannon, near Valcartier army camp just north of Quebec City.

At the sitting's end, Conservatives were hotly maintaining that they would hold up passage of the estimates until the government pulled in its horns on the move to expropriate 10,000 acres of land, including part of the 25-family Irish settlement of Shannon, for a weapons range.

"The first responsibility of Parliament is to the rights of the individuals," Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said in a special plea to Prime Minister

A decision will be made today whether to reschedule the launching Thursday. On the chance that the Saturn - Apollo shot will slip until Friday, a weather satellite launching scheduled that day was moved up to Thursday.

France Refuses to Become Economic Satellite of U.S.

French dissatisfaction with U.S. economic policy long has been expressed privately. Here an official French spokesman, the secretary for foreign trade, talks for the record with an Associated Press correspondent.

By STEPHENS BROENING

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle's government is determined to keep France from becoming an economic colony of the United States, Charles de Chambrun, French foreign trade secretary, said today.

Chambrun told The Associated Press this concern helps explain French stockpiling of American gold, close bargaining in the Common Market, the fruitlessness of the Kennedy round of tariff negotiations and even the costly French program of atomic research.

"We would permit a much larger American presence in our economy, as the Germans are doing, and it would be easy politically: There would be more jobs and faster growth," he said.

"But to be politically responsible to the generations to come, we have to see that these generations have the weapons to defend themselves — economic weapons.

"If we did nothing, in a few years we would have the same problems as Latin America has.

"The idea has taken hold in American financial circles that the way to take care of the United States' favorable balance of trade with France is to export capital. This is a policy whereby we could become a medium-developed country in the future.

"This explains our attitude on gold. We don't want to take America's gold, we just want to stop the overabundance of American capital in France."

All of the estimated $1,500,000,000 U.S. investment in France is not unwelcome. Chambrun cited the large operation of International Business Machines as an example.

"IBM does a lot of research here," he said, "and in all it helps raise the general technological level of French industry."

Chambrun is a member of the opposition Mouvement Republicain Populaire. But, he says "I've always been a Gaullist." He joined the president's cabinet last month.

Last year, after three years of deficits in its international balance of trade, France had a modest surplus. But, the minister said, "the structure of our exterior commerce is not very good. It would be better to have a sound structure with a trade deficit.

"The principal weakness in the structure is agriculture, which for us is a grave social problem."

About 20 per cent of the French labor force is engaged in agriculture, compared with seven per cent in the United States and about 10 per cent in Germany.

The subsidies paid to bolster farm income, agriculture, form the second largest item in France's national budget. Education is the largest expenditure.

"We're investing a lot in industry at the same time, and it strains the system," Chambrun said.

Bankers Hold Conference On Agriculture Problems

Bank managers and their assistants from the Bay of Quinte district are attending school today and tomorrow at a bankers' regional conference on agriculture being held at the Tops Motor Hotel in Belleville.

Approximately 50 bankers from the district – between Kingston and Port Hope and north to Bancroft – are attending the two - day session, sponsored by a committee on agriculture education for farm financiers.

Objectives of the conference – one of four being held in Ontario this year – are to provide information and education to all levels of farm financiers in the branch banking system and to build close liasion between the farmer and those who provide him with capital.

EXPERTS HEARD

Addressing the session are Ontario Department of Agriculture experts and selected district farmers who explain their farm operations and needs for short and long term credit.

Co-chairman for the conference are W. D. Tipper, Hastings county agricultural representative, and A. O. Dalrymple, of Bowmanville.

At this morning's session Prof. A. C. Robertson, conference coordinator, and head of farm finance education at OAC, Guelph, talked on present-day farm trends.

Bruce Eagleson, Cobourg district farmer with a herd of about 90 Holstein cattle, foresaw the virtual disappearance of the old-time family farm and in its place complete farms, stock and equipment, owned by large investment corporations.

FARM COSTS HIGH

Despite his own personal success in farm operations, Mr. Eagleson said the high cost of land and high inventory needed would today prevent many young men purchasing farms with any hope of paying off principal and interest. Even the wealthy hobby farm is on the way out," he said.

Mr. Eagleson saw the farmer of the future operating a farm with little personal investment and never attempting to own his own farm. Instead he would pay the interest on the investment, taking one or two per cent for his livelihood and the same for old age security.

As an example of the high costs of farming, Mr. Eagleson said that since he had purchased his farm from his parents in 1949, his total farm inventory had increased two and a half times and in the 17 years more than $50,000 had been spent on machinery.

On the other hand milk production and income had tripled in the 17 years and this without the purchase of additional land. This, he said, was a trend which must continue if farmers were to maintain their place in society and in the business world of today.

One of the musts for today's farmer was the keeping of accurate inventories. Farmers should also listen to the agricultural representative who tells him his farm machinery inventory is too high.

Lloyd Sheppard of Foxboro told about the growing of cash crops in the Bay of Quinte district, while W. K. Wright, R. R. 1 Hillier, told the bankers one way a young man can get started in farming.

Also in the afternoon J. H. Nodwell, agricultural engineering specialist talked on custom versus owning of corn machinery.

Tonight R. W. Phillips, president of the Belleville Agricultural Society will address a banquet meeting, following which there will be a panel discussion with Jack E. McArthur, agricultural representative for the Royal Bank of Canada, in charge.

Tomorrow J. Donald Baxter, manager of the Baxter Canning Company at Bloomfield, will tell the story of food processing in Central, Ontario, while R. E. Bell, farm management extension specialist, will talk on farm management problems.

The conference will conclude with an afternoon tour through Corby's Distillery.

NE Employees Cannot Join New Bell Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—The board of transport commissioners Tuesday announced approval of a new employees' saving plan proposed by Bell Telephone Co. of Canada.

At the same time, the federal board refused Bell's bid to extend eligibility under the new plan to employees of its subsidiary companies, including the Northern Electric Co. Ltd.

It said, however, that it would entertain any request by Bell that the matter be reviewed by the whole board.

The savings plan would replace the employees' stock plan operated by the company for the last 44 years.

Under the existing plan, Bell employees have been able to buy stock in the company through payroll deductions at prices fixed by the board, usually well below the market price.

Provincial Constable Joseph Edward McCormick, age 22, of Sharbot Lake, Ontario, recently graduated from the O.P.P. Training College, after successful completion of the Recruit Orientation Course.

Born in Belleville, he attended East Northumberland Secondary School and was employed by his father, Mr. Hugh John McCormick, R. R. 6 Trenton, prior to joining the police force. Upon graduation Constable McCormick was posted to the Sharbot Lake Detachment.

Camera Club Holds Meeting

The Belleville Camera Club held its mid-monthly meeting at the Kiwanis Centre with 28 members and guests present.

The judges comments and results were given by Earl Yateman on the monthly competition "Musical Theme" or "Song". There were several very clever and amusing interpretations in both color and black and white. Winners in color were: 1st. Molly Bramley — "Time on my Hands"; 2nd. Ray Godfrey — "Tea for Two"; 3rd. Gordon Byers — "She's Too Fat For Me". Black and white winners were: 1st. Don Askett — Wine, Women and Song; 2nd. Mike Last — Folk Singers; 3rd. Mike Last — Neopolitan Mandolins.

The second half of the program consisted of a demonstration in portrait lighting by Earl Yateman and all members were busy photographing the models.

The next meeting will be held at 8 p.m. at the Kiwanis Centre on March 2nd, when there will be a demonstration on printing and enlarging.

The club's big event of the winter season will be March 16th when the guest speaker will be Frank Royal, well known Toronto photographer.

Found Guilty Of Assault By Magistrate

TRENTON — A man who "thought" his wife was being whistled at by one of three RCAF men in a local restaurant and assaulted two of them on the street, was fined $50 by Magistrate R. C. Jackson in Trenton court yesterday.

The magistrate told Donald Hilts to be in court on March 1 and to bring upwards of $50 with him to pay his fine.

The investigating officer told the court that the RCAF men had said one of them was whistling a tune as he left the eating place and that none of them were trying to attract the attention of Mrs. Hilts.

Robert Hughes, who tried to prevent Constables Mark Holden and Harold Kastner from removing Frank Williams from the Royal Hotel beverage room on Jan. 29, was fined $25 for "noseying into somebody else's business", (quoting Magistrate Jackson).

Hughes was charged with attempting to obstruct police officers in the course of their duty. The court was told that Hughes had been drinking prior to the incident.

"It's got so that it's a matter of who has the most physical strength when police try to carry out their duties," said the magistrate, terming Hughes as "more of a nuisance than anything else," in connection with the charge.

TRENTON — Thirteen year old Pat Mullins of 190 Byron Street, and a student at Marmora Street Senior Public School, has just completed a history project for one of his classes and is getting a great deal of acclaim for the work he did on the research that went into the project.

Information and clippings gathered, Pat went about organizing a scrap book and pasting in his items. He received high marks from his teacher, Miss W. Cockrane for his work.

Monday night, Mayor James MacDonald and the members of town council went over the scrapbook in great detail. CJBQ's Trenton manager, Ted Snider, has started reading excerpts from the book during his morning show and Robert Carleton, chairman of the town's Centennial Planning Committee means to also use the book as a guide to programming.

Bigamy Count Brings Term Of One Year

TRENTON — Floyd Botting, 31, of the Kingston area, was sentenced to one year in jail by Magistrate R. C. Jackson in Trenton court yesterday on the charge of committing a bigamous marriage on March 8, 1965.

Botting at that time went through a marriage ceremony with a Trenton girl, Linda Marilyn Mountenay, who is now 17 and pregnant. He had been married in 1959 to Shirley Free of Belleville.

William Weston, appearing for the defence, pleaded that his client was of low intelligence and said that since Society had relaxed its attitude towards the sanctity of the marriage vows, Society was partly to blame for Botting's actions. Society too, would have to pay for the man's upkeep if he were imprisoned and for expenses in connection with Miss Mountenay's bearing and rearing of Botting's child, the lawyer said.

Magistrate Jackson said people of limited intelligence may have to get hurt more if they are ever to learn, and said the fact that Botting was judged to be of low intelligence made him more dangerous to be at large.

The magistrate said he hoped that by the time Botting came out of jail he would have learned something about responsibility.

The "unfortunate Miss Mountenay," the magistrate said would be able to make another life for herself, and to Botting, "the child can be adopted somewhere and have a better home than you could ever provide."

Education in Russia Outlined to Students By Soviet Official

Students of Quinte Secondary School were advised today to prepare themselves for the future not by specializing now in one area, but by finding out as much as they can about everything.

Speaking to a special assembly of students, Vlaeimir Gregorovich, second secretary and press attache, Russian Embassy, Ottawa said "Don't think everything will come in the future. If you don't start preparing for that future now, when the future comes there won't be anything for you.

"Some day you will wake up and realize your youth is gone, and it will be too late for you to do the things that in your youth you wanted to accomplish.

"Our country, like Canada, is a very big one. We have 15 republics, 190 nationalities, climates that vary from Yukon temperatures to Florida temperatures and our country is over 10,000 kilometres in length.

"It is a country of people who decided to create a new society. Russians, when they decide to do something, put all their resources behind it. They start from scratch and build.

"Our people wanted a change from the misery under which they lived. And here we are now. Next year will be the 50th anniversary of our new society – we started a different way of doing things economically, politically, educationally, scientifically and everything all things in life.

"Has it been successful? Is it better or worse?

CORRECTING MISTAKES

"History has shown over the 50 years that many things we did were good, but also many things were bad. We made mistakes, but we are correcting them.

"The main lesson of history in our revolution is that people can improve society. They have to do it."

Mr. Gregorovich outlined briefly the Russian school system.

"When our children are in kindergarten they are just playing. There is no studying involved.

"Everyone has to finish at least eight years of school. Our schools go until the 10th year, then the student is ready for university. They receive a diploma after the 10th year.

"Education in all schools in the country is the same. Thus, all boys and girls who finish, are in an equal position to enter university. They are fully prepared.

"We have examinations starting in the fifth year. Students have to pass them to advance into the next year.

"Students choose in university what they want to specialize in. Our education is paid for by the state, and when a boy or girl graduates from university, he or she is given a few addresses where he can go to work. He must work for two or three years to pay back the state, so to speak, for his education.

"Of course, everyone doesn't do this, especially girls. Many get married and have families then stay home with their families. Many Russian educators don't like girls in university be cause so often the girls will get married as soon as they graduate.

The speaker then opened the assembly for questions.

QUESTIONS ASKED

Question: "How long is your school day in Russia?"

"For the first four years, our students go four or five hours a day, with one of those hours for recreation. After the fifth year, students go five or six hours a day. Of course if they go six hours, one of those hours is for recreation. As students go further on in school, the amount of homework increases."

Question: "How long are your holidays?"

"For the first four years, students finish at the start of May and return September 1. The older students finish at the end of May or start of June and also return September 1. In the 10th year, when students are getting their diplomas, they don't finish until the end of July. Every student in Russia, no matter what level he is at, starts back to school September 1."

Question: "Can a person choose any profession he wants?"

"It is up to him. The trouble is, boys and girls often don't know exactly what they want out of life. They start to understand later, often too much later. When I started university I was sure I wanted to be a poet. I specialized in that for one year and realized I wasn't a poet. Then I specialized in becoming an engineer, and soon realized I was no engineer. When I decided to study economics, I realized then I had made the right choice.

"We have a saying we use? 'Measure 10 times and cut once.'

Question: "What kind of music do the teens in Russia like?"

TWO STRAINS OF MUSIC

"There are two strains of music in Russia. One, the official one, set down through the bodies of government, the schools, the press and so on, is classical music. We believe if you understand serious music, you can understand all kinds of music. We start playing classical music to our children from a very early age".

When this suggestion was greeted with a loud groan from the students, he said, "It's something like drinking whisky. The first time you taste it, you may not like it, but after a few times, you soon start to like it.

"Of course, boys and girls sometimes are interested in other types of music, like jazz or this modern stuff, but we concentrate on classical music".

Lee Grills, Hastings South Member of Parliament, also attended the assembly. It was through the work of Mr. Grills that Mr. Gregorovich was able to come to Belleville. (Mr. Gregorovich spoke at the Jaycees banquet last night).

Mr. Grills said, "I bring greetings from the Government of Canada. As you know, I am sitting in the opposition and it is our duty not just to oppose, but to scrutinize what the government is doing. We are watchdogs in one sense, and workhorses in another.

"In speaking with Mr. Gregorovich yesterday, it occurred to me that there are so many things we are so near alike in, I wonder how we sometimes get so far apart.

"It is getting together in fellowship and getting an education that will enable us to understand the rest of the world, and by understanding, we will make the world a better place in which to live."

Integration Lowered Service Morale - - Grills

Integration has been accompanie by a lowering of morale among Canada's servicemen, Lee Grills M.P. South Hastings, charged in the House of Commons Monday.

"During my acquaintance and experience with armed service personnel I have never witnessed morale so low within the services," said Mr. Grills. "In my opinion nothing in the history of the Canadian armed forces has shaken the individual serviceman's morale more than integration."

He claimed "total disregard of the individual" and "callous and ruthless" methods in implementing integration has alarmed servicemen.

The move has made servicemen uncertain of their futures since they know when they may receive what Mr. Grills called a "you are through" letter.

"Servicemen knew that many of the early retirements were unnecessary and that normal retirements within three years would have reduced the forces by the amount claimed necessary by the Minister of National Defence. They also knew that the savings claimed by the department were just for press releases," charged Mr. Grills.

He said government propaganda "has convinced the serviceman that he is nothing but a football to be kicked about by Liberal politicians. Today servicemen badly need a new minister to trumpet their worth and to give them pride in serving their country."

Personnel are "completely discouraged," he added. In November a new policy was introduced enforcing a six-month wait before a serviceman could be released.

"If these men are happy in the service and are not getting out in great numbers will the minister tell us why that policy was brought in? Many servicemen are asking to get out at this time — so many that it has become alarming."

The club rooms these days are a den of activity. The reason is simple. With spring just around the corner, plans are being unfolded for the many events that will take place in the next few months. This column will attempt to keep you informed, as much as possible, of the time, date and particular activity that is current for the month, however, the notice board in the club room will be kept up to date on the latest developments, so why not make it a point of dropping in and acquainting yourselves of the current social events.

Entertainment chairman Jack Fitzgerald announces that Friday, March 18th, 1966, will be the date of the "St. Patrick's Dance". So lets see all you "Paddies" and your smiling "Colleens" keep this date open for a lot of fun at A.N.A.F. When "Fitz" runs them, they are good.

In this position, Dr. Ritchie will be responsible for the administration of the treatment program of the Department which incorporates a Canada-wide chain of hospitals and related institutions.

Did you know that negotiations have been completed with the Imperial Life Assurance Company to add without extra cost, a disability clause to the group life insurance policy, which has been available to veterans established under the Veteran's Land Act, since July 1st, 1963. The plan provides for the retirement of the unpaid contract debt upon the death of the veteran. Nearly 7,000 veterans have taken advantage of the plan so far, of which [illegible] have died and $126,000 has been paid by the underwriters to retire their indebtedness to the VLA Director. Effective January 1st, 1966, the new disability clause will provide that insured veterans, who become totally disabled for six months or more, will not be required to pay premiums after the six months as long as they remain disabled, but their debt insurance will continue.

Did you know that following a two-year study, directed by Dr. H. J. Richardson of the Canadian Pensions Commission on the problems of Canada's Hong Kong veterans, a preliminary report has been submitted containing several important recommendations concerning treatment and pension status for these veterans. The recommendations arising out of the study, most of which fall within the existing authority of the Commission, are being studied and it is expected that decisions concerning them, will be announced early in the year.

Estimated cost of the project is $3,330,000 with 37 units, which includes 22 bachelor apartments and 15 one bedroom apartments.

Final plans for the housing project to be constructed on Turnbull Street, have now been approved and tenders are expected to be called some time in March. Site of the project is the old Turnbull Street arena.

Fears Y Losing Leadership In Physical Education Field

"The Y.M.C.A. is in danger of losing its place of prominence in the field of physical education," last night's annual meeting of the Belleville YMCA was told. At the supper meeting at the new Victoria Ave. "Y" building, Dr. Bryce Taylor, director of physical education at Toronto's York University, said that he had "grave concern" about the organization and its role in a society of "biological, sociological, and psychological changes."

Dr. Taylor, a member of the Y.M.C.A.'s National Council committee on physical education, said that the "Y" was once undisputed pioneer in physical education, and cited such projects as the recent fitness coaching clinics sponsored by the association in Latin America.

Turning to the changing role that the "Y" must play in society today, Dr. Taylor asked "Is the "Y" physical director geared to meet this challenge?"

"The YMCA is hiring too many unqualified instructors," he continued, "and "Y" directors seem to be looking for babysitters or someone who just rolls a ball out onto a gym floor. Out of 100 Y.M.C.A. directors in Canada, only 39 are properly qualified for the job.

"It's easy to have a person exercise without knowing why he's doing it," said Dr. Taylor. "Does the physical education director know what physical exercise does, accomplishes, or what changes in the metabolism it brings about? He has to be aware of these things."

Dr. Taylor suggested that the minimum qualification for physical education directors be a degree in that field, and that Y.M.C.A.'s choose the most qualified people available to do the job. He emphasized that each "Y" provide opportunities for the personal development of its staff by offering such features as summer courses and by making books available.

He stressed leadership training, noting that the teen-age "Y" leaders of today may very well be the physical education directors of tomorrow.

"If the "Y" sets itself the task to make the son better than the father, it will provide itself a good foundation, and a good start."

Dr. Taylor was introduced by Graham Geldart, the Belleville "Y's" Physical Education Director, and thanked on behalf of those present by W. A. Holway.

Those on hand for the banquet were welcomed by Alderman Don Williams on behalf of the city council and Mr. Williams congratulated the "Y" on its accomplishments in Belleville.

HAVE DEFICIT

In other business, president Hugh Watson, in the annual president's report attributed last year's "financial embarrassment" to a decline in revenue combined with the increased expenditure made for the new "Y" building. He thanked the United Appeal for contributing about 30 per cent of the association's operating expenditures in 1965, and he felt that a recent upward trend in membership would do much to eleviate the financial burdens. (Treasurer J. A. Irelnad reported a cash deficit of $8.543.49 for last year.)

The president presented leaders fellowship awards to Jim Gulley, John Hayman, John Terr-Harr and F. G. H. (Bud) Trill, following which Jim Barton presented the president with a $1,000. cheque for the Y.M.C.A. Building Fund from the "Y's" Men's Club.

General secretary Bert Messacar echoed the sentiments of the president concerning the need for a financial adjustment period, and felt that the need for an adjustment in program and services was int isndeifeyb and services was intensified by the change of site and facilities.

Member Asks For New Bridge Across Canal

A new highway bridge across the Murray Canal at Carrying Place to carry today's heavy machinery and trucks, has been requested in the House of Commons by A. Douglas Alkenbrack, MP for Prince Edward Lennox.

Hon. James Pickersgill, Transport Minister, after hearing requests from Mr. Alkenbrack and other members said he would gladly look into these points.

Mr. Alkenbrack said the present bridge on No. 33 Highway over the Murray Canal did not have the capacity for today's heavy equipment. He said the present limited capacity of the bridge was hampering the flow of commerce to and from Prince Edward County.

U. S. Jet Popular

Britain must be understandably concerned these days over dwindling orders for its dollar-earning aircraft industry. Recent purchases by this country — an old customer of Britain in the aircraft field — have been made in France and the United States.

Canada has purchased a number of Mystere jets, as well as executive type aircraft for RCAF and civilian brass, while France, in exchange, is taking a fleet of Canadian-built water-bomber planes to fight forest fires.

Long-range American jets of course have been the mainstay of most of the world's airlines, including Air Canada, for some years now. On short and medium-range routes, however, it has been using the British Viscounts and Vanguards.

Now the Vanguard is being phased out with the purchase of the Douglas DC-9, the product of a leading American company. Presumably, the only comparable British product is the BAC-111, but it is clear that the DC-9 is the most suitable aircraft for the medium-range flights involved in Air Canada's schedules.

Other leading world airlines are buying the sleek U.S. jet. Scandinavian Airlines System has ordered ten and has an option on 14 others. Swissair, which has a co-operation agreement with SAS, has nine of the jets on order.

As far as Air Canada is concerned, it likely will continue to find the Viscounts useful on many of the shorter routes. It is still the best aircraft of its type in service in the world today. Meanwhile the medium-range Vanguard is being replaced by the DC-9.

All this must be causing dismay in British government and business circles. Not only dollars, but prestige is involved in these deals. Britain, however, still sells a great many aircraft overseas and we understand the BAC-111 is even in service with some U.S. airlines. Soon the super VC-10, similar to the jet which brought the Queen and Prince Philip across the Atlantic recently, will be in regular service. With planes like this Britain may be able to redress the balance somewhat.

Education For Women

Much emphasis is placed these days on the need for boys to complete their education. If they drop out, on the pretext they can get a job and start earning money, sooner or later their basic lack of education catches up with them and they are no match for the complex vocational demands of the computer age.

But what about the girls? It is just as important for them to remain in school also, yet little is heard to this effect. According to Beverly Sager of the women's bureau of the Ontario Department of Labor, the problem of persuading girls to stay in school is acute.

"Too many parents, teachers and girls themselves still feel that post-secondary education is wasted on a girl whose primary objective is matrimony," Mrs. Sager told the annual meeting of the East Branch YWCA in Toronto.

Mrs. Sager sounds like a practical person, recognizing that even matrimony demands some education of a girl. She said groups like the YWCA must stress the importance of education for homemaking, child rearing, community life and political responsibility.

Society, she added, must also realize that eight out of ten current school girls will work outside their home sometime during their lives and that the best education will get the best jobs.

How many are aware moreover, that women are the head of six per cent of 94,799 Ontario families. "These women," Mrs. Sager revealed, support 76,860 children under 15 years of age or 4 per cent of all Ontario's children under 15."

And statistics show, she added, that the earnings of these women are substantially below the earnings of the average family.

Mrs. Sager also made an interesting suggestion in connection with the need for more volunteers for community works. She asked her audience to consider two groups usually ignored — women of minority groups and those in low-income families.

In another part of the city, Dr. Wilson Head, director of planning of the Social Planning Council of Metropolitan Toronto, was even more blunt on the role of women in modern society. Urging women to demand a better education for themselves and for men, he told the West Toronto branch of the YWCA that women are being commercialized, brutalized and cheapened by attitudes which treat them as "mere objects of leering playboys."

"People must learn to humanize the vast impersonal commercial civilization which views human beings as units of labor and profit," he said. "If women are to become more than mere followers of men in this dehumanizing process, they must reassert some values which are rapidly being lost. Women must build the type of constructive values which alone make it possible to grow up as human beings."

Clearly education is very much involved in such a process. So too is travel. Young women leaving school, as well as those still at school, should consider this seriously. Marriage alone will not broaden their horizons. Rather, they should obtain the best education they can afford, while they may. And if they can travel, too, so much the better it will be, not only for themselves but for the future of this country.

Strictly Personal

Where Some Novels Fail

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Every so often, with the heavy feeling that it is my duty as a writer, I pick up a new novel. An hour later, I lay it down again, with an even heavier feeling.

Modern fiction, for the most part, is divided into two kinds: the popular novel, which deals with dull characters who arrive at an implausibly happy ending; and the avant-garde novel, which deals with such characters who arrive at an inevitably miserable ending.

Both these sorts are drugs rather than literature. The first sort is a drug that makes life seem bigger and brighter and more hopeful than it is; the second sort is a drug that makes life seem smaller and dimmer and more doomed than it is.

But true literature is an effort, in artisitc terms, to project life in the round, as a fascinating and frightening composite of bigness and smallness, brightness and dimness. It is in the relationship — in the very tension — between these opposites that resides whatever meaning is to be found in human existence.

Thus, dark tragedies like "Hamlet" include a wide streak of satire and humor; and great comedies like "Huckleberry Finn" include generous patches of pathos and moral conflict. Without these contrary elements each would falsify its portrait of humanity.

The popular novel, the easy best-seller, rarely deals with people who have basic moral conflicts — or, if it does, settles these conflicts by some artificial device that pleases the ladies who haunt the lending libraries.

Contrariwise, the so-called "serious" novel of our time is usually a mish-mash of undigested Freud and sophomore philosophy. Its leading character is often neurotic to a degree that makes any communication with the outside world impossible. He belongs in a psychiatrist's case-book, not in a work of art.

This is not to say, of course, that novels should not deal with disturbed personalities. Dostoyeusky, after all, provided Freud with some of his most brilliant insights. But it is to say that the author must be able to distinguish between character and mere pathology, and must not makke the grossly abnormal his own standard of literary values.

We are told that modern man needs most of all to be "integrated" — that he lives in separate compartments, few of which have meaningful contact with the others. This is also true, I believe, of modern fiction, which needs to learn that life is neither a bed of roses nor of neuroses, but a joyous and fretful intertwining of flower and thorn.

The "Too-old-at-40" Myth

Brantford Expositor

The principle of the Ontario government's Age Discrimination Act introduced into the Legislature this week is commendable. By placing its administration with the Ontario Human Rights Commission, Labor Minister Rowntree hopes that this body will be as effective in enforcing its terms as it has been in gaining acceptance for other provincial human right relegislation.

However, outlawing discrimination in employment on the grounds of age may not be as easy as stamping out racial and religious discrimination both areas where the commission has achieved notable success. By spot checks and test cases and by enlisting public opinion, the commission has been able to act effectively against abuses of fair accommodation and public service practices. Under the new Act, however, the onus will be on the worker between 40 and 65 to prove that he has lost a job or failed to gain one, or to win promotion, on the basis of his age. The test case pattern cannot be easily adapted to hiring and firing.

The government's best prospect for success lies in the educational techniques that have helped to promote understanding in the human rights' field. Mr. Rowntree's department must strive to change the attitude of employers to taking on older workers by convincing them that it is in their best interest to do so. This will be no easy task. A federal government incentive scheme to persuade employers to hire and train unemployed people over 45 evoked a very limited response. The minister has pointed out that Ontario can ill afford to lose the skill and capabilities of its senior workers. In dollars and cents terms they can still make a real contribution to an industrial economy whose growth is being restricted by a scarcity of skilled labor.

Mr. Rowntree says he has enough reliable information from research studies to show that many of the attitudes about the capabilities of older workers are not only untrue but can have a deleterious effect upon our developing and productive economy. He must see that this message gets across to employers, now desperately looking to fill gaps in their work force. He must also ensure that older workers are retrained and equipped to fill some of these vacancies. The facilities of the National Employment Service will also have to be fully mobilized to help. In this connection, the Senate committee on aging has made some useful recommendations.

Self-interest would dictate that employers engage and promote those who can best do the jobs assigned to them. There is no reason why many more in the older bracket should not be included in this category, if the Ontario department of labor vigorously pursues this objective. A carrot as well as a stick attitude must be adopted to dispel the too old at 40 myth.

A Life-long Education

UNESCO Features

Unesco has been urged to endorse the idea of "lifelong education."

This was one of the principal recommendations made by the International Committee for the Advancement of Adult Education which recently concluded its third meeting at Unesco headquarters in Paris.

The committee of 24 experts in adult education from 19 countries pointed out in their final report that: "Until recent times life was divided into two distinct and unequal parts. The earlier (childhood and youth) was devoted to the education considered necessary to society to ensure that the individual was equipped to function effectively in society During the rest of his life (adulthood) he utilized the knowledge gained in his youth."

But this traditional form of education is no longer adequate to provide adults with knowledge to meet new problems. Rasons for this, as given by the committee, include: scientific and technological advances; rapidly increasing economic and political changes; the growing problem of leisure as a result of scientific development; the breakdown of old traditions and customs; the large-scale movement of populations from rural to urban communities; and the ever rising flood of new knowledge resulting from research.

Unesco was asked by the committee to promote the "widest possible discussion amongst those responsible for determining educational policy — teachers, teacher training and pedagogical institutions, etc. — of the concept of this 'lifelong education', and of its implications in particular national situations."

This "new and revolutionary approach to education", it was stressed, concerned not just adult education, but all education. "Lifelong integrated education", it was suggeted, was vital for both developed and developing countries.

This concept, the committee said, had even more relevance to the needs of developing countries which have "the disadvantages but also the advantages of starting their educational structure almost from scratch. With boldness and vision they could turn their present weakness to advantage, and by re-thinking the whole of education afresh in terms of their own needs, could create new educational models for the world of tomorrow — by using this concept of 'lifelong education'."

The committee, created as an advisory body to Unesco's Director-General following a recommendation of the world conference on adult education at Montreal in 1960, re-elected as its chairman for the third session Dr. J. P. Kidd of Canada.

Neutral Chairman Is Suggested

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

On Feb. 15 the Ontario Milk Marketing Board sent representatives to meet with Prince Edward County milk producers to discuss the board's operations.

The chairman of the meeting was our agricultural representative, Ivan Bell. Mr. Bell is a fine conscientious man. He has always been deeply concerned with our farm problem, and most helpful to persons seeking his advice. However it is my contention he has been placed in a most unfair position at this meeting. He became the buffer between the producer group and the board.

I urge all producers who attend such meetings in future to choose their own chairman from those in attendance at the meeting. This chairman would not then be placed in a position where he must not allow questions that would embarrass the board.

If members of the board can't or won't discuss price of the product let them say so, after the question has been directed to them. Do not have a chairman who must refuse to allow the question in order to protect them from embarrassment of a positive stand.

My second suggestion is that when the election of committeemen is held the producers at the meeting appoint scrutineers to observe the counting of the ballots. This would allay any suspicion such as the one prevalent in this area that committeemen were chosen rather than elected.

In respect to the Milk Producers Committee the election of these persons is not terribly important. We have been advised that they have nothing to say in the operation of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board. In all fairness to the committeemen, producers should at least have the feeling that they hold this position through popular choice. Scrutineers from the producers are the only means I feel of protecting the position of these men in their relationship with the producer and the Ontario Milk Marketing Board.

Says Train Noise Is "Unbearable"

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I would like to voice a complaint for myself and many taxpayers in the west end of Belleville who are more than disgruntled about the train whistling so much in the middle of the night and very early morning.

The city manager tells us that the trains are only doing their job, but the same city manager neglected to say that in the past three years the number of trains has increased to more than three times the load, what with extra freight, blasting their way merrily through with the attitude that if they are awake everyone else might as well be too.

The city of Peterborough has listened to the complaints of its citizens and the train whistling has been eliminated within the city limits.

If I were to go through this city at all hours during the night blowing my car horn, I'm afraid I'd soon be picked up for public nuisance.

These small crossings in the west end lead to nowhere but the bay, and should have stop, look and listen signs installed.

This whistling has been a sore spot for some years and with the increased haulage on the tracks is getting to the point of being unbearable.

Surely our city fathers will now realize that the number of complaints to the "why not call" program, the newspaper and the city council itself, warrants the carrying out of a program immediately to eliminate this outdated nuisance in this fair city.

An Angry Taxpayer.

Two-hour Hot Bath Odd Way to Be Clean

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband, 56, takes a daily bath in very hot water, summer or winter. He stays in the tub for one to two hours, adding hot water, and emerges red as a lobster and weak as can be. Is this bad for him? I have heard of health resorts where extremely hot baths are given for arthritis. Are they beneficial? — Mrs. J. L.

• • •

His baths sound to me like an odd approach to cleanliness, but if he has the time to parboil himself, I don't see that it will harm him.

I rather doubt that he is truly weak after such a bath, but he may be so completely relaxed that he temporarily seems that way. It's just the opposite of the cold shower addict who gets under icy water, then pops out and has to jump around just to get warm. Yet that doesn't make him strong.

As for arthritis, heat does indeed make stiff joints more comfortable, but whether the heat is from a bath or a heating pad doesn't seem to be important. It's a matter of preference.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband and I are over 60. Should we continue shots for polio? We have had Nos. 1, 2 and 3. — Mrs. J. L.

Polio has no respect for age. At 60-plus you are probably fairly safe, but if you want to be sure, a booster every five years or so will assure maximum protection.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: How does the potency of Vitamin B12 taken orally compare with that given by injection? — L. K.

Potency may not be the right word, because B12 is B12. There is a big difference, however, in how efficiently it is absorbed under specific circumstances.

In the case of pernicious anemia, for example, in which the stomach lacks what we call the intrinsic factor, it takes 10 times as much B12 orally to achieve a certain level of B12 in the blood as would result from an injection.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: My 13-year-old daughter recently received the 12-day series of rabies shots. How long will she remain immune? You might be interested to know that she said the shots were not nearly as painful as she had been led to believe. Apparently the uncertainty and fright were the worst part. — C. E. B.

Rabies inoculations give passive protection, rather than a long-lasting immunity as is the case with vaccine for smallpox, polio, diphtheria, tetanus, and so on.

That is, the immunity is effective for the time being, but it does not cause the body to create its own built-in protection. Hence the rabies shots are effective only for this one particular incident, and should she be bitten by another suspected rabid or unknown animal in six or eight weeks, new treatment would be necessary.

Her comments about not finding the treatment as painful as she has been led to believe should be of interest to others who have that same fear. The shots are not comfortable, and the large number of them makes the process tedious, but people should not be afraid to have them when necessary. The alternative — rabies — is of course frightful.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I have heard that having an anesthetic for surgery sometimes helps turn the hair gray. Is this based on fact? — N. H.

I know of no foundation whatever for this belief.

End of Era Down Under

The Times, London

The end of the Menzies era in Australia will demand some mental adjustment. He has dominated the Australian scene since 1949, but he molded the Liberal Party and helped to make his country's policy long before the electoral victory of that year.

He emerged on the world stage with a distinctive style through the growth of the Commonwealth, to which he has given as much as anyone. He made Australia's voice heard in a world of proliferating states, national ambitions and political personalities.

His many roots in the Churchillian age assured him of lasting regard and a standing welcome in Britain. He put British interest second only to Australian and he was happiest when finding them, or making them, identical.

nounced he will step down six months before his scheduled retirement because of the government's refusal to build new carriers.

He will be succeeded by Admiral Sir Varyl Begg, 57-year-old former far eastern naval chief. Healey announced that all other naval chiefs will remain at their posts, indicating they are doing so to help the new first sea lord and preserve naval morale.

The air force remained silent, perhaps thankful its role is to be enhanced rather than reduced.

It will get 50 of the new U.S. swing-wing F-111A strike-reconnaissance fighters, the cost of which, Healey hopes, will be balanced by U.S. purchases of an equivalent amount of British defence equipment.

SUBS TAKE SPOTLIGHT

Main naval power will be centred on the four ordered Polaris submarines, to be augmented by some new missile-firing destroyers and four nuclear-powered hunter-killer submarines. The existing carrier force will be continued as long as possible, with some new U.S. Phantom aircraft for the Fleet Air Arm, but this force is to be gradually reduced to non-effectiveness.

Healey indicated the government intends to cover its main responsibilities in the Far East—until Indonesia stops threatening Malaysia—with land-based aircraft.

The navy immediately rushed out signals to all stations to lift collapsed spirits.

And Conservatives indicated they will battle against Healey's anti-carrier policy to the end. A big formal parliamentary debate is to be opened next week.

Salvationist Speaks as if He Were Jew

A member of the Belleville Kiwanis Club 16 years ago, Brigadier Ken Graham, now with the Salvation Army at Peterborough, addressed the local service club at its regular noon hour meeting yesterday.

The club was observing Brotherhood Week yesterday and Brigadier Graham chose the topic "If I Were A Jew."

Stating that he was sure his friends of the Jewish faith would understand that he was not discriminating, Brigadier Graham explained that he was using the address to deal with a subject which to him personally is very important.

It's brotherhood in the truest meaning of the word," he said.

"If I were a Jew, I would be proud of the great tradition of my people.

"I would be proud of the history of the synagogue and its effect upon my people.

"I would be proud that every time a Christian congregation worships, its members are in some degree worshipping according to the synagogue tradition and I'd be proudest of all that out of the stem of Jesse was born one whom some men call the Son of God.

"If I were a Jew, I would be proud of the phenomenal record of my people in education, in medicine and in business."

The speaker told his listeners that if he were a Jew, he would not be proud of the fact that the violence of persecutions against Jews began within the Christian Church.

"I would not be proud of some of the shortsightedness of fellow Jews who endeavored to censor and to stifle works of literature which they believed held their race up to ridicule," he said.

Continuing, Brigadier Graham asserted:

"If I were a Jew today, I would want to know that I could live in a community where the principles of fair play, good will and what is so casually referred to as 'love' would operate.

"My friends, if I were a Jew, I would ask but one thing and that is that you would recognize that the same God who created you, created me; that the same who made me free to choose so that I can be selfish or generous, loving or hateful, created both of us and that when I am unloving, spiteful and mean, I am not reflecting my faith. I am representing something that went wrong inside me".

The speaker concluded: "I believe that when we allow the twilight to lift, and think as mature adults, we are not going to be on the side of those who are prejudiced by hatred but will see in all men, our brothers."

Brigadier Graham was born in Lynn, Massachusetts. He arrived in Canada when he was two years old. His postings with the Salvation Army have taken him to British Columbia, Newfoundland and Ontario centres.

Integrate New School

Ask Students Choose Courses To Facilitate School Planning

"What course shall I take?" is a question currently being asked in many Quinte district homes as Grade 8 pupils register for courses at Belleville's four secondary schools.

While to some it may seem early to expect decisions regarding school attendance for next September, high school principals say this information is needed now so that school programs may be properly organized and the necessary staff engaged.

For this reason many meetings have been held in recent weeks to explain to Grade 8 pupils and their parents the several programs available in secondary schools. To assist the pupils in making their decisions, the Bay of Quinte District High School Board has distributed a booklet "Looking Ahead From Grade 8" outlining briefly the various programs offered in arts and science, business and commerce, and in science, technology and trades and indicating factors to be considered in the pupil's choice.

END SHIFT CLASSES

With the opening of the new Centennial Secondary School on Palmer Road scheduled for next September, school authorities are planning to discontinue the three - shift system of classes which has been in operation this year at Belleville C. I. & V. S. At the same time boundaries of the several areas served by the schools are being changed to balance enrolments.

In order to cause a minimum of disruption in the programs of students now in the secondary schools, all classes in Grades 11, 12, and 13 will continue in the three existing schools. This means that no pupil now in Grade 10, 11, 12 or 13 will be required to change schools except in those cases where the specific program they wish to take is not offered in the senior grades of their present school.

Centennial Secondary School is expected to open with an enrolment of approximately 450 pupils in Grades 9 and 10 and with programs in arts and science, business and commerce and science, technology and trades. In succeeding years classes will extend into Grades 11, 12, and 13 and ultimately the school will become a completely composite school with an enrolment of approximately 1320 pupils.

Students enrolling in Grade 9 or 10 of the occupational program will be assigned to one of Centennial, Quinte and Moira Secondary Schools. The two-year program will be available only at Belleville C. I. & V. S.

REVISE BOUNDARIES

In determining the boundaries for the registration of students for Grades 9 and 10 of the four-year and five-year programs the convenience of the students has been given every consideration by the High School Board and its officials. Some adjustments affecting rural students have been made with a view to simplifying and shortening school bus routes so that buses will not have to serve all the schools.

Pupils registering for Grade 9 or 10 in the four-year and five-year programs will be accommodated as follows:

Students living in Ameliasburg Township will attend Belleville CI and VS; those living in Sidney Township, Frankford and Batawa will attend Centennial Secondary School; those living on the Tyendinaga Reserve and others in Tyendinaga and Thurlow Townships adjacent to or south of Highways 2 and 502 or on Elmwood Drive will attend Moira Secondary School; others in Thurlow and Tyendinaga Townships will attend Quinte Secondary School. City students east of McDonald Avenue and south of the CNR tracks will go to Moira Secondary School; those north of the CNR tracks on the east side of the river and north of Moira Street on the west side will go to Quinte Secondary School; those south of West Moira Street and west of Cedar and James Streets will go to Centennial Secondary School; while those in the area bounded by McDonald Avenue, the CNR tracks, Moira Street and Cedar and James Streets will register at Belleville CI and VS.

Students or parents with questions regarding courses or school boundaries are invited to contact any of the principals or the office of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board.

Board officials emphasize the importance of immediate registration. Any student in the district who is planning to attend one of these secondary schools in September is urged to submit a completed registration form immediately if he has not done so already. Classes will be organized and options set up on the basis of the registrations received. At this time a total registration in excess of 4,000 students is anticipated.

Describes Use Of Insects to Control Weeds

The first monthly meeting following the annual meeting of the Belleville Horticultural Society was held in the teachers' staff room at Moira Secondary School Feb. 14th, with approximately forty members present.

Captain John Buchanan showed slides of a rare plant, owned by Mrs. Wm. S. Calbury of Belleville. This plant is called "Sacred Palm", and its origin is India.

The guest speaker for the evening, Dr. Peter Harris, was then introduced by the president, Mr. C. A. S. Smith.

Dr. Harris' topic was "Biological Control of Weeds", is his study project at the Dominion Government Research Institute in this city.

Dr. Harris described the work that has been done in Canada in an attempt to combat noxious weeds, without the use of toxic chemicals. He explained that insects that feed only on the weeds which constitute a menace to agriculture are introduced into Canada, and after testing to ensure that these insects will not prove destructive to useful plants, they are released in the areas where it is desirable to control the noxious weed species. Some spectacular successes have been attained outside of Canada, notably in controlling "Prickly Pear" in Australia, and "Hypericum" in California. More research is underway.

In Canada, efforts to control Canada thistle, toad flax and leafy spurge, give some promise of ultimate success.

A question and answer period followed.

The guest speaker was thanked by Capt. John Buchanan, vice-president.

The president then commented on the activities which are contemplated as part of the centennial program, planned by the city of Belleville. These include the planting of ornamental trees and flowers at various locations in the city.

Mrs. R. G. Williamson was the winner of the door prize.

BROTHERHOOD

Gather us in, Thou Love that fillest all,
Gather our rival faiths within Thy fold,
Rend each man's temple - veil and let it fall
That we may know that Thou hast been of old.
Gather us in, we worship only Thee:

In varied names we stretch a common hand;
In diverse forms a common Soul we seek,
In many ships we seek one spirit-land.

Each sees one color of Thy rainbow light,
Each looks upon one tint and calls it heaven;
Thou art the fullness of our partial sight -
We are not perfect till we find the seven.

CLUB 4-H NOTES

MODERN MISSES

The second meeting of the Mountain View Modern Misses No. 2 was held at the home of the leader, Mrs. Motley, with two new members present. The meeting opened with the 4-H pledge. Minutes were read by Debbie Motley. Dixie Motley was elected as treasurer. The discussion about the value and use of milk in supper dishes was led by the other leader Mrs. Green. The demonstrations were given by Dixie Motley and Carol Shanick who showed how to make cream of celery soup and Brenda Watering and Hundrina Berkhuizen showed how to make apple crisp.

Mother's Helper

A SPILLY CHILD in bed means a constant clean-up detail for Mother. One trick we use is to serve drinks in soft-drink cans or re-usable jars with a hole punched in the lid just large enough to insert a straw. Another great help is a large "drop cloth" over the covers for protection against paint, paste, crayons or food. (Ideas from Mrs. Lester Allen, Little Rock, Arkansas)

Nothing Seems to Change Girl More Than Marriage

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Everything changes in this world—but nothing changes more than women.

Compared with the variability of women, chameleons are rank amateurs.

Clouds change endlessly. So do waves upon the sea and colors on the landscape. But none change more than women's moods.

Many things make surface changes in women — such things as cosmetics, hairdos, hats, eye makeup, girdles and different skirt lengths.

But none of these affect the inner girl. Inside she is still the same—that is, until she marries. Then she seems to explode in all directions.

"Is this the same sweet girl I courted?" her wondering husband asks. "I feel as though I'm living with a total stranger."

He has made the discovery that all husbands make sooner or later: Nothing seems to change a girl more than marriage.

For example:

Before marriage she liked to walk miles with you. After marriage her arches begin to break down if you can't get her a cab within half a block.

Once she said: "I want you to stay just as you are. I don't want you ever to be any different." But when the glory of the honeymoon fades, she says: "In the name of high heaven, aren't you ever going to grow up?"

DINNER MOODS, TOO

Before marriage she murmured anxiously: "If you really don't like my cooking, please tell me." After marriage she barks: "If you don't like the way I burned your TV dinner, go out in the refrigerator and thaw out another one. Then you can burn it any way you like."

She always dressed like a princess on parade in the old days. Now she comes down to breakfast looking like three witches in Macbeth.

Before marriage she exclaimed prettily, "oh, how did you know it was my birthday?" After marriage she storms: "How could you forget it was my birthday? After all, it comes only once a year."

In the sweet long ago, she loved to hold hands with you. Now all she puts in your hands are dishes to be dried.

Remember how happy she said she'd be when the two of you had a little apartment of your own? Now, unless you take her out at least two nights a week, she wails, "this isn't a home — it's a prison."

She used to plan about how she'd help you carry out your life's dreams. Now all she wants you to carry out is the garbage.

An ancent proverb warns girls: "Don't marry a man to reform him. You'll never be able to change him."

An opposite warning might be given to young bachelors: "Don't marry a girl if you expect her to stay the same. Marriage will change her more than anything. And nothing you can do will stop it."

Car Owners Can Insist Seat Belts Be Used

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We have seat belts in our car and use them faithfully. A relative who lives near us is a frequent passenger. We first hinted, then suggested, and later pleaded with her to use the seat belt but she refuses. Why? I wish you would ask her. All she will tell us is that she would rather not.

We feel morally responsible for those who ride in our car. How far should we go with a person who refuses to protect herself at the expense of our peace of mind? — IRRITATED.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR IRRITATED: Since it is your car you have the right to go as far as you wish—like the limit. Tell the relative that you will not allow her to be a passenger in your car unless she agrees to use the seat belt. And make it stick.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 17-year-old girl who needs help badly. When I was 13 years old my mother took me into her bedroom, shut the door and told me a long, weird story about her past. She said she was a bad girl and described her love affair with another man who didn't marry her. I was the result of that illicit relationship.

About a year later she told me the same story, changing some facts and adding some intimate details. This past year she has repeated the story four times. Every time she tells it she makes it more like a chapter in a trashy love magazine. Now I am beginning to suspect that she imagined the whole thing.

The man I thought was my father died when I was 11 years old. I loved him very much. I wish Mother had let me go on believing he was my father instead of planting these seeds of doubt. What do you think about this? — VERDAD ? ? ? ?

DEAR VERDAD ? ? ? ?: It sounds to me as if your mother is not well. She may indeed have imagined the whole thing. If this were fact — and not fantasy — I don't think your mother would enjoy reciting the details, and surely she would not be changing them.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I guess if I had the courage to tell her to her face I would do it, but like thousands of others I am writing to you in the hope that the guilty party will read your column, recognize herself and straighten around.

My roommate and I are both career girls in our middle 20's and far from stupid. Am I crazy clean, a fuss-budget or a frustrated old maid? It drives me wild when my roommate leaves a ring around the bathtub, cabinet doors at right angles, ice trays in the sink, under wear on the door knobs, cigarette butts in the ash trays overnight, and towels on the bathroom floor.

"Roomie" is a swell person and we get along fine on every other score but when it comes to personal habits she's a pig. I would appreciate advice on how to improve the situation. — LEGAL SECRETARY.

DEAR LEGAL SECRETARY: The pig is not going to change, so forget about that miracle. You can do one of two things:

A: Figure that the positivs aspects of the relationship compensate for her slobbishness and that she is worth cleaning up after.

B: Part company and find a roomie whose personal habits are more like your own — but count on putting up with other traits which you will find difficult to tolerate.

SCOTT'S U.C.W.

6TH SIDNEY — Mrs. Grenville Sine was hostess for Scott's U.C.W.'s February meeting.

The president, Mrs. Cameron Sine, reported on the Presbyterial U.C.W. annual.

A budget for buying literature was set up and a discussion was held of a family film night in the near future.

Mrs. Edison Sine explained what goes into the unified budget and how it is dispersed to the various agencies. In the local U.C.W.'s the allocation is the first endeavor. A budget for literature and other projects follows.

Mrs. R. Dafoe opened the worship service with a poem and read the Scripture.

The hostess served lunch and a social half hour was enjoyed.

ATTEND CONFERENCE — Mrs. Jack Ellis (right) wife of Belleville's mayor meets expert panelists Mrs. Mary McInnis, fur stylist, (left) and Mrs. Shirley Giles, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, both of Toronto; also Mrs. Robin Jeffrey (local representative) and Mrs. Lilah Lymburner (chairman) of the Women's Advisory Committee. An all day conference was held on Tuesday in connection with the Ontario Trade Crusade to Shop Canadian.

Capacity Crowd Attends Conference For Women Sponsored by Women's Advisory Committee, Economics Dept.

By ALICE STICKLE

Club Canara here was filled to capacity on Tuesday for a Regional Conference for Women sponsored by the Women's Advisory Committee of the Ontario Department of Economics and Development.

The main purpose for the one-day conference was to inform the women of Belleville and district how to support Canada's economy and to help themselves at the same time. By shopping Canadian many more jobs are created, and in Ontario alone 75,000 new jobs a year are required for the expanding work force. The Women's Advisory Committee serves as a two-way voice by spreading information to the public and in turn directs consumers' suggestions to the Ontario government, also promotes the Ontario Trade Crusade.

OPENS SESSION

Mrs. Robin Jeffrey, local representative of the Advisory Committee opened the morning session and welcomed the huge audience which far exceeded expectations with an equal number having to be turned away due to the lack of space. She referred to the response of the women in the area as amazing.

Mrs. Jeffrey also introduced His Worship Mayor Jack Ellis who brought greetings on behalf of the city and council members. In a few brief remarks the Mayor expressed his pleasant surprise at seeing such a large turnout especially so early in the morning and all looking so delightfully radiant. He also said how proud the City of Belleville was to be host at this special occasion.

CHAIRMAN OF CONFERENCE

Mrs. Lilah Lymburner, chairman of the Women's Advisory Committee, a most eloquent speaker, was chairman for the conference and in opening, stressed the need for buying Canadian products. She felt that previously Canada had been sitting in the doldrums while other countries were forging ahead, especially in the exporting of their products. Improved buying power by the Canadian consumer, she stated, makes for greater turnover of Canadian products, which in turn improves the manufacturer's opportunities to enter the export markets with prices which are competitive. Anything produced in Canada, she declared, was comparable if not better than products from any other country in the world.

She went on to say that Canadians in general have built up a sort of snobbery and that by purchasing items with a Paris or New York label the cost to the Canadian consumer is an additional $25. Continuing, she informed the gathering that the Ontario Government has a program to stimulate industry, but the Canadian public must help at home by supporting and buying these products. "The two figures of exporting and importing must be brought to a closer balance," she concluded.

Mrs. Lymburner also commended Mrs. Jeffrey for the tremendous effort she had put forth in arranging the many details involved in planning such an undertaking. She then introduced the panel of experts seated on the platform who each spoke on his or her particular specialty.

WOMEN'S CHOICE — An electric tea kettle design was shown by industrial designer Mr. Sid Bersudsky (centre) to Mr. David Dempster, industrial consultant of Department of Economics and Development and to Mrs. Robin Jeffrey at the Regional Conference for Women held at Club Canara.

ENTERTAINING SPEAKER

A most entertainging speaker was Mrs. Mary McInnis, fur stylist and fashion consultant of Rogul Furs, Toronto who discussed Canadian furs and the latest designs in fur fashions. She stated that Canada was world famous for its furs and dealt in particular with Canadian Sable which she felt was equal to the Russian sable. "One should know what they are looking for in buying a fur coat and those who do not wear a fur coat frequently, would not need to choose for durability where as the career woman would buy for a completely different purpose," she said. The main thing is to buy the "best type of fur for the amount of money one could spend. Mrs. McInnis also commented that she was much in favor of fur stoles, which she felt, never go out of style, and can be used for various occasions for almost 12 months of the year.

ADVICE ON MONEY MATTERS

Mrs. Shirley Giles, bank manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Toronto gave a most enlightening talk on money matters and how much women can better manage their money. In lighter vein Mrs. Giles related humorous incidents and problems involved in being a woman bank - manager. She dealt with three phases of money management and stressed the fact that day to day requirements must be faced and financial planning should be made well in advance for children's education, vacation and savings, in that order.

Mrs. Giles also suggested that one must determine the amount to save before spending and this amount will vary according to income. The recommended amount would be five to ten per cent of one's take home pay. In conclusion the bank manager said "Borrow if you must, but borrow wisely."

CONSUMERS' INFLUENCE

Industrial designer Mr. Sid Bersudsky of Sid Bersudsky and Associates was the next speaker, who told the gathering how they, as consumers, can best influence the design of Canadian-made products. As a designer he felt his position was relatively new and went on further to say that there is a great need for more and better products at less cost (which received favorable reaction from the large group present). He stated that much research has been done already on products which have as yet not appeared on the market. His main peeve was that Canadians buy too many American reproductions especially in the electric appliance field. The first electric tea kettle was designed and made in Canada 30 years ago for which there is an annual sale of 350,000. Five designs of tea kettles with descriptions of each was shown and the audience was asked to participate and vote on their choice of design and practicability.

Previous to the serving of a tasty luncheon prepared by the CNRAA Ladies Auxiliary and convened by Mrs. A. Storms, an interesting film dealing with a meeting of the Women's Advisory Committee was shown.

TALK ON PLASTICS

Following the luncheon Mr. David Dempster, industrial consultant, Trade and Industry Branch, Dept. of Economics and Development gave an enlightening talk on plastics and their uses. He stated that due to consumer demand the chemicals industry has jumped up eight per cent. He illustrated his remarks by showing many items related to the plastic and nylon industry, which he said had grown in leaps and bounds with 750 companies and 1,100 plants located across Canada. Polyethelene Mr. Dempster felt was the most durable product and used for many purposes. The main industrial plants he mentioned were Union Carbide and Dupont.

A most interesting question and answer period followed with the written questions being answered by Mrs. Lymburner and the various panel experts.

FASHION PARADE

The highlight of the conference, always of interest to women, was a fashion parade of the latest Canadian creations shown by four attractive models from Toronto who paraded in professional manner. Mrs. Norma Wildgoose was the charming co-ordinator and commentator for the show. Many of the manufacturers taking part in the fashion show were winners in last year's Eedee Awards competition. The beautiful apparel ranged from the petite youthful styles to the flattering styles for the more mature figure. In color, pastel shades of citron, lime, lavender and yellow were most pedominant and various weaves of matching straw hats were also worn. Along with basic suits of navy and black a number of other ensembles were shown and included sportswear and bathing suits in vibrant colors; reversible raincoats, evening and hostess gowns, lingerie of flowing chiffon, a number of beautiful furs and a fitting conclusion to any fashion show were the lovely dresses worn by the bridal party all designed and manufactured in Canada. Jewelry worn by the various models was supplied by Avon Jewelry of Belleville.

As the large throng of women numbering well over 300 filed from the hall at the conclusion of the day's activities, many favorable comments were heard for a most informative and interesting conference.

Stock Quotes Come Easy for Operator

EDMONTON (CP) — Calm amidst confusion is Gerry St. Arnaud's stock in trade.

Miss St. Arnaud answers telephones for an Edmonton brokerage firm, giving stock quotations to customers and information on trading at the various exchanges.

A photographic memory enables her to give stock prices without reference to notes. She constantly watches the ticker tape at the front of the board room.

Miss St. Arnaud started as a switchboard operator, then became typist and receptionist. Finding the financial world fascinating, she began to follow the market and soon found herself giving quotations to customers.

If she knew they were interested in a particular one, she would notify customers when the stock began to move. If they happened to be in the board room, she would shout out the price of an unlisted stock.

Although she restricts herself to factual information, many customers ask her advice.

"I never cease to be amazed at the people who ask me what stock they should buy or whether I think a particular stock will go up or down. Many of them don't know me. For all they know, I could be just a switchboard operator with no knowledge of or interest in the market."

She admits to breaking even on her market ventures. "I've made a couple of spectacular profits on the market which just about make up for the losses."

Employees in brokerage firms don't make the killings on the market many people believe they do, says Miss St. Arnaud.

"If we could make a killing, most of us wouldn't be in the business for very long. We'd make a fortune in a couple of years, then retire and go off on a world cruise or something."

W.I. Officers Told to Stress Local Projects, 4-H Work

By Mrs. Percy MacMullen

RAWDON — Women's Institutes should be more concerned with the sick, shut-ins, the 4-H Clubs and Institute projects in their community. Contributions to first aid kits, hospitals and various charities are in most cases a duplication of funds.

This advice was given officers of Hastings North, East, West and Prince Edward districts of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario, meeting at Quinte Memorial Hall in Belleville on Saturday. Mrs. Rex Rollins, R.R. 3, Madoc, new Board Director of Subdivision No. 5 of F.W.I.O., presided.

After hearing reports of various conferences, the women were told:

Several films are available for Centennial year.

Films dealing with safety and the necessity of avoiding tensions are now available.

rBanches should ask their members to give generously to the "pennies for friendship fund" to expand the work of A.C.W.W. all over the world.

Some Ontario branches are holding classes to instruct junior members in quilting.

Branches which have completed books of Tweedsmuir history can have them microfilmed free of charge.

The $720 raised for the International Scholarship Fund last year will send 23 Indian women to a course on food preservation at Mysore College.

The next triennial convention for A.C.W.W. will be held in Michigan in 1968.

The National Convention will be held in June, 1967, at Guelph.

Dates of the district annuals are May 10 for Hastings West at River Valley; May 16 for Hastings East at Melrose; May 25 for Prince Edward at Wellington and May 27 for Hastings North at Queensboro. Tentative date for Trent Valley is September 29 and 30 at Peterborough.

Mrs. Collins served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

BOW PLUS ARROW EQUALS FUN — Mrs. Alan McDonald of Toronto, Canada's grand champion lady archer, says archery is a sport anyone can learn as long as he has a strong back, good eyes and steady nerves. Practising the year round, including in the basement during the winter, she has won championships for six years. (CP Photo)

Top Woman Archer Says Anyone Can Learn Sport

TORONTO (CP) —Canada's top woman archer says archery is a sport anyone can learn and enjoy. There are even handicapped archers who shoot from wheelchairs.

Mrs. Alan McDonald, Canadian Ladies Archery Grand Champion, says it's comparatively inexpensive as a sport. You need no special clothes except comfortable flat shoes.

She has used her 66-inch $75 bow to win championships for six years, but for a novice she suggests a laminated bow that costs $35 and wooden arrows that will last several months.

A quiver at about $2.50 and a leather finger protector for another $2.50 complete your equipment.

If you want to be in Joan McDonald's class you will also need the time and determination to practise constantly. She works for a secretarial supply agency because it allows her to take jobs between training sessions and matches.

She spends winter hours shooting at a target in the basement of her home. To get 13 yards distance she has to shoot from another room through two doors and along the hall. The fact that there are only a couple of inches' clearance between the water pipes and her bow helps her maintain the steadiness she needs.

HOURS OF PRACTICE

Mrs. McDonald says her main exercise is working with a spring attached by two handles. She pulls it to its full length and lets it come back slowly to develop the muscles of her back.

She will be competing this year in the Ontario indoor championships at the Sportsmen's Show in Toronto March 19, and the international indoor competition in Detroit April 2. She has practised two hours every day during February and will do at least four hours a day in March.

To attain her grand champion status, Mrs. McDonald had to win indoor target matches, field shooting and hunter competitions.

The field courses include 28 targets over a wide area. The archers shoot from varying distances in length, position and height. The target in hunter matches is not a real animal, just animal-shaped.

The slender young brunette says the average amateur can become good enough to enjoy archery as long as he has a strong back, good eyes and steady nerves.

"I haven't met anyone yet I haven't been able to teach to shoot."

WIFE TAKES BACK SEAT

MONTREAL (CP)—The rising young executive often treats his wife "like a thing," says Dr. Muriel Stern, psychology professor at McGill University here. "She is the hostess, she is the mother of his three and a half children, she is the driver of the second car, she is the one who is trotted out occasionally."

Trainer Wins Backing Of Judges

LONDON (Reuters) — A 70-year - old woman racehorse trainer won the backing of the judges of Britain's Appeal Court Tuesday in her protest against the Jockey Club's refusal to grant women trainers a licence.

The court ruled that Mrs. Florence Nagle could go ahead with her action—initially dismissed by the High Court—disputing the validity of the club's action.

She accused the club of sex discrimination.

Lord Justice Danckwerts described the club's policy of refusing Mrs. Nagle a training licence while granting one to several of her male employees as "simply a childish subterfuge."

Another appeals judge, Lord Justice Salmon, felt the ban is "as capricious as refusing a man a licence simply because of the color of his hair."

Mrs. Nagle trains about 20 horses at her Sussex stables.

Baby Beef Liver with Onion Rings; Whipped Potatoes; Broccoli; Waldorf Salad; Bing Cherries in Black Cherry Jelly Nut Refrigera- Cookies; Tea.

TUNA PIZZA BURGERS:

Yield: 6 pizzas on one-half hamburg bun each or 12 small pizzas on one-half tea bun each. Double the recipe to make 12 pizzas on one-half hamburg bun each or 24 small pizzas on one-half tea bun each.

1/3 cup mayonnaise, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon oregano, one 7-oz. can, solid pack, tuna drained and broken up, 1 tablespoon grated or minced onion, ¼ cup tomato paste, ¼ cup water, grated Parmesan cheese, 3 hamburg buns or 6 tea buns split crosswise.

Blend together mayonnaise, salt, oregano, tuna and onion. Spread on 6 hamburg bun halves or 12 tea bun halves. Blend together the tomato paste and water and spoon evenly over tuna mixture. Sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese using one or two teaspoons on each. Arrange in rows on rack on broiler pan. Place in oven of 400 deg. Fahr. with top and bottom burners turned on and bake about 10 minutes or until hot and top is bubbly. Serve hot.

NOTES:

1) These Tuna Pizza Burgers make an adequate accompaniment to a hearty soup as a main course for supper.

2) Or serve them hot from the oven with coffee for a late evening or midnight snack after the hockey game.

3) A trayful of piping hot Tuna Pizza Burgers made on 24 tea bun halves from the doubled recipe will cause quite a sensation when carried in to your living room at cocktail-party time.

4) They may be prepared in advance, kept chilled in refrigerator and bake in a hot oven just before serving time.

Bringing Up Baby
HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

One of your baby's earliest educational devices is his sense of touch. Once little fists flutter open, he literally feels his way into life. As fingers explore he comes to know the difference between hard and soft, rough and smooth, warm and cold. Your cherub not only learns but gets a lot of pleasure from a variety of textures. Good reason to select toys with different surfaces. Fluffy, nubby, smooth or ribbed fabrics for a small baby . . . various plastics, metals, woods for an older tot.

•

Food for thought. Texture is important when it comes to food, too. Gerber Strained Foods are famous for their exceptional smoothness. Variety is also important, to stimulate appetite interest and provide a wide range of nutrients. Gerber offers over 60 delicious choices, from fruits to meats, dinners to desserts, vegetables to egg yolks. All are "custom-cooked" according to their own requirements to help preserve nutritive values and the ultimate in natural flavour.

Great taste for budding "gourmets": Gerber Strained or Junior Carrots. Smooth-textured and golden-good they're bound to make a big hit with little ones.

•

Talk tactics. Babies love to be talked and cooed to. Doesn't much matter what you say, it's the friendliness you put forward when you say it. Your baby is acutely aware of sounds and will delight in a light-hearted lilt . . . derive security from a caressing tone. Besides, the baby who is talked to a lot when he's young, is apt to form his own words faster. Happy bagfesting!

•

Flavour specials: the seven delightful Gerber Strained Desserts. Delicate in flavour and smoothly textured, they're made for baby's eating pleasure. Your baby will like the new Arrowroot Custard plus the seven other good-tasting varieties. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Josephine High to Jazz Low, Today Waistline Wanders So

By MARGARET NESS

NEW YORK (CP) — This spring three influences drastically shift the waistline around from Empire high to Edwardian natural to jazz-era low. Jo Copeland, a New York designer, aptly calls it the wandering waistline.

Equally interesting is the historical period of these roving waistlines. Each was a fashion revolution in its day. It was Josephine, wife and later empress to Napoleon, who introduced the muslin-clinging high-bosom silhouette. It ousted the full, side - hooped skirts and heavy fabrics of ill-fated Marie Antoinette and her court.

Marie Rose Josephine Tascher de la Pagerie (to give Josephine her full name) was born on the French island of Martinique in 1763. On her marriage to Viscount Alexandre Beauharnais, she moved to Paris.

Her husband was guillotined during the late days of the revolution. She herself was spared, became one of the glittering social figures of the new regime and was courted by the young Napoleon.

Her loose and high-bosomed dresses immediately became the fashion. This high-bosomed look is generally referred to as the Empire silhouette.

It achieved fashion fame in the Directoire period preceding Napoleon's 1804 proclamation of Empire.

Napoleon himself crowned Josephine as his empress and then, five years later, divorced her on the grounds that she could not bear him an heir.

Naturally her fashion influence waned. But the Empire look returned to top importance in the mid-1950s. Almost every year some designers include it as a major trend in their collections. This spring it finds fashion favor mostly for evening wear, such as a gown by Hannah Troy in a white marquisette, beaded in rhinestones and embroidery.

Other floor-length gowns include Harvey Berin's white full-skirted chiffon with sequin-paved Empire bodice and Sam Friedlander's high Empire bodices, draped or beaded above bias-cut skirts.

The shirtwaist is a turn-of-this-century fashion. It was the result of the entry of women into the business world. The new tailored suits with their neat shirtwaists made the bustle costume obsolete. Women were also beginning to play tennis, ride bicycles and indulge in sports.

It was Charles Dana Gibson, a well-known illustrator, whose sketches glorified a swan-like American girl and brought the shirtwaist into fashion. Again, as with the Empire silhouette, there was a revival of the shirtwaist in the 1950s, in the shape of a dress.

This year several designers in the New York couture group showings included shirtwaist styles, again mostly for late-day. Junior Sophisticates has several dresses in spring pastels. In Teal Traia's beautiful silk prints from India is a jewel-buttoned shirtwaist.

Pattulo-Jo Copeland showed a theatre or dinner costume in ecru lace, the companion shirtwaist dress a-flutter with pleats. And Harvey Berin featured several shirtwaist evening gowns in white chiffon, the bodice with crystals and rhinestones re-embroidered on lace, and the skirt cut full and on the bias.

The 1920s produced jazz, bathtub gin and the first view of legs as a fashion. To make the short skirts look even shorter, designers dropped the waistline to achieve a scanty skirt. They also plastered sheath - like dresses with beads. This typically '20s look never quite disappeared. Designers keep returning to the silhouette and the beads.

However the low-slung look has made its greatest impact in sportswear. Even pants now are hip-hugging rather than waist-hugging.

This spring several designers are almost duplicating the '20s. Sam Friedlander, for example, has a number of chiffons reminiscent of those roaring '20s, with beaded long torso overblouses above rippling double flounce skirts.

One is a dancing dress of persimmon chiffon, the long bodice covered with crystal and chalk beading to top yards of pleating-effect skirt. The same look, but in red Chantilly lace, is featured by Ben Reig.

Samuel Winston uses 20 yards of champagne chiffon to create a long tunic gown over a flirt of a skirt. Also strongly in the '20s mood is a white chiffon over a blue sheath, heavily crystal beaded, by Harvey Berin.

Susanna's Family Fare

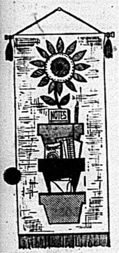
'ROUND AND 'ROUND

Dear Susanna: Just met the h[illegible]ome young man across the h[illegible]n my apartment building, and he tells me that I'll be able to make the stainless steel sinks in my kitchen gleam if I scour them in a circular motion instead of back and forth.

Do you suppose he really knows what he is talking about, or do you think he might be just leading up to asking me for a date? — Missy.

Are you asking or wishing? When you find out the answer, will you let us know? — Susanna

WALL SCROLL



Roll cut the scroll and brighten the kitchen with this beautiful catch-all to hang on the wall.

We've used burnt orange burlap (17" x 30"), hemmed it over a delicate brass curtain rod, and added cord from a fancy shoe box for hanging.

It is important to use vividly colored felt for the sunburst and for the flower pots — brilliant yellow, sky blue, lime green, etc.

When fringing is done at the bottom, preserve the threads to form the tassles.

The total cost of our scroll is a dollar — which is relatively reasonalbe for such an elegant product.

Rather a lovely, and different, kitchen shower gift for the bride-to-be, don't you think? — Susanna

Successful Living

Apologizing Is Brave Solution to, Problem

DEAR DORIS: After only three weeks of going steady, this real sweet guy broke off with me. I admit that it was all my fault. I didn't want to ever do anything to hurt him but this once I just couldn't help it. I'll do anything to get [illegible]back.

[illegible] I know he doesn't hate me, because he told me he thought I was the greatest girl he ever went out with. I never felt this way about anybody before so, please, Doris, tell me what I can do to get him back. I'm almost 17. — CINDY.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR CINDY: Ever think of apologizing? There is something quite brave and wonderful — and kind — about being able to say that you did wrong and you are sorry.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I know it is correct to send a bread-and-butter letter after overnight hospitality, but is a thank-you note called for when you have just had a dinner at a friend's home?— TOO MUCH FUSS.

DEAR TOO MUCH: Better too much than not enough. When good fellows and gals get together and have such a fine time they want to say so on paper after, who am I to stop them? I do it myself.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

THE HASTINGS AND PRINCE EDWARD REGIMENT held winter exercises at Point Petre, in Prince Edward County, over the weekend. The top picture shows the white-clad troops leaving the bush to return to their base camp, pulling their sleds and bucking the high winds which whipped across Lake Ontario. Bottom is a group of officers participating in the exercises: back row, left to right, Capt. G. P. Davis of Trenton and Lt. G. A. Brown and Lt. G. B. Murray, both of Belleville; front row, Sgt.-Major R. K. Wigmore of Trenton and 2nd Lt. J. R. Savage of Kingston.

Prisoners Find Even an Ant Can Be Used as Messenger Boy

VICTORIA (CP) — Prisoners at Colquitz jail here often rely for small favors on the insect express.

With it many an inmate has been able to borrow a cigarette, a match or send a note after lockup and lights out.

The system depends on creepy little critters such as ants and beetles that occasionally roam into the institution.

Prisoners who manage to capture one increase their borrowing power immensely.

They have found that even an ant is strong enough to drag a long, fine thread—usually made by tearing out pockets of prison issue pants.

So they loop a line around their catch, and shoo him out of the cell.

"Hey fellas, will somebody give my old ant a cigarette?"

With luck the insect will perambulate within range of another prisoner who can attach the prize—say, a cigarette—to the line.

With the cigarette attached, the prisoner drags in the line and hangs on to the insect for the next foray.

There is always the danger, of course, that the insect will escape the knot; maybe a guard will step on it; or it may visit the cell of a guy who won't lend you a cigarette.

But how do you iron the bugs out of a system like that?

If Jo Grimond Retires Even Foes Will Mourn

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—"Say it isn't so, Jo."

That was the initial reaction from various sides to reports that Jo Grimond, 52-year-old leader of Britain's Liberal party, might quit the job and move into the backbenches.

Political columnists, particularly, seemed distressed by the prospect because, as one of them put it, Grimond is the only one of Britain's political leaders "cast in the heroic mould."

Certainly the tall, handsome Scot with the swashbuckling air is pleasanter to look at—and perhaps to listen to—than the more prosaic Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Tory Opposition leader Edward Heath.

Anyway, Grimond has explained he has nothing immediate in mind. He will consider his position after the next general election. If the election produces another government with an indecisive majority, like the present one, he will stay. But he may hand over if the government has a comfortable majority and the Liberal party has no more than the present 10 seats in the 630-member House of Commons.

PREDICT ELECTION

This can be interpreted to mean that Grimond may step down later this year if—as some pundits and bookies predict—there is an election this year and Wilson's Laborites are returned with an increased majority.

"I should be sorry to see him go," writes Nigel Lawson, new editor of the Tory weekly Spectator. "And for the Liberal party, of course, it would be a disaster."

"While I would understand Mr. Grimond's decision to stand down, I should regret it," says John Beavan, political editor of the left-wing Daily Mirror.

"He is the only political leader we now have who is cast in the heroic mould. He is eloquent, he has principles, and he is not without political shrewdness."

The speculation—its origin is obscure—has turned attention once more to the future of the Liberal party, which is far more important in Britain today than its parliamentary membership would indicate, but which has not been in power since Grimond was a boy.

WON MORE VOTES

The party won more than 3,000,000 votes in the 1964 general election, compared with 1,600,000 in 1959, although admittedly it had 149 more candidates in the last contest. The Labor vote in 1964 was 12,205,500, 203,000 more than the Conservatives.

With a majority of only two in the Commons, and a byelection coming up, Wilson can hardly afford to ignore Liberal views. The Liberals feel, for i stance, they have prevented o at least delayed steel nationalis ation.

Observers see a dangerou paradox, however: the mor the Liberals change the acter of Labor policies, less will voters feel it nece sary to support the Liberals a a radical alternative. Som commentators believe Grimon should have worked for a Tor victory in the last election, thu perhaps forcing Labor int some sort of coalition.

"Mr. Grimond's achievemen in reviving the Liberals as force for radical reform is already a considerable one," say The Guardian, a Liberal newspaper.

"His larger aim, to brin about a realignment of the lef has been more elusive, and th lack of response from Labo disappointing. But that is not t say that it is unattainable. . ."

Action Against Cement Co. Is Laid Over

PICTON (Staff) — The traditional white gloves, symbolic of no criminal cases to come before the supreme court of Ontario, were handed to Mr. Justice N. C. Fraser when he opened sittings in the County Court House on Monday. Such a law abiding town is a "rare occasion these days," he remarked upon receiving the gloves from Sheriff H. J. Collver.

Mr. Justice Fraser remarked that he had spent some of his holidays in the Demorestville village area of the county as a youth. He added he wished [illegible] could be held here during the summer months.

Mr. Justice Fraser consented to lay over a case involving legal action brought by six area residents against Lake Ontario Cement Limited. No new date was set for hearing the action, but Supreme Court sittings are scheduled to be held again in the spring.

The plaintiffs G. Mathewman, R. Drake, A. Covert, E. Ambramsky, A. Robinson, and J. Madden are seeking a combined total of $425,650 damages from the company for alleged dust pollution of their premises. They are also seeking an injunction to stop the spread of dust.

The Rural Scene

PICTON — On Tuesday, February 15th approximately two hundred cheese, concentrated and fluid milk producers in Prince Edward County met in the Anglican Church Hall, Picton to elect the members of their County Milk Committee. County members elected are as follows: W. T. Cunningham, No. 1, Wellington; Ken Wright, No. 1, Hillier; Rae Ferguson, No. 2, Consecon; Gordon Parks, No. 2, Bloomfield; Eldon Walt, No. 2, Consecon; George Foster, No. 2, Picton; Roy Brooks, No. 3 Demorestville; Leland Doxsee, No. 8, Picton, George Vincent, No. 1, Picton; James Alexander, No. 2, Hillier; Ross Parks, No. 2, Bloomfield; Lewis Wight, No. 1, Wellington. Following the [illegible]eral meeting the newly elect[illegible] committee members met to [illegible]lect their Officers for the current year. Officers elected are: James Alexander, No. 2, Hillier, Chairman; Roy Brooks, No. 3, Demorestville, Vice-Chairman; and Gordon Parks, No. 2, Bloomfield, Secretary-Treasurer.

Speakers on the program were, Mr. E. C. Rouse, Director of Production, Ontario Milk Marketing Board and members of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, Ormand Coon, Elgin and Allan Ketcheson, No. 2, Madoc. H. Ivan Bell acted as chairman for the meeting and T. O. Heath, Dairy Branch Fieldman as Secretary.

CATTLE OWNERS INVITED

Dairy cattle owners are invited to the Mastitis Workshop which will be held in the Bloomfield Town Hall on Thursday, February 24th from 10 [illegible] to 4 p.m. The speakers will be Dr. H. J. Neely, Veterinary Service Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture and one other Veterinarian.

Mastitis, as any dairyman knows, is a very complex and often somewhat mysterious disease. A recent survey in Ontario has revealed that over 50% of the cows have mastitis in some form. The purpose of the Workshop is to illustrate the step-by-step procedures that are practical and effective in controlling mastitis. Those who attend the workshop will be shown by demonstrations, films and other means just what is involved in controlling this very costly disease. The discussions cover all facets of the disease including santitation, treatment and control. The Workshop ex[illegible]lains in detail the "whys" of [illegible]ntrol and by so doing, it justifies the steps that can be taken to control mastitis on a herd basis.

All dairy cattle owners are invited to attend.

WILL TAKE BUS TRIP

The annual Prince Edward Holstein Club bus trip will be held on Saturday, February 26th. Visits will be made to the farms of Don Bud, Port Hope; Wm. F. Moore, Cobourg; Gordon Macklin, Cobourg; Bruce Eagleson, Cobourg; Robert Jibb, Cold Springs. The bus will leave the Department of Agriculture Office at 8 a.m. and will stop at Bloomfield Post Office, Wellington Post Office; Hillier's, Young's School and Carrying Place. This trip should be of interest to all holstein breeders.

JUNIORS TO MEET

The annual Prince Edward County Junior Farmer banquet will be held in the Masonic Hall, Ameliasburg on Saturday, February 26th at 7 p.m. The speaker will be Miss Pat Knox, Durham County. Pat is Durham Junior Farmer director and Director of Zone 2 of the Junior Farmers Association of Ontario. She was an overseas trip winner in 1965. Tickets for the banquet are available from Junior Farmer directors and at the Department of Agriculture Office in Picton.

Pearson that the Shannon villagers "not be dispossessed of their heritage." He made the appeal to Mr. Pearson because he had given up "trying to soften the adamant attitude" of Defence Minister Hellyer and Associate Defence Minister Cadieux.

Pulling out the stops, Conservative MPs compared the expropriation move to the expulsion of the Irish and to that of the Acadians in Canada.

Mr. Hellyer said several times that 10,000 acres of land near the camp is needed immediately for a mortar and artillery range.

WILL NEGOTIATE

Mr. Cadieux said he is willing to begin negotiations again on the expropriation case and "do everything in our power" to facilitate the "legitimate aspirations" of the families. All the land involved has been expropriated but settlements with the individuals are incomplete, he said.

Earlier in the debate, Mr. Diefenbaker led a concerted attack on Mr. Hellyer. It centred on the contention that the defence minister tried to present himself as the one man who could determine what Canadian defence needs are.

If Mr. Hellyer was so infallible, Mr. Diefenbaker asked, why had he changed his mind about Canada's nuclear role?

For years in opposition he had said that Bomarc nuclear anti-aircraft missiles would do nothing but make Canada a target for nuclear weapons by any enemy country. He had said the Voodoo interceptor was obsolete and designed for a threat against manned bombers that Canada would never have to meet.

But he had changed his mind in February, 1963. And the Liberal government had gone ahead and set up the Bomarc bases and purchased the Voodoo.

SEEKS REASON

"What brought about that change?" he asked.

Out came the old newspaper articles.

One referred to how the U.S. ambassador to Canada at the time, Livingston T. Merchant, had held briefings for Canadian reporters on the American view that Canada should accept nuclear weapons under the North American Air Defence Command.

Mr. Merchant had briefed Ottawa reporters "against the anti-nuclear policy of the then Diefenbaker government," Mr. Diefenbaker said in reading from a column by Charles Lynch, chief of Southam News Services.

It sounded as though Mr. Hellyer had been at the same briefings, the Opposition leader said.

"I would like to deny it," Mr. Hellyer said.

USES CLIPPINGS

Mr. Diefenbaker also hit Mr. Pearson with some old news clippings on the nuclear issue by Pierre Elliott Trudeau, a "new guard" Liberal and one of Mr. Pearson's parliamentary secretaries.

He quoted from an article in the French-language publication Cite Libre in April, 1963, that election pollsters were saying that Mr. Pearson and his Liberals had information that 'pro'-nuclear policy would lose him his majority of electors. Power was within Mr. Pearson's reach. He had nothing to lose, except honor.";

So the Liberals became "turncoats," the Opposition leader said, still quoting from the Trudeau article he added:

"Once the leader had shown the way, the flock followed with the grace of animals headed for the feeding trough."

Douglas Alkenbrack (PC — Prince Edward - Lennox) protested against the closing of armories and abandonment of some volunteer units.

It was the militia units which fought the wars, he said. The role of the permanent forces was to train these units for fighting.

Farmers' Cash Receipts Up Over 1964 Record

OTTAWA (CP) — Farmers' cash receipts last year amounted to a record $3,741,100,000, an increase of 8.3 per cent over the previous record set in 1964 of $3,455,600,000, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The figures covered cash received by farmers from their farming operations, but not including supplementary payments under the Prairie Farm Assistance Act which last year amounted to $11,400,000 as compared with $8,500,000 in 1964.

The cash receipts — before any allowance for the cost of farm production — came from sale of farm products, Canadian Wheat Board payments made last year on the previous year's grain crops, net cash advanced on farm-stored grains in Western Canada, and deficiency payments made by the agricultural stabilization board.

The bureau said the 8.3-per-cent gain last year reflected higher wheat board payments and increased returns on the sale of cattle, hogs, poultry, dairy products, potatoes, barley, rapeseed, and vegetables.

The bureau said that on the basis of the 1961 census, it now is making a complete revision of its estimates of farm cash receipts. This analysis will be completed this spring.

Cash receipts by provinces last year, with 1964 amounts in brackets, were: Prince Edward Island $41,095,000 ($32,723,000); Nova Scotia $48,929,000 ($43,910,000); New Brunswick $61,806,000 ($49,070,000); Quebec $495,799,000 ($456,635,000); Ontario $1,082,233,000 ($996,596,000); Manitoba $331,135,000 ($293,956,000); Saskatchewan $879,052,000 ($836,711,000); Alberta $644,609,000 ($596,058,000); British Columbia $156,486,000 ($149,923,000).

'DON'T BE AFRAID'

HALIFAX (CP) — Mayor Gilles Lamontagne of Quebec City said Monday that Canadians should not be afraid of Quebec's "quiet revolution." "Don't be afraid of Quebec. It is simply speaking its mind," Mr. Lamontagne told a group at Dalhousie University's French Canada week here. "And don't criticize us unless you understand our problems."

Steel Framework of Buildings Sprouts All Over Expo Site

By MICHAEL BLAIR

MONTREAL (CP)—The steel framework of buildings is sprouting up all over the 986-acre site of Expo 67 despite the handicaps imposed by snow and freezing temperatures.

Seven months ago, much of the location on MacKay Pier and Ile Ste. Helen and Ile Notre Dame in the St. Lawrence River was bare, a mass of mud. The only projects then under construction were foundations of the administration and press building and Concordia Bridge linking the pier and Ile Ste. Helene.

Now the bridge has been finished three months ahead of schedule, the world broadcasting centre is nearly complete and the administration building is due to be completed by May. At that time Expo's 722 employees will vacate crowded, rented office space in downtown Montreal.

Pile - drivers are hammering in foundation piles for a $3,500,000 stadium on MacKay Pier, being sponsored by the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association. It is due for completion by August.

It is in the stadium that some of Expo's entertainment program will be shown, including spectaculars such as a military tattoo and a display by La Gendarmerie Francaise, France's military police force dating back to the 15th century.

The control room for Expo Express, the exhibition's $12,000,000 primary transit system, is about completed and automatic control equipment, operated by a computer, will be installed to stop and start the trains at each of the five stations around the fairground.

Track is being laid over the 3½ miles of what officials said will be the most automated, modern and safest rapid transit system on the continent.

It will have a capacity of approximately 60,000 passengers an hour on the six trains, and the fare will be included in the admission charge.

Track foundations are 95 per cent complete.

Piledriving is 75 per cent complete for Habitat 67, an apartment block of the future which will look like matchboxes stuck on top of each other and will cost $13,000,000. It is being built by Expo.

Thousands of shrubs have been planted as well as 3,500 large trees, about 40 per cent of the total, giving the grounds a park-like atmosphere.

TUNNEL UNDER RIVER

Computers plan the $425,000,000 worth of construction projects to be under way on the site by spring, sort out which pavilions or projects are lagging, give priorities, tell steel companies how much will be needed, and scores of other things—making sure construction is never stalled.

The largest pavilion on the site—that of the Canadian government—is 40 per cent complete. It will cost $20,000,000.

Underneath the St. Lawrence River, engineers are working 24 hours a day to drive a subway shaft to Ile Ste. Helene, where a station is under construction, and onward to the south shore of the river. This will link Montreal's $275,000,000 subway system to Expo.

Many of the pavilions will be of light steel, wood, fibreglass or aluminum construction, and will need little in the way of foundations, one reason the $15,000,000 Soviet centre has not yet been started.

It will be possible to erect it and the $9,000,000 U.S. pavilion in a matter of months.

Construction is expected to proceed full speed ahead through the winter, and as Expo engineers point out, they thing.
can't afford to stop for any-

Tomorrow: African pavilion is a major project of young Expo 67 architect.

Popularity of Ayub Khan Suffers from Peace Talks

By RALPH JOSEPH
Canadian Press Correspondent

KARACHI (CP)—While the Tashkent talks have helped to ease Indo Pakistan relations, at least on the surface, they have proportionately increased the domestic problems of President Ayub Khan of Pakistan.

His popularity has taken a deep plunge for the first time since the undeclared war of last September.

This is mainly because his talks with the late Indian prime minister, Lal Bahadur Shastri, failed to produce any visible mechanism for a solution of the Kashmir issue—for which the war was fought.

Among other things, the nine-point Tashkent Declaration called on the armed forces of the two countries to withdraw by Feb. 25 to the positions they held Aug. 5, before fighting broke out. The antagonists agreed to settle their dispute through peaceful means and said full diplomatic relations would be restored.

Students demonstrating against what they consider as Ayub's failure at Tashkent fought pitched battles against well - trained riot police in various cities of Pakistan, including Lahore and Sialkot which bore the brunt of the fighting with India.

CRY OF MARTYRS

"What about our martyred fathers?" asked a banner carried by demonstrating students in Lahore. This was a reference to those killed in the fighting with India and epitomises the emotionalism which the issue of Kashmir can arouse.

President Ayub has managed to take things in hand in his own way. He made a broadcast to the nation in an attempt to calm the emotions that had been stirred up. At the same time, six opposition leaders and some 100 students were arrested for defying a ban on gathering in public.

Calmer sections of the Pakistani public do seem to realize that there was not much more Ayub could have done in Tashkent anyhow. The talks were conducted with both himself and Shastri handicapped by the fear that any concession either way would produce violent reactions at home.

If anything, the violence caused even by the relatively compromising tone of the Tashkent Declaration only goes to prove the point There has been unfavorable reaction in India as well as in Pakistan.

WANT PEACE

Meanwhile talks for the withdrawal of Indian and Pakistani troops from their forward positions along the ceasefire [illegible] have been going on, apparently with some measure of success. Though President Ayub's opponents are using his "failure at Tashkent" to make things difficult for him at home, there is paradoxically also a sense of relief that the chances of renewed hostilities are receding.

Shastri's death for a time did produce an element of uncertainty over whether the new Indian leadership would implement the declaration, but steps have already been taken to renew diplomatic relations. This would indicate that, for the time being at least, the desire for peace on both sides is genuine.

Meanwhile, the issue of Kashmir still hangs in the balance. The Pakistani president has shown that he is not unaware of the political danger this means for him personally. He had already made conciliatory moves towards the opposition parties at home, even be[illegible] the Tashkent talks.

He has put forward feelers toward forming some sort of national government. These came some time after the ceasefire with India and could hardly have been prompted by a fear of renewed fighting, because the opposition parties had given him full support during the hostilities.

FORESAW TROUBLE

It was evident that he foresaw trouble from the opposition as soon as peace was established along the borders and hoped to pacify the more prominent opposition leaders by giving them positions in his cabinet.

Getting him for the first time in a somewhat tight spot, the opposition has not shown any excessive readiness to co-operate with him. Before form[illegible] any national government, [illegible] are reported to have revived two old demands.

One is that he make the constitution democratic, which would mean changing the system of franchise from indirect t direct. The other is that he give more power to the assemblies, which now are no more than rubber stamps to any ordinances the present administration wishes to promulgate.

President Ayub has not yet shown any willingness to concede to these demands. He has been busy visiting abroad, first to the United States and then to Tashkent. The following months may see some interesting political manoeuvring at Rawalpindi and in East Pakistan.

DEATH BENEFIT TO WIDOW EXEMPT $10,000

When an employer continues paying a deceased employer's salary to the widow she is not taxable on any part of it, unless the amount received by her exceeds $10,000.

This is an exemption that is not applicable each year. It is just one stated amount. If she uses $6,000 of it in one year, she can only claim the balance of $4,000 in the following year. This only applies against the death benefit she receives from her late husband's employers by the way of continuing salary. It has no bearing on any other type of income she may receive.

If the amount paid to her is less than $10,000 when she is only exempt up to the amount she received, as the Income Tax reads, the lesser of husband's salary received after his death or $10,000.

When the widow receives a T4 slip showing the amount paid to her on behalf of her late husband, the T4 must be attached to her tax return with a note stating it is a death benefit, and exempt from tax up to $10,000. In cases where the widow has no other income and would not ordinarily be filing a return, it would be better for her, to save complications later on in the year, to file a return with a note of explanation as outlined above. In some cases the employer will indicate on the T4 slip it is a death benefit and exempt up to $10,000 so if the T4 clearly states this and she has no other income there would be no point in filing.

For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: My late husband's employers paid his funeral expenses and continued his salary for three months. His salary was $500 per month. Is this taxable income in my hands?

Answer: No.

Question 2: I received a refund of my late husband's pension plan contributions. Is this a tax-free death benefit?

Answer: No. See future article re pension refunds.

Globe and Mail, Brantford Expositor Win Paper Awards

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Globe and Mail and Brantford Expositor are the 1965 winners of the John A. MacLaren newspaper awards for typography and appearance.

Entries from 95 Canadian dailies were considered, editions of last Dec. 10 being the basis for judgment.

This is The Globe and Mail's first win in the MacLaren competition among papers with circulation over 25,000. Previous winners in the four years of awards are Windsor Star twice and Hamilton Spectator.

The Expositor has won three times among papers under 25,000 circulation. The 1964 winner was Kingston Whig-Standard.

Awards for individual pages are:

Judges for 1965 were Floyd Chalmers, chairman of Maclean - Hunter Publishing Co.; Roger Duhamel, Queen's printer, Ottawa; Ferdinand Eckhardt, director of Winnipeg Art Gallery; and John C. Lockwood, president of Lever Bros. Ltd.

SAID STANDARD HIGH

Mr. Chalmers, judging chairman, says he "found the papers of high standard with a very narrow spread between the award winners and the least considered."

The judges felt that sports and women's pages were not as excitingly handled as they could be, and that no women's page in the under-25,000 group was worthy of an award.

Winners are selected on basis of typography, layout and makeup. The technical advisers to the judges—W. E. Trevett, president of Cooper and Beatty Ltd., Toronto typographers; and Allan Fleming, assistant general manager of MacLaren Advertising—noted a striking overall improvement in 1965 entries.

The awards are named for the founder of MacLaren's, who died in 1955, and sponsored by the company. They will be presented this spring at the annual meeting in Toronto of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association.

His Job to Turn Raw Youths Into World's Finest Sailors

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—Capt. Gerard Brie of L'Islet, Que., the Canada's first and only coast guard training college, sees his complicated job in simple

“Our mission here is to turn raw teen-agers from all parts of Canada into the world's most professional sailors,” he says.

The complex equipment and accumulated knowledge to make this possible are to be found behind the gates of the college here, located in buildings that once housed Point Edward naval base.

The aim of the establishment, whose doors opened to 40 cadets last September, is to turn out a corps of efficiently trained sea captains, mates and engineers to man Canada's expanding fleet of coast guard vessels.

Capt. Brie, with 10 years of sea experience and a master's foreign - going certificate obtained in 1954, says the “purpose of the college is easy, but the process is hard.”

He explains that the varied functions of the coast guard— 1961 called the Canadian Marine Services — include icebreaking, meteorological survey work, search and rescue, aid to navigation, northern supply and cable repair.

NEED PROS

These require a highly-trained corps of seamen whose educational and technical background will equip them to keep abreast of modern advances in technology. After four years' training, cadets will have acquired enough seamanship theory to enable them to qualify as foreign-going masters and first-class engineers once they gain the necessary sea experience after graduation.

The cadets, who have all expenses paid and also receive a monthly salary of $75, are required to sign seven-year contracts when they enter the college. This ensures that the force have at least three years' service from the graduates.

Requirements for entrance include junior matriculation, plus perfect health with emphsis on eyesight, and applicants must be between 16 and 21 years of age.

Following their arrival, the cadets are outfitted in the distinctive uniform of the coast guard—dark blue, battledress-type jackets and pants and blue berets. Then they are divided into navigation and engineering groups.

French - speaking, English-speaking and bilingual cadets are intermingled as much as possible, since another purpose of the college is to produce top-grade sailors who can speak both of Canada's languages.

TEACH BASICS

For the first year, classroom emphasis is on languages and academic teaching. Basic mathematics and physics are designed to provide a foundation for the cadets' future instruction in advanced avigation.

“We want to turn out intelligent sea executives,” says Capt. Brie, whose own qualifications—a bachelor of arts degree from Laval University among others—indicate he is just that himself.

Each of the 10 operational buildings of the college is named after a ship in active service with the coast guard fleet.

The main school building is called Labrador; the chapel Ville Marie; staff residence Montcalm; the cadets' residence C. D. Howe; the cafeteria Simcoe and the boat house Stephen E. Foster.

For administrative and competitive purposes in both classwork and sports, the boys are divided into two “houses.” John A. Macdonald and Georges Etienne Cartier.

Says Brie: “We feel an atmosphere of healthy competition is necessary to an operation of this sort.”

The students sleep two in a room and a typical work day extends from reveille at 6:15 a.m. to lights out at 10:45 p.m. “Shore leave” is granted on weekends.

PROVIDE SERVICES

Sunday church parade is mandatory, but church attendance is up to the students themselves. One chapel caters to both Roman Catholics and Protestants, although services are separate.

Present plans call for another group of 40 cadets to be introduced next September and during each subsequent year. It is estimated that, taking dropouts into consideration, the college eventually will accommodate between 120 and 130 cadets.

Land-bound at present, the cadets will have their first training cruise next May, probably on one of the coast guard ships operating in northern waters. Other sea trips are planned later in the course.

Capt. Brie, a completely bilingual executive whose English bears only a slight French accent, is himself the son of a sea captain.

Following his studies at Laval, he served 10 years at sea in the merchant service before becoming a professor of mathematics at the Province of Quebec Marine Institute in Rimouski from 1955 to 1959, when he became director of study at that institution. He became over-all director in 1961.

COAST GUARD COLLEGE COMMANDER — Capt. Gerard Brie of L'Islet, Que., commander of the newly-established Canadian Coast Guard College at Sydney, N.S., says his aim is to turn Canadian teenagers into the “world's most professional sailors.” Capt. Brie is an experienced seaman who combines a B.A. degree with a master's foreign-going ticket. The four-year course is designed to turn out a corps of “sea-executives” for Canada's expanding coast guard service. (CP Photo)

Deseronto Council Discusses Building of Dog Pound

DESERONTO — Deseronto Town Council meeting Monday evening gave permission for the Deseronto branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society to hold a blitz March 7.

A by-law was passed appointing a second policeman to replace Constable Fields. Constable Walter Turner of Westport received the appointment. He has had experience as a guard at the Kingston Penitentiary since leaving the Canadian Army.

A report was received from the Ontario Water Resources Committee to say that it was not advisable to use the water on Forester's Island for town consumption.

There was considerable discussion regarding the number of dogs running at large causing problems for home owners. All agreed that it was time to do something to control them, and the question of a dog pound was gone into. The councillors faced the question of cost, but felt that some definite steps should be taken to rid the town of dogs roaming at large and without the owners having paid the dog tax.

The acting town clerk was instructed to communicate with other municipalities to find out how they had dealt with similar problems.

Mayor Gerald Lott feels that the Humane Society should be consulted also. “I feel that there is no way out except to round them up, put them in pound, and then destroy them humanely if they are not claimed by their owners,” he stated.

Reeve Donald Armitage reported on the meeting of the Area Education Committee held at Shannonville recently. The Ontario Department has approved the erection of an eight-roomed public school in the Shannonville area, he told the council members.

Scandinavia Topic of Lecture, Film

NAPANEE — The second evening of travel and adventure sponsored by the Napanee Rotary Club was a delight to everyone in the good crowd who saw and heard Gordon Palmquist in the auditorium of the Napanee District Secondary School Monday evening.

The speaker took his audience with him on a tour of Norway, Sweden, and Denmark, illustrating his lecture with excellent pictures.

He gave his listeners a delightful picture, both through the eye and through the ear, of the land of the Midnight Sun. The journey began in Denmark, where he showed them the gay life of Copenhagen and took tehm to the home of Hans Christian Anderson. They made a complete tour of the farms in order to learn of Denmark's dairy industry.

In Sweden they were given glimpses of many slides of life and industry, as well as of the scenery.

In Norway they saw the mysterious Laplander and his reindeer, and learned of his way of life.

People were impressed by different aspects of the lecture. All were impressed by the fact that everybody seemed to be happy, healthy, and well fed. It seemed unusal, for example, for a whole family to stop work in the field just to have fun for a few minutes, perhaps for a folk dance, or for whole families to go off together on bicycles for a picnic.

Hospital Open House Delayed

NAPANEE — Due to late deliveries the County Hospital “open house” will be held March 5 and 6 and not on February 26 and 27 as previously arranged, Administrator J. C. Hepburn told the press Tuesday.

“Equipment is not coming as anticipated, even as promised, and through no fault of the suppliers”, Mr. Hepburn stated. “Only 40 of the 78 beds arrived Monday, for example. Some major items are not here yet, but it is the lack of the million little things that would give the finished look that has made us postpone the open house”.

TRUCK STRIKE A FACTOR

When asked if he thought the transport strike had been at the bottom of the delays he admitted that it might have had some effect. It may be the reason companies with their own transports are slow, as they have to do their own pick-ups as well as their own deliveries. It may possibly account for the fact that the express companies are swamped with so much business.

“Everything may be here tomorrow”, he said, “but we cannot risk it. People who come to our open house want to see furnished rooms, with drapes hanging and beds made up. They do not want to see an empty room and be told that in this room will be the nursery, for example. They want to take away a complete picture, and we cannot be sure we can show them one this weekend'.

T. Wightman Wins Paper's 'Heroes' Award

NAPANEE — Napanee is not a little proud of 11-year-old Tommy Wightman, but it is not altogether surprised.

Tommy is a winner in the “heroes” contest run by Richard H. Needham of the Toronto “Globe and Mail.” Mr. Needham invited young Canadians to write him about their heroes, and then had all the letters read by five judges. Each submitted to him the five which he considered best, and Tommy's letter was the only one selected by all five.

Tommy wrote about his uncle, a veterinarian in Winnipeg.

“My uncle Ross is my hero. He rings bulls and once he pulled a tiger's tooth. He believes anything you want to do bad enough, you can do. He is 44 years old but he is strong and not fat and enjoys himself all the time, not just when he is watching television or something like that. He reads a lot, tells funny jokes, likes to listen to music, look at paintings, eat, hunt, fish, and do mathematical posers. He likes to work, too, uses his brains and makes lots of money. And he has time for people and keeps promises.”

The phrase which caught everyone's attention is “and keeps promises”, columnist Needham says.

FATHER FORMER EDITOR

Tommy is the son of Henry D. Wightman, former editor and publisher of the Napanee “Post-Express”. The paper was sold to the Napanee Beaver last July after running for 102 years. Mr. Wightman had accepted a position in Ottawa with the Bureau of Statistics, work for which he was trained at Queen's University. He gave up a position there to assist his father, the late H. Duncan Wightman who had purchased the “Express”, as it was then.

“Hank” had a facile pen, and his editorials were always good. Mrs. Wightman also is a writer, and her column “The Distaff Side” rollicked with humor. Books spilled all over the home, and the four children all are readers, and are encouraged to think for themselves.

NDP Leader Says Ontario Demands Weaken Federal Authority as Much as Que.

TORONTO (CP) — NDP Leader Donald C. MacDonald says Ontario's demands on the federal government represent just as great a weakening of central authority as demands by Quebec.

Mr. MacDonald told the legislature that Ontario has been engaged in a poker game with Ottawa on pensions and medical insurance—issues that should be used as instruments to reshape the structure of Confederation.

Ontario had taken a basically unco-operative approach on pensions, throwing away its opportunity to help shape the Canada Pension Plan and criticizing Quebec because Quebec was not afraid to bargain for what it wanted.

Recalling an interjection by Labor Minister Rowntree that there was no opportunity of bargaining with Ottawa on medical care insurance, Mr. MacDonald asked Premier Robarts to confirm or deny this was the government's approach. It was a “counsel of defeatism if I ever heard one.”

“It is idle for us to be critical of Quebec in making so-called back-door deals with Ottawa through hard bargaining if Ontario, as the historic spokesman for English Canada within Confederation, insists on sulking at a distance.”

ACCUSES ROBARTS

The NDP leader accused Premier Robarts of not giving leadership to English-speaking Canada.

The legislature:

—Voted 50 to 25 against a motion to start discussion on divorce law reform with the federal government.

—Was told by Provincial Treasurer J. Allan the retail sales tax increase to five per cent from three will not apply to materials included in construction contracts entered into at fixed prices before the budget announcement Feb. 19.

—Learned from Dr. John B. Neilson, chairman of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission, that no let-up in the spiralling cost of the province's hospital insurance plan is expected until 1970.

Mass Picketing Starts at Plant At Peterboro

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Union demonstrators, estimated by [illegible] at about 200, paraded in [illegible] of the strike-bound Tilco Plastics Ltd. plant here today despite a warning Tuesday from Attorney-General Wishart.

Stanley Rouse, president of Local 872 of the International Association of Machinists (CLC) and chairman of the Peterborough Labor Council's special injunction committee, said the demonstration is against the use of injunctions in labor disputes.

Chief Jack Shrubb of the Peterborough city police said 17 police officers were on duty near the plant at one point but there had been no incidents and the number was reduced by about half.

He said the demonstrators, walking two abreast and carrying placards, were "very orderly" and he didn't anticipate any problems.

SUPPORT WOMEN

Members of 35 Peterborough district unions showed up at the [illegible] where about 30 women [illegible]mbers of the Textile Workers' Union of America (CLC) have been on strike since Dec. 14.

The demonstration was staged despite a warning Tuesday by Attorney-General Arthur Wishart that the law would be used against any persons defying court orders on labor disputes.

An injunction granted by the Ontario Supreme Court Dec. 20 limits the number of pickets at the plant to 12.

Mr. Wishart told the legislature that any attempt to break the law by mass picketing would be dealt with.

Stanley Rouse, president of Local 872 of the International Association of Machinists (CLC) and chairman of the Peterborough Labor Council special injunction committee, said today the council intends to ignore the [illegible]ning. He said he hopes the demonstration will continue for a week.

He said the council does not intend to reinforce the 12 pickets already outside the plant. "But we are taking the view that as worker-citizens of Peterborough, we are upholding the right of lawful assembly."

Mr. Rouse said the injunction applies only to the textile workers at Tilco and does not include other union locals.

The striking workers are seeking a 10-to-12 cent-an-hour wage increase. Top hourly wages for the women now is $1.12.

The plant, which usually employs about 65 persons, has continued to operate. Mr. Rouse said there would be no interference with workers entering the plant.

Russian Dogs Test Hazards For Moon Trip

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Two dogs spun around the earth in a Soviet satellite today in a move expected to help space scientists decide whether they need to send dogs to the moon before men.

The dogs, Veterok (breeze) and Ugolyok (little lump of coal), were apparently flying higher than man or beast has ever been — some 550 miles. They soared into space Tuesday aboard the satellite Cosmos 110.

The highest flying Soviet cos[illegible]nauts, Pavel Belyaev and [illegible]ei Leonov, were only about 310 miles above the earth at the high point of their orbit around Voskhod 2 in March last year.

Though Russia orbited a number of dogs between 1958 and 1961, this apparently was the first [illegible] a Cosmos satellite was [illegible] carry them into space.

MAY RETURN

There never has been any information here on whether the Cosmos satellites are brought back to earth, but Western space experts said they usually orbit for about eight days and then return.

Soviet space scientists can almost certainly study the dogs' reaction to their flight by means of data radioed back to earth from Cosmos 110.

[illegible] brief official announcement [illegible] the launching said the purpose of Cosmos 110 was to conduct biological studies. This presumably included the study of the effects of cosmic radiation on living matter at such great heights.

CITIZEN OF THE YEAR George Wishart shares moment of pride with his wife and daughter Mary Lo, (Mrs. John O. Graham), after receiving the Jaycee Trophy at a testimonial dinner last night.

George Wishart Is Selected As Jaycees 'Citizen of Year'

Belleville's Citizen of the Year, 1966, is George Wishart, former city alderman.

The announcement was made by Frank Murray, general manager of CJBQ Radio at a testimonial dinner staged by the Belleville Jaycees at the Hotel Quinte last night. Mr. Murray received Citizen of the Year honors in 1965.

Mr. Murray introduced Mr. Wishart.

Mayor J. R. Ellis made the presentation of the Jaycee Trophy.

While making the introduction, Mr. Murray described the guest of honor as a man who is always concerned with people.

"Mr. Wishart has served his city, his county and his country," stated Mr. Murray.

"He is a conservationist who has done extensive study in biological research for the Department of Agriculture.

"He was chairman of the Moira River Conservation Authority, has 25 years service with the Canadian National Institute for the Blind to his credit, served for many years on the Board of Education, and with the Children's Aid Society, hospital board, home and school association, and the Fish and Game Club.

"Mr. Wishart has lent his assistance to many worthy causes, including the Victorian Order of Nurses, the United Appeal and church activities."

Gardening and photography are two of Mr. Wishart's hobbies.

Mr. Wishart accepted the honors with humility.

HERE 37 YEARS

"I never thought when I arrived here 37 years ago that something like this would happen to me," he said.

He praised his wife for the part she has played in his life, saying that Mrs. Wishart has always been ready and willing to lend her physical and spiritual assistance.

Said Mr. Wishart:

"Belleville has been exceedingly good to my family and me.

"I hardly believe I deserve this great honor but if you (the nominating committee) feel this way, I appreciate it more than I can say."

Mrs. Wishart and one of the couple's three daughters, Mrs. John O. Graham (Mary Lo) of Richmond Hill, were present at last night's testimonial dinner.

Members of the Citizen of the Year nominating committee were: Mrs. Marie Huffman, president of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club; Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan, Archdeacon A. S. McConnell, Mayor Ellis, Mr. Murray and LeRoy Parfitt, president of the Belleville Jaycees.

Former Jaycee president Zdenek Kvarda was chairman of last night's event.

Others in attendance were Lee Grills, MP, Hastings South and Mrs. Grills and guest speaker Vladimir Gregorovich, second secretary and press attache, the United Soviet Socialist Republic Embassy, Ottawa.

Mayor Ellis and Mr. Grills spoke briefly.

"The city appreciates the enthusiasm the Jaycees put into their projects," stated Mayor Ellis.

Mr. Grills offered congratulations to the Belleville Jaycees.

Russian Makes Plea

Comparisons Odious, Just Understand Us

Persons who want to understand Russians and their country should not use comparisons in an effort to do so stated Vladimir Gregorovich of the United Soviet Socialist Republic Embassy in Ottawa while addressing Belleville Jaycees and guests at the annual Citizen of the Year testimonial dinner held at the Hotel Quinte last night.

Mr. Gregorovich is second secretary to the USSR Embassy in Ottawa and is also press attache.

"Don't compare our country with yours", he said, "We are two countries and two peoples and we have to live in peace".

"Just try to understand us.

"We don't want war. We lost 20,000,000 men in World War 2.

"Our standard of life is not on a par with that in the United States, Sweden, Canada and other western countries but we have embarked on a 20-year plan to improve the situation and we shall live as well as all the other countries some day.

"We have just completed a seven-year portion of the program and in March, a five-year scheme will be discussed at the Congress of the Party in Moscow.

"Where and how we'll go will be discussed and we will show the people that we shall live better.

STRESS EDUCATION

"In my country, we stress education and it's free to all. The more capable students, from all the classes of the people, attend the better universities.

"This emphasis on education is showing results, especially in science.

"When next I receive an appointment as press attache, it could be to the Moon. It's practical, now."

Mr. Gregorovich attended State University in Moscow after World War 2.

"I was the most talented in my family," he observed, "I was an only child".

He refers to his English as "not too good"

Soccer and skiing interfered with his studies of German.

"And I don't know French, too," he says with a grin.

Mr. Gregorovich became editor of a student newspaper while attending university and later became fascinated with newspaper work.

"I didn't fight this fascination. I became a journalist and science is still waiting for me but it seems to be getting along without me alright."

During his career in journalism, Mr. Gregorovich worked for Pravda, a USSR daily newspaper which sells 9,000,000 copies a day.

NO BILINGUALISM PROBLEM

"With 190 nationalities in the USSR, there is no problem of bilingualism," commented the speaker.

As press attache, much of Mr. Gregorovich's time is taken up by receptions for the press in Ottawa.

He is associated with the magazine Soviet Union Today, a monthly publication printed in Ottawa.

"No one knows how many newspapers there are in the USSR but there is no unemployment among journalists", he said.

Mr. Gregorovich was thanked by Jaycee Ron Kristchasen. The speaker was introduced by Stan Albert.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker also blistered the government on its nuclear policy.

He suggested Defence Minister Hellyer was under presure from the U.S. when he changed his policy in 1963 on nuclear weapons.

Mr. Hellyer denied having talks with the U.S. ambassador on the matter.

Denis Relayed $20,000 Offer Says Witness

OTTAWA (CP) — Pierre Lamontagne testified in court Tuesday that he, Raymond Denis and "the party" were offered benefits in 1964 to help free narcotics smuggler Lucien Rivard on bail.

He said he immediately rejected a $20,000 offer relayed to him by Denis, then executive to the federal immigration minister, to drop opposition to bail for Rivard.

For a second time Mr. Lamontagne's testimony was interrupted for legal argument with the jury excluded. A similar procedure was followed for two days last week.

Mr. Lamontagne identified Denis as the man who informed him of the $20,000 offer. He said Denis also indicated that he (Denis) would get something out of the affair.

Mr. Lamontagne, 30-year-old Montreal lawyer, also swore that Denis, 33, told him four persons were behind the offer, naming only one of them—a person referred to as Gelinas.

He said that in addition to the $20,000 there was to be an undisclosed sum "for the party."

Mr. Lamontagne was testifying at Denis' trial on a charge of corruptly offering a sum of money to have Mr. Lamontagne drop opposition to bail for Rivard.

Mr. Lamontagne was lawyer for the United States government in court proceedings in Montreal in 1964 and 1965 to have Rivard extradited to stand trial in the U.S.

The trial began a week ago but a considerable part of the hearings have been legal arguments with the jury of 10 men and two women excluded. Mr. Lamontagne was the second witness called.

Defence counsel Louis Assaly and Crown Attorney John Cassells clashed several times about statements by Mr. Lamontagne, who was instructed by Judge Frank Costello not to draw inferences from events which occurred in the Rivard extradition hearings.

Mr. Assaly later requested a further in-camera hearing over references to a telephone call between Mr. Lamontagne and Denis. He said the RCMP "covered" this call and he questioned the admissibility of Mr. Lamontagne's testimony about it.

The entire afternoon session was occupied with the in-camera legal argument. The jury was excused until this morning.

One of Main Qualities of New Lieut.-Gov. Is His Affability

QUEBEC (CP)—For Hugues Lapointe, the post of lieutenant-governor of Quebec marks another stage in a varied career as soldier, politician and diplomat.

Mr. Lapointe, 54, was sworn in as the province's 22nd lieutenant-governor late Tuesday, replacing Paul Comtois who died Monday in a fire which destroyed his residence, Bois de Coulonge.

The new Queen's representative shows traces of his military background in his erect carriage. Though his hairline is receding, this sign of age is belied by piercing eyes that look out from above a wide and bushy mustache.

Friends and acquaintances of Mr. Lapointe say that despite his somewhat stern appearance, one of his main qualities is his affability.

His ability to make friends of acquaintances was displayed Tuesday as Daniel Johnson, leader of the Opposition Union Nationale party and on the opposite side of the political fence from Mr. Lapointe, said:

"He and his wife will be charming hosts."

Mr. Lapointe has been a Liberal since the start of his career in politics and his family has a long Liberal tradition. He is the son of Ernest Lapointe, longtime federal justice minister.

The new lieutenant-governor was a cabinet minister in the Liberal administration of former prime minister Louis St. Laurent.

Mr. Lapointe's last position before assuming his new post was that of Quebec delegate-general to London. He had been in London since 1961.

Mr. Lapointe attained the rank of lieutenant-colonel in the Canadian Army. He won the federal riding of Lotbiniere in 1940 when he was 28.

He remained the representative for that riding until June of 1957, when a general election ended the Liberal party's 22-year federal tenure.

Mr. Lapointe served overseas during the Second World War with the Chaudiere Regiment.

He was a delegate to the United Nations General Assembly in Paris in 1948 and at Lake Success in 1949 and 1950. During the 1950 meeting he was vice-chairman of the Canadian delegation.

Appointed parliamentary assistant to the minister of national defence in 1945 and then to the secretary of state for external affairs in 1949, he became solicitor-general later that year.

In 1950 he was appointed minister of veterans affairs and five years later became postmaster-general.

Until Bois de Coulonge, which has been destroyed by fire twice previously, is rebuilt, Mr. Lapointe will occupy a suite at Quebec City's Chateau Frontenac Hotel.

Premier Jean Lesage describes the new lieutenant-governor as a "longtime friend." They went to school together at the Quebec City Seminary.

New Bail System in Frontenac Amazing Officials of the Plan

KINGSTON (CP) — The uccess of a new system in Frontenac County that allows some persons without money for bail to remain free at least until their trial date is amazing officials of the plan.

Crown Attorney John E. Sampson, who volunteered to conduct the experiment, said in an interview that of 68 persons released on their own recognizance during a six-month period from June to December last year, only one failed to make his scheduled court appearance.

And that person had been arrested for another offence in another city prior to his appearance in a Kingston court. When arrested, he had a copy of the remand date in his pocket.

The experiment arose from a request by Attorney-General A. A. Wishart to the province's Crown attorneys to help modernize the bail system. Mr. Sampson volunteered to conduct Frontenac County's experiment and recruited Lt.-Col. L. J. Flynn and Lt.-Col. O. A. Earl, both retired, to serve on a bail assessment committee.

Lt.-Col. Earl is a former warden at Joyceville Institution.

EXAMINES CASES

Under the plan, the committee examines each case referred to it. On indictable offences it decides whether the accused should be released on his own recognizance—his word that he will appear on the trial date—whether he should be released on cash bail or whether he should be remanded in custody.

When less-serious charges such as impaired driving are concerned, a justice of the peace makes the decision and release without bail is almost automatic.

"Essentially, the system is to make the law equal for all," said Mr. Sampson. "We are trying to insure that a man isn't unduly penalized by serving time before he comes to trial just because he hasn't the money to raise bail."

But statistics indicate there is also a saving to the community because of the reduced number of mouths to feed at jails. During the three months prior to the experiment's beginning the number of prisoner days for Frontenac County Jail was 574. During the first three months of the experiment it was 439.

COMMUNITY SAVES

Mr. Sampson also said a saving to the community results if "some families don't have to go on welfare because the breadwinner is not jailed before his trial."

Another advantage, the Crown attorney said, is that the plan "avoids any suggestion that magistrates get a pre-conceived opinion of the accused because the bail procedure doesn't have to be conducted by him."

Despite his enthusiasm for the system, Mr. Sampson said he intends to ask the City of Kingston to take over operation of the bail committee because "it's not really our function to superintend this type of handling arrested citizens."

Lt.-Col. Flynn and Lt.-Col. Earl, neither of whom is paid for the job, have volunteered to continue in the post and say the use of bail assessment committees should be encouraged throughout Ontario.

Canadian Makers Double Number of Vehicles Exported

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian auto manufacturers more than doubled the number of cars and trucks exported last month compared with January, 1965, and most of the vehicles went to the United States.

Statistics released Tuesday by the Canadian Motor Vehicle Manufacturers' Association show the total number of vehicles exported in January was 21,810 — 16,667 cars and 5,143 trucks—compared with 8,257 in the same period last year.

Increased vehicle exports have been evident since the auto trade pact between Canada and the U.S.—allowing a tariff-free flow of vehicles and parts between the two countries—came into effect early last year.

"There is no doubt the increase in exports has developed as a result of the auto trade pact," Jim Dykes, general manager of the manufacturers' association, said in an interview Tuesday night.

"The increase in exports has been most significant and the increase in employment in the Canadian auto industry is also up," Mr. Dykes said.

The "Big Three" auto manufacturers in Canada have been largely responsible for the increase in exports.

Chrysler Canada Ltd. has shipped 25,000 cars to the U.S. since the beginning of the 1966-model year, including 5,500 in January.

General Motors of Canada Ltd. shipped 2,100 in January, down from 4,700 in the same period last year, but a GM spokesman said "the January export decline is only a matter of production scheduling."

"The pattern has been for our company to increase its exports over the past few years," he added.

Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. sent 7,007 autos to the U.S. last month. The company's total shipments south of the border come to 7,147 cars and 10,583 trucks since the beginning of 1966 - model production, compared with none in the corresponding period last year.

Conservatives Back Out When Liberals Force Vote

TORONTO (CP)—Two Conservative backbenchers, both lawyers, urged the government to allow a vote in the legislature on a divorce law reform resolution Tuesday, but pulled a sudden about-face when the opposition forced a vote on the issue.

Alan Eagleson (PC — Lakeshore) and George Kerr (PC—Halton) both spoke in support of a Liberal resolution calling on the Conservatives to initiate discussion on divorce law reform with the federal government.

Opposition resolutions of this nature normally are talked out in the house, but Mr. Eagleson and Mr. Kerr, along with other speakers, said this one should be put to a vote.

"The time is ripe and opportune for steps to be taken in this house," said Mr. Eagleson in asking for a vote.

"I hope we're not going to talk this out this year," said Mr. Kerr, who said that every member of the legal profession in Ontario would support the resolution.

The last speaker in the debate, Elmer Sopha (L — Sudbury), moved that the motion be put to a vote, but Premier Robarts, who had returned, immediately made it clear to Conservative members that the resolution did not have the support of the government.

He opposed Mr. Sopha's motion—and Mr. Eagleson and Mr. Kerr also voted against putting the issue to a vote despite their earlier pleas. The motion was lost, 50 to 25, with only the Liberals and New Democrats supporting it.

That shunted the resolution itself back to the depths of the order paper. The adjourned debate on divorce law reform is unlikely to be called again this session.

Mr. Robarts said he was sympathetic with some of the ideas expressed during the debate but could not accept the terminology of the Liberal motion, which would "direct" the government to initiate discussion with Ottawa.

"The government at this stage of the game is not prepared to accept this direction," he declared.

Mr. Kerr had said that by supporting the resolution the legislature would be taking a step toward the elimination of dishonesty and hypocrisy in divorce proceedings.

Mr. Eagleson said Ontario's divorce laws had brought the law itself into disrepute. Mr. Sopha agreed, saying he felt shame to be involved in a part of the law "that evinces such little respect."

Harry Worton (L—Wellington South), the mover of the resolution for the second year in a row, said a law designed to preserve and strengthen the institution of marriage is, in fact, destroying it.

MUSHMOUTH REPORTS.

Dear Boss:-

He was wild-eyed and haggard. Three weeks beard growth timbered his craggy mug. "Yuh gotta hide me, Mushmouth", he croaked through cracked lips. "They're hot on my trail."

He was my cousin Hashmouth from Vancouver who candles salmon eggs out that way when the pink ladies get through spawning.

A couple of beakers of eel and clam juice spiked with vodka and lysol quieted him.

When his beard had softened and his eyes lost their slit look, he told me had been on the lam from the west coast for the past two weeks.

He gulped three frozen turtle sandwiches before answering my question "Why? Murder, mayhem, robbery or refusing a job as a peacetime batman to a retired colonel?".

"Yuh'll never believe me, Mushmouth," he sobbed. "I've never been famed for my physical beauty, but, swelp me, it was my resemblance to Clarence Campbell, boss-man of the N.H.L. that sicked the vigilantes onto me."

"Mush, that guy is so popular out there they've even boycotted a popular brand of soup. Three of my buddies of the same name have made application to change their monikers to Ginsberg, O'Flaherty and Wirkowski."

A kilted boy scout troop has changed its marching theme from the "Campbells are Comin' " to "Selling Down the River".

"Yup, Mush, they were all set to get into the big time with Portland, Seattle, Los Angeles and San Francisco in one compact western group. There was so much money floatin' around it made Fort Knox look like junior's piggy-bank. They'd even torn down the effigies of that guy Smythe from Toronto who wanted half of Vancouver as a bonus package before he'd consider building an arena."

"Then as one newspaper guy out there wrote, 'Vancouver drew a blank from a stacked deck'. The impact was terrific. The town sizzled. They was even talk of making a secession sandwich with Quebec and British Columbia the bread and the Ontario ham in the centre."

The bars and the bistros, posh drawing rooms and fish shanties echoed to the same conversational topic. I asked one hothead what the Viet Nam news was and he answered "Whereinell is Viet Nam?"

"What do they mean by the tail wagging the dog, Mush? That's what a lot of guys said the American television network and the NHL represented, with the league the dog."

"They're saying out there that some guy named Norris who is the top talon of the Chicago Black Hawks owns an old Death Valley hotel down in Tombstone Arizona — and he's in line for the next franchise.

"And here's something else, Mush. Some wag out there parodied the American national anthem to suit his hockey situational frame of mind. Here tis:-"

Oh, say you will see,
Every Saturday night,
What so proudly they pinched,
At that Expansion meeting.
There's St. Loo; Min-St. P.
Pittsburg, Philly, LA
San Francisco's there too.
In inaugural greeting
Oh, the red light will glare
Sticks go hurtling in air
As the crowds through the night
Doubt the goalie's still there
Oh, long will that NHL banner yet wave
O'er the ice of the free that put us in the grave.

Bruins Bare Claws In 'Spoiler' Role

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins, once seemingly content to lie doggo at the bottom of the National Hockey League heap, have come to life lately and seem to be enjoying their role as "spoilers" in the pennant race.

Coach Milt Schmidt credits his team's improvement to teamwork, consistency and accuracy.

The Bruins get another chance to play their spoiler role tonight as they square off in Montreal against the Canadiens who are two points behind first-place Chicago Black Hawks and two ahead of Detroit Red Wings.

In other action, Toronto Maple Leafs play Chicago and last-place New York Rangers take on the Red Wings.

The Leafs are in fourth place, eight points behind Detroit and 17 ahead of Boston which is battling to maintain its two-point lead over New York.

The Bruins went on a four-game victory streak a month ago. Since then they have won eight games and tied two in 15 starts. Their eight victories include two over Chicago and Detroit and one each against Montreal and Toronto.

RECORDS A SHUTOUT

In their last start against Montreal, Bruins' goalie Eddie Johnston recorded a 2-0 shutout.

The man given the major share of the credit for Boston's improvement is Pit Martin.

Martin, 22, a centre from Noranda, Que., came to the Bruins at Christmas time in a trade that saw Parker MacDonald go to Detroit.

In 23 games with Boston, Pit has scored 15 goals and assisted on six others. Also, he has had a four-goal night against Chicago and one of three goals against Detroit.

Asked the reason for his improvement, Martin replied:

"I guess it's more ice time, and that swing at Pittsburgh before being traded by Detroit may have helped. I got my confidence back there with six goals in 11 games."

Boston has also been getting goals from another trade player, John McKenzie, 28, picked up from New York in exchange for Reggie Fleming. The right winger has scored six goals and assisted on five in 18 games, equalling his production in 35 starts for the Rangers.

Montreal-born goalie Johnston has also helped the Bruins' cause. He was in nets for seven of their eight recent victories.

Cougars Clinch Top Spot For Kingston

Cobourg Cougars sewed up first place for Kingston Frontenacs in the OHA Eastern Junior "B" League last night, by beating the runner-up Oshawa Crushmen.

Cobourg nipped the Crushmen 5-4, in Port Hope, leaving the Oshawa club six points behind Kingston with only two games left to play.

The game was one that had been postponed from Monday and was re-scheduled for next Tuesday, March 1, according to the OHA.

The two clubs are currently tied with 33 points apiece, four ahead of Belleville.

Tonight, Peterborough plays at Trenton and the winner will be assured of a playoff berth.

Belleville Rollins complete their schedule with games in Oshawa on Friday and against the Crushmen back here on Monday.

Nationals Defeat Rangers

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—London Nationals scored two goals in 96 seconds late in the third period to break a tie and defeat Kitchener Rangers 6-4 in the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A series Tuesday night.

The Nationals must win their remaining two games against St. Catharines Black Hawks and Kitchener must lose their five for London to catch last spot in the playoff race. The Rangers are in second-last place in the nine-team league.

The Nationals were less than six minutes from elimination Tuesday when Moe St. Jacques batted in a waist-high rebound to put them ahead 5-4. Cliff Turner converted a rebound at the crease a minute and 36 seconds later to secure the victory.

St. Jacques' and Turner's goals were their second each of the game. Dave Gorman and Randy Murray added the others for the winners.

Bob Jones scored twice for the Rangers who went down to their third loss in as many games at London. Bruce Reier and Bill Hway scored the other Kitchener goals.

Aces Clip Clippers

BALTIMORE (AP) — Quebec Aces, Eastern Division leaders, unloaded their high-scoring artillery on Baltimore Clippers Tuesday night and skated to an easy 7-2 American Hockey League victory.

Seven different players figured in the visitor's scoring as they beat Baltimore goalie Don Simmons for two goals in the first and third periods and three in the second.

Scoring for the victors were Simon Nolet and Wayne Hicks in the first period; Gordon Berenson, Noel Price and Terry Gray in the second and Leon Rochefort and John Hanna in the third.

Larry Regan scored in the second period and defenceman Ron Ingram in the final period for the Clippers.

Who does Sandy Koufax think he is? A football rookie?

Undoubtedly he doesn't, but stories appearing in a Los Angeles paper would tend to indicate that Koufax and pitching mate Don Drysdale are trying to add to a trend that has become common in pro football—long-term, six-figure contracts.

A copyright story in the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner says it would take a combined figure of more than $1,000,000 for the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers to sign their two star pitchers.

Willie Mays may have started the trend in baseball when he signed a two-year contract with San Francisco Giants for $250,000. Now Koufax is reported to be asking $600,000 and Drysdale $450,000 for three-year contracts.

SANDY KOUFAK

* * *

Koufax was not available for comment but Drysdale had this to say:

"I will not comment on the figures, which would put me in the position of negotiating through the newspapers. However, Sandy and I are grown up and this is a business affair. We want to handle it the way we feel is right, and in a proper manner for all concerned."

General manager E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi of the Dodgers, meanwhile, confirmed parts of the report.

"Yes, they are asking for a lot of money," he admitted. "But this $600,000 is news to me."

Bavasi also said he was not aware that the pitchers were asking for three-year contracts, but added:

DON DRYSDALE

* * *

"They may be as far as I know. So many people are in the act I don't know what's going on. It is true that I have been thinking in terms of around $100,000 but nothing has been settled on a figure.

Some 100 players remain unsigned with spring training opening in 10 days.

Among the name players still unhappy are Jim (Mudcat) Grant, Zoilo Versalles and Tony Oliva of Minnesota Twins, Bob Gibson of St. Louis Cardinals, Norm Cash and Don Demeter of Detroit Tigers, Brooks Robinson and Frank Robinson of Baltimore Orioles, San Francisco's Juan Marichal and Carl Yastrzemski of Boston Red Sox.

The most ticklish problems could be presented by Grant and Gibson, the two ace hurlers having based their salary pitches on comparisons with what Koufax receives.

Seaboards Scalp Iroquois

A makeshift nine-man lineup represented the Trenton Iroquois for an OHA Lakeshore Intermediate Hockey League date in Picton last night.

The Picton Seaboards trounced the Iroquois by a 12-2 count in what may have been the losers' final appearance on ice, according to rumors.

Picton jumped ahead 5-0 in the first, led 8-2 after two heats and added four more in the third.

A. Burleigh and Larry Riley scored Trenton's goals and Joe Scott had one assist. Others dressed for the game were goalie D. Johnstone, Whitehead, Sharred, Pat Scott, Lockwood and Elsbury. Most are not regular members of the team.

Moe Hunter scored four Picton goals and helped on one but Roland Berry was top point man with two goals and five assists. Jim Guernsey got two goals and two assists, Ron Weese two and one, Claude Schraeder and White one of each. Houlding helped on two and Larry Pero on one.

There was one minor penalty per side.

THEY RE-GREW HAIR!

IN 12 MONTHS IN 3 MONTHS

Hair Specialist Here Thursday

Will Show Men and Women How to Save Hair and Prevent Baldness

OTTAWA, Ont. New home treatment methods for saving hair and improving its growth will be demonstrated in Belleville, Thursday, February 24, 1966, at the Belvedere Hotel.

Specialist Mr. A. Jespersen will be in charge, representing the dynamic Roberts Hair & Scalp Specialists organization. He will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1.00 to 8.00 p.m.

This new treatment is neither "mail order" nor "cure-all". It is adapted to the individual after a personal examination and progress is checked by a Roberts Specialist.

Who Can Be Helped?

Will the new Robert treatment cure baldness? "No!" For we cannot help men and women who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But if you still have fuzz and your scalp is still creating hair, you can at least save and thicken what you have. Some conditions, such as "spot baldness" usually have complete coverage if caught in time!

Other conditions that usually bring on excessive hair-loss — dandruff, itching, over-oiliness or dryness, follicle clogged with sebum or seborrhea — can be corrected by the Roberts home treatment if caught in time.

"DON'T WAIT UNTIL IT'S TOO LATE."

Baldness won't wait for doubters to be convinced, you're going to keep right on losing hair 'til you're bald — unless you get your scalp in healthy, hair-growing condition again.

Examine You Free

We want to make it clear that you incur absolutely no charge or obligation by coming in for an examination.

Your only obligation is to yourself. We do not accept cases that will not respond.

Guarantee Satisfaction

The Roberts Specialists will give you a written guarantee that you must be satisfied within 30 days or it will cost you nothing.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk for Mr. Jespersen's room number. He does not make appointments, so come in at your convenience.

Examinations are given in private.

Vancouver Poised For NHL Assault

"Troops" Organized

By DENNIS BELL

VANCOUVER (CP—Can Vancouver mount a full-scale assault on the National Hockey League, which two weeks ago refused it a franchise?

Eleven prominent sports people, civic officials and businessmen think so They have formed a committee to overcome the obstacles that prevented the inclusion of Vancouver in the recently announced six - team league expansion.

The committee will attempt to channel public opinion into constructive action at a protest meeting Thursday night.

Coupled with the rally are plans to circulate a petition of protest over the decision, announced Feb. 9 in New York by NHL president Clarence Campbell, in hopes of garnering at least 100,000 signatures.

Prime Minister Pearson will be asked to intervene personally, if possible, with the NHL board of governors and the committee has asked for letters of support from the mayors of all Canadian cities.

URGE BETTER PITCH

Hockey spokesmen admit the best they can hope for at this time is to persuade the NHL to re - examine Vancouvers case and they urge a better presentation of the basic facts supporting this city's bid for an NHL club.

Cyrus McLean, who bought Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League four months ago and then made Vancouver's application in concert with broadcaster Foster Hewitt of Toronto, has indicated his group is willing to give any interested syndicate a clear shot at the Vancouver franchise.

The Canucks president has been the target of criticism, notably from Stafford Smythe, president of Toronto Maple Leafs, Campbell and Frank Selke, vice-president of Montreal Canadiens, who say the McLean application was a poor presentation that did not reflect complete public support.

Statements made by McLean have led to speculation that Calgary publisher Max Bell and oilman Frank McMahon could take over the franchise bid.

ARE THEY WILLING?

The pair, who withdrew from the Vancouver franchise bidding shortly after McLean purchased the Canucks, have given no indication they would be willing to make another attempt.

Meanwhile, officials of the Pacific National Exhibition have announced they will continue plans for a $6,000,000 trade and sports centre.

Selke, who arrived in Vancouver Monday to discuss details of the PNE project, added impetus to the Vancouver campaign by urging citizens to citizens to "fight like hell" for a franchise.

"If you are going to give up after one rebuff, the application wasn't worthwhile in the first place," he told reporters Tuesday.

"Now you have time to regroup forces and see if all interested groups can be joined together with full community support."

Tigers Have Ten

Major Leagues Eye Canadian Players

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—Canada, whose native sons dominate the National Hockey League, soon may have some playing major-league baseball.

Detroit Tigers have 10 Ontario-born youngsters in their organization, including three pitchers on the team's major-league roster.

"Canada is becoming increasingly important from a television programming standpoint, especially from Toronto north and between Toronto and Montreal," chief scout Ed Katalinas said.

"One reason we have gone into Canada," Katalinas also said, "is that under the new draft rules players from Canada, Mexico and Cuba are exempt. This means any team can negotiate and sign players as it sees fit.

"And, we have found that Canadian players do not demand high bonuses to sign."

HAS BEST CHANCE

Of the three pitchers on the major - league rosters, John Hiller of Scarborough appears to have the best chance of staying with the club.

Hiller pitched six innings in relief for the Tigers late last season and did not allow a run.

Mike Kilkenney of Bradford, who posted a 14-15 mark at Daytona Beach and struck out 208 in 185 innings last season, and George Korince of Ottawa, 7-11 at Jamestown with 151 strikeouts in 133 innings, are the others on the roster.

Katalinas said:

"We find that most of the boys have had little coaching, have inferior equipment and do not play nearly as many games as the boys in the states."

Larry Haggitt, a 19-year-old third baseman from Leamington, said he had played 22 exhibition games and 100 during the regular season with a home town team before being signed with the Tigers.

"All of the players we signed from Canada were greener than our other boys but had that natural ability and developed fast with a little help from our coaches," Katalinas said. "Pitchers are our most important find and we have three real good ones."

Other Canadians in the Tigers organization are second baseman Bob Gear of St. Catharines, shortstop Charles Hughes of Toronto, third baseman John Ryan of Oshawa, shortstop Norm Timmins of Ottawa, shortstop Tony Bergamin of Sault Ste. Marie, and pitcher George Holt of Bradford.

Gear, Timmins, Bergamin and Holt are rookies awaiting their first minor league assignments.

Other major - league clubs are reported to be watching how the Canadians fare with the Tigers.

Austrian Favored For Title

DAVOS, Switzerland (CP-AP) Compulsory competition continued in the men's singles at the world figure skating championships today with Austrian Emmerich Danzer favored to hold a lead he built up Tuesday.

Danzer, the European champion seeking to succeed Alain Calmat of France as world champion, took the early lead with 332.3 points in the first two of six compulsory figures Tuesday. Calmat is not entered this year.

American Gary Visconti, 20, was tied for second with Wolfgang Schwarz of Austria with 316.4 points.

The top Canadian was Donald Knight, 18 - year - old Dundas, Ont., student and Canadian senior champion. Knight was sixth with 301.6 points, trailing Nobuo Sato of Japan with 302.

Dr. Charles Snelling, 29, of Toronto, was in 10th place with 288.4 points.

HUMPHRY IS 13th

Jay Humphry, 17, of Vancouver, Canadian junior champion in 1963 and 1964, was tied for 13th with Giordano Abbondato of Italy, who had 276.4 points.

The North American competitors were expected to pick up some ground in the free-skating competition in which contestants do not have to trace prescribed figures.

The compulsory figures count 60 per cent and the free-skating 40 per cent.

Soviet Union skaters held down first and second place in the pairs competition after compulsory figures Tuesday.

Ludmila Belusova and Oleg Protopopov collected 104.2 points compared to 103.1 points for Tatiana Zhuk and Alexander Gorelik.

HAVE RULES TROUBLE

The Canadian brother-sister entry of Susan and Paul Huehnergard of Toronto finished last with only 84 points for the compulsory figures and blamed their performance on an error of interpretation in Canada of world rules.

Player Defeats Nicklaus

BLOEMFONTEIN (AP) — Jack Nicklaus lost control of his putter Tuesday and posted a 75 while Gary Player of South Africa came in with a one-under-par 70 in the second match of their South African series.

Each had a 69 Monday at Pretoria when a swarm of bees forced them to skip the eighth hole after both players were stung. At stake in the six-stop tour is a purse of $50,000.

Disaster hit Nicklaus on the 383-yard second hole where he drove into a pond, sent his fourth to the far edge of a huge green and then three-putted for a triple bogey.

The third match of the series will be played at Port Elizabeth today.

Two Blades Trigger 3 Goals

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Le Labine and Buddy Boone triggered the Los Angeles offensive with three goals each Tuesday night as the Blades scored the most one-sided triumph in their history, downing the Western Hockey League - leading Portland Buckaroos 10-0 before 4,394 fans.

The Blades win, which snapped a two-game losing run, moved them from the cellar into fifth place with 41 points, one more than San Francisco. The Bucks missed an opportunity to strengthen their lead over the idle second-place Victoria Maple Leafs.

Schoolboy Curling

N. Ontario Leads The Field

By DON ANGUS

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Back-to-back victories Tuesday gave Northern Ontario an unblemished record in the Canadian Schoolboy Curling Championships and an upset by British Columbia gave Wayne Steski's North Bay crew sole possession of first place.

The Northern Ontario representatives took advantage of a key miss in the third round to register an 8-7 victory over Ontario and stretched their unbeaten record to 3-0 with a 15-4 victory over New Brunswick in the fourth round.

British Columbia's Douglas Engstrom skipped his Prince George rink to the upset of the day, defeating Saskatchewan's Bill Ross of Humboldt 8-6 in the fourth round.

The ninth end proved the turning point for Saskatchewan against B.C. Trailing 6-4 after eight ends, Engstrom piled in three stones and stole another on the final end.

BEATS ONTARIO

Newfoundland, skipped by Danny Herder of St. John's, also earned the title of giant killer in the fourth round. Herder, who lost in his first two games, counted two stones on the first end against Ontario and was never headed as he picked up an 8-6 victory.

Saskatchewan finished the day's action tied with Alberta's Brian Howes of Calgary for second place in the 11-rink, round-robin bonspiel with a 3-1 record.

Nova Scotia's Don Glinz of Truro followed with two wins and a loss, while British Columbia and Ontario were tied for fifth place with 2-2 records.

HAVE SINGLE WINS

Newfoundland and Keith McEachern's Prince Edward Island rink from Charlottetown followed with one win in three starts, while rinks skipped by Bev Groves of Edmundston, N.B., George Wilson of Charleswood, Man., and the Quebec representatives were all tied with one victory in four tries.

In other fourth - round matches, Alberta defeated Manitoba 10-8, and P.E.I. downed Quebec 8-5.

In the third round, Nova Scotia defeated P.E.I. 8-5, Alberta downed New Brunswick 14-1, and Manitoba walloped B.C. 13-3.

Americans Win Sled Pair Title

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP)—Howard Clifton and James Crawl captured the Diamond International Trophy for two-man bobsleds Tuesday with an average speed of more than 60 miles an hour.

The two men, both of Troy, N.Y., went on the track after attending a requiem mass for former world champion Sergio Zardini of Montreal, killed Monday when his sled crashed on the Zig-Zag curve on Mt. Van Hoevenberg during four - man competition for the trophy.

Clifton and Crawl completed four one-mile runs in a total time of four minutes, 55.07 seconds.

In second place were William Compton and Robert Said of the Lake Placid club with a time of 4:56.04. Third place went to Charles McDonald and John Handley of Malone, N.Y., with a time of 4:49.37.

Four-man bobsled competition for the Diamond International Trophy will not be rescheduled this year, officials said.

From Champ To Champ!

THORNHILL, Ont. (CP) Ernie Nerlich's luck was bound to change.

All it took was a change in sports.

Nerlich, the cigar-smoking golf professional from nearby Richmond Hill, set a record in the Canadian Open last August when he took 14 strokes to play the par-four 18th hole at Mississauga Golf Club in Port Credit, Ont.

Tuesday night he went curling and had a perfect eight - end scored against him. It came on the second end.

What's so lucky about that?

Nothing, except that Nerlich won. He defeated Bill Mathews 16-9 in a club match.

Ontario Mixed Curling

KINGSTON (CP) — The Ontario mixed curling championship will be held here today and there will be a new champion no matter who wins.

There is no defending champion among the eight rinks competing in the straight knockout one-day event.

Ray Grant of Unionville, last year's champion, was eliminated this year in preliminary play leading to another berth in the final.

The winning rink today will earn the right to represent the province in the Canadian mixed championship in Fort William March 21-26.

New York Is Where Action Is Attracting Canadian Artists

By DAVE PIKE

NEW YORK (CP)—"I came here because it—the painting, the films, the whole aware scene—is happening here and I wanted to partake of it."

Michael Snow, Canadian, was speaking—and echoing the fundamental reason other Canadian painters have given for becoming, in effect, New Yorkers.

They move here, not so much because they are "fed up" with Canada, but, subjective personalities aside, because this is where the action is.

"I'm not a nationalist," says Snow. "It's just that a lot of my interests happen to be American in origin."

"We won't become American citizens, though," says his wife, Joyce Wieland. "A few good things are happening in Toronto and Montreal, and we like to visit those cities, but we feel more vital here. We can thrive here."

Michael, 36, and Joyce, 34, both Toronto natives, are painters and experimental film-makers. Michael also is an accomplished jazz pianist.

Their backgrounds in Canada and their current interests, while not necessarily typical of those of Canadian artists working here, are similar in nature.

Michael studied designing at the Ontario College of Art in Toronto. Toward the end of his four years, he spent more time away from classes, painting. Still unsure of his future, he joined the design department of a Toronto advertising firm and hated his job for 1½ years.

In hysterical reaction, he recalls, he spent his savings on a trip to Europe. He returned in 1951, but there were no art galleries in Toronto to encourage budding talent.

MET FUTURE WIFE

Eventually, he joined Graphic Films, just started by a group of young film-makers from the National Film Board of Canada, and for a year worked on television commercials, training and industrial films. it was there that he met Joyce, one of a number of young people hired to learn the business.

One of those young people was Sidney Furie, a former Torontonian who has since become a successful film director (The Ipcress File and The leather Boys). He learned film editing at Graphic.

Three months after Michael received a promotion, Graphic Films collapsed.

Michael and Joyce began freelancing, and cornered the film color correction market in Toronto.

"It was really an awful job," Michael recalls, "but we made tons of money and decided to use it on a trip—to Cuba as it turned out. We left Havana a month before Castro moved in with his army."

About this time, Av Isaacs started his Greenwich gallery, as it was known then, giving unknowns a chance to exhibit and sell their work.

"That was really when I started to paint seriously," says Michael.

An admirer of De Kooning, Michael personally echoed the New York school of painting, becoming an abstract expressionist.

Since settling here in 1961, Michael has been experimenting with, essentially, one figure, his Walking Woman, a silhouette varying only in color, size and number. He also uses it as an integral or highlighting "cutout figure" in some of his sculptural wall structures.

SPREAD OVER SPACE

Spatial — rather than representational fluid — movement dominates his paintings: "I'm trying to make a static image that spreads out over space and time, to get it manually from one focal point to another."

To test reaction to this space-time theory of static images, he has placed stickers of his figures on walls of subway stations and even in the form of an ad in a newspaper. If he had the money, he would spot his walking woman in magazine ads, liberating art from the wall.

Michael recently began working in plastics, which may dominate two works he is doing for the Montreal world's fair. A sculptural structure was commissioned for the fair's international plaza. He is competing with five other artists to execute a work for the fair's Ontario pavilion.

The frame-sequence continuity of film has influenced the Snows' painting, especially in Joyce's "social comment" work, which has utilized the film-strip to emphasize such contemporary subjects as air pollution.

Michael has one of his early paintings hanging in the Toronto Art Gallery, one in the Montreal Art Gallery, and the Museum of Modern Art here has a later-period painting. Joseph Hirshhorn, the millionaire modern art collector, has four "static wall structure-paintings." Joyce has two paintings in the Toronto gallery and one each in the National Gallery in Ottawa and the Vancouver Art Gallery.

The Snows' walkup-loft apartment is a gathering place for many of the "new artists"—the painters who have extended their released-expression theories to experimental film-making.

PERSONALIZED FILM

Michael and Joyce have been working in eight- and 16-millimetre. Michael's major film, a $1,000 half-hour effort titled New York Eye and Ear Control, draws in part on his walking woman figure for participant reaction. Joyce's films utilizing animation are especially satirical.

For her, film-making "is like having a personal conversation with the audience." Both emphasize reality as opposed to fantasy.

The Snows have little time today for purely non-professional interests. Michael, for example, has little time to play jazz piano now, although until two years ago it was one of his primary sources of income. (He used to make about $80 a week in Toronto, playing with Jimmy Rushing, Pee Wee Russell, Cootie Williams and other visiting big names).

But he does compose. The liberation from harmonic basis excites him. The music for New York Eye and Ear Control, which he composed, has been recorded on the Esp-Disk label. One of his compositions is included on another Esp-Disk record.

For Michael and Joyce, and other Canadian artists like them living here, New York, the action city, gives them ample opportunity to extend their talents to the limit.

TV ENTERTAINMENT

WEDNESDAY

- "The Blues" — Some of the best veteran exponents of the blues will be seen this week on CBC-TV's Festival from 8:30 to 9:30. The influence of blues is felt in many music idioms, and its beat pulsates through gospel singing, folk music, and jazz. Even the raucous thumping of contemporary "rhythm and blues" and "folk-rock" is deeply rooted in the tradition of the blues. Among those appearing in this concert will be Sonny Terry and Brownie McGhee, Jesse Fuller ("the one-man band"), and Muddy Waters.
- Beginning at 9:30, Festival presents the 90-minute drama "The Murderer." Adapted from one of the classic tragedies, Dostoevsky's "Crime and Punishment," this CBC production shows that, despite its age, the gripping tale has a strangely contemporary flavor in its intimate understanding of the relation between good and evil which exists in the hidden recesses of the human mind. "The Murderer" is the story of a proud young man who feels he must test his superiority over what he calls "the louse-in-the-street" by killing an old woman and playing a cat-and-mouse game with the police."

- Telescope this week visits "the Flying Lambs," a western family of bush pilots that rack up nearly a quarter of a million miles a year flying mail, supplies, and passengers throughout the northland. In that wild terrain, they must be prepared for almost any emergency, for as Tom Lamb says, "Every summer there's a pilot or two disappears. For these last three consecutive years, north of Yellowknife there has been one every year go down and there's absolutely no trace of them."
- Dean Martin this week plays host to singers Eddie Fisher and Kate Smith, comic Don Adams, (of "Get Smart" fame), and Canadian-born impressionist Rich Little, on the Dean Martin Show, seen over channels 3, 8 and 9 at 10 p.m.

All The World Loves a Clown

For many years, the comic genius of Red Skeleton has lit up Television screens weekly in millions of homes across the nation.

Now the size of the screen is at last a match for the massive talents of America's beloved funnyman, for he is appearing in a cameo role in the Color and Cinemascope color presentation of "Those Magnificent Men in Their Flying Machines", or: "How I Flew from London to Paris in 25 hours and 11 minutes, which opens Friday at the Belle Theatre for an extended engagement.

Skeleton considers himself strictly a clown, and defines the term, by saying, "A clown is one who re-enacts in an exaggerated way scenes which have taken place.

They then become funny or sad, depending on their interpretation and the point of view of all ages who loved clowns with pride "Historically, people of all ages who loved clowns and laughed with them."

Skeleton's own career is clear proof of the last statement. He is currently on his 14th consecutive season as the star of a weekly Television show-a-record that no other personality has achieved on TV; his appearance in "Those Magnificent Men in their Flying Machines", marks his 32nd starring role on the screen; and in the realm of personal appearances, he has played to audiences to more than 100,000 in a single day at state fairs. He is in addition one of the highly paid stars to appear regularly at the plush Las Vegas nightclubs.

A cast of Twenty Five famed stars appear in "Those Magnificent Men in Their Flying Machines", a spectacular comedy, and film tribute to Flying's early days", coming to the Belle Theatre Friday, in Color and Cinemascope.

Distinct British Flavor In the 1965 Nominations

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The annual Academy Award nominations this week show that the oft - maligned academy voters have performed their function without fear or favor.

They were not duped by massive trade-paper ad campaigns, nor did they display noticeable loyalty to big studios or old-timers.

As in the 1964 nominations, there was a distinct British flavor. But the academy voters can't help it if the British are such superior actors.

Gone are the days when the Oscar was a quaint local custom; the old boy is getting more international every year. The most remarkable evidence of this was the nomination of Japanese Hiroshi Teshigahara for his direction of Woman in the Dunes, a film that didn't receive a major release.

COST NOT FACTOR

The voters were not swayed by production costs. The Greatest Story Ever Told ($20,000,000), The Great Race ($12,000,000) and The Agony and the Ecstasy ($8,000,000) did not receive a major nomination.

Two of the best-picture nominees, Darling and A Thousand Clowns, were in the neighborhood of $1,000,000 films, which is practically a poverty area in today's market. The other three are super-specials: Doctor Zhivago, The Sound of Music, Ship of Fools.

The academy was not overwhelmed by the sweet smell of success, either. Today's No. 1 moneymaker, Thunderball, received only one nomination—for special visual effects. James Bond has not yet found a way to break the Oscar case.

WRITER CHOSE ACTOR

Actor Raymond Burr was chosen for the part of Perry Mason by Erle Stanley Gardner, writer of the series.

No Simple Web of Words Can Express Feeling Visitor Gets in Africa Today

Canadian Press reporter Joseph MacSween travelled 20,000 miles through 10 African countries in a 52-day tour. He found Africans confident of their own future, despite the immense task they face in trying to attain the cultural and economic level reached by white men. This story sums up his impressions of the trip.

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP) — Africa, as they say, is on the move—and much of it moves either on a woman's head or on two wheels.

The traveller on his first African foray has read about the surging political and economic change and, no matter how impressed, may not be surprised. But nothing prepared this one, at least, for the apparently ceaseless motion of the Africans on the roads, especially on heavily-laden bicycles.

Then there are the unforgettable pictures of women swinging along with inimitable grace, carrying on their heads everything from rolled-up umbrellas to five-gallon water cans or jars.

The African woman, when she steps out along even the roughest of paths, has a style that would cause many a Western beauty to look at her feet.

New border arrangements in Ghana provided for duty-free passage of one "head-load" of products. Officials explained that "head - load" meant 150 pounds—well over the weight of many African women who carry the load.

"Carry," however, is the wrong word. They wear the load like a hat, whether it is the family firewood or a bundle of laundry. One woman in Dar es Salaam ambled past with a whisky bottle standing on her head.

LITTLE THINGS IMPRESS

Africa's story in the last 20 years is surely one of the wonders of the world and its previous history can chill the blood. But the little things, just as much as the big things, linger in the mind after a 20,000-mile journey through 10 African countries, all but one in the tropical region.

In West Africa, the so-called mammy wagons or lorries speed along the highways, bearing snippets of advice such as: "Open enemy is better than secret love."

A small Masai boy, scion of a proud and warlike race, accepts a handshake at Ngobi, Kenya, with a wide sweep of his arm, causing a hearty smack of palms.

"He was astonished that a grownup man offered to shake hands with a boy, a Masai eader explained. "He tried to shake hands with force so grownup man offered to shake h3nds with a boy, a Masai leader explained. "He tried to shake hands with force so that you would not be embarrassed, since apparently you thought he was a man."

Hotel servants in several countries receive a tip with cupped hands, politely paying tribute to the giver's generosity—even though they must often be sorely disillusioned.

"Out of Africa, always something new," was the opinion of Pliny the Elder, writing at the dawn of the Christian era. Many have wondered how Pliny, that astute Roman sage, would sum up the ages since.

BLED BY SLAVERS

Africa was mercilessly bled of its young and virile people in the slave trade, which has been likened to a plague causing agonies of spirit too terrible to contemplate. Millions of simple folk were wrenched from tribal homes which they would never otherwise have left.

Long before the white man arrived in force, Arab slave traders had been supplying Middle East markets from the African east coast in a flourishing business that may have lasted as long as 1,000 years.

Then the Atlantic slave trade began and continued for more than 350 years. British historian Hugh Thomas estimates that between 13,000,000 and 15,000,000 slaves were taken to the New World, depopulating vast tracts of African land

The 19th century European imperialist scramble for Africa may have included some idealistic motives — such as the spread of Christianity—but its effect was to carve up the continent in a manner senseless to the native peoples.

At the middle of the present century, virtually all the continent was divided among European powers. At the end of the Second World War, there were only four independent African countries.

Now, the Organization of African Unity boasts 36 independent members, not counting Soukth Africa, scorned as a white-ruled outcast. Embattled Rhodesia, along with Portuguese Mozambique and Angola, remain as the only other big white-ruled areas.

LEADERS EMERGE

African leaders, in a brief 20 years following a century of domination, had found the means to throw off their European rulers and today such former jailbirds as Jomo Kenyatta, Kenneth Kaunda and Kwame Nkrumah are listened to in the councils of the world. Kenyatta is president of Kenya, Kaunda, president of Zambia and Nkrumah president of Ghana.

This reporter's impression, after talking with many leaders including Kaunda and Tanzania's President Julius Nyerere, is that the Africans are buoyed up by their vision of the future, not weighed down by a sense of injustice.

Yet no simple web of words can readily express the feelings gained in a long journey through Africa, with its richly varied ethnic or tribal groups —800 or so—and its mosaic of countless meanings.

Author Alan Paton, speaking not only of his native South Africa but of all Africa, declared: "There's no doubt that the Europeans who came to Africa treated the Africans in general with something pretty close to contempt. This, I'm sure, inflicted deep wounds. . . .

"Whether the Africans can recover from that as soon as they get independence I doukbt very much. I think it is going to take generations for this to work out."

HATRED WILL PASS

Yet some of the most implacable fighters against white rule asserted their confidence in eventual friendship with the whites. "We need them, for one thing," was a common remark.

". . . no unchanging hatred," was the pregnant phrase of a South African opponent of Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd's apartheid regime.

It is frequently said that Africa's old colonialism will be replaced by a worse one—a thought spurred on by the remark by China's Chou En-lai that the continent is "ripe for revolution."

The Africans, inevitably, associate the west with past colonialist wrongs—and rights —and Communists, whatever their color, generally escape similar obloquy.

But Chief Albert Luthuli, head of the African Nationalist Congress who for years has been under restriction in his South Africa reserve, declared:

"The greatest possibilities for Africa rest with the West. They are the ones who brought civilization to Africa. Historically, civilization moved from east, to west, and then to Africa. We do not forget that."

Nyerere asserted passionately that Africa "must not choose a master" between East and West but must keep its eyes fastened on the main problem, development, realizing that time is pressing.

HAVE LITTLE TIME

"At present in Africa and in Asia you start with the social conscience—before the industrial revolution, before the actual development. Thus as a result we haven't the time—we won't have another 100 years to play about with."

Time, as Nyerere noted, tends to become compressed in Africa—even though it is not unusual to see an African dozing under his matoke tree, as if clocks had not been invented.

It is less than 100 years since missionary David Livingstone witnessed in 1871 the massacre by slavers of 300 persons, mostly women, on the banks of the Lualaba River.

It is less than 70 years since the British found the last evidence of wholesale human sacrifice in Nigeria. And it was in 1903 that the last slave caravan was intercepted in what now is Rhodesia.

The independence movement achieved rapid success because the african leaders grasped the anti-colonial issue, perhaps the one issue that could unite their peoples. In other respects, the European rulers had grouped into colonies tribes with no common history and, indeed, often hostile to one another.

The movement was aided by such factors as post-war weakness among the European countries, a growth of liberal thinking in international circles, Communist pressures and also pressures by the United States.

CONTACTS GROW

Suddenly tropical Africa, explored by Livingstone at about the time Canada was being formed into a country, was in headlines and a cry uttered in The Congo would be heard in Montreal.

"The peoples of tropical Africa are no longer ignorant of us," says U.S. author George H. T. Kimble. "Eighth graders in the schools of Nigeria know more about the American way of life than the average American sophomore knows about the Canadian."

Even to a Candian, the size of tropical Africa is staggering, stretching from the Sahara to South Africa, embracing 8,500,000 square miles, considerably more than twice the size of Canada.

Some parts conform so closely to the Hollywood stereotype that the visitor almost expects Tarzan to come swinging out of the trees. Books and boots can go mouldy in a night in the dank rain-forest areas.

To one Canadian eye—and throat—the most striking and thirsty places are the vast savannahs and velds where water becomes a precious thing, then sudden flooding rains cause erosion.

FACE IMMENSE TASK

Under independence, most Africans continue so far to live in subsistence conditions, heavily dependent on weather and chance, subject to diseases to themselves and their cattle—and the curse of Africa, the one-crop economy. Things may indeed be worske for thousands because of a drop in administrative efficiency.

Children of illiterate homes return from school each evening to mud huts, with little light for reading, no help from ignorant parents.

"One forgets how lucky the Western child really is," said a Canadian diplomat. "He learns from his elders all the time. He meets educated people as a matter of course.

"Sometimes I've become discouraged, seeing the tasks the Africans have ahead—education, for instance, before they are equal to white people.

"But then I see the faith of the Africans in their own future, and I ask myself, who am I to be discouraged?"

It is often called Mother Africa and scientists are studying evidence that this was one of the first places mankind walked the earth. But to one visitor, Africa is the place where the world once again is young—and perhaps will get another chance.

End Starting Woes With Battery Care

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Prompt starting during the freezing season calls for maximum battery power, especially after overnight idleness. This means that the battery should be fully charged, the cells properly filled, and terminal connections kept clean and tight.

Keeping the battery well charged is the function of the generator. But generator output is controlled by the voltage regulator, and it's well to keep in mind that the regulator is often at fault when battery charging rate is too low (or too high).

Remember too, that in extremely frigid temperatures, an undercharged battery can actually freeze. This usually results in a cracked case . . . and a new battery. And, failure to run the car after adding water is another invitation to battery freeze-up.

Poor cable connections can create resistance which prevents cold engine starting —in fact this is quite common in winter. To avoid this trouble, clean off all corrosion, keep a light coating of vaseline on battery posts and cable terminals, and make certain connections remain tight.

R. G. asks: "If the engine and ignition timing are as right as they can be, why should a '65 use too much gasoline?"

Very often it's a case of poor carubretor idling and mixture adjustments.

From A. T.: "What is the difference between a single action and double action fuel pump?"

The single action is a fuel pump only, while the double action type is a fuel pump and a vacuum booster for the windshield wipers.

S. F. writes: "I know there is more than one trouble which can cause uneven front tire wear, but would not unbalanced wheels be the most likely?"

Number one on our list would be front end misalignment.

W. D. asks: "My left front brake drags. Would this be due to insufficient shoe clearance?"

Either that or the brake shoe return spring is faulty. Or perhaps the wheel bearing is loose.

Toronto Wants Police Board Enlarged to 7

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Council Tuesday night called on the province to enlarge the city's board of police commissioners to seven from [illegible] members and permit it to [illegible] controlled by elected representatives.

The extra two members would represent the suburbs.

The commission would be made up of four elected council members and three members of the judiciary.

Metro Chairman William Allen and Mayor Philip Givens would retain their seats on the commission. Other members include two magistrates and a judge.

Armed Forces Take Over In Ghana

President Nkrumah Away on Visit to N. Viet Nam, China

(From AP-Reuters)

ACCRA, Ghana (CP) — Led by a colonel, the army revolted today and overthrew the Kwame Nkruham government. It declared him ousted from the presidency.

The self-styled redeemer, designed president for life after Ghana achieved its independence, was en route to North Viet Nam as the army moved in. A Peking dispatch said he was being honored at a dinner in the Chinese capital. It reported no reaction to the coup.

"The myth surrounding Kwame Nkrumah has been broken," the chief of the revolutionaries said over Accra Radio.

The pre-dawn coup led by elements of the 2nd Brigade was announced by Radio Ghana at 6 a.m. GMT (1 a.m. EST.)

In London, Ghana exile sources said the coup was the work of the Ghana all-forces inner council, set up five years ago within Ghana's army and police forces.

The sources said the organization's goals were to help restore and maintain democratic rule in Ghana and "to ensure that Ghana shall be a constructive and useful member of both the United Nations and the British Commonwealth."

Fighting between troops and president's security guards was continuing four hours later in Nkrumah's Flagstaff House residence.

Small arms fire could be heard and smoke from burning vehicles and buildings could be seen from outside the walled compound which houses all Ghana government executive offices.

The radio broadcast a warning from unidentified voice that "all ranks of security service must lay down their arms now and surrender before 11:30.

Nkrumah Unaware Of Coup?

By VERGIL BERGER

PEKING (Reuters) — President Kwane Nkrumah of Ghana arrived here by air today, smiling and laughing and apparently unaware of the reported army coup in his country.

He was given a full ceremonial welcome at the airport and was greeted by Chinese leaders.

News of the coup spread among foreign diplomats and news correspondents here only about an hour after Nkrumah had driven from the airport building to the government guest house with Chinese leaders.

Injunction Is Again Ignored

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — About 200 demonstrators paraded outside the Tilco Plastics Ltd. plant here early today and several more are expected this afternoon.

The demonstrators, nowhere near the 1,000 expected, paraded despite a warning by Ontario Attorney - General Arthur Wishart that violation of a court injunction on picketing will bring action from his department.

The 200 demonstrators showed up at the plant about 7.00 a.m. and by 8.00 a.m., there were less than 150 remaining.

Nearly 400 trade union members ringed the plant Wednesday in the second day of demonstrations by organized labor against an injunction limiting the number of pickets at the strikebound plant to 12.

Mr. Wishart told reporters in Toronto Wednesday that his department has been watching the situation closely and began collecting evidence as soon as the mass demonstration took place. He said his department has movie and still photographs of the demonstrators.

"I knew what was going on there as soon as it happened. I will not overlook it. Action will be taken without delay," he said, but did not elaborate on the type of action.

About 30 women employees of Tilco, members of the Textile Workers Union of America (CLC) are on strike at the plant. The company has continued to operate and on Dec. 20 obtained an Ontario Supreme Court injunction limiting the pickets to 12.

The strikers, who went out Dec. 14 in support of a wage in-

JOSTLED BY PICKETS — Harold Pammett, general manager of Tilco Plastics, Ltd., in Peterborough, Ont., ducks for cover after losing his hat while being jostled by pickets outside a store in Peterborough. About 200 demonstrators picketed the plastics company defying the court order limiting the number of pickets to 12. The textile workers in Peterborough have been on strike for two months.

Preoccupation With Viet Nam Could Warp U.S.-NATO Link

WASHINGTON (CP)—A Senate subcommittee report on NATO says the United States will have no one but itself to blame if other preoccupations such as Viet Nam hamper intelligent handling of stresses within the Atlantic alliance.

It also says that the United States cannot expect NATO allies to rally around in support of matters outside the alliance.

At the same time it claims that President de Gaulle of France is "playing a very risky game—counting on the American (defence) commitment regardless of what he does or what happens to the Atlantic alliance."

Says the report released Wednesday: "The risks include a real possibility of alienating the U.S." and "it may become necessary to revise and reduce the American commitment to the defence of France."

The report was prepared by the Senate subcommittee on national security and international operations, headed by Democrat Henry Jackson of Washington and including senators Robert Kennedy (Dem. N.Y.), Edmund Muskie (Dem. Me.) and Jacob Javits (Rep. N.Y.).

In making the report public, Jackson said the "conflict in Viet Nam is very important and demands daily much of our national attention but we cannot afford to be totally preoccupied with Viet Nam."

"The North Atlantic area is still the decisive area and it needs our urgent attention."

The detailed study of basic issues now straining the Atlantic alliance was prepared before President de Gaulle's reaffirmation this week of his intention to further lessen the French

Hits Manpower Program Restrictions by Provinces

OTTAWA (CP) — Concern about the lack of support for federal manpower programs being displayed by some of the provinces was voiced Wednesday by Ontario's labor minister, Leslie Rowntree.

He told a conference on manpower training, sponsored by the Canadian Labor Congress, that an effective manpower program must not be restricted by provincial boundaries.

Mr. Rowntree did not name the provinces he was referring to.

Mr. Rowntree praised federal manpower programs, adding:

"I am not so much concerned with the programs themselves as I am about the lack of consistent application and support they are receiving from some of the provinces.

"Most of the federal programs are fine—what we need now is action by each of the provincial jurisdictions to make them work for people right across Canada."

Mr. Rowntree and a union of-

Civil War Threat In Syria Eases

By HAL McCLURE

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—The threat of civil war in Syria eased today after army units in the north were reported to have declared themselves for the new left wing military government.

Northern military leaders earlier had denounced Wednesday's pre-dawn coup and threatened to fight to restore the government of Gen. Amin Hafez. But the threats never materialized.

Radio Damascus said today the rebel regime, which dissolved Parliament and arrested leaders of the Baath Socialist party, now had the support of northern Syria military leaders including commanders of the Aleppo district and the Air Force Academy.

Earlier the radio said the rebels also had the support of the national guard and key units in central Syria and along the Israeli frontier.

RADIO REPORTS SUPPORT

The radio report of northern military support came this morning, one hour after a news broadcast that had omitted any mention of the northern units or their counter-revolutarion threat

Radio Aleppo, the mouth piece Wednesday for the counter-revolutionaries in Hafez's home town, was not heard today. Radio Damascus began broadcasting on the same frequency, in-

Size of Oil Leak to Rhodesia Reported to Be Exaggerated

LONDON (CP)—African countries quizzed Britain at a sanctions review Wednesday on reports that South African oil is lubricating the rebellion of Rhodesia's white-minority regime.

But informants said that despite some cross - examination there was no sharp criticism at the second meeting of the 20-country Commonwealth sanctions committee on Rhodesia.

Delegates were assured that newspaper reports have exaggerated the volume of oil crossing the Rhodesian border and also that Britain is making representations to South Africa on the matter.

Cledwyn Hughes, British minister of state for Commonwealth affairs, nominated Canadian High Commissioner Lionel Chevrier as permanent chairman of the committee.

This move, unanimously endorsed, removed friction that arose at the time of the committee's first meeting Jan. 25 when some African and Caribbean delegates challenged Britain's claim to the chairmanship as the country directly responsible for Rhodesia.

Hughes delivered a lengthy progress report to the closed 2½-hour session attended mostly by high commissioners, plus Arnold Smith, the Canadian head of the new Commonwealth secretariat.

Scheduled for today is a meeting of a subcommittee studying a crash educational program to be introduced in Rhodesia after the rebellion is ended. This would be designed to prepare the central African colony for Negro-majority rule.

Friday, another subcommittee will study Commonwealth aid to struggling Zambia. An airlift is carrying some 7,500 tons of oil monthly to Zambia, about one-third of it by Canadian planes.

Coroners To Retire At 70

TORONTO (CP) — Law amendments concerning bail, coroners and the handling of bodies were introduced in the legislature Wednesday by Attorney-General Arthur Wishart.

The amendments would:

—Allow persons accused of minor offences and freed on bail to plead guilty without appearing in court and without forfeiting the entire bail.

—Force retirement of coroners at 70.

—Increase fines for jurors, doctors and witnesses who fail to appear at inquests.

—Require reporting of all deaths in mental homes, homes for the aged or other publicly - supported institutions.

—Ban the shipment of bodies from the province without a coroner's certificate.

MAY AMEND IT

Mr. Wishart indicated that he might amend his proposed legislation to allow coroners now over 70 to continue practising.

He explained that the provision concerning movement of bodies outside the province is aimed at any underworld shenanigans at border points such as Windsor.

Kelso Roberts, minister of lands and forests, said in reply to a question from Stanley Farquhar (L — Algoma-Manitoulin) that pay increases are being considered for the province's 238 conservation officers. Money will be provided this year to hire a substantial number of new officers.

Agriculture Minister William Stewart announced that the federal and provincial governments have approved the first steps towards developing major control projects on the South Nation watershed in eastern Ontario.

He said a preliminary study shows seven major storage reservoirs and two river channel improvements are needed to give adequate agricultural drainage, flood control and summer flow.

The counties affected would be Dundas, Stormont, Prescott, Russell and parts of Grenville and Carleton.

Will Not Goad China Into War

By JOHN HEFFERNAN

NEW YORK (Reuters)—President Johnson has reaffirmed a policy of controlled restraint in Viet Nam and said that war with China would not come "by an act of ours."

The president's statement, made in a televised speech from a New York hotel wallroom Wednesday night, was, in effect, a reply to criticisms of his policy especially from members of the Senate foreign relations committee.

U.S. officials described the speech as a comprehensive summary of the president's view of the issues involved rather than a direct reply to the critics.

The president flew to New York to accept the annual National Freedom Award of Freedom House, a non-partisan organization.

LAYS DOWN POLICY

In essence, his speech laid down the following lines of policy:

—Measured use of force must be continued under careful control and there will not be "a mindless escalation."

—American forces in Viet Nam are strong and when their commander, Gen. Wil-

Spencer Case Debated

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP)—The government was accused Wednesday of charging George Victor Spencer with espionage, condemning him and fining him his life's pension—all without trial or hearing.

The accusations came at the outset of debate on the 1965-66 justice department estimates. Earlier the Commons approved $1,500,000,000 in defence spending for the same period.

Opposition spokesmen demanded a closed judicial inquiry into the Spencer case and suggested the government is trying to hide something by denying him one.

Prime Minister Pearson opened the justice debate by saying an inquiry isn't necessary. Spencer was given "lawful and just" treatment.

Conservative spokesman Eldon Woolliams (Bow River) replied that Spencer has been fired as a Vancouver postal clerk, lost his pension, can't go anywhere unobserved, and has not yet been given a hearing by anybody.

"What is the real reason the government has refused to grant an in-camera judicial inquiry?" New Democratic Leader Douglas asked. "What are they trying to cover up for?

"Did the department of external affairs make accusations that they could not substantiate?

"Is the government's refusal to have an inquiry an attempt to whitewash ineptitude and incompetence?

"This is what we want to know."

Mr. Woolliams said Canadians would prefer an ounce of freedom to a pound of security. The government's argument that national security dictated its refusal to hold an inquiry was weak.

The 57-year-old postal clerk was fired in December under article 50 of the Civil Service Act.

This meant loss of pension and no appeal.

His name was publicly linked last fall with a spy case that last May resulted in expulsion of two Russian diplomats.

Prime Minister Pearson said Spencer "voluntarily admitted

AUTOMATED DESTROYER PROPOSED FOR ROYAL NAVY — Great Britain's Ministry of Defence announced in London that it proposes to build at least four "type 82 guided missile destroyers" of the type sketched, with the first one to be ordered this year. They will be computer controlled and highly automated. The 5,600-ton destroyer will be designed around a powerful new weapons system controlled by a computer system working with three-dimensional radar to select targets and fire and guide the missiles.

Gas in Zambia Costs 50 Cents Gallon But $2.50 to Deliver

LUSAKA (AP)—Cars, trucks and taxis bustle along Zambian roads—all of them on gasoline costing Zambians 50 cents a gallon.

Getting the gasoline into Zambia by massive international airlift is costing the British, Canadian and United States governments perhaps $3.50 a gallon.

The airlift started two months ago when this landlocked nation's copper economy was threatened by a Rhodesian refusal to let oil pass its border. That was a retaliation by Rhodesia's Prime Minister Ian Smith against worldwide embargoes put on his rebel government.

Since then the oil lift has snowballed. Road, rail and river routes supplement the nonstop "pipeline in the sky." Eight nations—Zambia, Britain, Canada, the U.S., The Congo, Tanzania, Malawi and Kenya — are involved.

Zambia's monthly needs of 3,900,000 gallons are being met and there is enough left for it to stockpile 1,600,000 gallons a month.

INVOLVES 20 PLANES

The airlift now involves 20 planes.

Six RAF Britannias fly here from Nairobi, Kenya. Eight British civilian planes bring oil from Tanzania's capital of Dar es Salaam.

From Leopoldville, The Congo, four RCAF Hercules aircraft fly here with drums of high-octane gasoline — "a major risk to carry, particularly in this area which is heavily subject to electrical storms," a Canadian officer commented. "But nobody seems to mind."

Using 45-gallon drums, each Hercules can carry about 3,285 gallons a trip. The four planes also can carry oil in rubber "blubber" bags holding 4,000 gallons each.

Two of the planes come from the RCAF's 435 Squadron at Namao, Alta., and two from 436 Squadron at Ottawa.

Canadian sources in the Congolese capital estimate their government pays $2,300 a day for Hercules fuel alone. Other costs are not known, except that each Canadian airman gets 2,700 Congolese francs ($18) a day for meals, plus room rent and "other reasonable expenses."

RUNWAYS TOO SHORT

Two Boeing 707s chartered by the U.S. Agency for International Development also fly from Leopoldville, but carry oil only as far as Elisabethville near the Zambia-Congo border. Zambian runways are too short for the Boeings.

From Elisabethville the oil brought by the 707s—each carrying 144 barrels of 55 gallons each—reaches Lusaka by land route.

A British high commission spokesman has put Britain's costs at $3,000,000 a month.

Chartering the Boeings costs A.I.D. $7,500 a plane trip. The two jets total six trips a day. Each of the two U.S. airlines involved estimated to have received more than $500,000.

The price of the oil—it comes from a pool set up by Mobil Oil, Texaco, Shell and the Congolese Petrocongo and Socopetrol companies—is paid for by Zambia.

How long the airlift will have to continue is undecided. Canada recently pledged to extend its effort up to April 30, and it seems likely the U.S.-chartered flights will keep going as long.

About 300 truck-owning volunteers bring gasoline from Isoka on the Tanzanian border.

Drivers hurl their five-tonners into the 1,000-mile round trip along pot-holed, muddy roads every two days for $334 a trip.

The 500 - mile outward trip from the copperbelt town of Ndola takes 13 hours. Coming back, with 1,125 gallons of gasoline in drums lashed on takes 15 hours.

The gasoline reaches Isoka from Dar es Salaam and the railhead of Mikumi, which is another 500-mile trip beyond Isoka into Tanzania.

Both Dar es Salaam and Mombasa, Kenya, also send oil to an emergency railhead at Dodoma, Tanzania, and the Lake Tanganyika port of Kogoma.

From Kigoma the gasoline is shipped down the lake to Zambian berths at the port of Mpulungu, then carried by truck—including tankers normally used for carrying beer—into Zambia.

STARTS AT MATADI

From The Congo, the ground lift starts at Matadi. The oil then goes by rail to Leopoldville.

ADD — GAS IN ZOMBIA ...

While the chartered Boeings carry some to Elisabethville, the rest gets there up the Congo and Kasai rivers by barge to Port Frenq, then by a winding railroad to Elisabethville.

Next stop is the Zambian copperbelt, by road. Road, barge and rail routes across The Cong, currently undergoing improvement, are reported carrying about 4,000 tons of fuel to Zambia a month.

Another road route for the oil lift is from Malawi, 600 miles east of Lusaka. This is not yet fully operational but is likely to increase in use with improvements in gasoline supplies to Malawi from the port of Beira in Portuguese Mozambique.

It is believed in Lusaka the Zambian government plans to build up the ground routes in order to cut down the expense of the airlift.

Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda has asked the British-based Lonrho Group of companies to draw up plans for a 1,000-mile pipeline from Dar es Salaam to Zambia.

Mother Says Son Treated Like a Slave

TORONTO (CP)—A mother of one of three convicts recaptured in St. Catharines after escaping from Collins Bay penitentiary two weeks ago, says her son was treated like a 19th century slave in St. Catharines' Lincoln County jail.

Mrs. Harold Dankwardt says she will protest to Attorney-General Wishart that her son Ross, 20, of Kitchener, and his two companions were kept in a basement cell with their feet manacled to the door.

Dankwardt, Thomas Brydges, 20, of Elmira, Ont., and John D. H. Eaton of Toronto have pleaded guilty to a charge of attempting to prevent arrest by firing a shotgun, and were sentenced to terms of from three to five years.

They appeared in court here on charges of kidnapping and robbery and were remanded to Feb. 28. They face other charges, including rape.

Mrs. Dankwardt says her son told her they were not allowed to wash or shave and didn't have a bed to sleep on.

George McBride Miller, jail governor, said Mrs. Dankwardt was right about only one thing—they had no beds for security reasons.

He said the three men didn't complain to the jail staff.

"They told me that they were being treated better than they had been in any other institution."

contribution to NATO's integrated military apparatus—and perhaps even withdraw militarily in 1969.

Some other key views:

—Canada and the European allies within NATO "need greater access to the policy counsels of the U.S.—and vice versa—not just regarding the more remote contingencies of nuclear war but also the ambiguous challenges that a flexible Communist strategy makes probable."

—NATO has worked "superbly" but all agree, including France, that the alliance needs a working agreement on policies toward the Soviet Union.

—The alliance problems "call for more and better attention on the part of our government than they are receiving."

MAY CAUSE STRAIN

The report says that for the U.S. "or any other member to expect help from its allies on matters outside the scope of the North Atlantic Treaty, and outside the obligations undertaken by the members in other alliances and arrangements, may put a heavy strain on the alliance."

The report says NATO has restrained Russia in Europe and change is afoot within Russia and Eastern Europe but Communist pressures remain possible on Europe through divided Germany or elsewhere.

Concludes the report: "The U.S. will have no one but itself to blame if our preoccupation with other important areas of the world keeps us from showing imagination and sound judgment in the affairs of the Atlantic community — and from showing the largeness of mind needed to reconcile national interests with the needs for joint action."

WILL DEMONSTRATE

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Farmers Union will conduct mass demonstrations at Queen's Park "in the near future," OFU President John Dalmer said Wednesday. "Other people use force to get what they consider their fair share and if necessary farmers must plan to do the same," he said in a statement.

Everybody Satisfied

Public School Board Reports Salary Negotiations Complete

Salary negotiations between the Belleville Public School Board and members of its teaching staff have been completed for another year with "satisfactory conversations" all the way around.

The board at its February meeting held this week approved the new salary scales as recommended by the board employee relations committee. Salary scales agreed on were said representative of rates and provisions widely in effect among Ontario's smaller cities.

The minimum rate for teachers' college graduates has been set at $3,600 per year, with the maximum for this qualification to be $5,400.

Degree - holding university graduates will start at $4,700, with a maximum rate for such graduates with grade 4 certificates set at $8,400, to be reached in 14 years.

INCREASE MAXIMUM

A proportionate increase in the maximum rate was granted to the scale for school principals so that the rate for heads of the largest schools and for a principal holding a master's degree in education reached $11,400. This represents an increase in maximum of $900.

The board was told that no public school principal in the city will this year receive the new maximum, which depending on the size of the school organization may be reached by a principal in nine years or less following appointment.

GET SCHOOL PLANS

Sketch plans for the board's proposed new school in west Belleville were presented by Architect W. A. Watson, showing various elevations, plot location and floor plan and building design. The plans were received and approved subject to review by the special planning and building committee and by the chief inspector.

The school, planned initially as a five - classroom structure with playroom, is reported to be of different design from the conventional school building. The design is such that additional classrooms may be added when required. Cost of the new school, exclusive of architect's fee, equipment and other contingencies, is estimated at $188,000.

Members of a special committee of the Moira River Conservation Authority, with H. R. Frink as spokesman, appeared before the board asking that conversation tours be instituted as part of the curriculum for elementary school children. The board will study the request.

SUGGEST SWIMMING CLASSES

A proposal from the Belleville Recreation Commission that the public school board contribute to the cost of rental of a swimming pool for the purpose of providing swimming instructin to school children was referred to the superintendent for consultation with the inspector and school principals.

And State College, in the city of Oswego, has offered to assist Belleville in the provision of teachers for the ensuing year.

The school board received a letter from the College referring to Belleville's help with snow removal in that city and offering to assist in the provision of teachers, particularly for industrial arts and crafts.

President

Otherwise we will attack their residences."

The coup leader was identified by the radio as Col. E. K. Kotoka, 40, commander of the 2nd Brigade based in the northern city of Kumasi. It has been holding manoeuvres near Accra lately.

There was no news of the army commander, Maj. - Gen. harles Barwah. Barwah was given the top post last July by Nkrumah and reports circulated at that time that the move was designed to head off an army rebellion.

ROADS SEALED

Roads leading to ministers' mansions were sealed and shooting was heard near the home of Defence Minister Kofi Baako.

Troops guarded the post office, cable station and ministry buildings. All phone and cable service was cut.

Jubilant crowds swarmed through the downtown streets of this steamy seacoast capital. Thousands gathered near the Ussher Fort Prison on the waterfront after Kotoka's broadcast that political prisoners would be released.

The Nkrumah regime used preventive detention laws to hold hundreds of dissenters.

The full text of Kotoka's broadcast:

"Fellow citizens of Ghana:

"I have come to inform you that the military with the co-operation of the police have taken over the government of Ghana. The myth surrounding Kwame Nkrumah has been broken. Parliament has been dissolved. Kwame Nkrumah has been dismissed from office.

"All ministers have been dismissed. The Convention Peoples party is dissolved with effect from now. It will be illegal to belong to it. I appeal to you to be calm and co-operate. All persons in detention will be released in due course."

SHOOTING STARTS EARLY

The revolt got under way about 4.30 a.m. GMT 11.30 p.m. EST) when troops began moving through the streets and shooting was first heard in Flagstass House.

Army Maj. A. A. Afrifa broadcast at 5:32 a.m. that there would be no news at 6 a.m., the usual time. But that all Ghanaians should tune in for a special announcement.

The army's Burma Camp—about 1½ miles from Flagstaff House—was sealed and a Col. M. M. Hassan, director of military intelligence, was reported arrested.

Other reports said bombs had been hurled at the house of Lt.-Col. David C. Zanlerigu, who is chief of the presidential guard One unconfirmed report said he was killed.

The Ghana Air Force was reported co-operating with the rebellion.

A few hours after the broadcast here, Nkrumah arrived in Peking en route to North Viet Nam.

GIVE ULTIMATUM

An Accra radio broadcast heard at Lome, the capital of neighboring Togo, said the leaders of the coup had given an ultimatum to militia forces to lay down their arms.

The ultimatum came in a communique signed by Kotoka. It added that if the order is not observed, militia forces will be dissolved.

The coup came three days after Nkrumah left his capital for talks in Cairo, Rangoon, Peking and Hanoi on a Viet Nam peace mission undertaken on his own initiative. He is accompanied by a 71-man entourage.

Nkrumah is a member of a five-man Commonwealth peace mission set up last year by Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain to seek a Viet Nam settlement.

The Peking dispatch reporting his arrival there said his special plane was met by Chinese President Liu Shao-chi and Premier Chou En-lai.

STAGE PARADE

The ceremonial welcome at the airport was followed by a parade through Peking, accompanied by the beat of drums and cymbals, the dispatch reported.

The Chinese capital was decorated with streamers and portraits, including a life-size one of Nkrumah at a road juncture near his guest house.

The Nkrumah government has been severely criticized abroad for an allegedly repressive internal policy under which many opponents of his one-party rule have been detained, some for alleged involvement in unsuccessful attempts on the president's life.

Today's takeover in Ghana is the latest in a series of military coups in Africa. The biggest was in Nigeria last month, when Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa and two regional premiers were killed.

Within the last two months the army has also seized power in the former French African territories of Dahomey, central African Republic and Upper Volta. There was also an army coup Wednesday in Syria.

IT'S HIS IDEA

Nkrumah's mission to Hanoi, with a 71-man entourage, was undertaken at his own initiative. Nkrumah is also a member of a five-man Commonwealth mission which Britain's Prime Minister Wilson set up last year to seek a Viet Nam settlement.

A British official, quoting a report from Ghana, said the army sealed off Accra airfield early today.

The army also took over the radio and communications.

Ghana potentially is one of the wealthiest states of West Africa.

It was the first of Britain's African colonies to be granted independence, in 1957. High hopes existed then that Ghana would be the cradle of African democracy.

Over the years however Nkrumah turned increasingly to one-man rule. Opposition leaders were jailed and the country's government became an outright dictatorship.

SAYS HE'S OFFICER

The Accra broadcaster identified himself as an army officer.

"The myths of Nkrumah have been broken," he said, according to radio monitors in London.

The state of Ghana came into being March 6, 1957, when the former colony of the Gold Coast and the trusteeship territory of Togoland achieved dominion status.

The 56-year-old president has survived several attempts on his life in recent years. He was prime minister of Ghana when it became the first British Negro-ruled colony in Africa to attain independence, and was elected the country's first president when it became a republic in 1960.

President Nkrumah introduced the one-party state in January, 1964, in which only his Convention People's party was permitted to operate. A referendum approved the measure by a 99.99-per-cent majority.

WAS FIRST

Nkrumah, the first modern African nationalist leader to achieve power, launched far-reaching development plans for Ghana, played an important part on the international stage, and became an outstanding figure in the African struggle for emancipation.

He dreamed of a socialist Africa of politically-unified independent states and advocated the creation of a "union government of Africa."

A village goldsmith's son, he knew poverty, hunger and imprisonment before leading the 7,000,000 people of Britain's Gold Coast colony to independence.

He was officially styled "Osagyefo" (victorious leader) and was hailed in the government-controlled Ghanaian press as "Africa's Redeemer," "Great Messiah" and "The Christ of Our Day."

He was brought up a Roman Catholic but later described himself as a non-denominational Christian and a Marxist socialist.

As a young man, Nkrumah graduated at Lincoln, the Negro university in Pennsylvania, and took further degrees at the University of Pennsylvania. In 1945 he went to the London School of Economics.

Two years later he returned to West Africa and plunged into political work. He was actually in prison when he swept the poll in 1951 in the first general election with adult suffrage.

He is a British Privy Councillor and was awarded a Lenin Peace Prize in 1961.

—The United States is not alone in Viet Nam, and five of its seven allies in the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization are giving vital support, "each with its own strength and in his own way to the cause of freedom in Southeast Asia.

U.S. officials said the president was referring to Britain, Thailand, Australia, New Zealand and the Philippines. France and Pakistan are the other two members of SEATO.

—There will be no risk of a wider war against China "by any act of ours—and not if there is any reason left behind the wild words from Peking."

The U.S. purpose is solely to defend against aggression and to reply to any armed attack. The president added in an apparent reference to Peking: "We can live with anger in words as long as it is matched with caution in deed."

—The United States had given a clear pledge in Honolulu to the peaceful progress of the people of Viet Nam. This pledge will be kept and the offer of American economic assistance as well to North Viet Nam remained open.

—The United States stands for self-determination and for free elections and will honor their result It will not impose on the people of South Viet Nam a government not of their choice and will not allow Hanoi to do so.

—Hanoi still has the opportunity to end the increasing toll of the war by coming to the conference table.

—It is impossible to say how long the war will continue.

—The conflict is confused and hard and many of its forms are new. Yet U.S. purpose and policy remains unchanged in the effort to build freedom while resisting aggression.

DISCUSSES ESCALATION

Escalation has been one of the most talked about subjects. Mr. Johnson said:

"There is not, and there will not be, a mindless escalation," in South Viet Nam.

"Some ask about the risk of wider war—perhaps against the vast land armies of Red China. . . . The answer is 'no', never by any act of ours—and not if there is any reason left behind the wild words from Peking.

"We have threatened no one —and we will not.

"We seek the end of no regime—and we will not.

"Our purpose is solely to defend against aggression . . . we observe in ourselves—and we applaud in others — a careful restraint in action."

But he warned: "If the aggressor persists in Viet Nam, the struggle may be long . . . there is no computer that can tell the hour and day of peace, but we do know that it will come only to the steadfast—never to the weak in heart."

BIRD CROSSED OCEAN

SANTIAGO (AP)—An albatross made headline news in the Chilean capital when it was found exhausted on the shore here. It had been banded by the Museum of New Zealand, 6,000 miles away. The tired bird was berthed in the local zoo and keepers found the pelicans attacked it but the penguins were friendly.

Spencer

improper activities" and hasn't complained about his dismissal.

One of the reasons Spencer was under surveillance was that Spencer said in November that if he told what he knew, "both he and the reporter who heard him would be assassinated.

"The other reason is the public interest," Mr. Pearson said.

Mr. Pearson said he has personally examined all the reports and documents in the case, taking a "great many hours" in doing so.

The issues involved were important and had aroused genuine uneasiness in the minds of MPs. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and NDP Leader Douglas had asked for a judicial inquiry.

Mr. Pearson said he also examined other security cases of the last 10 years which might throw some light on the Spencer case.

DISMISSEAL 'JUST'

Spencer's dismissal with loss of pension rights was both "lawful and just." Spencer's rights as a citizen were not violated.

Surveillance was both in the interests of Spencer and the public and has been adapted to this particular situation.

Before the final decision was taken to dismiss him, Spencer "was given a hearing by a senior official of the civil service commission, at which time he was given an opportunity to state his case."

Neither at this hearing nor in earlier discussions with security officers had Spencer made any complaint over his projected dismissal or treatment received.

It was not the government that made Spencer's name public, Mr. Pearson said. It was Spencer himself and he did it voluntarily through the press.

REMOVED THREAT

The investigation into Spencer's activities "was to identify and remove a threat to national security."

In removing this threat, evidence was secured by normal procedure in cases of this kind, but much of it would be inadmissible in court. Law officers had advised against prosecution.

If details and names arising from the security investigation were made public, "our security" would be "gravely prejudiced" or made impossible.

The prime minister said Spencer has been treated with "scrupulous fairness."

Mr. Douglas and Mr. Woolliams both rejected this.

Mr. Douglas said J. A. Murray, appeals branch director of the civil service commission, went to Vancouver and interviewed Spencer last fall.

"Does the prime minister think that sending a civil servant to interview a man constitutes giving him a chance to prove his innocence?"

LOSES PENSION

After the Murray interview, Spencer was fired and his pension taken away.

"In other words, they have fined him," Mr. Douglas said. "Is the government now a court that can accuse a man, condemn him and fine him his life's pension without giving him a hearing or a trial?"

How did Mr. Pearson know improper conduct was involved?

"Is he just relying on a report in a police file?

"Are people now to be condemned on the basis of a police report or on the transcription of an interview with some government official?"

Mr. Woolliams also stressed that Spencer "has never been charged with any offence and has not been found guilty of offence."

Yet he was under surveillance, couldn't get a job in the public service, and couldn't go anywhere unobserved.

"In spite of this he has not been given a hearing."

Why hadn't he complained?

"Maybe he is afraid to," Mr. Woolliams said.

TWO INVOLVED

Both Mr. Douglas and Mr. Woolliams recalled that last May the external affairs department said two Canadians were involved in espionage activities.

One co-operated with the RCMP. External affairs said he was paid large sums for the purpose of, among other things, "compromising female civil servants."

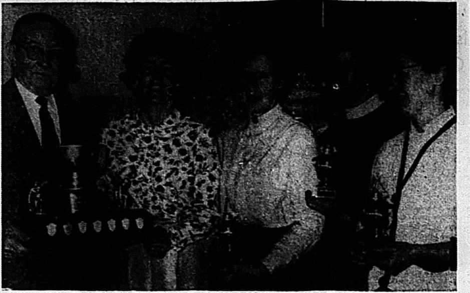
The second man admitted association with Soviet agents after being confronted.

This man "had been paid thousands" to supply economic information, including details of the Trans-Mountain pipe line system in Western Canada.

Mr. Douglas noted that Prime Minister Pearson said then the second man was too ill to prosecute.

"But there was no prosecution when he recovered."

"Instead," said Mr. Douglas, "the minister of justice told the House there was not sufficient admissible evidence to warrant prosecution."



THE WINNERS — For the first time in the history of competition for The Intelligencer trophy, a rink from the Quinte Curling Club has captured the main prize. Above is Claude D. ficial clashed over the merits of the province's vocational education system.

Mr. Rowntree took issue with remarks made to the conference by M. J. (Mike) Fenwick of the United Steelworkers of America, Toronto.

The labor minister denied Mr. Fenwick's charge that there is a conflict between the Ontario labor and education departments over vocational training programs.

He admitted that "certain situations" a year ago gave an impression of such a conflict but the problem no longer existed.

Mr. Fenwick, replying from the floor, said he is not convinced the problem has been solved. He had recently discussed the situation with people active in the vocational training field to see if they were satisfied. They weren't.

The plan of Premier Robarts to stream students into two- and four-year vocational courses was an injustice to the youth of Ontario because graduates of these courses were not being accepted by industry.

Quinte Curling Club Rink Wins Intelligencer Trophy, Accompanying Keepers

After six years of competition for The Intelligencer trophy, main prize for the Women's Section of the Quinte Curling Club bonspiel, a rink from the local club has won the cup and accompanying keepers. And to make the honors more binding another local rink was in the final match and except for a disastrous five-ender in the ninth end after being even after eight, the result could have been different.

The rink of Madge Cowley, Jennie McCue, Agnes Benn with Heather White as skip won the three-day spiel over a rink of Gwen Monson, Ev Preston, Jessie Baber with Helen McCorquodale as skip. The final game was a nip and tuck affair with the McCorquodale rink racing to 5-0 lead after four ends but then the winning rink got the feel of the ice and at the end of eight ends the game was all tied up but on the ninth a couple of misdirected rocks gave the eventual winner a five-shot bulge which was not seriously threatened in the final end.

In the second event a rink from Kingston of Noreen Sugarman, Jennie Snetsinger, Mary Lowe with Mary Edney as skip won over a rink of Jean Manns, Kay Elmsley, Vicky Power with Fran Simpson of RCAF Station as skip. The third event was won by a rink of Kay McFie, Dorothy Vince, Laura Guest with Fran Miller of Kingston as skip. Incidentally this rink has won The Intelligencer trophy three times and two of these wins were in successive years. The Kingston rink defeated a Quinte Curling Club rink of Theda Miller, Yvonne McPhreson, Bev Neill with Kae Pinder as skip. The fourth and last event was won by a rink of Doris Petticrew, Connie McCullam, Lorna Bennett with Doris Bannon from Quinte Club as skip and the runner-ups were a rink of Helen Lennox, Bev McFarland, Teresa Fletcher with Doris Cooke of Picton as skip.

PRESENTATIONS MADE

The bonspiel under the presidency of Mrs. Mary Livingston and the general chairmanship of Mrs. Jessie Baber was a success from every point of view. Mrs. Livingston expressed her deep appreciation of the work that was expended by every member of the club but four were singled out for special mention, Mrs. Baber, Mrs. Ann Watkin, Mrs. Ella Trepanier and Mrs. Helen McCorquodale. Mrs. Watkin had charge of the scoring and arranging the draws, Mrs. Trepanier was in charge of the tea hour and Mrs. McCorquodale was in charge of the kitchen. Each of these women were presented with a lovely bouquet of flowers by the president.

The presentation of prizes was in charge of Mrs. Baber and Claude D. Tice, city editor, presented the trophy and the keepers to the winning rink. He congratulated the Women's Section of the club for the splendid spiel and the winning rink for their success. The remainder of the prize winners were called to the front and each in turn expressed their pleasure of being a participant in the spiel and thanked all for the hospitality and friendship shown. "It was fun, frolic and friendship" as Mrs. Doris Cooke of Picton so aptly put it.

At the conclusion of the game a delightful tea hour was enjoyed with Mrs. Everett Black, Mrs. Nina Gault and Mrs. T. A. Carruthers pouring and the women members attending to the serving. A brief social hour followed and then goodbyes were said and all departed with fond memories of a pleasant three days.

AIR BRIDGE COSTS

LUSAKA (AP)—The British high commissioner in Zambia reports that Britain's share of the oil airlift from Indian Ocean ports to landlocked Zambia costs about £1,000,000 a month. The air bridge crosses Rhodesia, now under a trade blockade by countries disapproving of the illegal seizure of independence under white minority rule.

tempt at a trades training school."

Ontario reformatories were "compounds for indentured labor," he said. Prisoners at Guelph learned virtually nothing that would help them to re-establish themselves after release.

Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson told the legislature he has written Prime Minister Pearson saying the Ontario Liberal party wants to present its views on divorce reform "as early as possible" to a federal House committee. He released the text of the letter in the legislature.

He said the provincial legislature had "frustrated" efforts to have talks between Ottawa and Ontario about divorce law changes and the Ontario Liberals were forced to go to Mr. Pearson because the Ontario government "has demonstrated an absence of concern for this defective and archaic legislation."

(The Ontario legislature Tuesday defeated a bid to hold immediate talks on divorce reform between the provincial and federal governments.)

terspersing martial music with announcements of army unit support.

Trouble-torn Syria, the scene of 15 revolutions in the last 17 years, remained isolated behind tightly sealed borders. Its airports were closed.

There were no authoritative reports of fighting and it was not clear whether the coup had been bloodless.

In addition to Hafez, the chief of state who is chairman of the presidency council, the rebels arrested Premier Salah Bitar; the defence minister, Maj.-Gen. Mohammed Omran; the Speaker of the Parliament.

HAFEZ' FATE UNKNOWN

The fate of Hafez and the others was not known. Unconfirmed reports said Hafez's home in Damascus was set afire and shooting was heard in the neighborhood during the takeover.

The rebels, calling themselves the "temporary command of the Baath party," said they staged the coup to save the Syrian revolution. They denounced Hafez, Bitar and Omran as rightists and said they would be brought to trial and "crushed."

Observers said younger officers and politicians apparently were seizing control of the Baath party, which has ruled since it came to power in its own coup in March 1963. The new group rejects Syria's present socialist policies as too moderate.

The leader of the young officers has been Maj.-Gen. Salah Jedid, although Damascus radio has not mentioned his name. Jedid, about 40 years old, was army chief of staff until his house arrest last year.

Only two names of rebel leaders have been announced over the radio — air force commander Gen. Hafez Assad, who was named chief of defence, and Col. Ahmed Swidani, promoted to general and named army chief of staff.

POLICE WRITE TOO

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

In observance of Scout Week, the 1st. Plainfield Boy Scout Group held a church service in Bethel-Zion United Church on Sunday evening, Feb. 20.

In spite of the cold weather a goodly crowd attended including District Commissioner Joe Irish and Mrs. Irish of Stirling and District Scoutmaster Ernie Harvey of Frankford.

The Scouts taking part in the service were George Salmon, Stephen Lightfoot and Keith Sills, with Scouter Russell reading the Scripture.

The choir, which was composed of the Cub Pack, under the direction of Akela, Miriam Russell favored with a selection.

Mr. Southall's sermon "Fit for Service — David's Way" was most interesting for the boys.

At the end of the service there was a brief "Going Up" ceremony when two of the Cubs, Roger Ray and Mark Donald, entered the Scout Troop.

Defence Realities

The sun has long since set on the old British Empire and forthcomnig military withdrawals from what is left of it are further indications of Britain's shrinking influence around the world.

It was the last Labor government under Clement Attlee that set in motion the decline of the old colonial world. That was in 1947 when India became independent.

The present government under Harold Wilson is displaying similar realism, but where economics and resources are concerned it has a grasp of realities that the Attlee government could never command.

Thus, Britain has decided to withdraw its forces from Aden and Malta, and eventually British Guiana and southern African territories.

And flying in the face of the Royal Navy, the government has also decided to buy 50 F:111 "swing-wing" supersonic bombers from the United States, as well as American Phantom jets for use by the navy. All this at the expense of new aircraft carriers which navy experts consider necessary to Britain's modern defence role.

The cabinet decisions have led to the resignations of navy minister Christopher Mayhew and first sea lord, Admiral Sir David Luce, who both opposed them.

One thing is certain, the Labor government in Britain is not afraid of making decisions, despite its slender majority. It is placing reality before prestige and there are not many governments around which are prepared to subscribe to such a policy. Unless we consider this country, which has its own defence problems, with integration and all that. But that is another story.

Quebec Appointment

Hugues Lapointe, Quebec's new Lieutenant-Governor, seems an excellent choice for the position of the Queen's representative in the province.

A lawyer by profession, Mr. Lapointe has had wide political experience. He entered the federal cabinet in 1949 as solicitor-general, and from 1955 to 1957 was postmaster-general as well as veterans minister. He has represented Canada at a number of international conferences and at the time of his appointment as lieutenant-governor was agent-general for Quebec in London. In the last war he served overseas with Le Regiment de la Chaudiere.

But political experience alone is not enough to make a successful lieutenant-governor. The paradox is that with the death of Paul Comtois in a fire which swept his residence at Quebec City a vacuum was created in the provincial administration. Orders in council cannot become law without the lieutenant-governor's signature. On the other hand, the position, in a sense, demands that the incumbent be above politics.

A passage from Mr. Lapointe's bibliography suggests that here is a man with such qualities. It reads: "Mr. Lapointe, a tall, balding man, fluent in both French and English, has been active in politics since his youth. As a member of the Commons, he was widely respected for his gentlemanly participation in debate."

Of Pipes And Scarves

Although consumer goods are still very expensive in the Soviet Union, the people of Moscow are well dressed and appear happy these days, according to Hamilton Spectator correspondent Charles King. This is in sharp contrast with the immediate postwar years.

But expensive, yes! King saw a pair of English ladies shoes on sale at just under $50, or about four times what they would cost in Britain.

All the same, young Soviet women are becoming more and more fashion conscious.

What about the men? The traditional picture of the Russian male is one attired in an ill-fitting suit, with baggy trousers and a wide-brimmed hat for headgear. In summer time he seldom wears a tie, even while attending the opera or ballet.

Former Premier Khrushchev, for all his portly figure, used to cut quite a dash. It would be interesting to know where his suits were made, for he was always quite immaculate.

At least he did not appear to favor those awful checkered scarves the Russians go in for, including Premier Kosygin, and which look like some cheap product from the GUM department store in Moscow. If you are the leader of a country and live in a cold climate and insist on wearing a scarf, surely something less "bourgeois" would be in order.

In this connection we are reminded of Prime Minister Wilson and his pipe. A pipe is a handy thing to have around — especially in the cool and capable hands of Mr. Wilson. It betokens calm as well as strength and firmness.

And it broke the ice when Mr. Wilson, in the course of his Moscow visit, called on Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny, and was greeted with the question: "Why do all Englishmen seem to smoke a pipe?"

Mr. Wilson's reply was not revealed. As we have noted, however, a pipe is a handy thing in international politics. Better to smoke a pipe than place a finger on the button to release the ultimate weapons. A pipe suggests a pipe of peace. As for checkered scarves, well that is another thing . . . !

Prime Minister Is Buffeted By Conflicting Opinions

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — One of the reasons Prime Minister Pearson so often seems to stub his parliamentary toe is that he has so many people pushing him different and usually opposite ways.

One of his great strengths — and at the same time a weakness — is his pleasant willingness to listen.

When the opening Orders of the Day — the Question Period — concludes in the Commons, it usually takes him 30 minutes or more to make his way back to his Centre Block office.

He certainly hasn't the time, and likely not the desire, to listen to the drone of run-of-the-House speeches when the Question Period ends, so he slips out through the Commons curtains and into the Government Lobby where two or three Cabinet Ministers, a dozen Liberal benchers and usually two or three newspapermen and radio-TV reporters are lying in wait.

Each has what he considers urgent private business to take up with the PM.

One may take only a moment with a quick question. Another may take 20 minutes with an extended discussion.

But he listens to them all, in pleasantly smiling patience.

Just as he listens to his many official and self-appointed advisers. And there's the catch.

POLS AND MANDARINS

These advisers fall into three broad groups.

There are his Commons Backbenchers, the ordinary private MPs whose political world revolves around their constituencies back home. They get his ear in the Government Lobby for a few minutes every day, and at least once a week, all morning long in the Liberal Caucus.

If they're doing their parliamentary job of representing the regional interest of their riding, they are in close touch with the voters back home and speak for the Party's grass-roots.

He listens to them, as he listens to everybody.

But, they grumble, more and more, he really doesn't pay attention to what they say, seldom if ever, being guided by their advice.

They claim that if he did accept their play-back of what the folks at home are saying more often, sailing for the Liberal ship of state might be smoother.

The Senior Civil Service comprises the second groups with access to the prime ministerial ear.

These are the departmental Deputy Ministers, the Associate Deputies, the Directors-General of the big Federal agencies — Mandarins, all of them — and old friends of this former Civil Servant-become-Prime Minister.

The attitude of many of them to the MPs, the working politicians and their patronage problems, is cool, even antiseptic.

Basically, their interests are directly opposed to those of the MPs. The Mandarins long have regarded themselves as the real rulers of the nation — after all, one of their own is Prime Minister — and they resent what many consider the ignorant and presumptuous "interference" of the politicians.

CONFLICT, CONFUSION

The Prime Minister knows the Mandarins and the Mandarins know the Prime Minister. Their thinking on a great many things is parallel.

So here, on certain questions that involve both the political and the administrative, the Prime Minister can be whipsawed by conflicting advice with the Liberal Commons Caucus saying one thing, the Mandarins another.

The third group of advisers, of course, is the Cabinet.

And here is a division within a division.

For it comprises, first the old Pros whose business always has been practical politics: External Affairs Minister Martin Works Minister McIlraith, Northern Affairs Minister Laing, that honors graduate of the MacKenzie King political school Transport Minister Pickersgill, Defence Minister Hellyer, and even, in a way, Trade Minister Winters.

They as working politicans interested primarily in votes and getting things done, think one way.

Thinking an entirely different way, and interested more in the "how" of doing things than in getting them done, is the Civil Service wing of the Cabinet, the former Mandarins who crossed over from the Big Bureaucracy to Practical Politics: Industries Minister Drury, the former Defence Deputy; Finance Minister Sharp, the ex-Trade Deputy; Citizenship Minister Nicholson, the former C. D. Howe Dollar-a-Year-Man; and what a split personality he is, belonging to both groups, the same "Jolly John" the Pick Pickersgill, former Privy Council Clerk and Mackenzie King's Mr. Fix.

All of these people, the Mandarins, the Cabinet's politicians and its ex-Bureaucrats, and a surprising number of Backbench members of the Liberal Commons Caucus are close to the Prime Minister, all confounding him with a confusion of conflicting opinion and advice.

Camping Out Of Season

Winipeg Free Press

A steady stream of press releases flows from the information services division of the department of northern affairs and national resources in Ottawa. Scarcely a day goes by that the editorial rooms of the nation's press fail to receive at least one of the long brown envelopes importantly marked "On Her Majesty's Service;" on many days there are two or three.

Some of them contain "news" of somewhat less than burning interest. But periodically the industrious scribes who toil under the aegis of Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing produce some gems. (Not least among these, it should be conceded, are Mr. Laing's speeches, every single one of which apparently is methodically mass produced and shipped to the absorbent press of the nation).

One such gem (not, however, one of Mr. Laing's own) arrived fittingly, on Friday when the temperature in Winnipeg was 37 below. The headline on this communication — which was marked for immediate release — announced triumphantly, "Number of Campers Increasing Steadily." The story itself revealed that the increase was of the magnitude of 10 per cent per year over the past 15 years and implied that considerable credit was due to the hot and cold shower available in many national parks.

Splendid. What could be more reassuring when the temperature is nearly 40 below than to learn that cold showers are available in Riding Mountain National Park? Or more comforting than the image of "322,-728 campers unrolling their sleeping bags" at Banff, and 117,439 more similarly engaged at Jasper?

One must marvel at Mr. Laing's sagacity, and of course at the trenchant perspicacity of whoever it is in his department who decides what information the public should be blessed with when. Mr. Laing's information men know their business. They do not tell us about campers in summer; they tell us about polar bears and about the preparation of new ski slopes in our national parks. They open, when the temperature is 90 in the shade, glorious vistas of glistening snow and glittering frozen lakes. When our teeth are chattering, they play a siren song of summer skies and sun-baked sand.

For such an information service one has much to be grateful. It may be confidently predicted that Mr. Laing and his crew will survive long in their useful jobs. And so they should. Anyone ingenious enough to dream up a way of getting things like camping statistics into print deserves a full and regular pay packet.

Penalty Fits The Crime

Hamilton Spectator

The most persistent of all death penalty arguments is that concerning its deterent effect. In truth, the case has not been proven either way. The only thing we can be sure of is that there will be a certain number of murderers in our midst each year and of those a tiny percentage, maybe only two or three, will outrage society and turn its stomach, and in those cases there is no satisfactory punishment other than the ultimate.

Steady, Paul—they're only tourists!

To Your Good Health

Liver May Never Be Same After Hepatitis

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband had hepatitis two years ago and had regular "ceph flocc" tests. He thought that with special diet, rest and no alcohol, his liver would heal completely, but now he has had another test and it still shows 2-plus. The doctor said not to worry, but the tests might never get any better. We would like your opinion. — Mrs. A. S.

First of all, hepatitis is a serious disease, and recovery in most cases is slow.

The cephalin-flocculation test, while good, is apt to remain abnormal for a long time after the patient apparently has recovered. There are other tests, if necessary, to give a more precise evaluation of liver function.

Your husband, I gather, is getting along very well, and I would leave it up to his doctor as to whether the expense of other tests is warranted.

Don't put too much emphasis on whether recovery of the liver is complete. A broken bone may knit sturdily yet not return to exactly its condition prior to the fracture. Chicken pox can leave packmarks. And hepatitis like many other diseases, can leave its signs behind long after the acute illness is over.

The important thing isn't whether the flocculation tests return to normal. They might never do so. The real question is wether the liver has recovered enough to do an adequate, dependable job — and by reading between the lines, I gather that the doctor feels that it is doing so with satisfactory speed.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: What are the chances of hepatitis recurring? My husband had it a year ago.

Since then he has started drinking more than ever. What are the dangers of this? He also had yellow jaundice at the same time. Can you explain the two? — R. S. C.

Anyone who has ever had hepatitis should be very careful about the use of alcohol and preferably should avoid it entirely.

Hepatitis attacks the liver. So does alcohol. After damage from both, your husband's great risk is cirrhosis of the liver or other incurable damage.

Jaundice is a symptom, not a disease. When the liver is impaired and cannot release bile in the normal way, the bile is distributed elsewhere in the body and gives the yellow color which we call "jaundice."

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the difference between a gland and an organ? — Mrs. A. C.

An organ is any unit of the human body which has specific function to perform 8 heart, lung, ear, kidney, eye. There are organs within organs, too.

A gland is a specialized organ which secretes something essential to body functions. Thus the pituitary, thyroid and other endocrine glands produce hormones. There are mucous glands in the mouth and nose, glands which provide tears for the eyes, oily (sebaceous) glands in the skin, as well as sweat glands.

The liver (largest of the organs except the skin,) is a glandular organ in that it provides bile for digestion along with a number of other chemical and storage functions. Some glands weigh an ounce or less, and still others are microscopically small. Any gland is an organ, but not all organs are glands.

Strictly Personal

Happy in Your Vocation?

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: What we know best are those things we have not consciously learned: this is why, even when they are wrong, it is so terribly difficult for us to consciously "unlearn" them.

"Truth" is often portrayed as a beacon, but it is really more like a fog light — it pierces through the fog, but does not disperse it.

If every man were given a chance to find a job he loved to do, and would want to do even if he weren't paid for it, most of the world's criminality and national aggression would disappear overnight.

People who tell you that they "trust their feelings" are talking nonsense, whether they realize it or not: it is hard enough to wind one's way through the labyrinth of one's own thoughts — and inexpressibly harder where one's feelings are involved.

Moral precepts should be offered to children as a goal, rather than as a fact; in Freud's trenchant wards, "children should be told that this is the way people ought to behave if they want to lead a happy life in a good society: they should not be told that this is the way people do behave in reality, for they will soon realize they have been lied to."

The first to applaud are generally the last to understand what they are applauding.

We wouldn't mind so much that it rains on the just and the unjst alike, if it didn't always seem as if the unjust have a corner on the umbrella market.

The most effective reply to self-destruction was made by John Churton Collins, the British essayist, when he wrote: "Suicide is the worst form of murder, because it leaves no opportunity for repentance."

All genuine art is an effort to convert crude quantity into disciplined quality: it is no accident that Shakespeare's most nearly perfect play, Macbeth, is also his shortest and most tightly written — Hamlet is a great play, but its excessive length shows that the author could not successfully come to grips with its central problem.

It is a mistake to believe that research is done in the laboratory; research, even today, is done where it has always been done — in the head; the laboratory merely confirms or rejects what the mind conceives.

There is no such thing as "translation," only "adaptation," for the sounds of words are as much a part of the expression as the sense; De Vigny's famous line, "J'aime le son du cor, le soir, au fond des bois" loses its whole frisson in the English of "I love the sound of the horn, at night, deep in the woods."

People who discuss things shouldn't be called "discussants" any more than people who cuss should be called "cussants."

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Feb. 24, 1966 . . .

Francis I of France was defeated and captured at the battle of Pavia, Italy, 441 years ago today—in 1525—by the Hapsburg emperor Charles V. He had to ransom himself by signing a treaty renouncing his claims to Italy and Flanders and surrendering part of central France as well. Francis' mistake had been trying to repeat a military master-stroke of 10 years before, when he had not been fighting the sagacious emperor. There were three more wars between Francis and Charles and in the end they compromised on their territorial claims.

1848 — Louis Philippe of France abdicated and the Second Republic was proclaimed.

1907—137 persons aboard the Austrian ship Imperatrix were drowned.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1916—General Philippe Petain was put in command of the collapsing front at Verdun; Austrian troops advanced on Durazzo, Albania; Portugal interned more German ships.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1941 — the British legation evacuated Sofia, capital of Bulgaria; Hitler announced a massive submarine blockade of Britain; the RAF bombed a German battleship at Brest, France.

Success With Box Camera

Watertown (N.Y.) Times

All of us have heard friends exclaim: "I've got to buy a more expensive and better camera with more equipment and adjustments before I can get good pictures." Then along comes someone else, proudly exhibiting prize-winning pictures, and just as casually saying: "I took them with my Brownie."

Such a man is John J. Loughlin, a 66-year-old bachelor and steward at a New York club. For ten days, his picture collection of Lincoln Memorials in 35 cities across 15 states has been shown in a one-man exhibit at the Advertising Club of New York.. The display honored Lincoln whose birthday was Feb. 12.

And Mr. Loughlin took these and many other prize-winning pictures, with a box camera purchased in a Troy camera shop in 1919 for $1.

The camera is a Kodak Brownie 2-A, a model which has been out of production since 1932. It uses 116 film and has only one adjustment—a lever that makes time exposures. The focus, shutter speed and lens opening remain constant.

With the exception of a tripod the only auxiliary equipment Mr. Loughlin uses are yellow and red filters and sometimes a lens that makes portrait type close-ups possible.

What is this amateur photographer's secret: He says it is in having learned to study light conditions to know how long to make time exposures with the camera on a tripod.

Remember the words of that old song which went: "It ain't whatcha do, it's the way whatcha do it."

Tax on Reading

Vancouver Sun

There are only two provinces in Canada that put a tax on reading. One is Saskatchewan. The other is British Columbia.

B.C. can escape this odious link with the Liberal government (hiss! boo!) of the prairie province by making sure sales tax amendments now being prepared for the legislature exempt hard-cover books — as well as comic books and magazines — from the five percent tax. Every book-worm in the province will turn in gratitude, Mr. Premier.

Weathership's Steward Captures Rare Skilfish

VANCOUVER (CP) — Harry Watkins is a man with two unusual jobs.

He's steward aboard the Canadian weathership Stonetown which takes its turns at station Papa 500 miles out in the Pacific.

At the same time he fishes the ocean depths in the interests of marine biology. He keeps records of the depths at which he catches various kinds of fish and reports to the Marine Biological Station at Nanaimo, bringing them back scales and fish stomach specimens.

He has no facilities aboard to keep fish alive. But recently when he made a rare catch of a number of skilfish (erilepis zonfer) he improvised a makeshift tank from a four by two-and-a-half foot box lined with part of a weather balloon.

He kept the tank in the Stonetown's engine room where he was able continually to pump fresh sea water into the box. He caught and froze salmon to feed them.

Of the eight skilfish he brought aboard, two died. He kept the three smallest and let the others go back to the ocean.

"They became so tame, I could feed them by hand," he reported, adding that once adjusted to people, skilfish apparently like to have their bellies rubbed. "I would rub their bellies and when I'd take my hand away they would turn over for more."

Nanaimo biologists were enthused about his report and their offer of the rare fish to the Vancouver Aquarium was accepted.

Vince Penfold, assistant curator at the Vancouver Aquarium, says the skilfish is a relative of the Alaska black cod, but "very little is known about them." They have large heads, mouth and eyes, indicating the ocean depths are their normal habitat.

The aquarium now has half dozen, all captured by the weathership or Nanaimo Biological Station personnel.

HUNT FOR GHOST

RENFREW, Ont. (CP)— Grade 11 students at the high school here are hunting down a famous Ottawa Valley ghost as a research project in English. In 1889 17 people, including a clergyman, signed an affidavit saying they had seen the ghost, which threw small objects around and is said to have "spoken" for about five hours on its last appearance.

Bell Phone Report Shows Record Growth

MONTREAL — In its 1965 annual report issued Tuesday, the Bell Telephone Company of Canada shows a net growth of 264,996 telephones, the greatest number of telephones it has in service to 4,578,000.

Net income for the year ending December 31, 1965 was $86.5 million, equivalent to a return of 6.6 per cent on total capital, or $2.92 per share.

After payments of dividends to the company's 214,000 shareholders at the annual rate of $2.20 per share, the balance of 72 cents per share was retained and used to expand and improve service.

The report shows the increase in net income over 1964 reached 11.3 per cent. Revenues rose by 9.2 per cent while expenses were held to an 8.4 per cent increase.

Company taxes to all levels of government totalled $106.1 million during 1965 — equivalent to $3.58 per share, or $23.92 for each telephone in service.

The report states that during the year federal authorities announced their intention to hand over to the provinces 95 per cent of the federal income tax paid by certain utilities engaged in the production or distribution of electricity, gas or steam. The company believes that a corresponding tax-sharing arrangement should be extended to the telephone industry.

In 1965, the company reached agreement on revised contracts with three unions representing 30,000 employees. As a result wages increased substantially. The 1965 total payroll was $200,236,041. As of December 31, Bell employed 38,320 men and women.

The report also states that long distance calling increased by nearly eight per cent during 1965 to a daily average of nearly 540,000 calls. The scope of local calling was greatly increased within the developing metropolitan areas and between neighboing communities. Now 94 per cent of Bell subscribers place local calls which were formerly classed as long distance.

Kosygin Will Visit Britain

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Kosygin has accepted an invitation from Prime Minister Wilson to visit Britain, it was learned today.

The date of the visit is being worked out.

It was understood that an agreement to continue personal contacts between the two governments at high levels was the major accord to come out of Wilson's three-day stay in Moscow.

A communique to be issued after Wilson's return to London was expected to contain no dramatic signs of agreement between the two leaders on world affairs.

Wilson saw former President Anastas Mikoyan for minutes today and had a last meeting with Kosygin that lasted an hour, 35 minutes.

Informed sources said Wilson favors frequent, informal contacts with world leaders, allowing him to talk them directly rather than through diplomatic channels.

These sources said Wilson was satisfied that the visit to Moscow, his first here since he and Kosygin took office, had been useful toward this end.

crease demand, claim they are obeying the injunction and organizers of the mass demonstrators say they are not joining the picket line but merely exercising the right to peaceful assembly nearby.

The strikers are seeking a 10-to-12 cent increase in their hourly rates. Top rate now is $1.12 an hour.

Stanley Rouse, president of Local 872 of the International Association of Machinists (CLC) and chairman of the Peterborough Labor Council's special injunction committee, said the Peterborough trade unions are using peaceful assembly as a protest against use of injunctions in labor disputes.

A similar protest developed in Oshawa last month against an injunction limiting pickets in the strike by the Oshawa Times unit of the Toronto Newspaper Guild (CLC) against the Oshawa Times.

WILL ANSWER

Mr. Wishart told the legislature Tuesday that persons showing contempt for the court would be brought before the courts to answer for it. The only alternative would be for police to make arrests on charges of watching and besetting which had not happened. He said the demonstration at Tilco was not disorderly enough to justify arrests.

Jeering demonstrators taunted plant officials as they drove 35 non-union employees to work Wednesday morning and as the day shift began.

Strikers and demonstrators shouted "scabs," "bums" and "finks". As cars left at the end of the day they were pelted with snowballs.

Harold Pammett, one of the plant's owners, was jostled and had snowballs thrown at him and Sheriff Stanley McBride was drowned out by boos as he read the injunction.

He was ordered by the attorney - general's department to read the injunction. Police Chief Jack Shrubb was at his side as he did so. Chief Shrubb said later the demonstrations were orderly and as long as they remained that way no arrests would be made.

After reading the injunction the sheriff posted it on a utility pole and conferred with organizers of the demonstration.

Woman Saves Four Persons From Death

DUNNVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Four persons, including two children, were rescued by a passing motorist Wednesday when fire destroyed a home on a sideroad five miles west of here.

Mrs. Victor B. Collins, 49, of Dunnville kicked out a panel in the front door to gain entry to the house after she noticed the roof burning.

Inside, Mrs. Collins found Mrs. Larry MacDonald, 22, and Mrs. MacDonald's infant son Larry and two-year-old daughter Donna Mae in a first-floor bedroom. All were unconscious.

Mrs. Collins roused Mrs. MacDonald, who led Donna Mae to safety while Mrs. Collins took the baby outside.

Mrs. MacDonald said her father-in-law, Jim MacDonald, 88, was still inside. Mrs. Collins returned to the house where she roused Mr. MacDonald, unconscious in a back bedroom.

The fire in the two-storey frame house was believed caused by an overheated wood stove.

ONTARIO TRADE CRUSADE

Ann Landers

Tax Conscious Father Shows Insensitivity

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several months ago my doctor told me I would have a baby in April — between the 12th and the 20th. This is our first child, so naturally Zellic and I are very excited.

ANN LANDERS

A few weeks ago Zellic asked me if I thought I would have the baby by April 15th. I told him there was no way of knowing and I asked him why he cared. He said, "We need the tax deduction." I was offended that he would think of money at a time like this but I kept quiet.

This morning Zellic said, "Why don't you jump off the table a few times? It might bring the baby sooner!" I told him that was the worst thing he ever said in his whole life. He replied, "Any time after seven months a baby is fully developed. And just think — you would get out of two months of lugging that load."

I am very disappointed that my husband is so insensitive to what a woman goes through to have a baby. Believe me I am not planning on jumping off any tables, but he is wrong about babies being fully developed at seven months, isn't he? — P.G. ARLENE.

DEAR ARLENE: Babies born before the seventh month stand a poor chance of survival. Moreover, his suggestion that you jump off a table to get the baby here early and save a buck is absolutely shameful. Someone ought to tell Zellic that the April 15th deadline in the U.S. is for filing. He missed the tax deduction deadline on December 31, 1965.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have both read your book "Ann Landers Talks to Teen-Agers About Sex" (at the request of our 16-year-old daughter) and feel that you possess a great deal of common sense. We want you to give us a one word reply to our question. "Yes" or "No."

It is not essential that you give reasons for your reply because there has been endless discussion on the subject. Your answer will be final.

Our 16-year-old daughter has been invited by the parents of her boy friend on a 10-day camping trip. Their son is 16, too, and has no brothers or sisters. It would be just the four of them. Yes or no? — ALL EARS.

DEAR ALL: No. And thank you for making it so easy.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell me if you think I am losing my mind. I wouldn't discuss this with anyone else, but if you feel I need to see a psychiatrist I mill make an appointment at once.

Whenever I leave the house I check the gas jets even though I never leave the kitchen without making sure that they are off.

Whnever I step into the car I make certain that I put my right foot into the car first. Somehow I feel this assures me of a safe journey. I have never been in an accident so I cannot understand why I go out of my way to "protect" myself.

Are these little peculiar habits signs of insanity? I need your help. — UNSURE AND WORRIED.

DEAR UNSURE: Everyone has a few odd habits (the experts call them neurotic compulsions) and some make less sense than yours. So long as the habits do not interfere with your daily life there is no reason to be concerned. Signs of insanity? No!

Talk on Expo 67 Given At Canadian Club Meet

The Canadian Club of Belleville played host to Mr. Expo on Wednesday evening at Sir Winston Churchill School.

The speaker, Mr. Allan A. Rowan-Legg, introduced by the president, Mrs. J. Demeza, was born in Ottawa and after his education in Ontario schools he graduated in higher accounting and marketing courses at New York University. He held responsible executive and managerial positions in several large industries in Canada and in 1964 became associated with The Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition. As Mr. Expo for the Province of Ontario he is responsible for anything connected with the 1967 exhibition in Ontario. He lives in Toronto and carries on his work from an office at 950 Yonge street.

The topic of his address was, "Expo 67 — Canada's Image Abroad".

It is a well known fact that a trip abroad necessitates much planning and early bookings. The Canadian world-wide traveller of 1967 will not need the usual immunizations, nor will he be restricted as to luggage. His only requirement will be his passport, (passport is the correct word). This he can procure for one day, one week or for the season. One can be bought even now at any bank or at Eaton's or Simpson's.

The cost of this passport is nominal, but bargain rates will be in effect until July, so it really is beneficial to plan ahead for a trip, which may take anytime from April 28th, 1967 until October 27th 1967.

Expo 67 will be the greatest Canadian Club in Canada. It will also be the greatest unifying force in Canada — a common ground for all to get to know each other.

GOVERNMENT FINANCING

Since the Dominion government is financing 50 per cent of the cost, the Quebec government 37 and one half percent, and the City of Montreal 12 and one half percent, all have a stake in this, the world's greatest exhibition. It is estimated that from ten to 15 million people will visit the fair — 54 per cent from south of the border, 42 per cent from Canada, and the remainder from all over the world. Expo 67 will be located on 1,000 acres mainly man - built, in the St. Lawrence River. The fill used to create the new land was procured from the new Montreal subway.

Mr. Rowan - Legg explained that most wolrd exhxibitions have had a physical symbol. In London in 1851 the symbol was the Crystal Palace, in Paris the Eiffel Tower, in Seattle the restaurant on top of the needle, and in New York the Unisphere. Expo 67 has no physical symbol but rather a theme, "Man and His World."

WORLD TOUR

The traveller may visit 80 countries, learn of each one's progress through the years, its customs and its products. One may dine at authentic restaurants where food identified with each country will be served. One may enjoy the cultural achievements of each and every country, and generally learn as much about each nation as you would be able to do on a genuine world tour. One's passport will be stamped in each building, and this will be the best world trip that anyone has ever had. The estimated average cost per person will be $7.10, including meals. Nothing will be sold except food and other refreshments.

This trip will also boost the Canadian's pride in his homeland. Every province will proudly present its resources in produce, culture and talent. Three hundred amateur groups from across our nation will have a chance to show what talented young Canadians can do in an international atmosphere.

The speaker explained in words, and by pictures, in great detail, the Exhibition from the time it was a gleam in the eyes of far-sighted Canadians such as the mayor of Montreal, to its present degree of realization and on to the future ultimate and almost unbelievable completion.

MYRIAD ATTRACTIONS

A few of the myriad attractions will be the largest agricultural complex in the world; the Dupont theatre, where, sponsored by Noranda Mines, all available Nobel prize winners will tell their stories; a plastic cow which can be fed and the onlooker will be able to follow the hay from the mouth to the milk pail; a religious building where seven religions have united to tell the story of you and your God; a city sized for children; the art building housing 150 of the finest paintings from all over the world; an Olympic race course; the Theatre of the Stars where there will be puppet shows for children, the Beatles and other combos for the teenagers, and bands from all over the globe for the entertainment of the adults, and many, many more fabulous attractions.

WORLD HARMONY

So, fellow travellers, now that your trip is planned, and you see the symbol of the fair's advertising, remember that it depicts dependence on one another, in harmony, around the world. You will look forward to 1967 and your acquaintance with man, the provider; man, the producer; man, the creator; and man, the explorer. One will learn of man and the oceans; man and health; man and his planet and man in automation. Also, indeed, you will learn a great deal of woman and her accomplishments and her dreams."

TO MAKE RESERVATIONS

Should one wish to make reservations for rooms at an early date and wisely so, contact "Loge Expo, Montreal." A survey of all the available bedrooms in Montreal and a radius of 75 miles has been listed. These have been computerized and one's particular needs will be readily and cheerfully met. Parking accomodation will be provided for 24,000 cars, in two lots. Transportation from the parking lots to the entrance of the fair will be furnished by English double - decker buses. From the entrance the visitor will travel the Expo Express, fully automatic and free of charge, or he may travel by Mini-rail throughout the entire exhibition.

A question and answer period followed the address.

Mrs. Lorene Ellis thanked Mr. Rowan - Legg on behalf of a most enthusiastic and appreciative audience. She said, "I feel a much bigger and prouder Canadian after hearing what my country is doing."

PRESENTED WITH PIN

Mr. Expo presented the president, Mrs. Demeza, with an Expo honorary membership pin.

Mrs. Esma Maybee and Mrs. Pauline Clare provided a dainty lunch of cookies and small cakes and coffee at the conclusion of the meeting which gave all present an opportunity to meet and talk with the distinguished guest.

The next meeting of the Canadian Club will be held on March 21st. This meeting will conclude the season's lectures and will feature Mr. Michael J. Macoun, C.M.G., O.B.E., whose talk will be titles, "An Eyewitness Report on the New Africa."

Susanna's Family Fare

FULL SKIRT—HALF APRON

Dear Susanna: When the young girl at your house has outgrown her pretty summer skirts, don't be sad. They make lovely half aprons for grown-ups.

The wraparound ones often only need a pair of ties to complete them, but it's the Dirndl style skirts that turn out to be the truly attractive aprons, as they are usually gayly patterned with a large patch pocket or two.

They are also easy to alter. Remove the zipper, open that particular seam all the way down, and hem the two ends to the required depth.

If you wish, remove enough material before hemming to make the pair of ties. Tres gay? — Winnie

Oui, mais oui! — SUSANNA

FABULOUS FRENCH FRIES

Dear Susanna: If you crave an occasional treat of french fried potatoes but hesitate to cook them because of the odor of deep frying that permeates the premises, there is another way.

Cover the cookie sheet with a thin layer of vegetable oil. Slice three or four large potatoes and spread them out on this pan. Don't use foil, and don't let them overlap.

Cook in a preheated oven at a temperature of 500 to 550 degrees. Turn them over with a spatula two or three times during the cooking. We find they are always done when the outsides are sufficiently brown — about 15 minutes.

They will emerge firm and mealy on the inside, crispy on the outside, and they won't be greasy. — B. Macdonell

Followed your directions and served them at our house with weiners and sauerkraut. The reaction? Best potato chips we ever ate." One word of advice: Make plenty! — SUSANNA

Home, School Council Marks Founder's Day

MRS. C. J. RORKE

A highlight of the Founder's Day dinner of the Belleville and District Council of Home and School Associations will be the presentation of Association life memberships by Mrs. C. J. Rorke, the president of the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations.

Mrs. Rorke is a native of this district who was born and received her elementary education in Ameliasburg. A graduate of Queen's University, Kingston, she was a secondary school teacher for six years. She is the proud parent of two daughters, the eldest of whom is, also, a Queen's graduate, the younger a public health nurse, and one son who is attending Queen's University.

Mrs. Rorke has assumed many positions of responsibility in Home and School before becoming the provincial president. She is past president of an elementary association, of a secondary school association in Toronto, of the Toronto Home and School Council and executive vice-president of the Ontario Federation of Home and School.

Mrs. Rorke states, "I was an active member of my local Home and School Associations as long as my children were attending the schools, because I felt that it was important for my husband and me to know the teachers in the school and the program of the particular school.

The Association Life Memberships, to be presented by Mrs. Rorke, are being bestowed upon persons who have made a valuable contribution to Home and School, by several of the associations in this district.

The Founder's Day dinner will observe 50 years of Home and School in Ontario. It will take place on Tuesday, March 1, in the Tabernacle United Church, Belleville.

Those interested in obtaining additional information about this important event are asked to contact the secretary, Mr. John E. Welch.

Spent Off-duty Hours Shooting Kangaroos on Hop

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) As a nurse with Australia's Flying Doctor service, Barbara Murphy spent her working day hedge - hopping around the rugged countryside and her rare off - duty hours shooting kangaroos on the hop.

But Barbara has traded her wings and rifle for a temporary job as an assistant to a Prince George doctor.

The 23 - year - old native of Fremantle, Australia, was one of 10 nurses on the staff of a burly Polish flying doctor who worked out of the village of Meekatharra, 500 miles north of Perth.

She spent 18 tiring months in the service before returning to Fremantle because "I was fagged."

Barbara said that when she left school in 1959 she wanted to do "something different."

She enrolled in the modern flying doctor hospital at Meekatharra, a village of about 2,000 and a collection and distribution point for more than 150 of the largest sheep stations in Australia.

Barbara said the flying doctor hospital is built in the shape of an airplane and a nurse's existence is centred around the hospital and its work.

"Even when we weren't on shift we were on call and it would be nothing to be called out of bed at 2 a.m. Uusually nurses who were not on duty would be found somewhere in the hospital."

She said the only form of entertainment nurses had came "now and then" when they were invited by a sheep station owner to spend their days off at the station.

"I've spent whole afternoons and evenings out shooting kangaroos and emu. It was just sport, but the kangaroo tails could be sold in the Meekatharra market."

Barbara said the aborigines outnumbered whites at Meekatharra and provided a few headaches for the hospital staff.

"We had an awful job trying to keep clothes on them . . . they just weren't used to wearing clothes."

Barbara said when a nurse was called out to bring in an injured or ill patient it would be nothing for them to work 12 to 14 hours at a stretch. They could be just getting off shift when a call came in from 500 miles away.

"When we'd get to the station where the sick person lived, we would find the flattest piece of ground around and land."

She said that at night the rancher would light the approach with fires or headlights from a car.

"Most of the big stations now are making good runways near the ranch houses," she said.

"In some cases, patients could be treated right on the scene, but otherwise they were transported back to Meekatharra."

Barbara arrived in Prince George last November to visit her sister and brother-in-law Mr. and Mrs. John Earl and to see Canada.

Mrs. Ghandi's Beauty Is Under Fire

NEW DELHI (AP)—When the lady is a prime minister, should her looks be discussed in public?

The issue arose in India's Parliament Wednesday during a debate on Mrs. Indira Gandhi's policies.

H. V. Kamath, a member of the opposition Praja Socialist party, started the whole thing with a remark that Mrs. Gandhi "is the world's most beautiful prime minister."

A little miffed, Mrs. Sharda Mukherjee, a member of Mrs. Gandhi's Congress party, called on the Speaker, Hukam Singh, to halt "this kind of talk."

Kamath's manner of speaking implied discourtesy to the prime minister, she said.

The Speaker agreed and warned Kamath not to make personal remarks from the floor.

AROUSES SOCIALIST

That aroused Hem Barua, also a Praja Socialist. Addressing the Speaker, Barua, 71, asked:

"If I say you are handsome, would you object?"

"No, I wouldn't," the Speaker replied amid laughter.

Kamath, a stern critic of the government, then explained why he raised the question of Mrs. Gandhi's looks.

Many compliments have been paid to India's new prime minister, he stated, "but man does not live by beauty alone . . . Mrs. Gandhi must not be distracted by all the compliments."

She must act with dignity and strength against India's enormous problems, he said.

Mrs. Gandhi was not present during the exchange.

CARS Directors Hear Reports

The February meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society was held at the city hall.

Mr. A. E. Chatland was in the chair and welcomed Mr. Doug Barrett, Regional Director, Eastern Ontario Division of C.A.R.S. to the meeting.

Mr. Barrett brought to the directors some splendid ideas on how the local branch could acquaint the public with the services rendered by the society.

Miss Gladys H. MacDonald, president of the Women's Auxiliary of C.A.R.S., gave a report on the activities of this group and their plans for a coffee party in the early spring.

Miss Hilda Collier gave a report on a program of craft classes being worked out with the Belleville Recreation Commission.

If a suitable place could be found on the ground floor, arthritic patients, for whom stairs are an obstacle, could join with other interested people. All craft classes in the city are held on the second floor of the Recreation Centre, and thus arthritics cannot attend these classes. A hobby plays an important part in the life of a handicapped person.

Mrs E. David said that the Women's Auxiliary of the local branch had received recognition in the January issue of C.A.R.SCOPE, the official publication of the National Organization of The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatic Society.

An article tells of the work that has been accomplished by the women's organization over the past eight years, and the service it has given to the community.

KITCHENS LAG BEHIND

MONTREAL (CP)—It will be another five years before Canadian kitchen appliances catch up with American decorating fashions, manufacturers said at an exhibition here. Refrigerators on the United States market now are surfaced with cowhide printed with "op art" designs.

There were 16 Past Matrons and 12 Past Patrons of Belleville Chapter 55 present.

All were welcomed by the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Wynne Tomlinson; corsages and boutonnieres were pinned on and a gift presented to each one.

Mrs. Doris McFaul, D.D.G.M. spoke briefly, congratulating the Chapter on 47 years of service in the Order, and wishing them many more happy years. Mrs. Georgina Rendell, W.M. of Minerva Chapter, and Mr. Basil Smith, W.P. of Quinte Chapter, also spoke, giving congratulations and good wishes for the future on behalf of all the presiding Matrons and Patrons.

At the close of the regular meeting, a beautifully decorated, three-tiered birthday cake was brought in on a silver tray. A "Wishing Well" ceremony took place, in which the officers of the Chapter in turn, went to the wishing well, carrying sprays of flowers; after reciting a verse, and making a wish, the flowers were dropped into the well; all the while, Sister Beverley Shaw sang appropriate numbers, accompanied on the piano by Sister Clela Elliott.

CAKE CUTTING CEREMONY

The cake-cutting ceremony took place, with the Worthy Matron, the three Charter members and Sister Signe Orne, one of the oldest members, taking part. Pictures were taken, and everyone adjourned to the banquet hall, where a delicious lunch was served, under the convenership of Sister Bobbe Locke I.P.M., and Sister Merle Simpson, and their capable committees. A "Penny Sale" of home baking brought to a close a happy evening, and another rewarding year for the Chapter.

MR. AND MRS. KEITH H. THOMPSON

Thompson – Ellis

Very Rev. J. C. Clancy officiated at the double ring ceremony when Lynda Marie Ellis and Keith Harry Thompson were united in marriage. The Nuptial Mass was held in St. Peter's Church, Trenton, on Saturday, February 19 at 11 a.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Aleeda Ellis, 160 Dundas Street East, Trenton, and the late Alfred Ellis, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Thompson, Corbyville.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. Marie Rose, and William Long was the soloist.

Given in marriage by her grandfather, Gilbert Whitney, the bride wore a full length white gown with a rounded neckline and three-quarter sleeves. The bodice was cut velvet with appliques of pearls and crystals, Empire styled, and the full, peau de soie skirt was enhanced with a flowing train. Her waist length silk, four tiered, illusion veil was held in place with a cut velvet pillbox hat and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Attending the bride was her eldest sister, Constance Ann Ellis. She wore an emerald green brocaded dress with a rounded neckline and three quarter sleeves. The skirt had a flat panel front. She wore green and white accessories, a matching wedding ring headpiece with veil and carried a nosegay of daffodils.

Kenneth Cassidy of Foxboro attended the bridegroom.

The wedding reception was held at the bride's home where her mother received the guests wearing a printed pure silk ensemble with green and brown accessories. The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a pale blue double knit three piece ensemble with matching accessories.

For a wedding trip to the United States, the bride chose a yellow knitted wool dress, matching accessories and a white fur coat with a corsage of red rosebuds. On their return the couple will take up residence in Kingston.

ENDS LIFETIME ON WIRE

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—Employees of Canadian National Telecommunications messaged a "73"—cable code for best wishes—to Leola McKay on her retirement after 37 years service. Born in Truro, Miss McKay joined as a stenographer in 1929 and was in charge of 15 railway work crews during the Second World War.

Women's Club Hears Talk on N.E.S. Work

Mr. Reginald T. Voss of the National Employment Service, Belleville, addressed the members of the University Women's Club of Belleville and District at the February meeting. He spoke about the Special Services Division of the National Employment Service.

The speaker said that the National Employment Service was created by an Act of Parliament in 1940 while the Unemployment Insurance Commission was formed in 1941. The National Employment Service operates on three levels: head office in Ottawa; five regional offices; over 240 local offices such as Belleville. The latter serves an area of 22 square miles and 57,000 people in all of Hastings County except Deseronto and Trenton. It performs two functions, serving both the employer and the employee.

Professional people are served by the Executive and Professional Division. It is hoped to have eventually such a branch on every university campus.

The Special Services Division is a new and specialized branch with counselling services available for various types of workers. Among those served are persons entering the working world from school or armed services careers, those without significant work experience or training and those whose skill or training has been rendered useless by time or progress. There is also help in readjustment and special placement for the physically handicapped not already dealt with by Public Welfare Agencies. Also served and counselled are those in jobs not suited to their abilities and interests and those emotionally handicapped. Among these may be ex-prisoners.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING

Program Five is a Canadian Vocational Training course, a Federal - Provincial assistance scheme for retraining the unemployed who have been out of school for at least one year. Over seventy courses are offered. These people are given basic courses in English, Mathematics, Science and one option. Locally, this course is given evenings at Quinte Secondary School where clerical options have been given. Now a homemaking and power sewing course is being offered to the women while it is hoped that welding will be offered to the men. Married men are paid $45 weekly while on course.

At Elliot Lake Program 5 operates a course for those who are actually illiterate.

Most industrial employers require a minimum of Grade 10 education while some require Grades 11, 12 and 13. There are no jobs for 16 year olds with only Grade 8 education. Continuing changes in industry also make new training essential.

Mr. Voss stated that in the National Employment Service of the future there may be special offices requiring university degrees with post-graduate courses in related fields such as personnel and business administration.

In his talk, Mr. Voss described actual case histories of persons helped by his branch.

Mr. Voss was introduced by Miss Nell Merry and thanked by Miss Muriel Gibson.

During the business meeting four new members were introduced to the club: Mrs. E. A. Wiens, Mrs. L. Backus, Mrs. E. A. Manderville and Mrs. Francis Murphy.

Mrs. M. J. Sabia, President of the Canadian Federation of University Women has asked the members to study the subject of the minimum legal age for marriage.

Silver Ribbon
Cherry Supreme
DESSERT and PIE FILLING

Silver Ribbon Cherry Supreme is the newest idea in desserts. It's both a wonderful ready-to-serve, right-out-of-the-tin dessert of rich, plump Montmorency cherries or just about the best-tasting pie filling you'll ever eat.

Silver Ribbon cherries are separate and full round in a fine rich sauce that doesn't kill the cherry flavour. There's none of that gooey flavoured thickening or mashed up fruit.

Cherry Supreme is prepared to perfection by the Baxter people of Bloomfield, who know how to keep that fruit-fresh look and flavour that's sure to please the whole family. It's extra good because it's "Baxter-Good" and it's so easy!

SAUCE MAKES THE DIFFERENCE

During the last week in January I gave you the recipes for two desserts - Apple Tapioca with Hard Sauce and Rice Pear Melba. These were featured because of their glamorous sauces.

Now I have another dessert recipe made important and different with its accompanying sauce. I have to give credit to the Catering Division of KLM Royal Dutch Airlines for this because it was served to me on my return flight from Amsterdam last month.

I made a brave effort to reproduce a reasonable facsimile and believe I have been successful.

ORANGE CHARLOTTE WITH ORANGE CLEAR SAUCE

4 teaspoons plain gelatine
½ cup cold water
⅓ cup sugar
4 teaspoons grated orange rind
½ cup unstrained fresh orange juice
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 egg white
1 cup 32 per cent cream
9 drained Mandarin orange sections

SAUCE INGREDIENTS

⅓ cup syrup drained from 10-oz. can Mandarin oranges
¼ cup sugar
1 tablespoon arrowroot flour (or cornstarch)
¾ cup boiling water
½ teaspoon yellow food coloring
½ teaspoon orange extract or essence (see note below)

Soak gelatin in cold water then stir over hot water until dissolved. Remove from heat, add orange juice and stir in sugar until dissolved. Add lemon juice and orange rind. Chill until consistency of liquid honey. Beat egg white and fold in. Whip cream and fold in until smoothly blended. Turn into a squarish serving dish - approximately 9 x 9". Place drained Mandarin orange sections over top at even intervals so that when the Charlotte is cut into squares there is an orange section at centre of each. Pour over each serving.

Dinner Menus by Mary Moore

THURSDAY

Roast Shoulder of Lamb; Mint Jelly; Buttered Minted Fresh Frozen Green Peas; Fluffy Boiled Rice; Relish Tray: Carrot and Turnip and Celery Sticks; Apple Crisp with 10% Cream; Coffee.

SUNDAY

Old-Fashioned Chicken Stew with Dumplings (see Tues.); Tossed Combination Salad with Bibb Lettuce with Roquefort - 1000 - Island Dressing; Citrus and Pineapple Fruit Cup; Cheese Straws (see Fri.); Tea.
Hot Consomme; Chicken

CLEAR ORANGE SAUCE

Stir together dry the sugar and arrowroot flour (or cornstarch) and stir these into the Mandarin orange syrup. Stir in the boiling water and cook stirring until thick and clear. Remove from heat and add yellow food coloring and orange extract. (NOTE: Extract may be omited and ½ cup fresh strained orange juice substituted for ½ cup of the boiling water.) Pour into serving pitcher and chill ready for serving over above Charlotte.

This is a pretty guest dessert that may be made in advance.

Successful Living

Too Available, Girl Being Used Unfairly

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS: This boy says he loves me but he is always wanting me to go out with his boy friends. I love him too. When he is here I am sure he loves me, but when he talks to me on the phone I'm not so sure that he really loves me or not.

Ninety-nine per cent of the time he goes out with his friends. Some people say that he isn't really interested in girls, and that he just wants me because when he feels like taking a girl out I'm always handy. My girl friend says she has her doubts of whether he is cheating on me or not, because she said when two guys get together out in a car they are bound to pick up a couple of girls sooner or later. My question is, should I believe what people say or let things ride and be prepared if he does break off? We are of age. — HANDY.

DEAR HANDY: What age is of age in your book? Your puzzlement smacks of adolescence. When a young fellow cares about his girl he wants to be with her, more than with the fellows.

If you take my advice you won't make yourself too handy.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I love children, and I go baby-sitting sometimes. But so far nobody has asked me back for a second time. Why is this? — FOURTEEN.

DEAR FOURTEEN: Ask the baby's mother. Unknowingly you may be showing your youthfulness and inexperience, and she may feel a bit uneasy about leaving her precious little one with you a second time.

Did you know that there are training courses for baby sitters? These are put on by local groups, using material prepared by experts. Not only does such a course help you with baby sitting, but it gives you some practical ideas on family living to put to use when you one day become a homemaker and mother yourself.

(Note to readers: If there is a group where you are which would consider sponsoring a Baby Sitters' Training Course, write to the National Safety League of Canada, 30 The Driveway, Ottawa 4, Canada, for teaching material and other details.)

* * *

DEAR DORIS: It makes my blood boil to receive a card or letter without any return address on the envelope. If it were only the uneducated who would mail cards or letters without a return address, I'd say "a letter from an uneifying mind"; but we get them from teachers, clerks, and others with a good education.

What excuse have they to be so illiterate?

When I read "Dead letter office alive these days," I felt I must write you, knowing that millions read your interesting letters, and hoping that those who fail to write their return address on a card or letter are among the not very smart. — I'M NOT STUPID.

DEAR I'M: Or, in my case, among the not very brave — or trusting. Worst of all are those laying me out in lavender, and then failing to sign a name. At least you know who your mail comes from!

* * *

DEAR DORIS: Your article re Help for Canadian Aging:

Some time ago I read an article illustrating what is being done in one of the larger Scottish cities; I think it was Edinburgh. It stated that some of the service clubs were distributing a small blinker (red) light similar to what is being used here by motorists as a distress warning signal on the road.)

This was to be placed in the window permanently and could be plugged in or switched on when necessary. While this would not be nearly so heart warming as a cheery good morning on the phone, it might be a good supplement.

I feel with the passing of the rural party line our phone has lost much of its intimate friendship. — RURAL OLDSTER.

P.S.: I feel your valuable and well read column could well and easily track this Scottish appliance down.

DEAR OLDSTER: Then when the blinker is on, the resident is signalling for help? Sounds good, and would meet some needs — as a supplement. But how about the oldster who has fallen or taken ill, and can't get to the switch?

Perhaps another reader can add a little more light.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I want to be able to stand up in front of a crowd of people and deliver a speech with all the ease and confidence in the world. Is there a course that I can take to help me achieve this goal?

I'd sure hate to get up in front of a crowd and make a fool of myself. This is something that I must learn to do. Do you have any suggestions? — L.A.

DEAR L.A.: Yes, there are courses, and literature, and ways to get practice. You and many another shake in their boots at the very thought of facing an audience.

Be sure you have something worth saying, then become completely familiar with it. Keep a full script at hand for when your mind goes blank. (I do.) When you do get comfortable on your feet, you'll find your poise makes talking easier even when you are among friends.

PARIS (Reuters) — French furriers no longer underestimate the power of the rabbit.

The domestic grey rabbit, bleached and dyed every shade of the rainbow, is giving mink a serious run for its money in Paris this winter.

It is even being worn by women who can afford mink.

The once humble rabbit, formerly confined to coat linings or undergarments intended to alleviate rheumatism, now is seen on the backs of wealthy women and film stars as well as students and working girls.

When Brigitte Bardot went to New York just before Christmas, she left her mink coat at home. Instead, three new rabbit coats, two white ones and the third dyed a brilliant orange to match a short evening dress, accompanied her.

IMITATES OTHERS

While a mink never masquerades as anything but mink, rabbit appears nowadays in every form, from its natural state to realistic imitations of jungle pelts like tiger, leopard, zebra and civet cat.

The Mondrian art craze has even reached fur styling. But, since no designer cares to dye mink in bright primary shades and chop it up in cubic squares and blocks, the rabbit again comes to the rescue, proving highly adaptable to kaleidoscope effects inspired by the realms of pop and op art.

Fernando Sanchez, former assistant designer at Christian Dior and Nina Ricci, created a luxurious array of rabbit-skin dressing gowns and hostess outfits for the Revillon winter fur collection.

His white rabbit dressing gown, liberally trimmed with lace ruffles and satin bows appeared as fanciful as the famous white rabbit immortalized by Lewis Carroll in Alice In Wonderland.

TRENTON — Head table guests at last night's 5th annual inter service club dinner were Ross Brummell, vice president of Canadian Legion Trenton Branch 110; Daniel Senik, Rotarian and organizer of the event; Sproule Currie, president of Trenton Lions; Miss Vera Clark, vice president of the Business and Professional Women's Club; Mayor James Maconald; Albert Ward, Rotary president; Douglas Adams, Trenton Kiwanis Club president and the Hon. Mr. Hees told the service club members that tickets to Expo '67 were being sold in the form of "passports" which visitors could have stamped in each national pavilion and keep as souvenirs.

He said the service clubs in the Montreal area were selling these "passports," and that any service club in the country could take part by contacting the "Inter-Service Club Council" in Montreal.

RUBBISH FIRE

The pall of smoke which hung over the town last night came from a fire in the sanitary landfill area, south of the sewage treatment plant, which broke out in the afternoon. One truck was sent from the fire department and water was poured on the burning rubbish, giving rise to the vast clouds of smoke, which then blew over the east section of the town.

Boosts Expo

"Let's Think Positive" Hees Advises Canadians

TRENTON — Northumberland's M.P., George Hees, told the 150 persons attending last night's 5th annual inter-service club banquet in the Trenton Legion Hall that "Canadians have wasted too much time and too much energy telling each other and the world about our 'family' problems."

"If we keep this up," said Mr. Hees, "we will succeed in persuading ourselves and the world that our problems are insurmountable. Let's start thinking positively." "And" said Mr. Hees "lets show our stuff to the world in 1967".

Mr. Hees' address on Expo '67 was beamed at the members of three Trenton service clubs and their guests, which included representatives from the Trenton Canadian Legion branch and 26 members of the Business and Professional Women's Club. Local and area dignitaries had also been invited to the annual meeting.

MILLIONS OF VISITORS

Mr. Hees referred to the world exhibition at Montreal as "the most important peace-time project ever undertaken in this country."

"At Expo '67, Canada will be the centre of the world stage. We will never have a better opportunity to tell our story. There will be millions of visitors at the exhibition and the exhibition will be covered daily by the news media of the world.

"The effect this world coverage can have on our economic future is tremendous. We will not have as good an opportunity again for 100 years."

Mr. Hees said that it was a known fact that no world exhibition had ever operated profitably within its gates. However, he said, in every case there have been economic and financial rewards to the host nation. Exhibitions were "good business" he said.

Touching on trade Mr. Hees said Canada would have a chance to show the world that this country was more than a production of primary products.

"Too many potential customers think of us solely as primary producers. They come to Canada for wheat, for pulpwood and for basic metals. When they want manufactured products they tend to look elsewhere.'

MANUFACTURING

Mr. Hees said that Canada's whole economic future depended on development of her manufacturing.

"At Expo '67 we will have the chance to show the world that Canadian quality . . Canadian efficiency . . . Canadian design and Canadian prospects can compete with anything, anywhere. The export of secondary manufacturers must be pressed. Expo is the place to do it."

"We are rich in resources and in human talents. We are the envy of most of the world. This is realized by everyone. Everyone . . . except most Canadians. It is time Canadians reflected on their blessings and told the world about the great things we have done and can do together. Confidence is the most important commodity in this country. We must have confidence in ourselves if we want other nations 'o have confidence in us."

Will Paint Inside Walls Of Water Tank

TRENTON — The Trenton Public Utilities' Commission has earmarked $10,000 in its 1966 budget to paint the inside walls of the water tank on Mount Pelion. The job should be done this summer, but utility manager James Page said today weather conditions and other factors would enter into the picture.

Mr. Page said all water would be drained from the tank and residents, factories and other buildings would be serviced by water directly from the mains. Actually, the tank is used primarily as an "overflow" storage tank with excess water from the daily pumping of the mains being directed here.

Mr. Page said should a large fire occur while the tank was being painted, valves could be opened and water used from the filtration plant reservoir, which is ordinarily used to store, treat and filter river water used to supply the RCAF station.

$1,563 Now Collected for Heart Fund

TRENTON — Heart fund totals to date were announced yesterday as $1,563.86 by Daniel Senik, public relations' officer with the Trenton chapter of the Ontario Heart Foundation.

Mrs. James MacDonald, chairman of the canvass, said that a number of canvass kits had come in late and canvassers who received them later had been given until the end of this week to collect. She said there was another $300 to come in from the Brighton area, which would be added to the total announced by Mr. Senik.

Mr. Senik said 35 to 40 per cent of the 300 canvassers had turned in kits and with 60 per cent more to report, he felt the campaign should go over the 1966 quota, $2,500.

Those wishing to buy In Memoriam cards, rather than give a donation, may buy these from the Rushnell Funeral Centre or the Weaver Funeral Home.

Anyone missed by the canvassers, may donate at the Trenton branch of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Proposed County Health Unit Endorsed by Board

TRENTON — The Trenton Board of Health, meeting yesterday, voted to recommend to council that the town go in with the proposed Hastings County and Belleville Health Unit . . . providing it is to Trenton's advantage.

Board members Miss Marjorie Gothard and E. D. Topping expressed fears that Trenton might come out the "underdog," in a county health unit arrangement.

Mr. Topping said the Trenton board, (which would be dissolved if the town went in with the county unit) had accomplished many things, such as having old buildings demolished and outdoor toilet arrangements done away with. He suggested the board investigate further to see if the town would be as well off in a "health" sense under the county arrangement.

Dr. Dow said he felt sure Trenton's needs would be attended to under the new arrangement, but he suggested Mr. Pane investigate the new unit's plans of procedure and report back to the board and council. One thing the board would like to know is whether there would be a resident inspector in Trenton, who could cope with local problems. Miss Gothard agreed to the passing of the first motion after the second motion had been suggested.

Mr. Pane and Mr. Topping will go before council on March 7 to point out the need for a sewer intsallation on Bay Street.

Mr. Pane said he felt that reports published this week, that the town would be installing sewers in 1967, was an indication that the board was being given "tne run-around." The board last year recommended sewers for Bay Street, Roscoe Ave., Dufferin Ave. South and Dundas Street East.

Mr. Pane said that Jack Bonn, a trailer camp operator on Dundas Street East, had indicated to him he would install sanitary facilities himself, if he could get the right sort of agreement with the town which would ensure that he wouldn't be paying twice when sewers were finally installed in his area.

If a sewer isn't put in on Bay Street this year, one real estate operator may be affected, as the land there is unsuitable for septic tanks.

Lost Control Of Vehicle Jury Verdict

TRENTON—A coroner's jury sitting in Brighton yesterday ruled that Mrs. Lottie Brooks, 52, of Brighton, suffered fatal injuries when she lost control of her small European car on Highway 2 on the morning of December 9, 1965. The Brooks car crashed into a panel truck driven by Charles Anderson, 70 of Carrying Place.

Mrs. Brooks died in Trenton Memorial Hospital a few hours after the accident.

The jury queried the length of time (10 to 15 minutes) it took an ambulance to arrive at the scene of the crash and asked the coroner, Dr. W. O. Elliott if he felt earlier attention might have saved the victim.

Dr. Elliott was of the opinion that the woman was too badly injured in the crash to be helped under any circumstances.

Douglas Williams, foreman of the jury, commented that seat belts might have saved Mrs. Brooks' life.

Mrs. Brooks was a former resident of Trenton and at one time was employed at the public library here.

Constable R. F. Deck of the Ontario Provincial Police Detachment at Brighton investigated the accident.

Kosygin Is Organization Man With Real Skill as Diplomat

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—Alexei Kosygin's world has until recently been far removed from the stereotyped, protocol - conscious world of international relations.

Yet this 61-year-old industrialist prototype of the new Soviet organization man and technocrat, is credited with bringing off a major achievement in Kremlin diplomacy.

It was Premier Kosygin more than anybody else who was responsible for the Tashkent declaration, by which India and Pakistan agreed to roll back their forces from the battle lines of last year and to seek to compose their differences peacefully in the future.

The declaration, signed by President Mohammad Ayub Khan of Pakistan and the late Indian prime minister Lal Bahadur Shastri, really solves none of the basic problems that have soured relations between the two countries for 19 years.

In particular, it said nothing substantive about Kashmir, the issue over which last summer's war was fought. The declaration is regarded here as a fragile, uncertain beginning.

But the fact that a beginning was made is attributed to the dour, indefatigable Soviet premier who as conference host simply refused to let it end in deadlock—where it seemed to remain mired most of the week the conference was in progress.

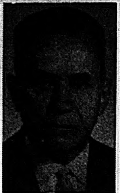
The result of Kosygin's badgering was the Tashkent Declaration.

Kosygin, a strongly-built man of medium height with close-cropped hair and a no-nonsense approach to everything he says and does, had a certain amount of contact with foreign statesmen and diplomats while a first deputy premier from 1960 to 1964.

But since being catapulted into the premiership with the sudden overthrow of Nikita Khrushchev in October, 1964, he has had a lot more—and has quickly earned a reputation as a nimble operator among the pros.

Statesmanship — the government-to-government kind — now competes for his time with industrial and economic planning, which has long been Kosygin's absorbing interest.

Many people are amazed that he can find time to keep up a heavy schedule of meetings with foreign diplomats and visiting statesmen, make fairly frequent trips abroad, and at the same time mastermind a revolutionary reshaping of the Russian economy to which he has committed all his influence and prestige.



SOVIET PREMIER TIRELESS DIPLOMAT — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, an industrialist and technocrat, is earning a reputation as a diplomat. Kosygin's tireless efforts are credited with bringing about the Tashkent declaration which ended the Kashmir fighting between India and Pakistan. (CP Photo)

He has made the cause of Russia's increasingly vocal liberal economists his own. One of the big events of 1965 in Russia was Kosygin's September report to the Communist party central committee formally enshrining the profit motive as the chief yardstick of industrial efficiency.

OPENS NEW DOORS

The report, promptly adopted as government policy, called for partial emancipation of factory managers from stifling centralized controls and opened new vistas for Soviet industry, based extensively on modern, capitalist-style business ideas.

Foreigners who have met Kosygin are impressed by his command of facts, by his massive absorption in the business at hand, his powers of concentration and his dispassionately compelling discourse.

He would make a doughty antagonist across a conference table.

Others who follow his activities—and occasionally see him in action—are amazed by his drive and stamina. He is both unflappable and unquenchable. He seems to have a capacity for over-work lasting for weeks on end, operating at top efficiency and happily oblivious to any strain on his obviously robust constitution.

He almost always displays big bags under his eyes.

It was undoubtedly Kosygin's capacity for work that prevented Tashkent from ending as a fiasco. While Shastri and President Ayub spent most of their time in glorious isolation from one another, Kosygin tried to figure out ways of achieving some kind of consensus between them.

On the final day of the conference he shuttled tirelessly from one leader to the other, determined to hack out areas of agreement that would yield a statement of purposes and principles.

He just wouldn't let them go to bed until he had achieved his purpose. For Russia, embroiled in a squabble with Communist China that grows uglier every day, concord between India and Pakistan has become a foreign policy imperative. United, they could represent a powerful check to Chinese expansionism in Asia.

For all that the Tashkent declaration was a product of Kosygin's consistent goading, Ayub Khan and Shastri both appeared delighted afterward that they had signed it.

Perhaps the economist-statesman sensed that despite their hostile preoccupation with one another, India and Pakistan—even Pakistan, which had been carrying on a flirtation with Peking—both know that the real danger comes from the ever-militant colossus of the Orient.

RISE WAS FAST

Kosygin's rise in the Communist party and the Soviet government has been meteoric. In 1939 he was named to the party's central committee. The following year he became a deputy premier, with responsibility for the development of light industry and the food industry.

In 1959-60 he headed the Soviet state planning agency.

Kosygin served on the party's politburo in 1946 - 52, under Stalin, and was admitted to the party presidium in 1957. The presidium, successor to the politburo, is the most powerful policy-making body in the country.

Despite being No. 2 man behind party First Secretary Leonid Brezhnev on the presidium, Kosygin is reported to have no strong, designs on Brezhnev's job, fountain of the highest personal power in Russia.

Expert observers believe he is quite content to run the government, leaving others to worry about and scramble for top power.

Kosygin's hobbies are chiefly sports: volleyball, skiing and skating. He also likes an occasional night at the theatre, and goes in for contemporary literature.

Discuss Buying a School For Mentally Retarded

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford and District Association for the Mentally Retarded held their annual meeting in Merryvale School on Tuesday evening.

The largest crowd ever to attend an association meeting was on hand.

Interest has been created by the issue of whether to buy the building now owned by the Rotary Club, which presently houses the Merryvale School, or to build a new building. The present building, the former Separate School, is about 75 years old and the Rotary Club is asking $12,000 for it. The Rotary Club bought the building in 1961 for $10,000. Included in the $10,000 price were five adjacent lots.

WILL SELL $11,400

The Rotary has proposed to sell the school for the $11,400 approved by the Department of Education and to make the building available to the Association for $300. The Rotary Club will retain the five adjacent lots. The club has offered the lots to the Association for $2,500. The Association has paid a rental fee to Rotary since 1961. Architects Craig and Zeidler of Peterborough have estimated renovation costs at $16,000.

Mr. Brian Holliday of O.A.M.R. was present and gave practical advice on the issue in conversation with a member of the executive before the meeting. Mr. Holliday said finances necessary to buy the building could be arranged by book entry in lieu of actual cash.

Mr. J. Ross of Belleville Association for the Mentally Retarded conducted the election of officers. They are: president, Rev. E. A. Toombs; 1st. vice-president, Rev. J. Walsh; 2nd. vice - president, W. Nicholas; recording secretary, Mrs. J. Smith; corresponding secretary, Miss Eva Weir; treasurer, Mrs. Glenn Curl; directors, Mrs. R. Cook, Mrs. MacDonald, Mr. W. Pettey, Mrs. J. Rannie, Mrs. Charmoddy.

APPOINTED TO AUTHORITY

Rev. E. A. Toombs and Mrs. R. Cook were named to the education authority.

The responsibility of the Association, as outlined by Bill 131 which came into effect January, 1965, is to provide a building for a school. The financial responsibility of the operation of a day school for the mentally retarded has been placed in the control of the educational authority. To expand into home care service and sheltered workshops the Association would depend on the generosity of the public.

Glamorize Great Canadians M.P. Tells Jaycees at Banquet

NAPANEE — "We Canadians have always been loath to glamorize the great men of our past . . . I think that in this excessive deglamorization we have contributed to that lack of healthy nationalism which is one of the regrettable characteristics of the Canadian way of life."

The words are those of Heath MacQuarrie, M.P., speaking Tuesday night at a dinner sponsored by the Napanee Jaycees. Mr. MacQuarrie has been the member for Queen's County, P.E.I. since 1957, and was parliamentary delegate to the United Nations from 1958 to 1962. He is a political scientist, author of several books, and part-time lecturer at several universities.

To remedy what he considers the Canadian tendency to neglect its great men, the speaker turned the spotlight on Sir John A. Macdonald, whom he called not only the Father of his Country but also the Father of his Party.

OBTAINED CENTRAL GOVERNMENT

As one of the chief architects of the British North America Act, Macdonald fought for and obtained in that act a surety of a strong central government Mr. Heath said.

Mr. Heath dwelt also on Sir John A's moderation and lack of bigotry. With respect to the two founding nations, Macdonald knew that "On the harmonious relationships between them the success of the Canadian experiment depends".

In conclusion Mr. Heath spoke of Macdonald as a practical man. As a Conservative he would be expected to "have had a tender regard for untrammelled free enterprise". Yet he pledged the state to build a transcontinental railway.

FETE COMMUNITY LEADERS

Although the Napanee Jaycees have existed as an organization less than a year, they have had many projects, and so far each has been a success. Tuesday evening was another first, a dinner with civic officials and heads of industries and of organizations as guests.

The town itself and the area were represented by Judge G. F. Smith, A. Douglas Alkenbrack, M.P.; Mayor Lorne Smart, Post Master Howard O'Connor; Thomas Cox of the National Employment Office; Fire Chief H. W. Patton; Sgt. T. L. Langton of the Napanee detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police; Police Chief Harry Benn; Garnet Mills, representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture; Gordon MacGregor, business administrator of the Napanee District Secondary School; Dr. A. E. Fyffe, chairman of the Secondary School Board; James Madden, chairman of the Public School Board; Mrs. Bergstrome, chairman of the Hospital Auxillary and Dr. Brant Bergstrome, president of the hospital board.

Representing industry were: Fred Keith, manager of Nabisco Foods Ltd.; Allan Campbell of Montreal, president of Napanee Industries, together with Rosire Racine and Robert Curran, vice-presidents; Murray Dean, of the Gibbard Furniture Shops; and James R. Miller, manager of Pet Milk.

Organizations were represented in most cases by their presidents: Wesley Alkenbrack of the Canadian Legion; Mrs. Thomas Stimpson of the Business and Professional Women's Club; Douglas Mayhew substituting for the president of the Rotary Club; J. Earl Morrison of the Chamber of Commerce; Glen Clark of the Lions Club and Mrs. Herbert Knuth of the OSTOC Club.

Msgr. Leacy represented the church, and Kenneth Christian the banks.

A delegation of Kingston Jaycees was led by R. W. Clark, president of District 6. Two members brought greetings from Picton.

Each member brought a guest whom he himself introduced. President Ernest Leaver introduced the guests of the club, and each spoke briefly, wishing success to the host club.

Claire Hannah and Walter Robertson were inducted as new members.

Finds Toy Weather Set Beats Meteorologists

HALIFAX (CP) — A 13-year-old Halifax boy contends his mail - order weather - forecasting set is more accurate than the complex meteorological equipment of the Maritimes weather office here.

Richard Hand spends three-quarters of an hour each evening making calculations from the readings on the dials of the tiny weather station, manufactured by a well - known toy maker.

He received the set as a Christmas gift two years ago, but he has "been in business for about four months." An anemometer (wind meter) and weather vane were erected outside his home last summer, giving Richard all the equipment he needs to make predictions which he claims are 90-per-cent accurate.

The weather office claims only 75-per-cent accuracy and Richard says his friends who rely on his forecasts are lucky, "because I'm right most of the time."

Richard's latest victory was his prediction for "overcast skies and snow flurries" while his large rival forecast the season's worst blizzard for the Atlantic area. The snowstorm never came.

So far, the youth's daily pronouncements on the weather are for the benefit of a few friends and his family, although it is difficult to keep everyone happy despite his accuracy.

His father, Dr. R. F. Hand, owns shares in a ski resort near Windsor, N.S., and "when I don't predict snow he gets mad."

U.C.W. Meetings

TRINITY UCW
Unit 2

NAPANEE — Unit 2 of Trinity UCW welcomed seven new members at its meeting in the church Sunday school rooms on Tuesday afternoon.

"Worship" was the theme for the devotional period, conducted by the leader, Mrs. Jesse MacLean, with the help of the co-leader, Mrs. Percy Asselstine.

Mrs. R. A. Ballantyne presented a satisfactory financial report, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. George Ballantyne, gave the secretarial report. An invitation from unit 4 to join their March meeting was accepted by the ladies. Together with the third afternoon unit, they will hear the minister, the Rev. Irvine Johnston, outline for them the new study book, "Jesus Christ and the Christian Life". Plans were made for the forthcoming pie social and sale. Each lady signed cards to be sent to Mrs. Harold Hilliard, who is in hospital, and to Mrs. W. S. Exley, whose husband is in hospital.

After the meeting proper had been closed, Mrs. Garnet Mills presented two amusing contests and the ladies enjoyed refreshments served by Mrs. Asselstine, and Miss Emma and Miss Mildred Crozier.

Small Farms Profitable Rotary Told

NAPANEE — Speaking to the Napanee Rotary Club at its luncheon meeting Tuesday, Dr. Max MacLean made some sound observations on the changing world of the farmer. Dr. MacLean is the general manager of Eastern Breeders, Incorporated, with headquarters in Kemptville.

The speaker commented on the fact that the farming population has decreased, and that consequently the farm unit has increased in size. With modern machinery fewer men are required, but with such a large investment, the farmer must now produce at maximum efficiency in order to get a fair return from his investment.

The large farm is not necessarily the ultimate, the speaker pointed out. The small farm can be profitable also, provided the farmer practises the same sound management as that used by the owner of the bigger unit.

Whether the farm be large or small, the farmer must build up his herd of cattle and thus increase production. Artificial insemination is the best method of improving the farm stock, Dr. MacLean said, and it is available to every farmer no matter how large or how small his herd.

Britain's Defence Argument Likely to Go on Forever

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—Britain's defence argument, bound up as it is with the old lion's changing place in the world, shows signs of going on forever.

The defence white paper issued Tuesday, causing dismay throughout the Royal Navy, was probably the most intensive exercise of its kind ever undertaken by Britain and occupied Defence Secretary Denis Healey for 14 months

But even before the review was published, Navy Minister Christopher Mayhew had resigned over differences involving, not only naval strategy, but broad defence policy.

And Prime Minister Wilson, before departing for Moscow Monday, said:

"I believe that this question of defence ought to be the subject of a great national debate, not necessarily a party one—a question of whether we should have a world role and whether, if we do not, we will lose our influence in the world."

Healey's job in the review was to reduce the projected bill for defence in 1970 by £400,000,000 the prices of 1964—the year the Labor government came to power. A non-nonsense intellectual, Healey, 48, used the same ruthless techniques of cost-effectiveness employed by Robert McNamara, his United States opposite number.

Yet to some observers the whole atmosphere of profound decision-making has an air of unreality and anti-climax.

The decision to buy U.S. F-111 swing-wing planes has been a virtual certainty since the government killed the British TSR-2. That cancellation brought agonized complaints last year from the aircraft industry, which saw it as a capitulation to the U.S. industry.

The decision against building new aircraft carriers now appears to have come as a shattering blow to the admirals. But it is pointed out that Britain's present carriers are of Second World War vintage and the time to have laid down new ones was 10 years ago, not now.

"ROLE UNCERTAIN"

Duncan Sandys, defence secretary in the former Conservative government, said in 1957 in what now is seen as a fateful statement: "The role of naval forces in total war is somewhat uncertain."

Wilson pledged during the 1964 election campaign that soaring defence costs would be pegged at £2,000,000,000, just above the Tory defence budget of that year, which represented more than eight per cent of the total budget.

Former prime minister MacMillan also had tried to impose ceilings. In 1957 he set the figure of £1,500,000,000 ($4,500,000,000) but by 1960 costs had gone through the roof because of missile and aircraft development.

TUMOR KILLED CHILD

TORONTO (CP) — A malignant tumor the size of a small grapefruit and weighing three pounds caused the death Monday of a five-year-old Toronto girl, an autopsy showed Tuesday. Rosina Monardo, who was scheduled to have her tonsils removed March 2, suffered two coughing attacks and choked to death at her home. The autopsy showed the tumor in her chest.

Income Tax Tips

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By D. W. DAVIES, C.A.

MEDICAL EXPENSES AWARDED BY COURTS

A number of taxpayers who have incurred and paid large medical bills, afterwards receive a lump sum settlement of these expenses from an insurance company.

They are in a quandary as to whether the lump sum received should be shown as income on their income tax returns. Such a settlement is not income and doesn't have to be reported. This still applies even when the taxpayer has claimed the medical expenses in the usual manner. Medical expenses can always be claimed by the person who incurred them, no matter who has paid them.

If the taxpayer was in a car accident and the other party's insurance paid all his expenses plus an amount for personal inconvenience, suffering, etc., no part of such payments received is income for taxation purposes. Should the payments have been made direct to the doctor, the taxpayer can still claim them as medical expenses on his return. Of course, he must obtain receipts to verify the claim.

Many taxpayers carry some form of insurance to cover their medical expenses and when their insurance pays the medical bills, these medical expenses are still deductible by the taxpayer, subject to their reduction by 3 percent of the net income. The confusion in these cases, no doubt arises by the hospital services plan. Hospital bills paid by a provincial plan are never deductible, but medical expenses are, no matter how they were paid.

If you have a problem or any doubt as to the eligibility of a claim a letter addressed to the newspaper in which you read this colun, will bring correct information if the insturctions below are followed.

For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: I was in a car accident and lost a leg. Three years later I received a settlement from an insurance company to cover all my expenses, lost time, etc. I had already claimed the medical expenses. Do I have to now report that part of the settlement as income?

Answer: No. No part of this settlement is income for tax purposes.

Question 2: I was in a car accident and the other person's insurance paid all my expenses. Can I claim the doctor's bills which I did not pay?

Answer: Yes, providing you can get receipts.

Young Australian Designs Pavilion for African Lands

By MICHAEL BLAIR

MONTREAL (CP)—Ian Morton is a young architect with youthful ideas. With the job of designing pavilions for Expo 67, he needs them.

One of his main projects is the futuristic African Place, which will fit into Expo's theme of Man and His World. The honeycomb-style pavilion will house a large number of countries yet give each room for a showplace for its culture without infringing on neighbors.

Mr. Morton, 27, a graduate of the Royal Melbourne Institute of Technology, left Australia in 1962. He went to Britain, where he worked for Sir Basil Spence, designer of the new Coventry Cathedral and architect for the United Kingdom pavilion at Expo.

In 1963 he came to Canada where he helped Moshe Safdie, Montreal architect who designed Habitat 67, a $13,000,000 apartment development of the future now under construction at Expo.

COST IS LOW

The African pavilion will be built by Expo. Individual countries including Kenya, Togo, Niger, Upper Volta, Senegal, Mauritania, Dahomey, Tanzania and Ivory Coast, will be responsible for their own exhibits.

One of the attractive factors is that cost will be fixed at about $30 a square foot, including management, maintenance and security services.

Construction will be of plywood and red brick coated with plastic, with a triangular pattern as the dominant feature.

"It doesn't matter how many countries decide to participate — we can always add another section," Mr. Morton said.

Approximate cost of the pavilion will be $820,000, and with the set costs countries won't have to worry about estimated figures soaring beyond their budgets.

Another pavilion designed by Mr. Morton, for Commonwealth nations, was scrapped because of lack of participation.

He described working Expo as equivalent to doing a world tour to study architecture, with most of the 70 participating countries bringing their own designs.

When Expo construction is completed late this year, he may return to Australia to use his new knowledge.

Tomorrow: Expo 67 may have pleasant surprises for taxpayer.

Federal Inquiry Into Divorce Laws Launched

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal inquiry into divorce laws since Confederation has been launched by the Commons with hardly a ripple.

Various proposals to widen the grounds for divorce and relax provincial residence requirements—long regarded as taboo subjects by Canadian politicians—have been referred to the House committee on justice and legal affairs for study.

The 24-member committee is expected to hold public hearings, invite submissions from all interested parties and make recommendations to the government.

The inquiry will revolve around proposals for additional grounds for divorce and other changes, contained in seven private members' bills sponsored by Liberal and New Democratic MPs.

With a rare show of unanimity and brevity, the Commons passed the necessary motion in less than five minutes Monday.

At the same time, the health and welfare committee was instructed to conduct an equally unprecedented inquiry into the Criminal Code sections on birth control and abortion.

Dr. Harry Harley (L — Halton), health committee chairman, said Tuesday he is confident his group will hear any interested party on the issues of birth control and abortion laws. He could not recall any previous separate inquiry in this field.

HEADS POULTRYMEN

VANCOUVER (CP) — Edward R. Hoover, a hatchery manager from Burlington, Ont., was re-elected president of the Poultry Institute of Canada at the annual meeting, it was announced Monday. W. H. Bealy of Thamesford, Ont., is a vice-president.

Toronto's East-West Subway to Open After 10 Years' Study, 5 Years' Work

TORONTO (CP)—A thousand men worked a thousand days moving 3,000,000 tons of dirt to build Toronto's eight-mile east-west subway, scheduled to open Saturday.

It has cost $277,723,000 and taken 10 years of study, argument and planning and five years, four months of actual work

It has cost the lives of six workmen—two of them buried under 300 tons of wet concrete in a cave-in.

To clear the right-of-way, 1,450 properties had to be expropriated either entirely or in part and about 900 houses had to be removed.

The new line will have the immediate effect of relieving pressure on traffic along Bloor Street and Danforth Avenue, a single cross-town thoroughfare that merely changes its name along the way.

Streetcars on this route have been carrying 9,000 people an hour at peak times and there was severe congestion on Metropolitan Toronto's main east-west artery.

It took at least 40 minutes to get downtown by streetcar from either Woodbine Avenue, the eastern terminus, or Keele Street in the west. The subway will reduce travel time to 20 minutes.

But there is still argument over whether the routing of subway trains as originally planned will be effective.

The east-west line operates in conjunction with the city's first subway, a 4½-mile north-south route along Yonge Street between Eglinton Avenue and Union Station, and a two-mile parallel connecting line on University Avenue between Union Station and Bloor Street.

GIVES DIRECT SERVICE

For the first six months the new east-west line will provide two types of service—one going directly downtown, the other directly cross-town.

Every second train from east and west will turn down University Avenue, using a Y connection, and travel back up Yonge Street through the heart of downtown to Eglinton Avenue. It will follow the same route on the return trip.

Some critics say this plan, which involves the use of trains running on two levels in the centre portion of the route, won't work.

The arguments may be settled when, after the first six months, the east-west line will be operated as a straight cross-town route, with soutbound and northbound passengers forced to change trains.

Controversy has been a part of the east-west project ever since it was first proposed.

It caused a noisy political battle between Allan Lamport, former mayor and then chairman of the Toronto Transit Commission, and Fred Gardiner, then chairman of the Metro council, which is said to have ruptured a friendship of long standing.

The influential Mr. Gardiner, who originally opposed Mr. Lamport's pet project, reversed his position in 1958 and became the subway's most powerful advocate.

SIGNED PETITIONS

When workmen were given the go-ahead in November, 1959, another sort of controversy developed. Hundreds of angry residents signed petitions protesting nightmares of noise and dirt created by round-the-clock construction work.

One used a garden hose to drive away workmen making a noise outside his home one night. Others pulled wires and sparkplugs from compressors operating at night.

Most-violent protests came from residents of the Greenwood-Danforth area in the east when construction began on a 38-acre storage and servicing yard.

The site had been a dump 25 years before and workmen had to truck out 75,000 cubic yards of decomposing garbage. The stench pervaded the area and trucks slopped the mess on to streets as they hauled it away.

The complaints promoted city council to order workmen to cover their trucks, and street-flushers were brought in to water the pavement twice a day.

At one point, four families in two attached houses on Emerson Avenue had to move out quickly when their building started to crack and slide into an excavation.

And at Bloor and Avenue Road the foundation for the big Park Plaza Hotel had to be underpinned while the subway was run beneath it.

A headache for engineers was the intersection at Yonge and Bloor where the tracks on the 12-year-old Yonge line had to be supported by jacks for several days while permanent supports were built.

DELAYED BY STRIKES

The line was due to open last Dec. 30 but strikes—for more pay and safer working conditions—added up to almost two months delay

The complaints that seemed so important at the time are gradually being forgotten as residents happily say farewell to the herding, shoving and elbowing of the streetcars and savor the prospect of riding at speeds up to 55 m.p.h. in 164 aluminum-alloy subway cars built at Fort William, Ont

And they can look forward to the day when the next part of the job, already under way, is completed—extension of the line another 3½ miles west and three miles east.

The Toronto Transit Commission, with income from its six-for-a-dollar fare, is paying $82,269,000 toward the cost of the eight-mile line. The Ontario government, under the Highway Improvement Act, paid $12,000,000 toward right-of-way construction costs. The federal government, under the Municipal Development and Loan Act, advanced $29,482,000 and wrote off $7,370,500 under "forgiveness" provisions. The remainder comes out of the pockets of Metro Toronto taxpayers.

Newfoundland Town Will Feel Impact Of Closing of Big U.S. Air Force Base

By DAVE BUTLER

STEPHENVILLE, Nfld. (CP) The handful of farmers and fishermen who watched United States army men plowing up the wilderness just east of this west coast Newfoundland community in 1941 to build a military base were gripped by mixed emotions.

It hurt them a little to see foreigners feeling at home on British soil. But with typical Newfoundland loyalty to the Crown, the situation was accepted as unavoidable in wartime.

The unkindest cut was that dealt by British Prime Minister Churchill in the destroyers-for-bases agreement that gave the United States 99-year leases covering large areas of Newfoundland to build military bases. Newfoundland, then under a British commission government, had not been informed of the proceedings, had not been consulted in the preparing of the agreement and—worst of all—had not been a party to it.

But shortly after the agreement was signed in 1941, Churchill softened the blow by assuring the Newfoundland commission government that it would be included in any future discussions involving the island.

The Newfoundlanders were appeased.

AIR FORCE TAKES OVER

The U.S. Army moved into Stephenville in the fall of 1941 and began carving a military installation out of a wilderness plagued by violent storms and blizzards for five months of the year and by mud and mosquitoes for the other seven months.

The first men — about 150 members of the U.S. Signal Corps and a small contingent of the 24th Coast Artillery—came ashore from a transport in the harbor and bivouacked near the town. Rough barracks and sheds were thrown up and a battery of 155-millimetre runs was placed around the perimeter. Harmon Field was conceived.

It was not born until 1943 when the U.S. Air Force came in and took over the facilities from the U.S. Army Air Force which had inherited it in 1942. By the end of 1943, several hundred civilians from the area had been hired to construct the first permanent buildings and 750 air force personnel were stationed on the base.

From 1943 to 1955, Harmon grew steadily and Stephenville grew with it. Slowly the town expanded from a farming and fishing community of 500 to Newfoundland's largest town with a population of 8,000. But no other major sources of income developed and Stephenville grew almost totally dependent on the base for its livelihood.

BRINGS LINKS

At first there was no surface communication with the rest of Newfoundland except mail boats. Every facility had to be built by the Americans. If a road was built from the base to some other point, it automatically became an outside link for the town of Stephenville too. Telephone and telegraph facilities were also made available to the town.

By mid-1950, construction of permanent facilities on the base was at an all-time high with more than 2,000 civilians from the area at work. Prosperity such as was never known had struck the area. The town boomed.

Stephenville was incorporated in 1951. Americans on the base had virtually adopted their neighboring Newfoundlanders. By 1955 a water and sewer system had been installed, streets had been paved, street lights turned on and a fire department formed — all with help from the base.

Before 1956, Harmon Field was for the most part a stopping point for military planes crossing the Atlantic from the United States. In 1956 it became a Strategic Air Command base used mainly as a support field for air refuelling of SAC bombers.

SOON TO DIE

Today Harmon has a signed death warrant. Although it still appears to be bustling and has more than 3,000 military personnel inhabiting its more than 40 modern buildings, it will cease to exist in less than a year.

The 1,186 civilians now working there, most of them residents of Stephenville, will be unemployed. Few of them will be able to go back to the old ways of farming and fishing—either because they are too old to start again or because they are too young to remember the fishing days.

The civilian payroll at the base, during the last 15 years, has varied from $4,500,000 to $6,000,000 a year. Untold millions have been spent by the Americans in civic improvements and services and even more by the off-duty servicemen on evening tours of the town's business district.

Besides the loss to the town in salaries and services, about 1,000 rental units, now inhabited by military personnel living off base with their dependents, will be vacant. Nearly 5,000 dependents of the servicemen also will leave.

The Newfoundland government has pledged efforts to find new sources of income for those thrown out of work.

The base closing was not a surprise. Premier Smallwood says he was informed of the possibility nearly a year before the axe fell. The final decision came in a statement from Washington in November that full abandonment would be completed by the end of 1966.

Stephenville is the first Newfoundland town to feel the blow of almost total economic strangulation. When the U.S. Air Force administration base at Fort Pepperrell, near St. John's, closed in 1963, the city, with a population of 80,000, was big enough to absorb the loss. Other communities in the province which are located near big bases are not so dependent, having had the foresight to prepare for the day when they might close.

When Harmon is finally shut down in December, 1966, the United States government will hand over the buildings and all facilities, fully intact, to the Newfoundland government to do with as it wishes.

The base now is valued at $80,000,000. In the last 25 years it has cost the United States nearly $250,000,000 to build it.

TOWN FACING CRISIS — The town of Stephenville, Nfld., (upper right) faces an economic crisis with the closing of Harmon air force base (lower left). When the U.S. army moved into the area in 1941 Stephenville was a small fishing and farming village on Newfoundland's west coast. Today it is the island's largest town, with a population of 8,000, almost totally dependent on the base. The Newfoundland government has promised efforts to find new sources of income and the U.S. government will give the $80,000,000 base to Newfoundland.

May Halt Exports

OTTAWA (CP)—An outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Europe may force a halt to Canadian imports of Charolais cattle from France, an agriculture department official said Wednesday. R. J. McClenaghan, director of contagious diseases, said France so far has not been hit by the outbreak, which he termed the worst in a decade. The danger is that it will spread to France.

Lawyer's Death May Involve Bankruptcies

MONTREAL (CP) — Police were trying to establish Wednesday whether there is any connection between the fatal shooting of a lawyer who specialized in bankruptcy cases and provincial government efforts to stamp out a bankruptcy racket.

Investigation of the shooting of Francois Payette, 36, continued amid unconfirmed reports that he was killed before he could give the police evidence he had uncovered about bankruptcy rackets.

Another report said Payette had recently given information, by letter, to Claude Wagner, Quebec's justice minister, on bankruptcies in Montreal construction firms involving a sum of $150,000.

In Quebec City, Mr. Wagner said Wednesday:

"I have no comment to make. I know nothing of this affair."

A justice department spokesman said later justice department files will be checked to [illegible] if the department did re[illegible]ve information from Mr. Payette about the fraudulent bankruptcies.

In Montreal, Leo Perrault of Leo Perrault Ltd., a lumber firm, said Wednesday:

"Mr. Payette was acting for my firm in connection with a sum of roughly $150,000 which we lost over the last 12 or 15 months because of construction firms that went bankrupt. I do not know how many firms were involved."

Detective-Captain Roland Jodoin of Montreal police said Mr. Payette, found in the trunk of his car Tuesday in the city's northend, had been shot four times.

Capt. Jodoin said he could not comment on a possible connection between the killing and a bankruptcy racket.

He also declined comment on [illegible]lished reports that the dead [illegible]yer had been due to keep an appointment Tuesday with city police officials to turn over evidence he had uncovered about bankruptcy rackets.

But he said: "We have taken Mr. Payette's files from his downtown St. James St. office and are examing them at headquarters."

The lawyer's wife reported him missing early Sunday.

23 Families Being Forced To Leave Farms

SHANNON, Que. (CP)—The [illegible]dents of this small commun[illegible] 12 miles north-west of Quebec City, are wondering what the future holds for them.

About 23 families from a total of 450 people, most of them of Irish descent, are to be uprooted from farms that they and their ancestors have cultivated for more than 150 years. They will have to leave to make room for a firing range extension at the Canadian Army's Camp Valcartier, which was built on the edge of Shannon.

The expropriation takes in about 10,000 acres. The extension is necessary, the authorities said, for safety reasons.

Jack Griffin, municipal secretary-treasurer of Shannon, says the fear of the people is the knowledge that they are going to have to leave their farms and make another life for themselves.

[illegible]LD HELP

He said much of the fear would be greatly dissipated if the people knew they were going to receive good prices for their land. He also felt the farmers would be "nearly satisfied" if the government offered work to the displaced people at the army camp.

Mrs. Mona Conway Neville, who operates a camp site and resort, said it was a "shock" when they were told their land was to be taken.

She said she had written to Prime Minister Pearson asking for his consideration. She said she received an answer that the decision had been closely studied previously.

Mr. Griffin said the people had sent a petition to Defence Minister Hellyer. The reply was [illegible] there was concern for the [illegible]lies but that the plans were not going to be changed.

WOMAN IS FIRST

HEIDELBERG, West Germany (AP)—A woman has been elected rector of Heidelberg University for the first time since it was founded in 1386, it was announced Wednesday. The university's faculty last week end elected Dr. Margot Becke, a chemistry professor.

Former PC Cabinet Minister May Be Named to Senate

OTTAWA (CP)—Former and current Liberal politicians, a top-drawer newspaper man and even a Conservative could make the big leap to the Senate, according to speculation.

Prime Minister Pearson is expected to fill some or all of the 15 vacancies in the upper house any day now. Those selected will receive a $12,000-a-year salary and a $3,000 tax-free expense allowance. They must retire at 75.

Most or all of the spots are expected to go to Liberals because that is the persuasion of the government, but Howard Green, 74, a former Concervative cabinet minister, is a possibility, according to West Coast speculation. He represented Vancouver-Quadra in the Commons for years.

Author Bruce Hutchison, 64, former editor of the Victoria Daily Times and now editorial director of the Vancouver Sun, is another possibility. British Columbia has two vacancies.

Cattleman Harry Hays, 57, former Liberal agriculture minister defeated in the Nov. 8 federal election, could get one of the three Alberta vacancies.

Sid Buckwold, former Saskatoon mayor, and Hazen Argue, the CCF politician who became a Liberal, are mentioned for Saskatchewan's single vacancy.

DAVEY MENTIONED

The speculative favorite to fill the single Ontario vacancy is Keith Davey, the 39-year-old former radio advertising executive now bowing out as the Liberals' national organizer.

Quebec has three spots open and these prospects:

Alan Macnaughton, former Commons Speaker and member for Montreal Mount Royal who quit politics last fall;

Jean-Paul Deschatelets, former Liberal cabinet minister who left active political life for personal reasons;

Rene Tremblay, the Liberal MP for Matapedia-Matane who resigned as postmaster-general late last year;

Horace Boivin, 60, who retired as mayor of Granby in 1964 after 25 years in the post promoting his community at home and abroad;

Paul Desruisseaux, 60, a newspaper publisher and radio and television station owner in Sherbrooke.

The Senate vacancies rose to 15 with the death on Feb. 16 of Paul H. Bouffard, who represented the Grandville district of Quebec.

Fifteen is unusually high, but not a record for vacancies.

The standings are: Liberals 53, Conservatives 31, independents 2, independent Liberal 1.

Application to Dismiss Rival Plans to Carry Gas From West Is Rejected

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. Federal Power Commission announced Wednesday that it will start hearings April 19 on rival plans to haul natural gas from Western Canada to Ontario and Quebec through the United States.

The commission said it has rejected an application by Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. to dismiss a rival plan filed by Northern Natural Gas Co. of Omaha, Neb.

Northern natural proposes to do the job for Trans-Canada, which made its application last October, through Great Lakes Gas Transmission Co., owned 50-50 with American Natural Gas Co. of Detroit.

Northern has been given until March 21 to fill certain "deficiencies" in information filed with the Federal Power Commission.

Otherwise the stage seemed set for a long hearing and the FPC has approved the intervention on one side or the other of about 50 interests.

LEAVES OPENING

But the commission did not rule out some sort of saw-off by the applicants, setting a deadline of March 10 for that or any other "consolidation" in the case.

Part of Trans-Canada's argument in seeking dismissal of the Northern Natural application was that delay might cause gas shortages next winter for Eastern Canadian consumers.

It has said, without ruling out a deal with Northern, that it might be forced to abandon plans for the cheaper route south of the Great Lakes and expand its existing all-Canadian route via Northern Ontario.

An additional complication may be that the National Energy Board in Ottawa, to start hearing Trans-Canada export applications next week, might have to deal eventually with Northern Natural which is intervening in the Canadian hearings.

This depends on the decision from the energy board's counterpart here, the FPC.

The Trans-Canada proposal involves transport of 677,000,000 cubic feet of Alberta natural gas daily from Emerson, Man., via Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan to delivery points at Sarnia and Sault Ste. Marie. Northern would handle an equal amount."

Sen. Robert Kennedy Now Figure on Political Scene After Battle With LBJ

By BORIS MISKEW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The four-day verbal battle between Robert Kennedy and the administration of President Johnson has done much to help clarify the United States position regarding any Vietnamese peace talks.

The battle also has left the New York Democratic Senator, brother of the late president John F. Kennedy, a somewhat larger figure on the American political scene—someone to be taken seriously despite his differences with Johnson.

The former attorney-general has been conspicuously absent from the group of senators Johnson has taken into his confidence during secret briefings in the White House on the U.S. Vietnamese policy, but Kennedy took the opportunity to air his views during a press conference last Saturday.

Kennedy suggested that the National Liberation Front, the political organization of the rebel Viet Cong in South Viet Nam, be given an independent place at a peace conference and be assured the United States will accept the results of any free elections in South Viet Nam.

Administration spokesman immediately rejected the senator's proposals, saying they would weaken U.S. bargaining power and could lead to Communist control of the post-war South Vietnamese government.

Kennedy's original statement was interpreted as favoring the putting of Communist Viet Cong representatives into a coalition government in Saigon prior to the holding of freely conducted elections.

This was not so, Kennedy stated in clarifying his position. He said he was not proposing that the National Liberation Front be given an automatic share in the pre-election government, but rather that it not be automatically excluded from any future participation in the government.

CLOSED GAP

And the White House closed the gap a little between its position and that of the New York senator by stating that the U.S. would abide by the results of any free elections held in South Viet Nam, even if the Communists won seats. The U.S. never before had indicated that it would tolerate Communists in the South Vietnamese government.

There still exists a major division between the Johnson administration and Kennedy regarding the seating of National Liberation Front representatives as an independent entity at a conference table. This is what Kennedy favors, while Johnson claims the Viet Cong should be represented as part of the North Vietnamese delegation.

What Kennedy has put forward dramatically was essentially suggested by Secretary-General U Thant of the United Nations at a press conference Jan. 20. But Thant's suggestions were immediately turned down by U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk, and resulted in limited discussion only.

New Court Procedures Are Proposed

TORONTO (CP)—Court procedures are to be changed in Ontario so that persons accused of minor offences who are free on bail may plead guilty without having to appear in court personally and without having their entire bail forfeited.

Amendments to the Summary Convictions Act to make these changes were introduced in the legislature Wednesday by Attorney-General Arthur Wishart. He said the main advantage will be for persons required to appear in court away from home.

At present, police may accept bail for minor offences—intoxication and other liquor charges, assault, some highway offence, theft, disturbing the peace and others—but the accused is required to appear in court within two days.

If he fails to appear, the court usually forfeits the entire amount of the bail and forgets about the charge. However, the accused is on record as having failed to appear and theoretically the charge still exists.

Under the new procedure, the accused person, after posting bail, will be able to authorize the court clerk to enter a plea of guilty in his absence. Forms will be provided in the courts for this purpose.

After the clerk enters the plea and the magistrate sets the fine—which may be less than the amount of bail money demanded by the police—any surplus money will be returned to the accused.

The legislation will make no changes in the actual procedure of obtaining bail.

Canada's Exports In November Higher Than '64

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's exports were valued at $897,278,000 last November, an increase of 27 per cent over exports during November, 1964, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday.

Exports for the first 11 months of last year amounted to $7,727,570,000, up 4.7 per cent from the corresponding total for the previous year.

The bureau said the gain in November was due primarily to higher volume of exports. The price index was only 1.8 per cent higher than a year earlier.

Shipments were greater in both the month and the year to the United States, The Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg and Italy. They were lower to Japan, Australia and mainland China.

Exports to the United Kingdom, West Germany, and Russia were higher in November than a year earlier, but smaller in the 11-month total.

South Africa's Severe Drought Is Now Ended

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) The worst drought in South Africa in this century is over, but the after-effects linger on.

Drenching rains that fell recently have prevented a catastrophe for the crops, sheep and cattle of South Africa and adjoining countries, including Rhodesia.

But economists say that even if the drought doesn't return, it will take years to rehabilitate the farming community in stricken areas.

Government officials have estimated it will be several years before the grazing grounds of the northern Transvaal will return to normal.

The flooding caused by the rains — making roads impassable in some areas, washing out railway embankments in others — generally has been counted as small cost for the end of the drought.

In Basutoland, a British colony located within the borders of South Africa, the government has declared a "state of drought emergency" to combat after-effects that, a government spokesman says, have resulted in a crippling agricultural crisis, the worst in the country's history.

EXPECTS FOOD SHORTAGE

Prime Minister Chief Leabua Jonathan says the government foresees a shortage of food during the winter and spring It has begun negotiations with the British government and international agencies for the supply of food, money and transport.

The British protectorate of Bechuanaland, which adjoins South Africa to the north, was hardest hit by the drought, then flooded along the Limpopo River by waters rising all the way to the Indian Ocean near Lourenco Marques in Mozambique.

But, despite devastation from flooding, the rains helped: A pilot who flew over Bechuanaland reported the Kalahari Desert, which had little rain for seven years, now is green except for its sandhill belts.

Injunction Use In Strikes Is Assailed

OSHAWA (CP)—A labor lawyer and member of Parliament Wednesday night described issuing of injunctions as a perversion of the process of law and a deliberate use of the courts to break strikes.

David Lewis, New Democratic Party member for York South, said that if pickets contravene the law they should be dealt with under provisions of the Criminal Code. Using civil courts is merely falling back on an easier strike - breaking weapon.

Mr. Lewis was addressing the annual meeting of the Oshawa Chamber of Commerce. The audience included presidents of several local labor unions.

He objected to procedures under which courts grant injunctions, particularly the use of affidavits rather than oral testimony in applications.

Interim injunctions against strikers are contrary to the theory that such injunctions are designed to maintain balance between the conflicting parties, Mr. Lewis said.

"The courts should not be used in this way. That's why we have the revolt against injunctions."

Mr. Lewis said he was not condoning, let alone approving, any deliberate step to flout a court order but he added, "We should look at whether a law that is enforced in injunctions conflicts with reason or justice, or both."

GROUP TO DISBAND

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — UN Secretary-General U Thant said Wednesday that the new UN observer group in India and Pakistan will be disbanded as a result of progress following the Tashkent agreement between the two countries The new observer group was set up under the command of Maj Gen. Bruce Macdonald of Edmonton and includes a dozen other Canadian officers.

New Manpower Department Will Encourage Immigration

OTTAWA (CP) — The new manpower department will encourage immigration and step up vocational and technical training programs, Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday night.

A big challenge to the department in the next two years would be to develop a competent staff across Canada to give employers and workers help and advice about employment problems.

Mr. Pearson spoke at a national conference on manpower training sponsored by the Canadian Labor Congress and attended by about 100 delegates. The four-day meeting ends today with a closed-door session.

The prime minister said job dislocations and hardship resulting from automation often require the concerted application of public and private policy.

"Employers and unions must develop practical ways of working together in anticipating and carrying out these employment adjustments, and in mounting action which will help individual workers to make satisfactorily the changes required."

The manpower department would be ready to assist management and labor with its training, labor mobility, unemployment insurance and job placement services.

A different approach was taken by CLC President Claude Jodoin and many other labor leaders at the conference. They said the federal government must take the initiative in softening the impact of automation since labor-management co-operation has been lacking in this field.

Most of Wednesday's discussion was devoted to outspoken criticism of Labor Minister Nicholson, a former big business executive, who led off with a 20-minute speech.

Mr. Nicholson emphasized that employers and unions should consult each other more on technological changes that wipe out jobs. He was encouraged by the increased attention given to job retraining by labor-management committees on automation.

Mr. Jodoin said later that few in-plant training programs have been set up with federal assistance because "there has not been much co-operation from industry."

RAIL MAN CRITICAL

The labor minister was accused of living 25 years in the past by A. R. Gibbons of Ottawa, vice - president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Enginemen and Firemen.

"As long as the theory of managerial rights exist, we'll never get the co-operation he suggests."

Mr. Gibbons said Mr. Nicholson's speech was filled with platitudes and generalities that ignored the most crucial labor problem in Canada.

Stewart Cooke of Hamilton said the speech pointed up the absence of government leadership in fighting manpower problems. Mike Fenwick of Toronto said labor - management committees promoted by the labor department have been floundering for 18 years because of apathy by employers.

Mr. Jodoin said he was very much encouraged by the proposal to set up the manpower department, to be headd by ex-labor leader Jean Marchand, immigration minister now.

URGES CONFERENCE

He urged the government to call its own conference on manpower policies to get a wide spectrum of society involved.

Mr. Pearson said it might take several years before new manpower programs bear full fruits, but it would help broaden job opportunities for thousands of Canadians—people left behind by prosperity and swift social change.

"They are the families locked in pockets in rural poverty; the older people who have lost jobs they could no longer do well, only because of their age; the workers whose skills have suddenly become obsolete; the young people who gave up school too soon, untrained, unskilled, defeated."

Turning to immigration, he said Canada has everything to gain from further population increases. Immigration resulted in larger markets, lower production costs, better living standards.

The new department would bring the flow of immigrants closer into line with the needs of the economy for more skills.

Lord Chalfont's Chief Mission In Life Is to End War

LONDON (AP) — Lord Chalfont, 45, the British minister who has opened contact with Hanoi, is a professional soldier with the mission in life of ending war.

Lord Chalfont spent four hours in Moscow Wednesday in secret talks with Lee Chang, the North Vietnamese charge d'affaires. Prime Minister Wilson already has cautioned against expecting any quick improvement to come from the talks.

But he added: "I have always said that Hanoi holds the key to peace in Viet Nam . . . we had to get a line through to them and we have now established it."

Lord Chalfont was the big surprise of Wilson's choice of ministers when the Labor party won power in the election of October, 1964. He then was Alun Gwynne-Jones, defence correspondent of The Times and widely - known television commentator.

He was appointed to fulfil Wilson's election pledge that Labor would bring in a minister for disarmament He was given a life peerage to allow him to speak for the government in the House of Lords.

Until Wilson brought him to Whitehall, he had never been a member of any political party, though some friends had expected him to seek entry to Parliament as a Conservative.

Lord Chalfont's job has made him the most widely - travelled member of the government, taking him to talks in Ottawa, Tokyo, Washington, Geneva, and a score of other cities.

In these talks he sounds out the ground for a world disarmament conference which Wilson would like to see called by 1967, and presses the five points of British nuclear policy.

These are:

1. To stop the spread of nuclear weapons.
2. To establish nuclear-free zones in Africa, Latin America and central Europe and the Middle East.
3. A controlled reduction of conventional forces.
4. A ban on private arms sales.
5. To establish an international disarmament agency to supervise a disarmament treaty.

WAS INFANTRYMAN

Lord Chalfont joined the regular army as an infantryman in 1939. He served throughout the Second World War, won the Military Cross for bravery in fighting the post-war Communist insurrection in Malaya, and then held intelligence posts in the Middle East, France and Germany.

He rejects the moral approach to disarmament. As he sees it, disarming is an intensely practical matter to be run by military experts.

"If one has been on the inside of war," he once said, "one has a more vivid impression of how wasteful and beastly it is."

"I have seen a great deal of war and I can't think of any better aim in life than getting rid of it."

This he concludes will be a long haul—"there are years of details and negotiation ahead."

WILL TRAIN HERE

LONDON (Reuters) — Two of Britain's crack infantry units—the 1st and 2nd Battalions of the Scots Guard—will train in Canada this summer, the defence ministry announced Wednesday.

Westerners Not Fond of CPR Says Minister

PERTH, Ont. (CP)—Agriculture Minister J. J. Greene urged residents Wednesday night to take their complaints about CPR passenger service to the Commons transportation committee.

Mr. Greene, speaking to about 400 persons at a meeting sponsored by the Perth Women's Liberal Association, said the transportation committee will be unable to deal effectively with passenger problems unless they receive the views of those affected.

He said he found on his recent tour of Western Canada that Westerners are not too fond of the CPR.

Mr. Greene said governments will bring technical training as close as possible to the farm, and give the farmer the knowledge needed to make his farm profitable.

A text issued to the press in advance, but not used by Mr. Greene, dealt with the Senate committee on aging's recommendation of a guaranteed minimum income for persons over 65

It said the proposal for a guaranteed $1,260 annually for single persons was "the most original and imaginitive" put forward in some time.

If you're out looking for the first pussy willows or sap trees come early Saturday morning and you fall in with a parka-clothed mukluk-shod facsimile of Napoleon's retreat from Moscow, follow the crowd.

Unlike the littel corporal's mob, they'll be mounted in jalopies of various vintages which will take them to the jumping-off places where the deep snow begins.

They'll be armed with snowshoes, shovels, crowbars, long gimlets, assorted bait, various beverages and optimism. Some may be toting well-drilling equipment.

They will be the advance guard (the scouts took off the night before) of the Banana Belt Fusiliers who will mass-invade the ice-shackled fastnesses of the trout family.

According to the "declaration of war" issued by the Tweed headquarters of the Lands and Forests Department, all breeds of this underwater skillet-food will be fair game to the guns of the trout-hungry guerrillas.

Once they hit the snowbelt which ranges in blanket depth from seven inches in Tweed to 15 in the Bancroft and northern areas, they will transfer, as many that can, to the skidoo and the snowmobile.

I'm told every available vehicle of this mode of transportation has been rented, borrowed or bought. By Saturday you won't be able to get one if you offered an owner a National Hockey League franchise or the plug in Zsa Zsa Gabor's bathtub.

However the trouters can get within a reasonable distance to the iced quarry. Department officials tell me the highways and township roads are plowed out - but from there in the ski, snowshoe and mechanized equipment will be necessary.

Reports from Tweed on ground snow depths reveal there is 15 inches at Bancroft; seven at Tweed; 13 at Gilmour; 12 at Plevna; 12 at Dacre; 14 at Palmer Rapids; nine at Sharbot Lake. 13 at Collins Bay and Hartingdon and seven at the Outlet Park in Prince Edward county.

But getting there is only the beginning. Both lakes and Waltons are going to be bored to death before the first trout pops a nuzzle through the icy surface of a fish hole.

It's quite simple, however. First you remove some seven inches of snow, (that's average lake level with the exception of some windswept water) then you drag out the chisels, gimlets, well-drills or what have you and tackle fifteen inches of solid ice.

You won't be bothered with slush. There is none in most of the lakes, officials say.

This is the fourth year of the Great Winter Invasions. The first three have been productive of fair hunting. A lot of anglers who prefer the balmy breezes of May and June to the snow and ice of a trout winter wonderland, have had much better luck. Even the "second-weekers" did better.

The fishing seasons in the Tweed district for this year are published elsewhere but as a reminder the trouter get underway Feb. 26 to September 30, all species.

Bass lovers can seek their quarries from June 25 to November 30 except in the St. Lawrence river where the season open June 18.

Muskies are fair game in all water from June 18 to November 30 while from May 7 to March 31st you can snag pike and pickerel in Lake Ontario, Prince Edward county and below the first dam of the Trent, Moira, Salmon and Napanee rivers. All other waters open May 14 to March 31st.

If you prefer home-produced caviar you can go for the sturgeon June 15th to May 14th next year. There is no closed season on this fish in Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence. There is no closed season on pike in the Ottawa river.

NHL Question

Government Shies Away

OTTAWA (CP)—The government considers the National Hockey League and other professional sport organizations to be outside the scope of the combines investigation branch, the Commons was told Wednesday.

Privy Council President Favreau gave the answer to former justice minister Davie Fulton (PC—Kamloops), who asked whether the branch planned to investigate possible restrictions of competition by the NHL.

Mr. Favreau said professional sport is classified as a service industry and thus falls outside the Combines Act.

The Conservative MP said the award of six new NHL franchises in United States cities and the exclusion of Vancouver had an "obvious restrictive effect."

Mr. Fulton asked whether the Combines Act would be amended to extend its coverage to service industries. Mr. Favreau, minister responsible for combines investigations, said a partial extension to service industries is under consideration.

Chicago Black Hawks have found it is just as hard to stay even with the Smiths as it is to keep up with the proverbial Jones'.

The Smiths—Gary and Al—combined to lead Toronto Maple Leafs to a 3-2 victory over the Black Hawks in one of three National Hockey League games Wednesday night.

Montreal Canadiens edged Boston Bruins 3-2 and New York Rangers blanked Detroit Red Wings 5-0 in the other games.

Gary Smith started the game in nets for Toronto but he suffered a leg injury at 2:15 of the first period and Al Smith was hurried into service.

Al Smith, 19, a junior playing his first full NHL game, turned back 29 shots and the Leafs got goals from Orland Kurtenbach, Tim Horton and Eddie Shack, as Toronto directed 34 shots at Chicago netminder Glenn Hall.

Shack collected his 21st goal of the season, Kurtenbach his eighth and Horton his fifth.

Stan Mikita with his 25th and Phil Esposito with his 20th accounted for Chicago's scoring.

The Toronto defence earned some of the credit for Smith's successful NHL debut as they limited the Hawks to mainly long shots.

Chicago's Bobby Hull did not score but he has 16 games remaining to score four goals and become the first player in NHL history to score more than 50 goals in a season.

Tremblay's goal was his fifth of the season. Claude Larose with his 10th and centre Ralph Backstrom with his 16th were the other Montreal goal getters.

John McKenzie with his 13th and Ron Stewart with his 11th of the year accounted for Boston's scoring.

Canadiens bombed Bernie Parent in the Boston nets with 44 shots, while Charlie Hodge in the Montreal goal had only 21 fired at him.

Montreal's victory, coupled with Chicago's loss against the Leafs, moved the Canadiens into a first-place tie with the Black Hawks in the standings.

SCORES TWO GOALS

Bob Nevin scored two goals and netminder Cesare Maniago turned in New York's first shutout of the season as the Rangers blanked the Red Wings.

It was New York's first shutout since Dec. 25, 1964, when the now - retired Jacques Plante blanked the Bruins.

Nevin's 25th and 26th goals of the season midway through the second period shook the Rangers loose and Maniago carried them the rest of the way.

The 27 - year - old netminder, playing his 12th game for New York, was flawless on 23 Detroit shots as the Red Wings suffered their first shutout of the season. The Rangers directed 27 shots at Detroit netminder Roger Crozier.

Reggie Fleming with his 11th goal, and Rod Selling and Billy Hicke each with their fifth of the season, completed New York's scoring.

The Rangers' victory, couple with Boston's loss in Montreal, deadlocked the two teams for last place in the NHL standings.

Bobby Hull failed to score against Toronto Maple Leafs Wednesday night but he picked up one assist to boost his season total points to 78 in the National Hockey League individual scoring parade.

Hull, Chicago Black Hawks scoring sensation, has a league-leading 47 goals and needs only four more in the remaining 16 games of the schedule to become the first player in NHL history to score more than 50 goals in a season.

He shares the record of 50 goals with Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion, two retired Montreal Canadiens players.

Stan Mikita, also of Chicago, scored a goal against the Leafs Wednesday, giving him 63 points, one less than Norm Ullman of Detroit Red Wings, who holds down second place in the scoring. Mikita leads the league in assists with 38.

Gordie Howe of Detroit is in fourth place with 60 points, followed by Montreal's Bobby Rousseau, who has 56 points.

Alex Delvecchio, also of Detroit, is sixth with 54 points and Jean Beliveau and Henri Richard of Montreal round out the top seven with 52 points apiece.

Ont., Quebec "Lifting" Here Saturday

An Ontario-Quebec inter-provincial weightlifting meet will be held at Belleville's Quinte Secondary School this Saturday.

Canada's weightlifting coach, Ken Carr-Braint, announced plans for the meet this week. He will be in charge of the meet.

Seven-man teams from each province will compete in what amounts to pre-warmup trials for the British Empire Games, to be held in Kingston, Jamaica, next July and August. The Canadian trials themselves will be held later in Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Divisions from bantam to heavyweight will be held here Saturday, starting at 7.00 p.m.

Ontario won the last meet between the two provinces, by a slim two points, and Carr-Braint expects close competition again in this one.

The public will be admitted free of charge.

Gibson Signs For $50,000

Dodger Pitchers 'Two-Man Gang'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bob Gibson took the low road, Sandy Koufax will take the high road and Gibson will get to Florida before him.

When Koufax finally gets there, though, he'll have more money

Gibson, ace of St. Louis Cardinals' pitching staff, finally agreed to a reported $50,000 contract Wednesday after threatening to hold out until he received a Koufax-like salary. The big right-hander then left for Florida by car.

Koufax, on the other hand, very possibly will remain in Los Angeles with teammate Don Drysdale when the Dodger plane takes off for Florida Saturday. The pair are reported asking $1,000,000 between them for a three-year period.

Gibson's $50,000 salary represents a $7,000 raise for his performance in 1965 when he won 20 games and lost 12 while finishing third in the National League in strikeouts.

Koufax would not discuss money publicly—there was a report that he seeks $600,000 for three years—but he did say he and Drysdale are negotiating jointly.

"Don and I are an entry in our salary negotiations," Koufax told the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner. "We are asking for exactly the same figure over a three-year period. I want the same for Drysdale as for Koufax, and he wants the same for Koufax as for Drysdale."

The fourth match will be played at Durban Friday. At stake in the series is a purse of $50,000.

Aces Rally To Nip Hornets 4-3

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Quebec Aces trailed nearly all the way Wednesday night, but rallied for a tie and went on to beat Pittsburgh Hornets 4-3 in overtime in an American Hockey League game.

Noel Price scored the winning goal at 1:20 of the overtime period on a slap shot from the blue line.

The Hornets got off to a 2-0 lead on first period goals by Bob McCord and Claude Laforge. Wayne Hicks scored the first Quebec goal in the second period and Pete Goegan added another for Pittsburgh.

Then Leon Rochefort put the Aces in contention with a goal midway through the third period. Hicks scored his second goal with less than four minutes left in the game, tying the contest to send it into overtime.

CFL West Favors One Loop

East Non-Committal

CALGARY (CP) — Western Conference clubs in the Canadian Football League drafted a strong resolution Wednesday approving in principle a report on a Committee On One League, but Eastern Conference clubs were non-committal.

Representatives of the nine clubs spent several hours behind closed doors discussing the committee on the first day of the annual CFL meeting.

The COOL committee report calls for a nine-way share of television revenue, a gate-equalization scheme, central CFL offices in Toronto and consideration of a fifth franchise in Eastern Canada

Television revenue, at the moment, is an intangible issue because neither the CTV network or the CBC submitted bids for 1966 television rights.

Herb Capozzi, general manager of British Columbia Lions and a member of the CFL television committee, said he has been promised CTV will bid for TV rights after negotiations on possible sale of the network have ended.

DEPENDS ON REPORT

Pat Mahoney of Calgary, retiring president of the CFL, said in an interview the possibility of expanding the Eastern Conference by adding another team depends almost entirely upon adoption of the COOL report.

It would be "virtually impossible" for four eastern clubs to provide enough players to form a new franchise, he said, but adoption of the COOL report would involve all nine CFL clubs in staffing a new franchise.

Quebec City could be a possible site for a new club, Mahoney said. He did not mention other possible areas but some delegates discussed the possibility of welcoming London, Ont., or Windsor, Ont., into the loop.

If any doubts remained that G. Sydney Halter would step down as commissioner after the 1966 season, Halter erased them Wednesday. He promised in 1965 to retire in a year and repeated in an interview that he does not plan to change his mind.

Capozzi and Jake Gaudaur, general manager of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the EFC, have been rumored as successors to Halter.

Both leagues agreed to install Ted Workman of Montreal in Mahoney's post as CFL president.

Petes Defeat Trenton 6-4

Peterborough Don Byes defeated Trenton Apple Kings for the second time this week to grab undisputed possession of third place in the OHA Junior "B" League last night.

The score was 6-4.

Trenton jumped ahead on their own ice, 2-0 in the first period, but the Don Byes held 3-1 margins in each of the last two frames.

The Chittick brothers carried the scoring load for Peterborough. Perry triggered three goals, including the winner, while Ron hit for a pair. Jim Glynn got the other one.

Steve Holmes, Bob Benham, Chuck Howard, and Tommy Glover were Trenton's marksmen.

After Peterborough moved ahead 3-2 in the second, the Kings tied it 3-3 at period's end. Ron Chittick made it 4-3 in the third and Glover tied it again before Perry Chittick and Glynn put the decision in wraps.

A fair mid-week crowd saw the game.

The victory assured Peterborough of a playoff berth, along with Kingston and Oshawa. Belleville can tie for the final playoff spot by winning the final two games, against Oshawa if Trenton loses a final pair to Cobourg and Kingston.

Harness Debut Saturday, But . . .

Greenwood, Open Or Closed?

TORONTO (CP) — Harness racing is scheduled to begin Saturday at Greenwood Raceway, but an unsettled dispute between the horsemen and the Ontario Jockey Club over purse money has left the opening clouded with doubts.

It's not known how long the Ontario Harness Horsemen's Association, governing body of the trotting and pacing drivers, will allow its members to continue racing if a purse settlement is not reached.

The horsemen are seeking a written contract calling for 50 per cent of the track's share of the mutuel handle. But John J. Mooney of Toronto, vice-president of the Jockey Club, will not discuss percentages.

The Jockey Club operates the Greenwood track as well as Garden City Raceway at St. Catharines and Mohawk Raceway near Campbellville.

MET EHRLICK

Leslie Ehrlick of Toronto, president of the OHHA, and Mooney met Wednesday at Greenwood as horsemen trained their stock, but reached no agreement.

Lochinver King, a winner already this season at the all-weather Windsor Raceway, is an early favorite for Saturday's headliner at Greenwood.

Wes Coke, 22-year-old sulky star from Petrolia, Ont., will pilot Lochinver King, who will find plenty of competition in a five-star field on the inaugural of the 141-day season.

Ken Galbraith of Wheatley, Ont., will handle Sonny Creed, Dr. John Findley of Arnprior, Ont., has George Volo, Rajean Boily of Picton will guide J. J. Wann and Gary Campbell of St. Catharines is the reinsman on Perennial.

They'll compete in the $3,000 inaugural invitation pace which tops the nine-race card.

Schoolboy Curling

Western Rinks Tied For Top

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Prince Edward Island, a perennial weak sister in the Canadian schoolboy curling championships, turned giant-killer Wednesday night and helped Saskatchewan jump into a tie for first place.

Keith MacEachern's Charlottetown rink engineered an upset over Brian Howes' Alberta entry from Calgary and gave Saskatchewan, skipped by Bill Ross of Humboldt, a new lease on life.

Saskatchewan, loser of two in a row, snapped out of it Wednesday night and now is tied with Alberta for the lead with four victories and two setbacks.

Four rinks—Northern Ontario, Nova Scotia, Ontario and P.E.I.—are tied for third place with three wins and two losses each. British Columbia and Manitoba follow with 3-3 records, Newfoundland has won two and lost three, Quebec has one win and four losses and New Brunswick trails at 1-5.

In the sixth round MacEachern upended Howes 11-10; Ross defeated Wayne Steski's Northern Ontario foursome from North Bay 8-7; Manitoba, skipped by George Wilson of Winnipeg, downed Newfoundland, guided by Danny Herder of St. John's, 11-7; British Columbia, skipped by Doug Engstrom of Prince George, won 9-6 over Don Glinz's Nova Scotia entry from Truro.

BEATS N.B. 11-9

Mike Boyd guided his Ontario rink from Kingston to an 11-9 win over New Brunswick, skipped by Bev Groves of Edmundston.

Quebec's Leslie Hollands of Arvida drew the sixth-round bye.

Meets Crothers Friday

Kenyan Tests Indoor Track

TORONTO (CP)—Wilson Kiprugut of Kenya, the man expected to give Canadian middle-distance ace Bill Crothers of Toronto his toughest battle over 1,000 yards at the Maple Leaf indoor track meet here Friday night, ran on an indoor track for the first time in his life Wednesday.

The soft-spoken resident of Nairobi, who zoomed out of obscurity and finished third in the 800-metre race of the 1964 Tokyo Olympics, worked out on the indoor oval at University of Toronto's Hart House gymnasium. He came away with a healthy respect for the tight turns and high banks of the boards.

"Friday will be my first competitive race indoors," he said. "I'll just wait and see how I can do at it."

Running on new surfaces is old hat for the 26-year-old army sergeant. He didn't run on a cinder track until 1962, his first year of competition outside Kenya where cinder ovals simply don't exist.

It was just as well. He didn't own a pair of track shoes until he made the Kenyan team going to the British Empire Games that year in Perth, Australia.

"When the manager of the team was told I had no shoes he got a pair for me," Kiprugut said. "Kipchoge (Kenyan distance star Kipchoge Keino) was worse off. He was running three miles. He had no shoes, either."

Keino, who last year set world records at 3,000 and 5,000 metres, Kenyan sprint star Seraphino Antao and Kiprugut all trained barefoot on grass tracks and the hard-packed red soil native to the country.

Kiprugut isn't sure when Kenya will get its first cinder track.

It didn't take him long to get used to running with shoes on, though. His heat time in Tokyo was 1:47.8 and he lowered it to 1:45.9 in the final. That was only eight-tenths of a second slower than winner Peter Snell of New Zealand and three-tenths of a second behind Crothers, the runner-up.

Minor Hockey

Three games were played in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's tyke division last night.

Hawks copped a 3-1 decision over the Bruins. Roger Chapman, Semour Jianopoulos and Robert Thompson were the Hawk scorers. Michael Meeker tallied the lone Bruin goal.

Leafs collected a 5-3 win against the Canadiens. Leaf goals went to Kevin Woodman, Brant Walmsley, Mark Walmsley, Steven Sovey and Peter Fahey. Ricky Mofina, Pat Mulvihill and Kelvin Pope had Canadiens' goals.

Rangers defeated the Wings by a 4-1 count. Eric Powell scored twice, Michael Crawford and Gordon Male once apiece for the winners. Russell Morgan got the Wing tally and Randolph Smith was given an assist.

Marlboros Defeat Oshawa 4-3

OSHAWA (CP) — Brent Imlach, son of Toronto Maple Leaf coach Punch Imlach, scored in the last two minutes Wednesday night to give Toronto Marlboros a 4-3 win over Oshawa Generals in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game.

Other Toronto scorers were Gerry Meehan, Mike Corrigan and Mike Byers.

Scoring for Oshawa were Wayne Cashman and rookies Brian Morenz and Ron Dussiaume.

Oshawa defenceman Bobby Orr aggravated a back injury in the first period and left the game. He is to have x-rays taken today.

RonMurphy Decides To Retire

MONTREAL (CP)—Ron Murphy, a 14-year veteran of the National Hockey League, decided Wednesday to retire.

Murphy, 32, advised coach Milt Schmidt of Boston Bruins that he would not appear against Montreal Canadiens Wednesday night at the Forum.

"He told me he had just decided to retire. It has nothing to do with his trade to our club, he assured me," Schmidt said.

Murphy was traded to the Bruins last week from Detroit Red Wings in a move that sent Dean Prentice and Leo Boivin to the Detroit club in exchange for Murphy and defenceman Gary Doak.

Murphy picked up one assist in the two games he played with the Bruins.

Murphy's career began in the 1952-53 season when he was a member of New York Rangers. He was with Chicago Black Hawks for seven years before his Detroit and Boston stopovers. His lifetime total is 176 goals and 214 assists in 728 regular season games.

"Switch And Fight"

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—The Kentucky senate approved by voice vote Wednesday night a resolution urging heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay "to switch and fight."

It said his recent pronouncements against being reclassified 1-A by his draft board at Louisville are "repugnant to all true Kentuckians and he should enter service immediately.

"This sudden aversion to fighting on the part of Cassius M. Clay brings discredit to all loyal Kentuckians and to the names of the thousands of them who gave their lives for this country during his lifetime," the resolution said.

The latest word is that Clay will not be drafted before his scheduled March 29 championship bout in Chicago with Ernie Terrell.

Field, Stream Competitions

Canadian Waters Produce Champions

NEW YORK (CP) — North American sports fishermen had a futile chase for records last year, but they brought in a good quota of tackle-busters and most came from traditional hot spots.

Field and Stream magazine, custodian of fresh-water records, releases results of its 1965 angling competitions in the March issue today.

Lakes and coastal rivers of Quebec and Labrador ruled the roost for brook trout and for the first time in several years Manitoba's Gods Lake was shut out. Great Bear Lake in the Northwest Territories was the place to go for giant lake trout.

The results list two brook trout topping 10 pounds, both from Labrador. H. A. Hatton of Ottawa brought in a 10½-pounder from Atikokak Lake to take honors in the fly-casting division while John F. Hark of Morristown, N.J., led the open category with a trophy of 10 pounds, seven ounces taken on a Mepps spinner and four-pound-test line in Kepimits River.

Both waters are in southwest Labrador, about 70 miles east of the Quebec North Shore and Labrador Railway line.

PRODUCED BROOKS

Quebec's Assinica Lake in the Chibougamau area and the Broadback River, draining into James Bay, produced two brook trout over eight pounds and three over seven. Second and third in the fly division were M. B. Gordon of Inkster, Mich., eight pounds, three ounces, and David A. Footer of Lewiston, Me., seven pounds, 10 ounces, both from the Broadback.

In the open division Nicholas A. Somma of Leominster, Mass., checked in with an 8½-pounder and Albert Brenninger of Brookville, Pa., with one of seven pounds, 11 ounces, both from the Broadback. Assinica's showing was seven pounds, two ounces, caught by George Ulrich of York, Pa. Lone listing from outside Quebec and Labrador was a brookie weighing five pounds, two ounces, caught by Otto Best of Norway House, Man., in Island River northeast of Lake Winnipeg.

The Kepimits also produced the top land-locked salmon or ouananiche, a beauty of 10 pounds, nine ounces, caught by P. S. Moore of Montreal in the fly-casting division. Biggest in the open division was an ounce over 10 pounds and was caught by Robert Vatcher of Kenogami, Que., in northern Quebec's Lake St. John which always rates as a ouananiche stronghold.

HONORS TO QUEBEC

Atlantic salmon honors were all Quebec's. The Matapedia River in the Gaspe Peninsula produced a 41-pounder for Anthony Bisgood who came all the way from Palm Desert, Calif. Next was a 35-pounder from the Moisie River on the Gulf of St. Lawrence's north shore in the Sept-Iles area, where John M. Olin of Alton, Ill., struck it rich. The Grand Cascapedia, in the Gaspe, gave up a 33¼-pounder to Edward R. Hall of Neptune City, N.J.

For lake trout, Great Bear had no competitors. It recorded four fish ranging from 26 pounds to a whopper of 57 pounds, nine ounces. Jerry A. Herzberg of Enid, Okla., brought the giant in on a Len Thompson lure and got almost within striking distance of the record—a 63-pounder that came from Lake Superior in 1952.

Eastern rainbow trout showed an encouraging return to healthy growth in Lake Huron, a sporadic producer in recent years. Wesley G. Martin used fish eggs to nail the biggest—16 pounds, nine ounces — at his home town of Owen Sound. Bill Fordham of Owen Sound went to the nearby Pottawotami River for a 15½-pounder.

In western rainbows, Linda Jacobson of Fruitvale, B.C., won a prize in the open division with her 15-pounder from Kootenay Lake on a 12-pound-test line. Biggest in the division also fell to a woman, a 29½-pounder caught by Marie L. Hedger in the unrestricted line category in Idaho's longtime favorite Lake Pend Oreille.

B.C. HAD RAINBOW

Biggest steelhead, a sea-going variety of rainbow trout, came from British Columbia's Thompson River which flows into the Fraser at Lytton in the Cariboo district. It weighed 29 pounds, 10 ounces and was caught by Henry Tsuyuki of Burnaby on salmon roe. In fly-casting Karl Mausser of Burlingame, Calif., brought home No. 1 from the Kispiox River, a tributory of the Skeena in northern B.C. It weighed an ounce over 25 pounds.

The Tree River of the Northwest Territories continued to give up the most and biggest arctic char despite some fears it has passed its peak through over-fishing. The biggest, 23 pounds, 12 ounces, compared with the 27¼-pound record set there in 1963, was recorded in the open division by Richard E. Jones of Oak Park, Ill., who used a Mepps giant killer. Jack Cornelius of Minneapolis won the fly championship with an 18¼-pounder.

Rivers Inlet on the B.C. mainland north of Vancouver Island produced a chinook salmon—also known as king or tyee—that outweighed anything else on the list by more than 25 pounds. Alex F. Ottevaere of Bremerton, Wash., used the old standby herring bait to lure the 68-pounder in the unrestricted line category.

Silver or coboe salmon title went to Gary H. Howells of Richmond, Calif., with a 20-pounder in the fly category from the mainland. A 23-pounder caught by J. H. C. Boby of Tacoma, Wash., in Copper River, another Skeena tributary, was tops in the open division.

Muskie king Leonard Hartman of Ogdensburg, N.Y., racked up another list of trophies from the Thousand Islands area of the St. Lawrence River. He had four on the list, ranging from a 51½-pounder caught on a skimpy four-pound-test line to a pair just below 38 pounds.

It was not an outstanding year for northern pike. Biggest, a 30-pounder in the unrestricted line category, was caught in unspecified waters in Quebec's Pontiac County by George F. Morris of Lucerne, Que.

The big walleyes, a pair of 17-pounders, came as usual from the reservoirs of Kentucky and Tennessee but there was one good Canadian listing. H. M. Cole of Larchmont, N.Y., won the four-pound-line prize with a fish of 10 pounds, three ounces from unidentified waters while fishing out of a lodge in Quebec's la Verendrye Park.

BCI Junior Cagers Win Opener

By DAVID TEMPLER

Trenton H S. hosted BCI last night in the first of a two-game total points playoff for the Bay of Quinte Championship in the junior division. Belleville easily took the decision 68-40 carrying 28 points into the next game.

The fast-breaking Collegian cagers could not be contained in the large T.H.S. gym. Superior height gave BCI an advantage under the boards offensively and defensively. The Trenton club, playing very good ball, had a lot of difficulty scoring when they got within range. It would have been much closer if the scoring percentage of their "gunners" had been higher.

For BCI, John Chalmers and Jim McCreary led the field with 15 points each. Other scorers for BCI were: Shea 7, Harder 7, Thibeau 6, McDougal 6, Huiser 4, Truman 3, Drumm 2, and Pugh 1.

For Trenton the high scorers were: Pinke 12, Larry 9, Munn 5 and Acton 5.

Campbell Defends Stand

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Extension of employment opportunities was a prime factor in expanding the National Hockey League, president Clarence Campbell said Wednesday.

"Expansion has become a dirty word in the last couple of weeks," he told a Canadian Club meeting. "But it's the greatest thing that's happened to hockey in 20 years."

Campbell defended the NHL's rejection of Vancouver's application for a franchise.

He said a group of Vancouver bidders was "politically intimidated" into giving way to a second Vancouver organization headed by Cyrus McLean.

Campbell said the McLean interests show "complete lack of financial responsibility" and on that basis Vancouver was rejected.

He said he could not foresee any chance of Vancouver receiving a franchise in the next 10 years.

He said the turnover of new jobs in the league has averaged 15 a year for the last several seasons, but with expansion 250 new jobs for players will be created.

PROTECTS POWER SYSTEM

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. reported Wednesday it has installed equipment to shield its system from the kind of massive power failure that hit most of New York state last Nov. 9, along with other parts of the northeastern United States and southern Ontario. An official said his company has installed devices that will take it out of a giant U.S.-Canadian power pool in case of a so-called power surge.

Milwaukee Or Atlanta?

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—A Wisconsin attorney was set to cross-examine John McHale, general manager of Atlanta Braves, today on the baseball club's move to Atlanta.

Arthur Montgomery, chairman of the Atlanta Stadium authority, was scheduled to follow McHale in testimony at a deposition bearing on a Wisconsin suit against the Braves and the National League. Warren Giles, National League president, will testify Friday.

During Wednesday's session, McHale said about 500 persons have cancelled season-ticket orders despite repeated assurance that the Braves will stay in Atlanta this season.

He said most gave as their reason, "We are not sure the Braves will play here."

He said season ticket revenue now is "somewhere between $900,000 and $1,000,000."

Asked about the result of a move back to Milwaukee if ordered by the courts, he said: "It would be disastrous. The Braves would be bankrupt."

Transistorized Necklaces Worn by Six Maine Deer

ORONO, Me. (AP)—Six deer equipped with "transistorized necklaces" are roaming the woods near the University of Maine in an unusual electronic experiment designed to learn more about their behavior.

The animals are in four fenced-in areas of 1½ acres each and each animal is equipped with a collar containing a battery that transmits continuous signals to a pair of receivers.

The project is under the direction of Prof. Sanford Schemnitz. Acting as his special assistant and taking care of the animals, is student Thomas J. Allen of Cumberland, R.I.

"Very little is known about the habits of deer," Allen says. "This project will help us to determine some of their ranging habits."

At the end of the hunting season, two of the deer will be transferred to a small island off the Maine coast, where they will be able to roam more freely, and in the spring the other four will follow them. Meanwhile, Schemnitz and Allen are working to solve some problems that have cropped up.

One problem is that the batteries now being used last only a few months. Allen plans to solve this by using solar batteries, rechargeable by the sun, which would last about a year.

Another difficulty is that the collars seem to put the deer in social disgrace with their fellow creatures.

"It seems that a deer with a collar is rejected by the others," Allen says.

He plans to overcome this problem eventually by embedding the transmitters under the skin.

Outdoor Tips And Tricks

By BOB BLAIND

Belleville situated as it is, in the hub of the lake region of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties, is the centre of the fast growing outdoor winter sport of ice fishing.

The snowmobile has helped to make this sport a family outing. Now cottage days are no longer just for summer. Instead of dragging a boat and trailer into the camp, people are hooking up the skidoo or snowcruiser and tailing these versatile outfits as close as the car can be driven, then off they go towing a tobbogan loaded with lunches and fishing gear.

These little machines can travel up to 30 miles an hour on lakes and good roads and can wind up and down hills with very little difficulty. If you can't afford to own one you can rent at many locations in this district.

Lakes that in the past have been accessible to just a very few hardy fishermen are now being visited by many more, thanks to the ease in reaching outlying spots.

If you do not want to become unpopular on a lake where fishing is going on, I would suggest you do not race all over with your cruiser or you will be as much in demand as a water skier at a fishing derby.

This weekend the opening of the trout season for 1966 should see hundreds of these snowbugs on just about every good lake in the north country.

Pickerel, pike and perch are also in season and have been all winter, with good catches being reported at Consecon, West and East Lakes in Prince Edward County and on Moira, Trent and Crowe Lakes. The Trent and Moira rivers have been producing well. Many large pike were caught at the Glen Ross section of the Trent and quite a few pickerel at the mouth of this river. A few nice fish have been taken near Foxboro in the Moira.

Perch fishing has been very good in the Belleville Harbor and off the Cheese Producers' Building in the Bay of Quinte.

Shiner minnows, so far have been the main diet for all species being caught.

Quite a few are fishing from ice huts while many more are fishing in the open.

A help in keeping your fish hole open — take along a can of windshield de-icer. Spray a little in each hole you are fishing and it will not freeze over leaving your line free to move around.

Monofilament line does not absorb water and therefore does not freeze as the ordinary black nylon. The fish also cannot see these lines as easily as the black one.

Fish hooks for winter fishing should be smaller than you would use in the summer. A fish must be able to take your minnow easily and not feel the hook until too late or he will let it go. Some use a small treble hook or singles used in tandem, a short shank hook with a minnow attached and a long shank beside this in order to catch your short strikers.

We would appreciate information from you, the fishermen, as to catches, bait used, locations fished etc.

11 CTV Member Stations Make Pitch to BBG to Take Over Operations

By TOM MITCHELL

OTTAWA (CP)—The 11 member stations of the CTV television network made their pitch Wednesday to take over the operation and buoy it up with a big financial shot in the arm.

The proposal by member stations of the privately-owned network to buy 100 per cent of the shares was placed before a special hearing of the Board of Broadcast Governors. It included a pledge to pump $100,000,000 into the network during the next six years.

Spokesmen for the 11 stations asked for a quick decision by the board because of the growing financial losses facing the network—a capital deficit expected to reach $1,184,000 by next September.

Their bid was opposed by CKCW-TV in Moncton, N.B., and the Canadian Broadcasting League. Ken Soble, operator of CHCH-TV in Hamilton, asked for a delay in a decision to allow him to make a detailed presentation for a privately-owned network in partnership with Power Corp. of Canada Ltd.

SPOKE FOR BID

Ernie Bushnell, operator of CJOH-TV in Ottawa, Gordon Keeble, CTV president who would retain that post after the proposed share transfer, and Toronto lawyer Ed Goodman were the main spokesmen for the 11-station bid. Mr. Bushnell is president of Independent Television Organization, a CTV arm that distributes programs.

If approved, the new network operation would boost programs supplied to the affiliates to 60 hours a week from the current 23 hours 45 minutes.

The network plans a quick move into color operations if approval is given and a large slice of the 45 hours probably would be color programs, the board was told.

Mr Goodman said voting shares would be divided equally among the stations on the principle of "one station, one vote." But assessments levied against the stations for programs received from the network would be based on each station's ability to contribute. Larger stations with high revenues would pay more than smaller stations.

PROPOSES NETWORK

Mr. Soble proposed a network operation with himself and Power Corp. each owning not more than 35 per cent of the shares. The rest would be open to the public. The proposed company would have $11,500,000 available to set up a national network, he said.

The network should provide more than 50 hours of programming a week to affiliates. Mr. Soble added that he had not felt it proper to seek potential affiliates until he had a ruling from the BBG on whether he should proceed with a formal application.

Dr. Alex Laidlaw, secretary of the Canadian Broadcasting League, said a television network is "too powerful an implement" to rest in private hands. Any second network should be in the hands of the public.

The 'all-pervading role of the advertiser" in television programming led to a waste of the air waves.

The recent Fowler committee report on broadcasting had said the CTV operation should not be turned over to the member stations. A government cabinet committee was studying the committee report.

The BBG should not take any action while this study was being carried on, Dr. Laidlaw said.

CPR Testing New Diesels On West Coast

CALGARY (CP)—The Canadian Pacific Railway says it is testing two 3,000 - horsepower diesel locomotives, the first of 32 such units to be delivered to the CPR starting this summer.

Largest diesel locomotive now used by the railway is a 2,500-horsepower unit. Delivery of the new units is expected between July and December.

The two locomotives hauled 90,000 bushels of Alberta wheat over the Rocky Mountains earlier this week, achieving a tonnage haul approximately 60 per cent greater than capacity of the railway's present diesels.

A CPR statement said the 32 new locomotives now are on order from General Motors.

NOW SHOWING

Bullets Fly As Agents Spy In Levine Spoofer

What is no doubt one of the strangest scenes ever filmed — certainly one of the most shocking — is to be found in the opening sequence of Joseph E. Levine's sly new spy-spoof, "The 2nd Best Secret Agent In The Whole Wide World," which is now showing until Saturday at the Park Theatre in color and widescreen through Embassy Pictures release.

Directly following the opening titles, the audience's eyes feast upon an idyllic garden setting. A smartly dressed nursemaid wheels a baby carriage along a path. A policeman idles along, smilingly nodding to the nursemaid. A man stands on a small bridge over a slow-moving stream, lost in thought and watching some ducks bobbing in the water. Carefully stopping the carriage for a moment, the nursemaid reaches beneath the babies' blanket, hauls out a sub-machine gun and proceeds to riddle the gentleman full of holes. She then delicately replaces the gun in the carriage, smiles sweetly at another passing policeman and walks on.

From that moment on, "The 2nd Best Secret Agent In The Whole Wide World" continues to unfold a strangely-gripping outrageously funny spoof of all the secret agent films ever made.

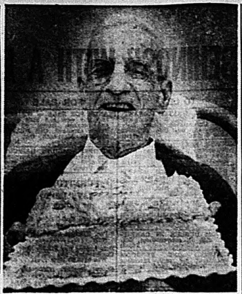
To quote director Lindsay Shonteff who also wrote the screenplay together with Howard Griffiths, "Our aim was to make audiences accept our nonsense and enjoy it in spite of its complete unbelievability. We have our actors doing the most insane things in a complete logical manner. We poke fun at ourselves and at the other secret agent films.

According to the film's star, Tom Adams, "Shonteff and I agreed that there wasn't to be an insincere moment in my acting of the role. A completely "straight" performance was the [illegible] over."

Producer S. J. H. Ward summed it all up with, "It's an impossibly possible story, using every ingredient of humor and suspense to prove its plausibility.

SECOND FEATURE

Movie badman Dan Duryea co-stars with Rod Cameron in "The Bounty Killer," an action-packed western which is the added feature at the Park Theatre in color and wide-screen through Embassy Pictures release. Complete shows are at 7.00 and 8.50 p.m. Saturday, continuous show from 12.30 p.m.



FOUGHT AGAINST RIEL — William Dickie Mills, who fought against Louis Riel and his Metic rebels in 1885, celebrates his 100th birthday Feb. 24 in Westminster Veterans' Hospital in London, Ont. Hale and hearty, he is the most talked-about patient in the hospital. The head nurse says "he'd put to shame men 60 years his junior." Here, he has an advance look at his birthday cake. (CP Photo)

Veteran of Riel Rebellion Will Mark 100th Birthday

By PETER MacRITCHIE

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—In 1869 when fiery Louis Riel was inciting his bands of Metis and Indians to rebellion in the Red River settlement on the Prairies, William Dickie Mills was a toddler of three, born in this city—a pre-Confederation baby.

Sixteen years later he was Staff Sergeant Mills of the 7th Regiment of Fusiliers of London, helping to run to earth the elusive Riel and his Cree Indian chiefs, Big Bear, Poundmaker and Wandering Spirit.

Thursday in Westminster Veterans Hospital here, Sgt. Mills will celebrate his 100th birthday, surrounded by messages of well-wishers.

Sgt. Mills, still hale and hearty, is the most talked-about patient in the hospital.

James Carroll, head male nurse, says: "He'd put to shame men 60 years his junior."

A reporter found him sitting on his bed, humming an old army ditty between puffs on a cheroot.

His memory of long ago is vivid, although events of last week may escape him. And his hearing is only a trifle dimmed.

JOINED FUSILIERS

"I was no drummer boy," he declared scornfully. "I was a front-line soldier."

He first learned soldiering as a high-school cadet in London, Ont.

"When I joined the Fusiliers in 1884 they immediately planted two stripes on my arms."

He was a corporal already.

"They knew a soldier when they saw one," he added with a twinkle.

He recalled the mobilization of the Fusiliers, a militia unit, for action in the Northwest insurrection. They arrived in Toronto April 2, 1885, and were joined by the Queen's Own, the Governor - General's Bodyguard, the Royal Grenadiers, all of Toronto, and the Midland Battalion of Port Hope, Ont.

Early April 7 the punitive force of more than 5,000, including also some Ottawa cavalry units, embarked in Toronto to subdue the half-breeds (Metis) and Indians who were fighting for their lands. Sgt. Mills told of the men being bedded down in flat cars, the flooring covered with straw. It was bitterly cold. Sleighs were used to haul the soldiers across the gaps of the yet uncompleted railway.

In less than 11 days they reached Qu'Appelle, now in Saskatchewan, having been joined en route by the Winnipeg Rifles.

ROUTED REBELS

Their commander, Maj.-Gen. Frederick Middleton, "put us to guarding supply depots," said the centenarian.

'We were fed up and longing for action. Finally we got it. We were at Batoche where Riel's chief lieutenant, Gabriel Dumont, was holed up. We were ordered to advance a short distance but took matters into our own hands and stormed down the Batoche hill. We drove them from their gun pits and took the town."

The capture of Batoche ended the rebellion. On May 15, 1885, Riel surrendered. Dumont escaped to Montana, but later returned to Saskatchewan. Poundmaker, Wandering Spirit and Big Bear gave themselves up and went to prison.

Riel later was tried for high treason at Regina, until shortly before known as "Pile O'Bones." It was there that Riel was hanged.

Sgt. Mills saw Riel at Batoche.

"He had piercing dark eyes and a mop of black hair," said the old soldier. "He looked about 45 and he was always twitching."

On returning to public life, Sgt. Mills, along with his father, ran a book store in London. He later joined the accounting staff of Victoria Hospital here, retiring at the age of 70.

He is the last survivor of the Fusiliers and could easily be the last of Riel's pursuers

LIKES A NIP

His wife died 20 years ago, and a son with whom he lived, Major William Mills, 59, former London newspaper man, died in Westminster Hospital Jan. 26. Another son, Harris, was killed overseas in the First World War. There are two other sons, Dickie, who lives here, and John in Toronto.

To Sgt. Mills, what is the elixir of life?

"A solid breakfast to start the day, the morning newspaper and a good book and then an afternoon on the trout stream. Of course a few drams in between, mine with soda."

Robert Rossen Dies at 58, One of Better Producers

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I'm living on borrowed time," said Robert Rossen. "From now on, I'm going to do only the things I want to do."

We were lunching last fall in New York. The writer-director-producer had endured a serious illness in previous months and three brushes with death had altered his outlook.

"I think I'll teach," he remarked. "New York University has offered me a lecturer's post and that appeals to me. There are some things I'd like to say about picture making and I want to express them to the younger generation.

"Anyway, I don't have any enthusiasm about making a picture right now. Not after that last one"

He referred to his 1965 release, Lilith, during the filming of which he had to combat the temperament of Warren Beatty.

"It isn't worth that kind of grief," Rossen said. "I won't take it any more. I have nothing to say on the screen right now.

"Even if I never make another picture, I've got The Hustler on my record. I'm content to let that one stand for me."

NEVER MADE ANOTHER

Rossen died last week without having made another film. At 58, he still was in his prime as a film creator, and his legacy included other achievements besides The Hustler. Among them: All The King's Men, Body and Soul and The Brave Bulls.

Bob Rossen always was a rebel. The son of a New York rabbi, he drew his training from the theatre of the depression 1930s. Hollywood called him to write such protest films as They Won't Forget, Dust Be My Destiny and Blues in the Night.

Like many topflight screen writers, Rossen grumbled over the way directors manhandled his scripts and sought to direct himself.

Harry Cohn of Columbia gave him the chance with Johnny O'Clock, starring Dick Powell. Rossen's high-voltage Body and Soul possibly was the best prize-fight film ever made.

Ancient Profile of London Undergoing Spectacular Job of Plastic Surgery

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—To the rumble of giant cranes and the rattle of pneumatic drills, the ancient profile of London is undergoing a spectacular job of plastic surgery.

The skyline of the city, spiked with slender towers and glassy slabs of offices, has changed more dramatically in the last decade than in the 300 years since Sir Christopher Wren's spires and domes replaced the old wooden buildings destroyed in the Great Fire.

Seen from the south bank of the Thames, the dome of St. Paul's Cathedral, which once floated majestically alone above the rooftops, now competes with thrusting office blocks and the six tall towers of the Barbican scheme, a revolutionary, £32,000,000 project to turn a blitz - devastated stretch of the City into a multi-level precinct separating pedestrians from high-speed traffic.

For centuries London had been evolving unobtrusively, almost unnoticeably, because of the practice of replacing old buildings with new ones of the same proportions. The year 1957 marked the turning-point that brought a look of Manhattan to city streets built for horse-drawn carriages and cabs.

SHELL TOWER LED WAY

That year the 351-foot, £33,000,000 Shell Tower began to go up on the south bank of the Thames, near Waterloo Station. It was quickly followed by other tall shafts of concrete and glass piercing the smoky London sky: The 387-foot Vickers building on the north bank of the Thames near the Tate Gallery, the pagoda - like New Zealand House at the foot of the Haymarket, near Canada House, and the 30-storey Hilton Hotel in aristocratic Park Lane.

It was in 1957 that construction began on the Barbican, after 10 years of negotiation by City of London authorities to acquire all the sites in the 29-acre area. Before a devastating bombing raid destroyed it on the night of Dec. 29, 1940, the Barbican was an undistinguished huddle of warehouses and small, old-fashioned craft industries such as ribbon-making.

When completed in 1971, the futuristic complex of tall office blocks, high - speed highways and first-storey-level pedestrian walkways and bridges will be the first large-scale attempt in London to achieve the 20th-century town-planner's dream of separating pedestrian and vehicular traffic.

Boom year for construction of the new London was 1959, the "never-had-it-so-good" year of Harold Macmillan's landslide election victory. Few areas of the metropolis escaped the development wave.

CHANGES CRITICIZED

The sedate Victorian red brick of Knightsbridge reeled under the impact of Bowater's glittering new headquarters, straddling the entrance to Hyde Park. Glass office blocks went up in the bomb-damaged areas around Paddington and Victoria stations, the west end of Oxford Street was rebuilt and giant apartment blocks sprouted in outlying residential districts, such as Roehampton, that previously had cherished their village character.

Visitors from abroad, startled by the change in nostalgic vistas, were heard lamenting that the new London lacked the character of the old. Architectural experts echoed their sentiments. Civic Trust, a charitable foundation set up to encourage good town-planning, commented that £800,000,000 spent in three years on rebuilding London had "failed to add much in charm or character to the city."

In July, 1965, Prof. W. A. Robson of London University, chairman of a study group set up to formulate a new planning policy for London, condemned the new skyscraper blocks one by one and said they only conveyed the "desire to dominate or to make money."

He urged an over-all plan for the nine-square-mile area containing most of London's characteristic features — an area bounded by the Tower of London in the east, Kensington Gardens in the west, Regent's Park in the north and the Elephant and Castle in the south.

WAR SHELVED PLAN

A master plan for redeveloping the metropolis was drawn up by the former London County Council as long ago as March, 1939, but the outbreak of war prevented further action. The present Greater London Council is preparing a study on over-all development, expected to be ready by 1968.

Ironically, in the spate of planning projects that erupted just before the war, one architectural expert regretted that in the years after the Great Fire of 1666 London had lost "the one opportunity that is ever likely to arise" for replanning the crucial central area—the City. The following year came the Blitz.

The City, the historic square mile of banks, brokers' houses and offices that is the financial heart of the Commonwealth, is the only part of London to come under a central planning authority, the architects' department of the city corporation in the Guildhall.

About one-third of it, some 200 acres, was flattened in the 1940 blitz. Most of the devastated area now has been rebuilt, though there are still great swathes of bomb damage between the gleaming new office blocks.

The new building has not been confined to war-damaged sites. One of the most spectacular new developments in the City will be the rebuilding of the pillared 19th-century Stock Exchange in modernistic form, with a central tower block.

PLAN MORE WALKWAYS

Eventually, corporation architects plan to extend the Barbican principle of separate traffic levels over the whole City partly by means of high-level walkways, partly by closing some streets to traffic.

"One day you'll be able to walk from St. Paul's to the Tower without touching a traffic route," said one City architect. In his Guildhall office were blown-up photographs of Venice, the world's only traffic-free city, which provides inspiration for the scheme.

Almost every new project in the City releases a flood of protest letters — most notably in recent years the demolition of the ornate Victorian Coal Exchange, whose site is still empty—but the planning generally has a sensitive regard for preservation.

In the Barbican, for instance, pedestrians on the catwalks and bridges get unexpected glimpses of fine Wren churches and stretches of moss grown Roman wall, often set in lawns and courtyards between the tall office blocks.

The key to all City planning is St. Paul's and north-south vistas which include its Renaissance dome and golden cross are carefully designed to ensure new buildings do not exceed the height of the 365-foot cathedral.

The Barbican towers to the east, however, are between 300 and 400 feet high.

HEIGHT LIMIT RETAINED

Elsewhere in London, there is a height limit of 150 feet, after which developers must submit their plans to the Greater London Council. Since the reorganization of the old London County Council into the new, much larger entity, more freedom has been given to the boroughs to control development in their areas.

Two main government departments, the board of trade and the ministry of public works and housing, have ultimate powers to intervene on appeal from the Greater London Council, whenever a particularly ugly development is proproposed or when historical or architectural landmarks are threatened.

The biggest project turned down recently was a multi-million-pound scheme of the National Provincial Bank to replace its Victorian headquarters in Bishopsgate, in the City, with a modern complex. The Board of Trade vetoed the proposal on the grounds the existing building was a "good example of Victorian classic bank architecture."

Another proposal vetoed by the Board of Trade would have involved demolition of the remnants of the 18th-century Adelphi Terrace, off the Strand, which was designed by the famous Adam brothers. The graceful old houses now will be reconditioned as apartments and offices.

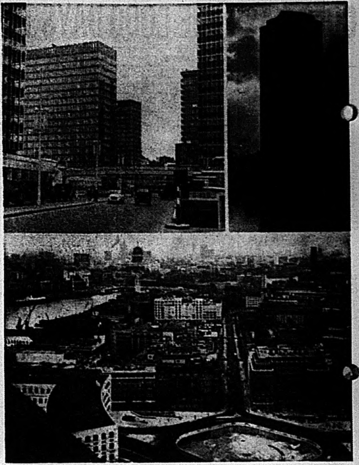
WILL RAISE FEES

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Broadcasting Corp. will increase its talent fees for Canadian performers and writers by $850,000 during the 1966-67 year, the network announced Wednesday. The existing annual fee level for the CBC's English-language radio and television networks is about $4,000,000.



TRADITIONAL VIEW CHANGES — In the last decade the skyline of London has changed more dramatically than during the previous 300 years. Bottom photo shows the north side of the Thames spiked with office towers. In centre background is dome of St. Paul's Cathedral. Top left picture shows office blocks forming part of the Barbican scheme which aims to separate vehicular and pedestrian traffic. At top right is the huge Vickers building on the Thames, a familiar part of the skyline. (CP Photo from British Information Services)

Sporty Look and Not Safety Features Is What Sells Cars in Canada Today

By GORDON GRANT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Bucket seats, four - on - the-floor, fast-backs.

These are some of the eye-catchers that have swept Canada's new-car sales to four record years in a row, and make car makers and dealers think they have a fifth one ready to go into the books.

There are other reasons—a booming economy and plenty of money in the public's pocket—but industry officials say the key to surging sales has been a swing to the sporting look. Additionally, the car has become something of a status symbol again.

A cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows that in conversations about cars, particularly among young people, horsepower, speed, tachometers and racing-type accessories are prime topics. Forgotten are safety features considered sales-makers a couple of years ago.

Ford's racy Mustang epitomizes the current trend. Introduced less than two years ago, the Mustang has given Ford sales a lift and forced other car makers to find a competitor.

So successful is the Mustang that this year even Volkswagen is talking of horsepower and fast-backs, something unthinkable from the beetle-car maker two years ago.

Chrysler's answer to the Mustang is the Barracuda, General Motors, the Spyder and American Motors, the Marlin.

STRESS FANCY EXTRAS

American Motors, the only company which had a sales decline in 1965, has decided to emphasize excitement in its new cars and play down its traditional family-car image.

For buyers who want a sporty car with the conservative look, Ford has the LTD, GM its Caprice, Plymouth its VIP, Dodge the Monaco and American Motors the Ambassador.

Big horsepower, disc brakes, stereophonic tape, power steering, automatic transmission with drive selector on the floor, four forward speeds with a floor gearshift lever, bucket seats and instrument clusters—also known as dashboards—are all available on bottom-of-the-line models as extras which bring cars up to the price of luxury models.

For the man who has plenty of money, General Motors brought out its front-wheel-drive Toronado in 1965 and dealers in Toronto can't meet demand for the $8,000-plus car.

By providing a car to meet the wishes of even the most demanding buyer, North American manufacturers have successfully cut into sales of imported cars that were taking a large slice of the market four years ago.

PREDICT HIGHER SALES

One company, Canadian Motor Industries, which decided to market Japanese cars in Canada, ran into rejuvenated sales of North American makes and was crushed, selling fewer than 2,000 cars last year. It hopes to do better this year.

The survey shows that, except for a few isolated cases, Canadian dealers anticipate sales gains ranging from [illegible] to three per cent compared with 1965, with North American cars retaining their tremendous edge over imports.

The manufacturers are less optimistic than some of their dealers, but all expect sales to rise in 1966.

E. H. Walker, president of General Motors, said the retail market for passenger cars will approach 730,000 units this year, up about five per cent from 1965. Sales last year were 707,000 units, the fourth year of growth of more than 10 per cent.

He said the market for European imports appears to have flattened out in favor of Canadian-built cars at somewhere between 70,000 and 75,000 units.

Ron Todgham, president of Chrysler Canada Ltd., said he expects another record year, although the rate of increase in sales will probably not approach 10 per cent.

SMALL CARS IN DEMAND

Pierre Le Godec, vice-president of Renault Canada Ltd., says Canadians are buying more small cars and sales should rise 10 to 15 per cent to 87,000 units this year.

This, he said, would represent an increase of 10,000 units from 1965. The term "small car" covers both imports and those former imports now being made in Canada.

Mr. Le Godec said Renault expects a 30-per-cent gain in sales from the 4,200 sold in 1965.

Volkswagen (Canada) Ltd. said it sold a record 35,000 units in 1965 and is "moving into 1966 with confidence."

Earl K. Brownridge, president of American Motors, said "all signs point to another record in car sales in 1966."

British car makers sold about 36,000 units in 1965 and "expect to at least hold our own in a growing car market during 1966."

Volvo (Canada) Ltd. had a record 1965, wholesaling 3,545 cars, compared with 2,741 in 1964. Another record is expected for 1966 and the company says its only problem is that "we can't make enough cars to meet demand."

The dealers confirm, in most cases, manufacturers' optimistic views.

TOO MANY USED CARS

In Newfoundland, Fred Russell, manager of Terra Nova Motors Ltd., a GM dealership, said the outlook for car sales is "very good for 1966." Douglas Tucker, director of Import Motors Ltd. which sells Volkswagens, said he is confident sales will increase 10 per cent this year. But he said most people would rather own a five-year-old big car than a new small car.

Sales in Prince Edward Island are lagging behind 1965 sales and 1966 shapes up as a less profitable year than last. Island dealers say the main reason is a surplus of used cars

Arthur P. Arsenault, sales manager for Stewart Motors Ltd., says P.E.I. dealers face a used car surplus problem. Because of this his company had to offer new-car buyers $200 less on the average this year as a trade-in allowance.

Dealers in New Brunswick are grumbling about having too many used cars on the lots, plus a sales tax increase.

D. Malcolm Lawson, General Motors dealer in Saint John, said: "Sales of new cars were good last year and if production improves they should be just as good, maybe a shade better, in 1966. The problem facing most dealers is merchandising used cars.

FINANCING TOUGHER

The New Brunswick sales tax increase could also affect the situation, he said. The sales tax may be increased to six per cent from three per cent, starting April 1.

Nova Scotia sales are expected to increase, although Gordon Hart, vice-president of Nova Scotia Rambler Ltd., struck a gloomy note.

He said: "Sales so far in 1966 are down three per cent from 1965. It's harder to raise the financing. The tight money policy might have something to do with it."

Garnett Daye, sales manager for Citadel Motors in Halifax, said sales of Pontiacs are up about 400 per cent from last year. He added there has been no drop in compact popularity with demand greater than supply.

In the Montreal area, there is a definite trend to the big, sporty car, and A. B. Lilley, sales manager for Midtown Motors, a General Motors dealer, says there will be "a 15 per-cent increase in sales over 1965."

He said the standard-size model will account for 60 per cent of all sales, but the swing is to luxury cars.

READY TO PAY MORE

Keith Tate, sales manager of Cooke Toledo Sales, a Ford dealer, said: "Compacts are selling more than the European models, but the trend is to the normal-size car, especially the deluxe model."

"An over-abundance of used cars is the only serious thing standing in the way of a very good year," William Hanson, general manager of Campbell Motors (Ford) Ltd., in Ottawa, says.

He stressed that buyers are moving to higher-priced models with the Mustang a favorite. He looks for a gain of eight to 10 per cent in over-all sales.

Charles B. Fearn, general manager at Myers Motors (GM), is "very optimistic" about car sales, calling for a 13-15 per cent increase, with compacts showing little or no gain.

Many Manitoba dealers described prospects for this year as excellent.

Bud McKay, of Stonewall Motors, a Ford dealer, was the most optimistic of Winnipeg's sales managers, predicting a 20-per-cent increase this year with people preferring bigger, sportier cars.

Saskatchewan dealers all look for a good 1966 with predictions for a good 1966 with predictions three to more than 20 per cent.

A spokesman for Lakeside Chrysler-Plymouth said: "The average buyer is going for the top models and power options are really booming. In fact, as a rule the only standard models we sell now are to fleet buyers or the exceptionally price-conscious individual buyer."

Leading dealers in Edmonton for the Big Three estimate sales will be up in 1966. All said European compact sales have been going down and North American compacts have been going up. The trend is expected to continue.

Ghana Army Frees Political Prisoners

GHANA LEADER REPORTED OUSTED — President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana was dismissed from office after the army and police seized power in the west African country. (CP Wirephoto)

ACCRA (CP) — The army, which toppled President Kwame Nkrumah from power early Thursday during his absence from Ghana, appeared today to be in complete control of the west African Gold Coast state.

As the army — backed by police — consolidated its position, more political prisoners jailed by the outed regime were to be freed.

Thursday night, 56 old and infirm detainees were released by the seven-man "committee of national liberation" which took over the government under reinstated army chief Maj.-Gen. J. A. Ankrah.

The new military leaders said they overthrew Nkrumah because he had abused individual rights and liberties.

"He has been running the country as if it were his own personal property," Radio Ghana, controlled by the new regime, said.

'NEAR BANKRUPTCY'

Announcing the creation of a national revolutionary council, the radio said Nkrumah's "gross economic mismanagement' had forced Ghana to "the brink of national bankruptcy."

"What we need," the radio said, "is a radical revolution of our financial and economic policies. This will be done almost immediately. . . ."

The army seized power before dawn Thursday while Nkrumah was en route to Peking.

A combined paratroop-infantry attack apparently met resistance only from the presidential security guard.

There were no reports of serious clashes elsewhere. Casualty estimates ranged from four to 18 dead and 30 wounded.

Thousands of persons danced in the streets after the fighting ended. They tore down statues that Nkrumah had erected to himself.

DIDN'T NAME MEMBERS'

Ghana radio did not name the members of the new council but said Gen. Ankrah had been promoted from major-general and was named armed forces commander.

Nkrumah ousted him last July as deputy chief of the defence staff and replaced him with Maj.-Gen. Charles M. Barwah following rumors that Ankrah and another general wanted to depose him.

Barwah was reported shot in his darkened house by a young officer Thursday when he refused a command to surrender.

In London, Khow Aminaya, 40, an ex-Ghana security chief now living in Britain said he had masterminded the coup. He told reporters early today a new leader would be selected soon, probably during the weekend.

Gen. Henry Alexander, a British officer who was Ghana's chief of staff until 1961, said in London Ankrah was "quiet, fearless and tough as nails." But

British Conservatives Argue Coup in Ghana Vindicates Rhodesia

LONDON (AP)—The coup in Ghana brought demands today from Conservative leaders and the Tory press that Britain end sanctions against Rhodesia and negotiate with the breakaway colony's all-white minority regime.

Conservative Leader Edward Heath and his principal lieutenants put forward a Commons motion calling for immediate talks with Rhodesia's prime minister, Ian Smith.

This motion Prime Minister Wilson is bound to oppose. But it may never come to debate. Political commentators were taking it as certain that Wilson next week will seek dissolution of Parliament in order that a general election can be held March 31.

Thus Rhodesia would become an election issue rather than a Commons issue.

The Conservative reasoning is that the Ghana military coup, following quickly on the heels of a similar takeover in Nigeria, has underlined the instability of youthful African states.

Thus they argue that Britain is ill-advised to continue pressure aimed at wrecking the Rhodesian regime, which they see as firmly in control and a factor toward stability in Southern Africa.

The motion finally shatters the bipartisan approach on Rhodesian policy and thus fulfils one of Wilson's conditions which he has said will influence his election timing.

This, he has said, will depend on his government's ability "to be able to speak clearly on behalf of Britain. . . ."

Since he and his party are riding high in the opinion polls but have only a three-vote margin in the 630-seat Commons, the motion gives him a possibly irresistible challenge to seek to strengthen his mandate.

Wilson returned Thursday night from a three-way visit to Moscow and acknowledged he had gotten nowhere with Soviet leaders on moves to end the Viet Nam war.

The British leader told correspondents that Soviet readiness to resume talks with a Western country on major world problems, even despite the continuing Vietnamese crisis, represented "a welcome step forward."

Mass Demonstrations Ended After 28 Persons Charged

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Organizers of mass demonstrations at Tilco Plastics Ltd. called off the protests Thursday night shortly after Attorney-General Arthur Wishart announced that contempt of court proceedings have been launched against 28 persons.

The attorney - general made the announcement in the Legislature.

End of the demonstrations came after two days in which hundreds of members of organized labor had protested against the use of a court injunction limiting the number of pickets to 12 at the strikebound Tilco plant.

About 30 women, members of the Textile Workers Union of America (CLC) went on strike Dec. 14 for higher pay.

William Mulders, president of the Peterborough Labor Council, said the decision to call off the demonstrations was made at an emergency meeting of the council's injunctions protest committee.

"We have accomplished what we set out to do and there is no point in carrying on," he said. "It's now a matter for the courts.'

Stanley Rouse, committee chairman, said the demonstrations had been law abiding and not in contempt of court. He added that contempt was felt for the law under which the injunction was issued Dec. 20.

Union members said summonses had already been served to some members, including Mr. Rouse. Mr. Mulders is also tc appear in court, with Charles Clark, organizer for the strikers, and Victor Skurjat, president of the Toronto joint board, of the textile union. All 28 persons are to appear in court March 7.

Labor Council leaders say the demonstrators were protesting the injunction, not marching in the picket line.

Tilco, a manufacturer of plastic products, has continued operations with non-union workers.

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A 2,000-member London union pledged its willingness Thursday night to stage a picket line in Peterborough against the use of injunctions in labor disputes.

Local 27 of the United Automobile Workers (CLC), representing workers at nine London industries, agreed to give its "full support" to Peterborough union members.

The local executive sent letters to Attorney-General Wishart, Peterborough and District Labor Council and David Archer, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor, after discussing developments in the 10-week Tilco Plastics strike.

LBJ Musters Forces For Senate Showdown

WASHINGTON (AP)—The administration is mustering its forces to counter an attack on President Johnson's Viet Nam war authority.

With Vice - President Hubert Humphrey doing a little lobbying in the background, the Senate moved toward the climax of its debate on Viet Nam.

Senator Wayne Morse (Dem. Ore.) was set to give his argument today why Congress should rescind its 1964 resolution that gave President Johnson a blank cheque to carry on what Morse calls an illegal war.

Morse promised that after giving senators the weekend to think over his case he will ask Monday that his proposal be attached as a rider to the bill authorizing an additional $4,800,000,000 in funds for the war.

The vote on his amendment, Morse contends, will be a vote on President Johnson's policy.

But Senator Richard B. Russell, chairman of the Senate armed services committee, told reporters that when Morse launches his move Monday he will introduce as a substitute for the Oregonian's his own amendment reaffirming the 1964 resolution.

"It might mean that the lives of American boys will be spared

Fireman Killed Rescuing 25 Trapped in Building

TORONTO (CP) — One fireman was killed, two others were injured and 25 persons were trapped temporarily in a fire which swept through three stories of a downtown office building Thursday night.

Cause of the blaze was still being sought as firemen sifted through the rubble of the sixth, seventh and eighth floors of the 13-storey building at York and Richmond Streets.

Capt. George H. Stevens died in hospital after receiving the full force of a blowback as he led his men into the burning building. A blowback is caused by rapid combustion of gases in a confined space.

Assistant Deputy Fire Chief Thomas Matthews suffered smoke inhalation and fireman George Travers received a cut hand. Both were taken to hospital and released after treatment.

Firemen fought their way into the building with gas masks and high pressure hoses as office workers leaned from upper storey windows calling for help.

One man leaned out a window and shouted: "We can't breath in here. It's impossible."

M. W. Ross, a clerk in the Royal Bank of Canada, on the street-level floor of the building, said bank employees first knew of the fire when they saw a reflection of the flames in a neighboring office building.

N.E. Workers at Bramalea Vote 1239-14 to Strike

BRAMPTON (CP) — Union employees voted Thursday night overwhelming support for a strike at the Northern Electric Co. in nearby Bramalea.

A statement issued by the union negotiating committee said the vote was 1,239 for a strike and 14 against. There are 2,300 employed at the company, including more that 1,700 in Local 531 of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Wowkers of America (Ind.)

The company and local are awaiting the findings of a conciliation board that was chaired by William Dickie.

After five days and nights of meetings in conciliation the major issues remain unsettled, a union press release said. It lists wages, a merit system of wage increase, seniority, union security and the terms of agreement as unsatisfactory.

A legal strike can be called seven days after the findings of the conciliation board are handed down.

The contract negotiations affect employees at Northern's switching division plant, about half of whom are women.

Basic rate at the plant now is $1.80 an hour for male production workers and $1.53 for women.

The union is asking a basic rate of $2.18 for men and $1.98 for women in a one-year agreement. The company has offered $1.92 for men and $1.72 for women in a three-year contract.

Guard Sukarno

JAKARTA (Reuters)—The Indonesian armed forces today surrounded President Sukarno's palace with tanks and troops to protect him from anti-government student demonstrations.

Barbed wire barricades were set up on all streets leading to the palace.

Troops of the Jakarta garrison, marines and mobile combat police stood at the ready behind the barricades.

From early morning the army tanks and police armored cars had rumbled to pre-arranged positions ringing the palace.

Jakarta has been in turmoil since Tuesday when Sukarno announced a cabinet reshuffle in which he casually dismissed Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution, the anti-Communist defence minister.

Students tried to storm the presidential palace Wednesday protesting that the government changes reflected a swing back to Communist influence.

The army has been leading a drive against Communists ever since October's unsuccessful attempt at a coup.

As the troops stood guard, thousands of students today gave a hero's funeral to one of their number who was killed in the demonstrations.

The dead youth was shot when 500 students tried to storm the palace and clashed with the presidential guard. A girl student also was killed in the demonstrations.

Government offices and stores were closed in case of trouble.

Earlier, thousands of students in an ugly mood of resentment milled round the campus of the University of Indonesia. There, too, mobile police and army troops stood by but did not interfere.

Robarts Thinks Divorce Reforms Urgently Needed

TORONTO (CP) — Abortion and divorce laws and the role of the federal government concerning both were discussed in the legislature Thursday.

In other business, the House heard:

—Reforms Institutions Minister Allan Grossman deny a charge that tear gas had been used indiscriminately at Millbrook Reformatory last July.

—Attorney - General Arthur Wishart announce that legal action had been taken against 28 union pickets in a labor dispute in Peterborough.

—New Democratic Party leader Donald MacDonald charge Health Minister Matthew Dymond with deliberately misleading the house concerning distribution of pamphlets describing the province's new medical care plan.

Premier John Robarts said the government does not oppose reform of divorce laws affecting Ontario and would be happy to submit a complete brief to any federal royal commission established to study the matter.

"The uncertainty and the chaotic confusion which exists demonstrate the very definite need for the intense study and examination of this whole problem," he said.

"Since the federal authorities have monopoly jurisdiction, may I say that if they establish a royal commission to investigate all facets of the situation this government will be prepared to make a submission. . . ."

Mr. Robarts said as far as he can find out no special committee has been set up.

Stephen Lewis (NDP — Scarborough West) said the federal government should be asked to revise the Criminal Code regarding abortion.

INEQUITY INCREASING

"The inequity of law on abortions is increasing," he said, "and the legal ambiguity in Canadian law should be resolved."

In liberalizing grounds for the granting of therapeutic abortion, Mr. Lewis said laws should take into account rape, incest, emotional well - being and related considerations as well as aiming to preserve the life of the mother.

Mr. Grossman said guards at Millbrook were forced to use tear gas to quell violent prisoner on five successive days. On each occasion, the prisoners had been cautioned they would be subjected to it if they did not quiet down.

George Ben (L—Bracondale) said tear gas had been used while prisoners were sleeping.

Three Get Life Plus 68 Years

TORONTO (CP)—Three Collins Bay jailbreakers, sentenced to life imprisonment plus a total of 68 years on 24 charges ranging from kidnapping to robbery, Thursday went off to jail singing, their paddy wagon escorted by shotgun-armed policemen in cruisers.

John Eaton, 25, of Moose Jaw, Sask., and Hamilton, Ont.; Ross Dankwardt, 20, of Kitchener, and Thomas Brydges, 20, of Elmira, entered pleas of guilty to all charges before Magistrate Joseph Addison.

They still face a charge of rape, entered in Simcoe County, but York County Crown Attorney Henry Bull said outside the courtroom it is not likely to be heard because of the length of sentences imposed Thursday.

The life sentences were imposed on a charge of kidnapping a Scarborough, Ont., woman during the flight from police after their jail break.

The three were quiet in the courtroom Thursday, answering only "by magistrate" when asked how they elected trial and "guilty" when asked how they pleaded.

But as they left the courtroom, where the corridors had been cleared of spectators by police, they sang When Johnny Comes Marching Home and joked with photographers.

ESCAPED IN TRUCK

The trio escaped the Kingston jail Feb. 9 in a truck along with a fourth prisoner, recaptured the same day.

Police told the court the men stole six cars in their flight across Ontario. Their path took them through Peterborough, Barrie, Toronto, Bradford and to St. Catharines, where they were arrested at a roadblock Feb. 12

The magistrate also imposed sentences totalling 25 years for Eaton and 16 years each for Dankwardt and Brydges on other charges, to be served consecutively with the life sentence.

They are also consecutive to sentences of five years for Eaton and three years for Brydges and Dankwardt imposed in St. Catharines last week for shooting at police officers who captured them.

Unknown Threatens Nielsen

OTTAWA (CP)—Eight Canadians have been slain and the country's business men have lost millions of dollars through fraudulent bankruptcies, the Commons was told Thursday.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Bow River) said Francois Payette of Montreal, found dead Tuesday "apparently is the eighth gangland victim in reference to corrupt bankruptcies."

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) referred to bankruptcy frauds as "20th century highway robbery on a grand scale." Thousands of business men across the nation "have lost legitimate payment for their goods."

The parliament buildings also buzzed with rumors that Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) had been threatened with abduction. Mr. Nielsen, who triggered the Dorion inquiry into the Lucien Rivard affair, is expected to make a strong speech on frauds in bankruptcies in the Commons shortly.

Asked about the rumor concerning Mr. Nielsen during the Commons' question period, Solicitor-General Pennell said he is satisfied that the RCMP will "take the appropriate action."

Mr. Nielsen refused to discuss the threat in an interview but indicated one had been made.

"I'd rather not talk about it," he said.

"I've got a wife and kids liv

Byrd asked both to show just what went on in the discotheque where Karen is employed. Brodie had ticketed the owner, Henry Roman, accusing him of "allowing immoral, vulgar and suggestive or freak dancing." Karen won in a breeze, the officer admitting that as a go-go girl, he was a better cop. The case was adjourned to May 25. (AP Wirephoto)

Plan Meeting to Consider Hastings Milk Committee

A meeting of all milk producers in Hastings county will be held in the Stirling Community Service Building on Monday, Feb. 28th to consider the formation of a Hastings county milk committee.

County agricultural representative Doug Tipper is calling the meeting as result of decision taken recently at the agricultural office, when dairy leaders of the various groups met to discuss the proposal.

The county committee when elected would represent all milk producers within the county including fluid milk shippers, concentrated milk shippers and cheese milk producers. County Milk Committees have already been elected in thirty counties throughout the Province.

Mr. O. Ketcheson, member of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, as well as other representatives of the Board, will be present to discuss the proposal for county committees.

It is hoped by the Ontario Milk Marketing Board that such committees may be established eventually in all parts of the province as a means of direct contact between the Board and the local producers.

Codrington Farmer Spends Sundays as Lay Preacher

BRIGHTON — A Codrington farmer, Charles Buchanan, emphasizes the idea that the "harnessing of Christian horsepower" provides an answer to the many-sided problems of living today and he is one example of a group of laymen in Cobourg Presbytery whose part-time services as lay speakers are enabling rural residents to attend church services in their own communities.

Last spring, when there was a possibility of a three-point rural charge in the South Northumberland County area being eliminated, Mr. Buchanan who had been doing a considerable amount of filling in at United Church congregations as a lay speaker took on the regular assignment from August until June at one of the churches at Dundonald, connected with the Colborne United Church, under the ministry of Rev. R. W. French.

Bad weather is no deterrent to Mr. Buchaaan, who recently has been bucking the heavy snowdrifts with his jeep-type truck to get to his Sunday morning pulpit on time. He looks on his role as a lay speaker as "a distinct calling and another career".

OPERATES LARGE FARM

With the assistance of his father-in-law and two teenage sons, who are attending high school, he operates a large farm at Codrington, north of Brighton, winters 80 head of cattle and ships milk to Toronto daily. While many farmers find the winter months give them a break, due to the seasonal nature of their work, Mr. Buchanan's year-round dairy farm operation keeps him on-the-go winter and summer. He still finds the time and regards it as a challenge to prepare and conduct the weekly Sunday morning services, for which he is responsible. "I find inspiration in life itself," he explains, "and it certainly is an experience to talk to youngsters in High School these days". He obtains his sermon material from reading; his own experiences, and the fact that he looks on his work as a lay speaker as an important part of his life in addition to his day-to-day farming operation.

"We don't want to put any ministers out of business — that is not our intention but we do believe that people have the right to worship where they please" he said.

This is how Mr. Buchanan, sums up his decision to carry on as a lay minister for the congregation which would otherwise have to travel elsewhere to attend church.

MEMBER OF ASSOCIATION

Mr. Buchanan is a member of the Lay Speakers Association of the Cobourg Presbytery, one of very few presbyteries in Canada to have such an organization. He was born in Colborne and graduated from Colborne High School.

"It is difficult to obtain an ordained minister for a small church", he explains. Ministers of some charges have so many small churches at which to preach on a Sunday, services are conducted at staggared hours with the result services at some of the smaller churches had to be conducted in the evening.

This results in a vigorous schedule which is difficult for a minister to keep up, and evening services are not well attended, perhaps because the minister must compete with Ed Sullivan or Ben Cartwright of "Bonanza".

The role of the lay speaker is simply to keep open a church that might otherwise be closed for lack of a minister. Mr. Buchanan explained it is difficult to close a church however, small, if it is the wish of the congregation that it be kept open.

"We don't want to conflict with the ministers in anyway", Mr. Buchanan said. He finds the system has worked well in the past. For the last five years, he has been conducting four or five services at various churches in the presbytery each summer. One year he preached 20 services but believes, as other lay speakers do, that it is best to preach at a church other than that of which you are a member of the congregation.

"Preaching to your own congregation can be an occupational hazard", he said.

Mr. Buchanan has accepted the position as lay speaker at Dundonald for a period of one year, to see if the arrangement works to the satisfaction of the congregation.

THINKS ON TRACTOR

"I can do a lot of thinking when I'm sitting up here on the tractor - this is where my sermons usually take shape", he remarks.

When not farming and speaking, Mr. Buchanan is busy in other aspects of community life. At present he is serving his second year as chairman of the Northumberland County Soil and Crop Improvement Association. This is an organization of farmers working in co - operation with the Brighton office of the Federal Department of Agriculture, seeking new ways and new ideas for the improvement of crops in the county.

A few years ago he sreved as a member of the North Brighton township School Board and has always been active — the work of the church.

His wife is the former Mary Ame. The couple have four children: Mary Lou 15, Danny 14, Lloyd, 11 and Ruth Anne, 7.

IN MEMORIAM

ROSEVEAR — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother who passed away 2 years ago today, Feb. 25, 1964.

More and more each day we miss her,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow,
Lies within our hearts concealed.

—Sadly missed by daughter Phyllis, son-in-law Harry, granddaughters Marilyn and Carolyn.

CLAPPER — In loving memory of my dear father Norman Frederick Clapper who passed away February 25th 1946.

Though his smile has gone forever
And his hands I cannot touch,
Still I have so many memories,
Of the one I loved so much.
His memory is my keepsake,
With which I'll never part,
God has him in His keeping,
I have him in my heart.

—Always remembered by his daughter Norma.

ROSE — In loving memory of Iva Rose who passed away Feb. 24th, 1964.

Memories are treasures no one can steal,
Death is a heartache no one can heal,
Some may forget you now that you're gone,
But we will remember no matter how long.

—Always remembered and sadly missed by brother Oscar and niece Mildred and Leo.

Syrian Revolt Is Bloody

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

JDAIDEN(AP)—Rebel leftist army officers were today still struggling for control of Syria following what was reported to be one of the bloodiest revolutions in that country's turbulent history, returning travellers and eyewitnesses said in this outpost on the Syrian frontier.

The number of persons killed in Wednesday's coup that upset the regime of Gen. Amin Hafez, Syrian chief of state, may have ranged from 300 up to 1,000, according to estimates of Damascus residents and diplomats.

Hafez was reported shot in the foot and taken to a military hospital under guard. Two of his daughters and a son also were reported wounded. These reports could not be immediately verified.

"They are washing the blood off the streets of Damascus now," said one Beirut businessman returning from Syria.

Witnesses reported seeing mass graves in Damascus cemeteries where victims of the uprising were buried.

LACKS SUPPORT

Damascus, the capital of that nation of 5,000,000, was reported calm. But the travellers said the new rebel regime does not have the support of the military units in northern Syria.

They reported that Radio Aleppo in the commercial capital of the north came on the air briefly this morning to say the military was not in support of the new leftist regime.

But the broadcasts ended abrutply after a few minutes.

Coup Raises Spirit of White Africans

SALISBURY (AP)—The coup against President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana has raised the spirits of this bastion of white Africa higher than they have been since Rhodesia declared its independence from Britain Nov. 11.

There was no immediate official comment on Thursday's events in Accra, but Prime Minister Ian Smith's white-minority government was certain to embrace enthusiastically the opportunity offered by Nkrumah's downfall.

Smith declared Rhodesia's independence after Britain refused to grant it to him unless he gave his country's 4,000,000 Negroes a voice in the government. There are 225,000 whites in Rhodesia.

Smith is a sworn enemy of African nationalism and has pledged that there will be no African nationalist government in Rhodesia in his lifetime.

Nkrumah was looked upon as the father of African nationalism and his fall can only reinforce Rhodesia's determination to resist British pressure.

Rhodesians chortled over the fact that the left-leaning Nkrumah was in Peking when news of the coup reached him. They recalled his statement in Cairo only two days ago that he and President Nasser of the United Arab Republic had discussed military action against the Rhodesian government.

Guards Used Tear Gas on Five Days

TORONTO (CP)—Guards at Millbrook Reformatory near Peterborough were forced to use tear gas on five successive days last July to quell violent prisoners, Allan Grossman, minister of reform institution's, revealed to the legislature Thursday night.

He denied a charge by George Ben (L—Bracondale) that tear gas had been used indiscriminately, and while prisoners were sleeping.

Staff members at the maximum security institution were responsible for preventing the situation last July from developing into one of uncontrollable violence, Mr. Grossman said.

On each occasion that tear gas was used, he told the house, the prisoners had been cautioned beforehand they would be subjected to it if they didn't quiet down.

He said the tear gas was used in small enough quantites to limit its effectiveness to individual cells.

GIVES BREAKDOWN

On July 6, tear gas was used against 12 prisoners; July 7, two prisoners; July 8, two prisoners; July 9, five prisoners, and July 10, seven prisoners.

Mr. Grossman also told the house that a statement by Mr. Ben to the effect that prisoners were better educated than their guards had already hed its repercussions in two of the institutions under his jurisdiction.

Presenting statistics to disproving this, Mr. Grossman said prisoners read or heard the remarks by Mr. Ben and began needling the staff members. He did not identify the institutions affected.

The average education for 8,260 prisoners was just over Grade 8, he said. For the custodial staff, it was between Grade 9 and Grade 10.

The minister of reform institutions said his department takes a shellacking in the press every time someone feels in need of a headline. He said he means to put a stop to this.

ing in Ottawa and I don't want to get the wind up."

Asked if he took the threat seriously, he replied:

"No, I don't."

Mr. Nielsen said that if he doesn't say anything about the matter, he can't be accused of "sensationalism."

Meanwhile the Commons continued to talk its way through spending estimates of the government departments for the fiscal year ending March 31.

At the suggestion of Conservatives, the government adjourned consideration of justice department spending midway through Thursday's session and the Commons sped through debate on six other departments—Forestry, post office, veterans affairs, national revenue, Privy Council and Parliament.

WARNED OF GRAVITY

The Commons returns today to the justice department estimates which Mr. Brewin used Thursday to warn Canadians "of the gravity of the matter" of bankruptcies.

Mr. Williams wanted the justice department to look into the death of Mr. Payette, whose frozen body riddled with four bullets was found in the trunk of his car.

Mr. Williams also called for an investigation into "serious charges, such as bribery, against members of Parliament."

The charges were made in the last election campaign by Dr. Guy Marcoux, former Social Credit MP who lost his deposit in the riding of Quebec-Montmorency.

The allegations against six former Creditiste MPs and a Liberal cabinet minister had been swept under the rug by Justice Minister Cardin. A royal commission was needed to clean up "the mess."

Municipal Board Dismisses Appeal by Deputy Engineer

The Ontario Municipal Board has dismissed the appeal of Belleville's deputy city engineer against the decision of the local Committee of Adjustment requiring him to deed portion of his front lawn to the city as a condition for being allowed to sell his rear lot for church parking purposes.

In a decision handed down this week, the OMB held that the decision of the local committee in requiring deputy city engineer Richard Kraft to turn over eight feet from his Sidney street front lawn for future street widening was proper and in accordance with sub-division regulation.

The board accordingly dismissed Mr. Kraft's appeal and ruled that the decision of the committee of adjustment be sustained. The appeal was heard Feb. 16th at the city hall council chambers before OMB member J. V. Ludgate.

In his appeal Mr. Kraft claimed he was being unfairly treated in being asked to deed the eight foot strip of his front lawn to the city in return for sale approval for his rear lot.

If no sale was involved he said the city would have to purchase property for street widening.

As matters now stand Mr. Kraft will have to deed over to the city the eight feet from his front lawn before he will be allowed to sell his rear lot to the church interests.

But there are no plans for immediate widening of Sidney street in the Park Dale area, and as was stated in the OMB report, it is quite probable Mr. Kraft will be able to enjoy his present front lawn for several years to come.

New Lettuce Variety Listed This Spring

OTTAWA — A new offering in Canadian seed catalogues this year is Butter King, a large butterhead lettuce that is expected to be successfully grown and to be very acceptable anywhere in Canada. It has already won a bronze medal in the 1964 All-American selections open trial-grounds which extended from Mexico through the U.S.A. into eastern Canada.

Butter King is a selection from the variety Rinat Hakfar which came from Israel via the United States Department of Agriculture. Selection was made in 1959 by Walter Nuttall of CDA's Ottawa Research Station.

This is the largest butterhead tested at Ottawa and is remarkably uniform, says Nuttall. It is slow to seed, slow to develop tipburn and bitterness and, because it matures later, it extends the marketing period for butterhead types.

Consumers are going to find Butter King of delicate texture, soft and light to feel, with some color to the interior and a mild, mellow taste. It's excellent for breaking into tossed salads and, since the outside leaves may be used, there is no waste. Butterhead lettuce contains three times the Vitamin A and one third more of Vitamin C than does the berg-type lettuce with which we in Canada are most familiar.

Nuttall says his selection, comprising the most uniform and best longstanding plants of the sample received from USDA, had four years of rigid selection in seed plots and concurrent yield trials at Ottawa plus two years of continent-wide testing.

Butter King has a 12 to 14-inch spread which, when trimmed, averages at least twice the weight of most butterhead varieties.

Market gardeners will be interested to know that this variety is six to eight days later than the small Bibb types and two to four days later than White Boston types.

Hooded Men Get $100,000 At Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—A gang of hooded men robbed a branch of the Bank of Montreal today and escaped with an estimated $100,000.

Three men smashed through a window with two iron bars before the bank opened. Within two minutes they had pushed the tellers aside, scooped the cash from drawers and fled.

A fourth man stood at the broken window and a fifth man was waiting in a car, said a spokesman at the branch in the Hydro Quebec building on Dorchester Boulevard West.

Contempt-of-Court Counts Laid Against 28 Persons

TORONTO (CP) — Contempt-of-court proceedings were launched Thursday against 28 men who, in the opinion of law officers, picketed the Tilco Plastics Ltd., plant in Peterborough in defiance of a court order, Attorney-General Arthur Wishart announced in the legislature.

The men are to appear before the Supreme Court of Ontario March 7. Mr. Wishart said he presumes all are members of the Textile Workers Union of America (CLC) which went on strike against Tilco Plastics Dec. 14.

At the same time Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree said in the legislature management of the plastics firm had turned down his request to meet with the union Wednesday to resume negotiations, stalled since last September.

Asked by New Democratic Leader Donald C. MacDonald whether Mr. Rowntree did not feel this was a refusal by management to bargain in good faith, the labor minister replied:

"Well, to be quite frank, it certainly has all the appearances of it."

PROMISES EFFORTS

Premier Robarts assured the legislature he would do anything he could to bring the dispute to a halt. The role of the government is to assist the parties in collective bargaining, he said, adding "any powers of persuasion we have will be exercised."

Mr. Robarts, replying to James Renwick (NDP—Riverdale), said "I will do everything in my power personally to see the parties are brought together."

Attorney - General Wishart said it was with "personal regret" that he directed court proceedings be taken against men who milled in large numbers about the plant Wednesday and Thursday.

But he told reporters later that further names could be added to the list if there was again evidence of mass picketing.

Tilco Plastics had been granted a supreme court injunction in December limiting picketing at the plant to 12. Both the company and union agreed to the terms of the injunction.

Mr. Wishart said never before in Ontario's history had the attorney-general found it necessary to institute contempt-of-court proceedings where persons were alleged to have acted in defiance of a supreme court order.

HAD HOPES

He said he had hoped his earlier plea for respect for the law in the labor dispute might have persuaded the union leaders "to pursue their desire for a change in our laws by the proper means that have been effectively utilized by our society throughout the history of its development.

"However, since this advice has fallen on deaf ears, it is my intention that we shall bring the facts before the court, which may then take such action as it may deem proper and just in the enforcement of its own order."

The attorney-general said the apparent defiance of the law was deemed by him to be so important that he felt the contempt proceedings should be launched by the public prosecutor rather than Tilco Plastic

Asked by Mr. Renwick ho these particular 28 men we selected for the contempt pr ceedings, Mr. Wishart said the were "seen to be—in our opi ion—disobeying the order"—th supreme court injunction.

Aircraft Hassle

The hassle over Canada's $215 million order for the American CF-5 jet bomber for use by the RCAF, seems to ignore one important factor. And that is obsolescence.

However, government critic Jack Horner (PC — Acadia) may have been thinking along these lines when he noted that the aircraft has been tried in Viet Nam and "it has been proven that it is not a good combat plane."

To this, Defence Minister Paul Hellyer countered with the statement that experience with the aircraft in Viet Nam indicated that it would be "absolutely first-class" in the ground role envisaged for the RCAF.

Among other qualities the minister cited a "supersonic dash capability which gives it a self-protection within its own flight environment." We mention this as an aside, for it is a classic example of what has come to be known as "gobbledegook," or the modern jargon so beloved of government spokesmen.

In any event, just as the Canadian-built Avro Arrow was considered obsolescent, even before the machine was off the drawing boards, will this not be the fate also of the CF-5 before long? So many jets are in service these days that there is probably little difference in the performance of different models.

Is speed going to make all that much difference in a ground attack role? Could a pilot not perform as good a job with one of the old British-made Vampires, flying at 500 m.p.h., and presenting a very small target, as in a CF-5 (or comparable machine) travelling so fast that the pilot could fly into the ground before he has time to pull up?

But no, we must keep up with the Jones in defence as in everything else. And yet, five years from now pilots will be flying planes capable of who knows what marvels of speed and manoeuverability, and the CF-5 and other contemporary aircraft will seem like the old wrecks in the movie, The Magnificent Men in their Flying Machines.

Citizen Of The Year

The choice of George C. Wishart, former city alderman, as Belleville's Citizen of the Year, by the Jaycees, is a happy one that will commend itself to all.

In his 37 years in Belleville, Mr. Wishart has made a strong impact on the life of the community. The wide range of his interests, as outlined in The Intelligencer Wednesday, reflect this.

As a conservationist and researcher for the Department of Agriculture, chairman of the Moira River Conservation Authority, and his service with the National Institute for the Blind, Board of Education, Children's Aid Society, Hospital Board, Home and School Association and the Fish and Game Club, Mr. Wishart is the very epitome of a man whose first interest is the welfare of the community in which he lives.

And yet withal he has found time to help in the furtherance of still other community activities and indulge such personal interests as photography and gardening.

Congratulations to Mr. Wishart are in order.

Traffic Snarl

A London, England, report says that women bus drivers may be employed there for the first time to ease serious staff shortages in the capital's transport system.

The reaction of the male drivers is interesting. Some were quoted as saying few women had the strength and nerve required to drive a 60-seat double-decker bus through city traffic.

Well, it does take strength and nerve to manoeuvre the giant British vehicles through London's traffic, which daily is becoming more and more congested. It takes nerve even to ride as a passenger in one, for the drivers waste no time. Sitting in the top deck affords a good view of city life, but moving at speed in a double-decker is a sightly hair-raising experience until one gets used to it.

Could the women drive these monster vehicles? Well, we see no reason why they should not. Yet as the men say, it is a job requiring strength and stamina, both physical and moral. The traffic and the numerous stops involved are enough to test the strongest nerve.

Meanwhile, London might consider the way of the Dutch and the Danes when it comes to getting to work easily and pleasantly and without the nightmare of city driving. They prefer to go by bicycle.

A current advertisement for Holland says: "The nicest thing about riding a bicycle is that everyone who rides bicycles talks to everyone else who rides bicycles."

That is certainly reason enough for taking to the two-wheeled machine. People who drive cars only glare or bark at each other. That is, if they deign to communicate with each other at all.

And in Holland, the advertisement continues, "everyone rides bicycles — grandmothers, students, executives, nuns, doctors, lovers with their arms around each other (that would probably merit a fine here), farmers, even Her Majesty the Queen."

We cannot see it happening on this continent — in Toronto, Montreal or New York. Still it is a nice idea.

Taxpayers' Heavy Load

Financial Post

Gigantic Federal needs plus even more gigantic provincial and municipal needs require still more blood out of the taxpayer. His capacity to give blood, however, is nearing exhaustion.

The idiocy of any further increases in income taxes, for instance, is demonstrated dramatically by a Canadian Tax Foundation calculation.

The figures: if every cent of assessed income in excess of $15,000 had been taxed away in 1963, which in itself could lead to a mass exodus of Canada's best-trained and most-enterprising people, the Federal Government would have been richer by only $325,000,000. This sum is equal to only 2.5 per cent of present Federal spending. Medicare, by contrast, carries a $680,000,000 price tag.

"Any really massive anti-poverty campaign," the Foundation concludes, "will have to be largely a boot-strap operation with the barely affluent carrying a great part of the cost."

That likelihood is borne out in fact by the recent budget of the Province of Ontario. The provincial officials find they can spending program only by raispay for their huge 1966-67 ing sales taxes that catch rich and poor alike. Ottawa has made it clear that it needs all the tax money it is now taking in, so the provinces can't count on help from that source.

In the past 20 years, governments have accepted increasing responsibility for providing a healthy economic environment in which individuals can find or create their own opportunities. The massive outlays now planned for education, housing and health represent still more direct intervention by government at all levels.

But appropriate climate-making on occasion requires decisions not to spend, just as much as it demands in other circumstances taking the strings off the bankroll.

Right now, for instance, when all governments should logically be postponing construction projects to help ease the overheated demand for materials and men in the building industry, where is the evidence of restraint? Certainly not in the record spending now planned.

The politicians' lofty phrases about greater intergovernmental co-operation on economic policy through such vehicles as the Federal-provincial tax structure committee, seem to have been only pious hopes so far. The much-lacerated taxpayer can't wait much longer for the action on sensible tax and spending policies to begin.

Quebec Body Eyes Labrador

Cape Breton Post

For many generations nobody cared about who owned Labrador. It was a slice of the British Empire that aroused no interest except in the hearts and minds of the few who dwelt in tiny settlements on the inlets of a stern and rockbound coast.

Finally, a royal commission ruled that Labrador belonged to Newfoundland but nobody in St. John's felt enthusiastic about it. Still, the ruling was reasonable. The only communication between Labrador and the outside world then was by sea from Newfoundland.

The last to care about Labrador at that time were the Canadian French of Quebec province. It was true then as it is today that Quebec was bordered on the east by Labrador but eastern Quebec was so wild and uninhabited that it didn't figure in the Quebec mind.

The Labrador story until recently was grim. People were only reminded of Labrador in the stories told about an heroic British missionary doctor who took care of the physical needs of the impoverished people who lived at various points along that storm coastline.

In the meantime, a dramatic change has occured in the history of Labrador. Rich deposits of iron ore were discovered along the boundary between Quebec and Labrador and the outside world, suddenly it seemed, became aware of the immense hydroelectric potential of the falls of the Hamilton River in Labrador — the falls recently renamed Churchill by Premier Joey Smallwood.

Newfoundland belatedly learned that it held in trust a great prize and Quebec no less belatedly realized that just beyond its borders are riches it had never claimed. The situation is fraught with rueful comedy that is no less meaningful because it is pathetic.

What one expectd now has occured. The St. John the Baptist Society, a numerically powerful, worldly and a semi-political organization of Quebec province is demanding that Quebec "take over" Labrador. This is to say, seize Labrador from Newfoundland. This should sound funny but somehow it isn't.

Every time one has felt won over completely to the French Canadians who are really remarkably fine and vital people, some spokesman or organization on their behalf, says or does something utterly disgusting.

All of us feel a crying need for a sense of balance and moderation. We yearn for the sweet reasonableness that we know should rule our lives.

Strictly Personal

Conformists in Reverse

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of my favorite quotations, which I have adverted to many times over the years, is Lichtenberg's sharp observation: To do exactly the opposite is also a form of imitation."

I thought of this again recently, when someone mentioned a couple who had moved out of town. These people were prime examples of "the tyranny of the opposite."

They despised everything banal, bourgeois, and American. They would rather be caught dead than conforming to any of our tribal rites. And their whole life was carefully arranged to avoid and counteract the slightest symptom of ordinariness.

Their food, the way they treated their children, their reading matter, their diversions, were all planned not so much for their intrinsic merit or pleasure, but for demonstrating to themselves and others that they were singular folk pursuing an independent path, contemptuous of the middle-class values and habits most of us accede to.

What was amusing, and rather pathetic, about their attitude was their failure to see that their way of life was a kind of conformity in reverse. The moment something esoteric became popular, they were forced to drop it, regardless of their earlier affection for it.

The average person is, indeed tyrannized by the often meretricious values of his social system; he reads what everyone reads, dresses as everyone dresses, thinks in the same stereotypes, supinely accepts the amusements that are offered him by the mass-media, and is afraid to deviate from the prescribed formula for scaling the ladder toward affluence and success.

Yet, the supposedly "free souls" of whom I speak are just as tyrannized by their own conformity to non-conformism The average man thinks that whatever is popular is good; the nonconformist thinks that whatever is popular is bad. There is little to choose between these two blind attitudes of acceptance or rejection; they are social tropisms, and not individual choices based on taste, judgment and openmindedness.

I once knew a man who diligently read every morning a newspaper he hated. When I asked him why he continued to read it, he said, "It saves me trouble — I simply learn what the paper is for, and I'm automatically against it."

This is an easy way to save the trouble of thinking; but what this man didn't recognize was that he was as much a slave as all the readers who automatically agreed with the paper. When we let somebody else decide what our reaction shall be, we are no longer free persons, whether we decide to agree or disagree; the chain that binds the traditionalist at one end, binds the revolutionary at the other.

Highway Links With Expo 67

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I read with interest your editorial last Wednesday entitled "Transport to Expo."

As an ex-Montrealer, I have followed the new highway development program in Quebec quite closely. Your readers will be pleased to know that it will be possible to turn on to 401 at the top of North Front street and drive directly to the Expo parking area by multi-lane expressway.

From the termination of the Ontario section of 401 east of Cornwall, Quebec is building a new 4-lane section which will interchange with the new Trans Canada highway just west of Dorion. This will eliminate the old stretch of road paralleling the Soulanges canal. From here the Trans Canada carries on over the new Isle au Tartes bridge and is six lanes to the new Decarie Expressway now under construction. The Decarie expressway will then carry the motorist from the northwest corner of Montreal to the new Turcotte interchange being constructed high over the old CNR Turcotte freight yards and then via elevated expressway to the Expo parking complex.

The new section from the Ontario border to Dorion is due for completion this summer. The Trans Canada route traversing the new Isle au Tartes bridge and across the west end of Montreal Island is completed and open. The Decarie expressway is slightly behind schedule but completion is promised for the Expo opening.

Incidentally, the new Turcotte interchange is where a number of men lost their lives a few months ago. Your paper printed the story at the time.

This new road network will also enable the people of Quebec to travel to the Quinte area a lot easier and when our new Pleasure Gardens become a reality, perhaps some sort of publicity campaign will be in order on our part here in Belleville.

With regard to the new road network from the eastern states, the old No. 9 route from the New York State border into Montreal is being converted into a 4-lane freeway. This will join with the N.Y. Northway at Champlain, N.Y. which in turn joins the New York Thruway at Albany.

The new Eastern Townships Autoroute in southeastern Quebec will join with U.S. Interstate No. 9 at Island Pond, Vermont.

Visitors to Expo from eastern Canada will come into Montreal via the new Louis Hippolyte Lafontaine tunnel under the St. Lawrence at the east end of Montreal Island.

Should See Specialist About Tiny Blisters

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Tiny blisters appear on my fingers, and itch unbearably. When they are gone the skin becomes hard with painful cracks.

My doctor prescribed various pills and salves, but nothing seems to work. Should I consult a skin specialist? If so, how do I find one? — Mrs. P. O.

* * *

Yes, I'd consult a skin specialist, and the closest source of advice on finding one is to ask your doctor to refer you. This is the normal way for medical care to operate, and that's what specialists are for — to step in when the usual remedies don't work.

These skin conditions on the hands, while not perilous, are very common and are an abominable nuisance, as you know. Likewise there are many varieties, and they have to be seen to be recognized. Even then, it often takes a specialist to sense the true trouble.

Quite aside from the pain, those cracks in the skin are an open invitation to infection.

I wouldn't try to guess which type of skin condition is plaguing you, but unless the specialist detects a clue to the contrary I wouldn't be surprised if he investigated the possibilty that you are sensitive to something you touch — soap, detergent, metal (could be anything from a metal counter in the kitchen to a pair of scissors), or any number of other ordinary household materials.

Meantime keeping the skin soft with hand lotion will do much to prevent hardening and cracking of the skin. The less you apply to the skin in the way of salves or medications, until you see a specialist, the better. Dermatologists frequently bemoan the fact that many patients try so many remedies first, and sometimes merely add to the irritation, that it is difficult to tell what the original and basic skin trouble was.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can TB germs survive very long in the absence of moisture or at temperatures below body heat?

Must they be breathed in to be contagious? Can they be transmitted by handling an object? — D. B.

Pertinent questions. TB germs ultimately die in an environment that does not suit them.

The germs usually enter the body by being breathed, but also frequently are passed on via the mouth and intestinal tract. Thus if you handle an object that has been touched recently by a patient with tuberculosis, it may carry the germs. By touching your face, nose or mouth, you risk putting the germs where they can flourish. Safety lies in knowing this, and in washing your hands.

Incidentally, clothing or linen used by someone with TB will be made safe by laundering, or by airing in sunlight. Dishes used by such a patient preferably should be kept separate from dishes used by others, although thorough washing in hot soapy or detergent water will destroy the germs.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I was told recently that strong tea will kill intestinal worms and get rid of them without harming the body. Is this true? — Mrs. F. G.

It won't harm the body; unfortunately it won't get rid of intestinal worms either. There are different kinds of worms and each requires a particular medication.

Love of Money Comes First

Globe And Mail

One of the more exuberant novels published in Canada last year was Stephen Vizinczey's In Praise of Older Women, a catalogue of sexual liaisons based on the European tradition of the instructive mistress. The narrator, a young Hungarian, was disappointed when he eventually came to Toronto. He expected to find the same attitudes, the same willingness on the part of women to have an affair, that he was accustomeded to in Europe, but of course he didn't.

"Canadians love money first", an immigrant taxi driver explained to him. "Then liquor, TV, food . . . When you'd grab a girl, a Canadian grabs another drink".

This thesis was not seriously challenged by critics. Although it may be exaggerated, there is enough truth in it to make rebuttal risky. And it cannot be easily written off as the superficial observation of a newcomer; writers who have been in this country much longer than Vizinczey have said the same thing. Irving Layton, for example discovered a similar state of affairs long ago.

"Love is surrender, concern, ecstasy", Layton says. "Bamboozled out of their wits and courage by the anti-life forces pressing against them, Canadians have forgotten this . . . When Canadians are done with the excitements of professionalized sports and alcohol, a voice in their miserable, nightmarish souls tells them that contact, abandonment, passion and the understanding heart are what matter most in our lives".

Feb. 25, 1966 . . .

Robert Devereux, Earl of Essex, was executed 365 years ago today—in 1601—for treason. A precocious and ambitious young man, he rose quickly in Queen Elizabeth's favor but was neither a successful general and administrator nor a discreet politician. Once, in a cabinet meeting, he turned his back upon the queen during a dispute, so she promptly slapped his face. When he passed the age of 30, Essex became increasingly desperate for political or financial security, which the queen denied him, to keep him under control. His last act was to parade through London with 300 soldiers. When no revolution happened, he went home and waited to be arrested.

1779—United States forces captured Fort Vincennes, controlling the Ohio territory, from the British, with 170 men.

1880 — The legislature buildings at Fredericton burned down.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1916 — German pioneer troops captured Fort Douaumont, Verdun, which had been left almost undefended; Russians in Persia forced the Turks to retreat on Kermanshah.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1941—HMS Exmoor was torpedoed and sunk in the North Sea; Vichy France set up a "super-cabinet" under Admiral Darlan; British troops captured Mogadishu, capital of Italian Somaliland.

500,000 Shares Of Studebaker May Be Sold

NEW YORK (AP)—George W. Murphy, president of the Honolulu Iron Works, said Wednesday it will be "several days" before he knows whether his bid to buy 500,000 shares of Studebaker Corp. was successful.

Early in February Murphy offered to buy the shares at $30 each. Randolph H. Guthrie, chairman of Studebaker, said that if Murphy's bid was successful he would propose both Murphy and another person designated by him for the Studebaker board.

The Studebaker management has taken no position on the offer, which expired at 5 p.m., EST, Wednesday.

Murphy said, however, he would accept any tenders postmarked Wednesday. Consequently, he said, he does not yet know how many shares have been tendered.

Meanwhile, Allied Products Corp. recently proposed the creation of 1,000,000 shares of a new class of preferred stock "to facilitate possible future acquisitions," and this gave rise to speculation Allied was interested in Studebaker.

It was Allied which in 1946 bought Studebaker's stamping plants in South Bend, Ind., when mounting losses forced it to close its U.S. automaking operations and move them to Ontario.

Point Finger of Suspicion Toward Interior Decorator

By ARTHUR EVERETT

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Candace Mossler and her nephew, Melvin Lane Powers, neared the end of their first - degree murder trial today as the defence tried to turn a finger of suspicion toward a husky interior decorator.

He is Fred Roy Weissel, 29, who turned up beaten and bloody in the general area about an hour after Jacques Mossler was slain early June 30, 1964. Interrogated briefly by authorities, Wiessel never was treated by them as a suspect in the case. He has not testified in the trial.

A physician Thursday described Weissel as a badly beat up man, with "brush burns" on his body "that could have been caused by any type of outdoor terrain."

"And they could have come from a carpet or any irregular surface," asked Powers's chief defence counsel, Percy Foreman.

"Yes," the doctor replied.

REFERS TO APARTMENT

"You couldn't even tell if they came from Governors' Lodge, Apartment 2-C, Sunrise Drive?" continued Foreman, alluding to the Key Biscayne apartment where Mossler was slain.

The physician managed to get in a "no" answer as the state objected.

Mrs. Mossler, a small attractive blonde who gives her age as 40, and her strapping nephew Powers, 29, are on trial for their lives. They are accused of slaying her 69-year-old husband in furtherance of a love affair, with Mossler's $33,000,000 fortune in mind. Mossler headed a banking and loan empire.

Weissel stands a little better than six feet, weighs more than 200 pounds. His name has played in the background of testimony since the beginning of Florida's most sensational murder trial. He was described as "a homosexual since the age of nine."

The defence repeatedly has raised the suggestion that Mossler was a homosexual and could have fallen victim the night of his death to a pervert companion.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Naturally, every owner attempts to get the highest price when he sells. Some writers have been advising that this objective can be achieved by putting the house in excellent condition through extensive rehabilitation prior to offering it for sale.

The advice appears reasonable but it is not true.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We have lived in our house for 26 years. The family is now grown, the house is too large and we plan to sell. Estimates for fixing up the house run more than $6,800. Included are major items such as, a new heater, electrical wiring and modernizing the kitchen.

Will spending the money be a wise investment? — Ready to Sell.

ANSWER: I am aware of articles which suggest improving the house. Their reasoning appears logical but is not correct.

Large sums of money spent in modernizing and rehabilitating a house are almost never recovered at the time of sale. Usually, the most a home owner should do is to fix up a house in a superficial manner by papering, painting and repairing obvious defects. There are some exceptions, but this is the extent of money that should be spent in getting the normal house ready for sale.

When large sums of money are spent, the experience has been that even getting the extra money back is most difficult — the chances of making a profit are most remote.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: A broker is trying to sell me a garage type building, well located, and rented to the same tenant for many years. The asking price is $30,000.

After paying necessary expenses I will have a six per cent return on my money. I am told this is a good investment return. I'd rather get your advice first. — First Time Investor

ANSWER: A fair investment return on a small garage type building is 10 to 12 per cent. A good return is 15 per cent. For guidance, real estate on a long term lease to the United States government usually shows better than a six per cent return.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: When I retired two years ago I was urged by my family to put my affairs in good order. Using the best professional advice, I did just that.

I deeded my house to my eldest son. Until yesterday, I felt proud and generous — but that's the day I was served with a notice to vacate.

My son tells me he sold the house because he needed money and couldn't wait several more years until I was gone.

Is there any way I can get the house back? — Foolish Father.

ANSWER: I chose this letter not because there is anything I can do, but, rather as an object lesson for readers

Unless one's assets are large and a potential tax problem looms, it is best not to give away your property during your lifetime. There will be plenty of time for your heirs to enjoy it after you are gone.

My files contain hundreds of similar heart-breaking letters, and I grieve because I cannot help.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: In my nine room house I have only one bath. I would like to install a first floor powder room, either under the stairs or in a closet. Could you please tell me the minimum space required and the approximate cost? — Tired of Climbing Stairs

ANSWER: The minimum space required for a powder room (toilet and sink) is about 24 x 42 inches. The minimum cost is about $250 If the connections to water and sewer lines are at a distance it will cost more.

A WORD OF CAUTION: Make sure your local building code allows an interior location with forced ventilation. Some communities still have a code requiring a window.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I'm moving. Everything is planned but the one item that has me baffled is what to do with the food in my freezer. The moving man has supplied cartons. I know the food will be spoiled by the time I get to my new place. My husband says ask the expert — namely you. — Harried Housewife.

ANSWER: The best and least troublesome solution is to leave the food in the freezer. Turn the thermostat as low as possible and leave the freezer plugged in until the last moment. Then seal with tape to prevent accidental opening. If your move is completed within 24 to 36 hours there will be no spoilage.

If a longer time is required, throw in 25 to 100 pounds of dry ice (depending on freezer size) before sealing.

• • •

Mr. Metlzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Alexander said he doubted that Ankrah "could run the political side by himself."

KOTOKA IS LEADER

The broadcast announcing the coup identified Col. E. K. Kotoka as leader of the revolt.

He announced that the 10,000-man army had taken power, dissolved Parliament, dismissed Nkrumah and outlawed his Convention People's party—the only party Nkrumah had allowed.

All Canadians — estimated to number about 600—in Ghana were reported safe.

Reports from Accra said most of Nkrumah's ministers were arrested — some of them wounded by gunfire.

Former foreign minister Kojo Botsio and defence minister Kosi Baako were held at police headquarters, where Col. Kotoka commanded mop-up operations.

The radio said Ghana would remain in the United Nations, the Organization of African Unity and the British Commonwealth. Ghana last year broke relations with Britain over the Rhodesia issue.

if we can get the message home to (North) Viet Nam and that we have put out hands to the plow and do not intend to turn back," the Georgia Democrat said.

Several Republicans and Democrats who heard the vice-president's briefing Thursday on his nine-nation Asian tour called it impressive and persuasive.

Senator J. W. Fulbright (Dem. Ark.), one of Johnson's strongest critics, would not comment on the meeting but Morse later told the Senate:

"I think he (Humphrey) has lost all his persuasiveness among people who think. I never expected my vice-president to make this plea for war that he is making."

Another dissent came from Senator Norris Cotton (Rep. N.H.) who said a high administration official—he did not identify him—had asked him earlier to seek public support for Johnson's Viet Nam policy.

Cotton said this in complaining to the Senate about what he called unnecessary secrecy surrounding the military and diplomatic situation.

OFFER TO AID INDIANS

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask. (CP)—A Hutterite colony leader has suggested co-operative development of virgin Indian reserve land in this area. Peter Wertz said he could put four foremen onto any one of several reserves and "have 10,000 or more acres under cultivation in a year" with local Indian labor. At present only a few hundred acres on each reserve is farmed.

Reader Says In-laws All Part of Family

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS: I read your column all the time and today I was very pleased with your answer to "Wondering Daughters." I wish, though, you could put across to them that there is something very wrong with their family that they should even consider such a thing. I am from a large family, where the daughter-in-law outnumber us daughters, but we are all family and everyone is asked for suggestions when planning family affairs, and everyone does her share of work.

We are all like sisters, and I'd feel like a fool telling my sister (in-law or otherwise) that for a family affair she is an outsider and should wait on the family.

What's wrong with those daughters? Haven't they accepted the wives of their brothers? I wonder how they'd feel if someone suggested they wait on their husband's sisters. Boy, I'd like to see the cloud of smoke when the shoe is on the other foot.

I've been disgusted by some of the dumb questions people ask you, but this really got under my skin, I sure would hate to be a sister-in-law in that family. — ANGRY SISTER (with lots of wonderful sisters-in-law.)

DEAR ANGRY: Bravo!

DEAR DORIS: I am 14 and would like to go on a diet. I was wondering whether fat cheeks are because you are fat or because you are born with them. — WONDERING.

DEAR WONDERING: Probably some of each. Round cheeks grow rounder when their owner puts on weight; but so do narrow one and square ones. And there are some pleasingly slender gals with rounded jaw lines they were born with.

For details about diet, write in again enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, ten cents and the facts about your height, weight and age.

MR. AND MRS. BRIAN WILLIAM SMITH

Smith – Yorke

Baskets of blue tinted commercial 'mums and white gladioli adorned the altar in Holloway Street United Church, Belleville when Donna Irene Yorke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Yorke, Belleville was united in marriage to Brian William Smith, of Pontiac, Michigan, son of Mrs. K. S. Smith of Aberdeen, Scotland.

Rev. J. W. Lamb, minister of the church officiated at the service and the organist Mr. Angus Macleod played traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist Miss Patricia Shorey, cousin of the bride in appropriate vocal selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length bridal gown of imported lace over taffeta featuring an Empire waistline and flowing, lace chapel train. Matching lace was carried out along the slim sheath skirt and the top of the gown was enhanced with a matching jacket with three-quarter length sleeves. An elbow-length veil flowed from a headdress of seed pearls and crystals.

She carried a white Bible crested with a horseshoe arrangement of heather and tartan with streamers of white feathered carnations.

Mrs. Bruce Reid, sister of the bride as matron of honor and the bridesmaids, Mrs. Lowell Yorke, and Miss Patti Jenkinson, wore full-length gowns of midnight blue crepe fashioned Empire style with matching lace jackets and carried white fur muffs with corsages of heather; all wore white fur headdresses. The little flower girl, Miss Beth Shorey, wore a full-length dress of white crepe with lace sleeves and carried a white fur muff adorned with a corsage of blue tinted feathered carnations.

Mr. G. R. Emslie was groomsman and Mr. T. E. Georgison, Mr. L. C. Yorke and Mr. J. B. Bird were the ushers.

For the reception dinner at the Belleville Shrine Club, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a champagne beige brocade dress with matching jacket, rose tulle hat and a corsage of rose colored carnations. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother, who made the trip from Scotland to attend the wedding, dressed in emerald green brocade with matching jacket and hat, and a corsage of white carnations.

Prior to leaving on the honeymoon trip to Western Ontario, the bride donned a dark brown wool suit with matching straw and velvet hat, black patent accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Smith will reside in Pontiac, Michigan, U.S.A.

Manor W.A. Plans Bingo For Residents

Despite the chilly weather outside a warm air prevailed in the library of the Hastings Manor on Monday last when the Women's Auxiliary of the Manor held its monthly meeting and birthday party. There was a splendid attendance of members and some visitors.

The president Mrs. Hudson Ketcheson, presided and called for all committee reports. Mrs. A. Kingston reported there had been five tiny bowls containing a flower sent to residents in Belleville Hospital during the past month.

The birthday cards for the month of March will be sent out to the residents through the kindness of Group No. 6 of Holloway St. United Church U.C.W.

A bingo party will be held for the residents on March 9th and as many members as possible are asked to be present to assist.

It was announced that the World Day of Prayer service would be observed at the Manor with the U.C.W. of Centenary church taking charge. Mrs. T. F. Townsend will be the speaker for the service.

With all business items attended to, the ladies met with the residents in the dining-room for their birthday party. After a short sing-song with Mrs. Daniels at the piano, the customary friendship circle was formed around the guests and the birthday song sung. The eldest guest present, Mrs. Hoard who was celebrating her 96th birthday, cut the cake and pictures were taken.

Mrs. C. Holmes and Mrs. O. Bertram poured tea and everyone enjoyed a tasty lunch.

Report Shows Library Use Increases

No year can compare with 1965 for requests for reference service at Belleville's Corby Public Library. According to the library's annual report, elementary and secondary school students and adults came to the library in such numbers last year that often, there was not enough seating capacity to accommodate them.

The number of books borrowed during 1965 was up 12,987 over the previous year. Adult members of the library borrowed 170,450 books and children, 89,856 last year.

New books catalogued totalled 8,785, the largest number ever recorded for one year.

In view of this increased use of the library by the public, and the need to give better service, funds received from the Regional Library were used to purchase a Recordak book charging machine and a micro-film reader.

FINANCES REPORTED

Largest figure in the receipts column is the city tax levy of $58,513.08 while the provincial grant was $33,885.58.

Salaries, $54,877.49 and books, $27,747.67 were the big items in expenditures last year.

The financial report shows a balance of $1,256.82 as of December 31, 1965.

At the annual meeting of the Library Board held Tuesday, W. G. Anderson was returned as chairman.

Vice - chairman is J. E. Bateman; chairman of finance, J. K. Canty; chairman of property, Mrs. A. S. Lewis and secretary-treasurer, Miss Olive Delaney.

CANE CADDY

Dear Susanna: While cleaning out the hall closet I discovered a remarkable new use for discarded nylon stockings.

I put my husband's four canes (that he would never part with) in one nylon stocking, two umbrellas in another, and three window blinds, not in use, in a third.

This transparent storage bag is reasonably dust proof, and by inserting a slit in the stocking just below the leg band, it can be hung neatly, and securely, on a hook.

Fold over the top and tuck in the heel, with a stitch and the bag no longer looks like a stocking, but takes on the appearance of a very respectable holder.

I was delighted to find such a simple method of relieving the clutter in the hall closet of our small apartment where all the extras seem to have to be stored. — Mrs. Mary MacGuaig

Now there is an idea we can add to our pamphlet on practical uses for nylons.

Also included in our pamphlet are instructions for making a braided rug, and if you are interested in receiving a copy, girls, just include a hint with your request and your letter will be given A-1, top priority treatment! — SUSANNA

NOVEL INVITATIONS

Many of us are starting already to gather up steam for our special fund raising scheme.

The activity you are planning may be a spring tea, a bake sale, a fashion show or a rummage meeting. Whatever it is, why not foster a little additional anticipation by giving a flair to those invitations.

Our outstanding bonnet card is simply cut out from colored Bristol board in the shape of a garden party hat. Add your own elementary art work.

There is usually someo the group who can type the particulars on the inside.

When our card is folded it fits nicely into a standard envelope. — SUSANNA

P.S. If you care for a sample, it would be fun to send you one — especially if you remember to include a H-I-N-T! — SUSANNA

NDP'S FIRST WOMAN MP — Mrs. Grace MacInnis, 60, Member of Parliament for Vancouver - Kingsway, is submerged in her new work on Parliament Hill, Ottawa. The daughter of CCF founder J. S. Woodsworth and the widow of six-term MP Angus MacInnis, she isn't a stranger to Parliament's corridors. As a voluntary worker for the CCF, the NDP Member met her future husband in the office of her father, just two down from the one she has now. (CP Photo)

Women Have a Place in Politics Says NDP Member From Vancouver

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—Grace MacInnis was first elected to the House of Commons last Nov. 8 but she's no stranger to the corridors of the Parliament buildings.

Her father was J. S. Woodsworth, founder of the CCF party and MP for Winnipeg North Centre. It was in his office, just two down from the one she has now, that she met her future husband, Angus MacInnis, a veteran of six terms in the Commons. He died two years ago at 79.

"I came in to work every day with my father, and later my husband—it was strictly voluntary of course," says Mrs. MacInnis.

She is a small, slim woman, with short grey hair and striking hazel eyes. At 60, she's friendly and energetic, with a warm relaxed manner and a slight Western drawl.

The first woman elected to the Commons from British Columbia, she represents Vancouver-Kingsway, a riding once held by her husband.

She grew up in Winnipeg where her father was a minister at Grace Church. "That's why they called me Grace." The oldest of six children, she planned to be a teacher like her mother and studied modern languages and history at university.

DIDN'T LIKE TEACHING

After a scholarship at the Sorbonne she went to teachers' college in Ottawa and taught for a while at nearby South March. Then she tried high school teaching in Winnipeg but "didn't like it all that much."

So she returned to Ottawa and worked in her father's office, writing weekly newsletters for farm, labor and party journals and acting as secretary of the CCF.

Women have a place in politics and can provide a new approach to legislation, she says. "Women see the people behind the laws."

Because she is the only woman in the 21-member NDP group in the Commons, she knows she will "get pitchforked into" handling legislation about women. "I have the background," she says with a laugh.

In her maiden speech in January, she attracted attention by saying mothers should be paid "an adequate wage" to enable them to stay home if they want to.

"There's nothing wrong with a wife going out to work if she wants to. But if she wants to stay home, she should be able to do that. And at present, some families are too poor. If mother doesn't work, they don't eat."

She also thinks a salary would stop the "just a housewife" syndrome. "Status and salary seem to go together."

WROTE BIOGRAPHY

She would like to see more help given the working mother. "I have no children myself but I understand the problems." She recommends increased day-nursery facilities close to the mother's place of business.

"There should be nurseries available for housewives too, so they can pursue their own hobbies and interests sometimes."

Mrs. MacInnis hasn't many spare-time interests. "I always seem to throw myself completely into what I do." She once wrote an award-winning biography of her father, but finds her writing time pretty limited these days.

On the job, she likes to practise her French on everybody from the elevator operators up. "I inflict it on them."

She likes Ottawa, but admits to feeling a pang of nostalgia for her garden in Vancouver. "The crocuses and tulips will be out soon. And I have all kinds of summer flowers from daisies to climbing roses and of course a little dogwood tree." About once every six weeks she will fly out to the coast, but she has rented her Vancouver home to a young couple.

"I guess people are my biggest interest. So I couldn't ask for a better job."

Girl Complains About Double Standard

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm writing about that grief-stricken college boy whose sweetheart confessed she had had intimate relations with a high school lad. I know the type. I'll bet he had affairs with at least six girls while he was in high school. He arrives at college and is disappointed not to find an abundance of "white flower" girls. Where have all the lovely flowers gone? To the high school boys like "Grief Stricken" — I'll bet.

If these creeps think so highly of virgins why don't they leave a few around? Can you imagine a girl who had had six or seven affairs demanding that her fiance be 100% pure? The fellow would fall down laughing.

A male with sex experience is called a lover. A woman with sex experience is called a tramp. Men want to marry lily-white maidens but they also like to take their fun where they find it. Such hypocrisy makes me sick. — MISS K.Q.

DEAR MISS K.Q.: If I had your address I'd send you a get well card. Thanks for a good letter. You speak the truth, Lady.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have worked for this firm for 12 years. I started at a modest salary because the boss assured me that I would "grow with the company." The company has grown and I've made a significant contribution. Yet I've received exactly one salary increase — four years ago.

There are no bonus arrangements, no stock options, no chance that I will ever share in the profits. I'm on a straight salary, plus a turkey for Christmas. Whenever I talk to my boss about a raise he tells me I'm loyal, and invaluable to the company. He lays on the compliments, then says I should be happy to work for people who appreciate me.

I have three children to put through college. When I ask my wife if I should leave she says, "A bird in the hand . . .." What do you advise? — SOFT SOAPED.

DEAR SOAPED: They won't take birds as payment for college tuition anymore, or compliments either.

Look around for a company that can use your talents. Equally important is the quality of people you'd be working for and with. Be selective. When you find the combination tell your boss good-bye, and next Christmas send him a turkey.

* * *

DEAR ANN: When I first married Jim he always seemed to disappear when guests arrived. He'd either go to the basement and repair the lawn mower or out to the garage and change the oil in the car, or upstairs to rummage around in old papers and magazines.

It caused me a lot of embarrassment and he knew it, but he just wouldn't change so I gave up inviting company at night.

Now that our children are teen-agers it's the same story. When Carla told us a boy friend would be coming over and she wanted dad to meet him I knew what would happen. And it did. The minute the boy showed up, Jim went downstairs and started to putter around. He stayed there for an hour.

Finally Carla took the boy downstairs and introduced him to her dad. Jim was very friendly and they got along fine. What can be done to change Jim? Why is he like this?—CONCERNED.

DEAR CON: Jim is ill at ease with strangers and he avoids discomfort by "disappearing." I doubt that he will ever change, so accept him as he is — and work around it as best as you can.

Top Quality Will Be Aim Of Designer

LONDON (Reuters) — Toronto - born designer Donald Campbell takes on one of the toughest tasks in the fashion world this week—transforming high couture into quality off-the-peg clothes.

The soft - spoken Canadian took over Thursday as designer and manager of London couturier Cavanagh's first ready-to-wear boutique.

"I see this as a real challenge," he said at the opening reception. "I gave up my own Kensington couture house to take on this job of bringing top-quality clothes to a far wider range of women."

Campbell joined Cavanagh 10 years ago at the age of 19 when he left a Toronto wholesale firm to come here.

He next gathered experience of the British wholesale market and finally branched out independently in the couture world.

Now his designs will be displayed in the exotic, gold-decorated Mayfair salon with its 10-foot golden palm tree motif.

"Although my clothes will sell from as little as £15 pounds ($45) I am using couture fabrics," explained Campbell. "I don't subscribe to the stark look in fashion. My clothes will be feminine and flattering."

Faced With Two Choices

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

Dr. Elton Trueblood has said that ours is a "cut-flower civilization." That is, most people today are like flowers cut from their roots. They no longer live by a great faith in God. They are like branches cut from the vine. (John 15:4) They no longer receive the life-giving flow of a great faith to nourish their motives and ideals.

Man's predicament can be described by Lot's plight centuries ago. Faced with too little pasture for their 2 herds, his uncle Abraham, generously offered Lot the land to the right or to the left. Lot selfishly chose the well-watered Jordan valley. In doing so, he "pitched his tent toward Sodom." (Gen. 13:12 KJV) That was his undoing. Lot could not resist the pull of the city of Sodom, and it was Sodom, later destroyed for its wickedness, that cost him the life of his wife, and forced him to flee with his daughters to hide in a distant cave. (Gen. 19:15-30)

All men, says the Bible, are faced with two choices. They can "set their minds on the things of the flesh," or "on the things of the spirit." The first choice leads to "death," the second to "life and peace." (Rom. 8:6)

But the problem is that, without God's help, men are incapable of making the right choice. That is, left to themselves, they tend to defy God, and to love the things of the world rather than the things of God. As the Apostle Paul puts it, "The mind that is set on the flesh is hostile to God; it does not submit to God's law, indeed it cannot." (Rom. 8:7) How, then, can men overcome this tendency to turn from God, and begin to desire His will more than their own?

HEAVEN'S MAGNET

The Christian message is that God Himself took the initiative to draw men back to Him. He used the life and death of Jesus as heaven's greatest magnet to pull men back to Himself. Jesus said, "And I, when I am lifted up . . . will draw all men to Myself." (John 12:32-33 RSV) And God has been using the life and death of Jesus to pull millions of people back into a new relationship of faith and love to Him.

In fact, Jesus felt this was His prime mission. God had sent Him into the "far country" of man's world to declare to men who try desperately to live in the pig-sties of pride, self-will, and moral defeat that a watching and loving Father is waiting to offer them the gift of pardon if they will return to Him in penitence and faith. (Luke 15:11-24)

He came, said Jesus, "to seek and to save the lost." (Luke 19:10 RSV) He came, He said, to offer His life a "ransom for many." (Mark 10:45) He came to heal the sinful. (Matthew 9:12-13) He came, said the Apostle Paul, "to redeem us from all iniquity," and to "purify for Himself a people of His own who are zealous for good deeds." (Titus 2:14 RSV)

But it was not easy. Men do not give up their love of the world or their self-will easily. Like a child that kicks the mother who is trying to give him the healing medicine, men struck out at Jesus, preferring their way and their idea of God to His.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for February 27: "Man Redeemed", Romans 8:1-11; Ephesians 2:1-10; Titus 2:11-14; I Peter 1:13-25.

In his book, "Through the Valley of the Kwai," Chaplain Ernest Gordon (Harper and Row Publishers, Inc) tells of a British soldier who watched as a fellow-prisoner-of-war was being beaten by his Japanese captor. At last, the British soldier could stand it no longer. He jumped between the prisoner and his persecutor, and the blows of the enraged officer fell with redoubled vigor on his own body until he lost consciousness and fell under the savage attack.

The New Testament says that Jesus did just that. He threw Himself between man and the forces of evil letting the blows deserved by sinful men fall on His own innocent body. Such a sight, says Paul, does for us what merely knowing what is right according to the law can never do. It shames men into repentance for their sins. (Rom. 8:13)

One can imagine the gratitude the prisoner-of-war carried in his heart toward the British soldier for taking on his own body the blows meant for him, and for saving him from the further blows of his captor. To his dying day he would want to do everything he could to show his gratitude for that brave and unselfish act. And men can show their gratitude to Jesus, says Paul, by renouncing "irreligion and worldly passions," and by trying to live "sober, upright and godly lives in the world." (Titus 2:12)

Expo Bill May Be Below Estimated Cost While Outlook for Revenue Improves

By MICHAEL BLAIR

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian taxpayer, who has been watching in some fascination as the bill for Expo 67 climbs steadily, may be in for some pleasant jolts. Not the least is that it now seems the fair may actually underspend its latest budget figure.

In the last six months, the over-all budget of the government - established Canadian Corp. for the 1967 World Exhibition has been boosted to $282,000,000 from the previous figure of $244,000,000.

Now Andrew Kniewasser, general manager of the corporation, hints that this latest figure will not be reached and says he hopes to have some financial surprises when Expo's bills are finally settled.

"They won't be extraordinary, but they should still be surprises," he said in an interview.

As a moderate start, he revealed, Expo has underspent its operating budget for 1965. This budget was $8,000,000, and savings on it are expected to be about $250,000. Other economies are looked for on about $105,000,000 worth of construction contracts let by Expo last year.

If Mr. Kniewasser's forecast holds up, it could mean a drop in Expo's big expected deficit. While the spending estimates have been climbing, so have those of revenues—to $221,000,000 from $184,000,000 in the last six months.

This leaves the fair now with a deficit, on paper, of $61,000,000, compared with an original figure of $40,000,000 set by Parliament. The federal government is to absorb half, the province of Quebec 37½ per cent and the City of Montreal 12½ per cent.

Expo has earmarked $200,000,000 for construction, and contracts up to $105,000,000 so far have been let. Mr. Kniewasser, former economic and commercial adviser at the Canadian embassy in Paris and a graduate of Queen's University, said construction costs have been lower than budgeted for in some instances.

Other countries and provinces are expected to spend $200,000,000 on pavilions, and private industry $32,000,000, for a total of $232,000,000 worth of construction. Countries will pay $2 a square foot for their pavilion space, including the cost of services.

Expo now has 722 full-time employees, 122 below its authorized total and the number expected on staff by April 28, 1967, when the exhibition opens for its six-month run. During that period hundreds of short-term employees will be taken on, but by that time architects and others employed in the planning department will have left.

Sales of tickets—called passports—are well under way. The Royal Automobile Club alone has offered to distribute $1,000,000 worth. Sales in the United States will be handled by American Express, and Canadian embassies will handle "passports" in other countries.

Visitors will be able to have their "passports" stamped at the pavilion of each of the 70 participating countries.

Expo officials look for a good return from concessions. Restaurants on the site are expected to have a turnover of $70,000,000 and boutiques selling various kinds of merchandise, another $35,000,000. The corporation expects about $7,000,000 in commissions from the restaurants alone.

There will be 150 restaurants and 320 boutiques. Restaurant seats will total 23,000, including those in national pavilions.

The restaurant revenue figure is one of the few relatively-firm ones Expo has released. Ticket revenue is an unknown quantity, but officials expect 10,000,000 people will see the exhibition for an average of three visits each—or 30,000,000 admissions.

Income Tax Tips

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By D. W. DAVIES, C.A.

RENTAL INCOME AND EXPENSES

Taxpayers who have received rental income for the first time in 1964 should note that they cannot use the T1 short form to report their earnings. They must use the T1 General as it has space provided for rental income calculation.

It is only the net amount of rentals after the deduction of the allowable expenses, that need be reported. The T1 General in the rental income space shows what expenses may be deducted. These are, taxes, insurance, repairs, mortgages, interest on the rental property capital cost allowance (depreciation) and any other outlays necessary to the upkeep of the property.

Most taxpayers have difficulty in distinguishing between current expenses and those of a capital nature. It is only current expenses that are deductible. If a taxpayer replaced a worn out furnace by one of the same type it would be a current expense but should he have changed from coal to oil then this would be a capital expense and not deductible from the gross rents. All capital expenses must be added to the undepreciated balance and capital cost allowance taken on the new total. The capital cost allowance schedule on the return must be completed each year and it is imperative that the taxpayer keep a copy each year for future use. The rate of depreciation is 5 percent of the cost [illegible] the house, less land, if it is [illegible] brick construction. If it is fram[illegible] or stucco on frame the rate is 10 percent.

If the taxpayer had occupied the now rented house for a number of years, he can use the value of the house, when first rented for calculation of the capital cost allowance (depreciation). Do not use the municipal assessment value as most municipalities do not assess a house at its actual worth. It is better to have it appraised by a competent realtor.

For a personal reply, enclose a self addressed, five cent stamped envelope plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: What is capital cost allowance and how is it determined?

Answer: It is depreciation and is determined at the rate applicable to the type of construction, that is [illegible] per cent for brick and 10 per cent for frame.

Question 2: I built a ne[illegible] home and spent $200 on the o[illegible] one to get it ready for renting. Can I deduct this as an expense?

Answer: No. It must be added to the value of the building and capital cost allowance (depreciation) taken on the total.

Threats on Life From Crackpots Influenced by Bad Local Press

--Robichaud

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robichaud of New Brunswick says one of a number of threats against his life after he initiated drastic reforms in his province came from a man who identified himself as a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

The premier, who will participate in a political gathering here Saturday, told a press conference Thursday that the threats last fall were from crackpots influenced by a "bad local press in Fredericton."

Under questioning, he named The Gleaner and its publisher, Michael Wardell, who opposed his reforms.

But, he said, he laughed at the idea of an attempt on his life.

"Attorney-General W. W. Meldrum said in the legislature he had received threatening letters," said Mr. Robichaud, "but this hasn't changed my way of life in any way and I don't intend it to."

OPINION DIVIDED

The premier's reform program has been acclaimed as a plan of modernization by those who favor it and denounced as a "grab for power" by leaders of a determined battle against it.

Opponents claim the legislation is creating a split between the more prosperous English-speaking majority and the poorer rural Acadian French.

Premier Robichaud said Thursday his Program for Equal Opportunity will fight poverty and that opposition to it would slow down as its beneficial effects were realized.

He said there were elements in New Brunswick trying to set one segment of the population against the other.

"New Brunswick has a record of harmonious relationship between its peoples and I don't want it broken by a foreigner," he said.

Asked whom he meant he answered: "Michael Wardell."

Mr. Wardell, once an executive on the late Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express in London and British-born, has been publisher of The Gleaner since 1951.

Mr. Robichaud said the crisis over the program "will last for months with the opposition attempting to exploit the situation in a way to defeat the government."

His program would eventually give the province control of health, education, welfare, justice and assessment. County administrations, relieved of these major responsibilities, are to disappear.

Mr. Robichaud said the assessment bill for municipal reform, which passed the New Brunswick house, is one of 131 bills to implement his program to raise the standard of living.

The other bills were introduced and allowed to die in order to give the public an idea of what his government had in mind, he said.

In Fredericton, Mr. Wardell said the premier's "references are utterly disgraceful and without any authority. In effect, he is charging that I and the Daily Gleaner have incited men to murder him . . . and that is one of the most disgraceful charges ever made by a minister holding public office. There is no vestige of truth and every criticism of the newspaper has been thoroughly within the competence of journalism and in the public interest. The Daily Gleaner will continue to criticize both Mr. Robichaud and his policies."

Parliamentary Notebook

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberal government appears likely to follow a Senate committee's recommendation of a guaranteed minimum income for the elderly, informed sources say.

A final decision has yet to be made. The cabinet has considered it and there is still discussion at the highest levels. However, people close to the topic have no doubt the idea will be accepted.

The Senate committee on aging on Feb. 2 recommended a government - supported minimum of $105 a month for single persons 65 and over and $185 for couples.

It had been known earlier that the recommendation had gained widespread acceptance in government circles. Now it's known to have taken an even stronger hold

One public tipoff came Wednesday in a text of an undelivered speech by Agriculture Minister Greene to the Women's Liberal Association in nearby Perth.

LAUDS COMMITTEE

It lauded the Senate committee and its proposal in unusually glowing terms, terming it "challenging" and "worthy of serious consideration."

The committee deserved a "sincere vote of thanks for daring to break new ground in the field of ideas for public policy."

"It does not seem impossible" that some day there will be a guaranteed minimum income for every family in Canada, maybe every adult.

"Certainly it is an idea to challenge the imagination, the kind of idea that Liberalism can use in the age of automation."

If Mr. Green's views reflect official opinion, it looks as if the principle of a guaranteed income has been found both attractive and in tune with the times.

Although there's been no suggestion at this stage the government is thinking of a guaranteed income for everybody, the idea of giving it to the elderly seems to have caught on.

Sources say government thinking at the moment is for a federal guaranteed-income plan without the involvement of the provinces.

It would stand quite apart from the federally-operated old-age pension plan which provides a $75-a-month pension to all those 69 or over. Canadians can get it at 65 with a means test.

Moreover it would have nothing to do with the Canada Assistance Plan, a federal-provincial arrangement now in the works to provide special financial assistance to the needy elderly.

Standing alone, it would buttress these and other welfare programs such as family allowances.

Under the plan, an elderly person would file a return stating his income. If it's less than the minimum, he would get a cheque back from the federal government, possibly once a month.

CONSIDERED VALUABLE

Such a plan is looked on as holding considerable immediate political value for the minority government.

After the Nov. 8 election campaign Liberal spokesmen said they lost votes in Nova Scotia because of Conservative promises to raise the old-age pension to $100 from $75. The NDP advocated a similar increase.

Early in the parliamentary session, Liberals MPs were in the position of voting against the opposition pension proposal in two non-confidence motions in the Commons, although some were known to support an increase.

As one source puts it, acceptance of the guaranteed annual income would allow the Liberal government to improve the lot of the elderly without leaving the impression of knuckling under to opposition pressure for a straight pension increase.

Prison Population Will Be 10,500 Persons in 1970

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Larry Pennell forecast Thursday that Canada's prison population will increase to 10,500 in 1973 from 7,362 at Dec. 31, 1965.

He said in the Commons that of the 7,362 about 41 per cent will return after release because of new offences.

During the next eight months, five new medium security prisons would be opened at Springhill, N.S., Cowansville, Que., Warkworth, Ont., Drumheller, Alta., and Matsqui, B.C., and a start would be made on a special correction unit at St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary at Montreal. Approximate cost would be $40,000,000.

With the opening of the five new prisons, "it is hoped that the policy that no institution should accommodate more than 450 inmates will be put in effect."

In his maiden speech as solicitor-general, Mr. Pennell said St. Vincent de Paul will be discontinued as a maximum security prison by 1970.

START CONSTRUCTION

Construction of two new maximum security prisons at St. Anne des Plaines, Que., and Millhaven, Ont., is scheduled to start this year.

Mr. Pennell said properties will be acquired in Montreal, Vancouver, Winnipeg and Toronto for community release centres. Prisoners within two months of expiration of sentence or release on parole would be provided with food and shelter while they found employment and became adjusted to non-prison life.

The minister said he is "gravely concerned" about the "disturbing situation" in which juveniles are held in federal prisons.

There now were four 15-year-olds, 20 16-year-olds and 73 17-year-olds in federal institutions. The four 15-year-olds were in the federal training centre at Laval City, a special institution for offenders between the ages of 16 and 23.

Nkrumah Has Only Self To Blame for Disaster That Has Overtaken Him

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Kwame Nkrumah, once symbol of Africa's brightest hopes, can blame himself for the disaster that overtook him Thursday.

Nkrumah turned the screw so ruthlessly on Ghana—and drove away or persecuted so many former friends—that a rebellion of some kind was regarded as inevitable.

Informants from Ghana have reported the military revolt appears to have a "centre-right" political slant, away from the extreme brand of African socialism or Marxism promoted by Nkrumah.

Envoys from Communist countries sometimes confessed privately they could not understand Nkrumah's socialism, so heavily laced with his own cult of personality, impulses and even whims.

The change may mean a friendlier stance by Ghana toward the West but sources in London—who hardly bother to conceal their satisfaction over the coup—feel the object of the exercise was staged strictly to overthrow a dictatorship. Only time could tell Ghana's future alignment.

BEGAN MARCH IN 1957

Ghana's unhappy political and economic condition today is seen dramatically when taken in comparison with the brave days of 1957, when the West African country started the big independence march that has reached all the way to the Zambezi and Rhodesia.

Nkrumah, once jailed for his nationalist campaign, became the first black premier to attend a Commonwealth prime ministers conference, and later attended the United Nations General Assembly.

He did much to set in motion the pan-African movement that has resulted in a 36-nation Organization of African Unity. He seemed to personify the hopes of all African leaders.

With reserves of £240,000,000 ($720,000,000) on independence, Ghana—the former Gold Coast—did not have to go cap in hand for aid as many other countries, but embarked on big projects, sometimes simply prestige projects. It started an international airline, now flying the most modern VC-10 aircraft with Nkrumah's picture in every first-class cabin.

Nkrumah was the guest of the Queen and Prince Philip at Balmoral in 1959, and they visited Ghana in 1961. The Queen danced the high life with Nkrumah in that land of infectious gaiety.

SHOCKED WESTERN WORLD

But by then Nkrumah was well embarked on the path that led to Thursday's events. He shocked the Western world with his treatment of the respected scholar Dr. J. B. Danquah.

Nkrumah was only 38 when in 1947 he was called home after studies in the United States and Britain to become a high official of Danquah's political party. Last year Danquah died in one of Nkrumah's prisons, having tried to oppose his one-time lieutenant for the presidency in 1960.

Nkrumah squandered his resources of both goodwill and finance. He established some 50 state enterprises, most of which have one thing in common — they lose money.

In his defence, however, it is noted a world fall in cocoa prices probably contributed more than anything else to Ghana's financial plight and Nkrumah's fault was that he tried to do too much, not too little as is the case with some other countries.

JAILED MANY

Banning opposition and criticism, he threw in jail many unfortunates under a notorious law that empowers indefinite imprisonment without trial in renewable periods of 10 years.

Nkrumah, while ostensibly working for African union, angered brother African leaders by working quietly against the efforts of Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda to link in an East African Federation.

"This union government business has become a cover for doing some of the most unbrotherly things," said Tanzania President Julius Nyerere.

The speculation here is that—for all these reasons—Nkrumah will not be able to duplicate the feat of Ethiopia's King Haile Selassie, who foiled a coup staged while he was away on a state visit to Brazil in 1960. However, it remains to be seen for certain whether the osagyefo, or redeemer, can match the craftiness of a king.

Canada Has Assisted Ghana In Many Ways

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—Canada has assisted Ghana in military training and in numerous other fields ranging from the mighty Volta dam project to the campaign against rinderpest, a cattle disease.

Since 1961 Canadian instructors have helped to train the Ghanaian Army, and officers—in conversation with a visiting reporter—spoke highly of the quality of the Ghanian soldier.

Military teams of 20 or more have been doing the job. In addition there were more than 80 Canadian external aid advisers in Ghana late last year with 12 more—instructors in the new Accra Trades Training Centre—scheduled to arrive in January.

Although some of these officials expressed foreboding for the future of Ghana under Kwame Nkrumah, they seemed genuinely fond of the Ghanaian people, famed for their natural gaiety and high spirits.

An exception was made in the case of what one diplomat termed the "yahoos" — young Ghanaians filled with the pseudo-socialist ideas of Nkrumah.

While Ghanaians frequently spoke to Canadians in private with surprising frankness against the regime, they maintained in public a facade of loyalty to the dictatorial and fearsome Nkrumah.

MOST ARE TEACHERS

Teachers formed the largest single group of Canadians in Ghana, some 45 being employed throughout the country, two of them having been there for five years.

Two veterinarians helped fight rinderpest while a CBC team assisted in the setting up of a television network. There were three lecturers at the University of Ghana in food and soil science and a geologist advised the mines ministry of Ghana—the former Gold Coast—in the extraction of precious metals and minerals.

Canadian road transport advisers assisted the newly-established state transport corporation in planning and implementing a national road transport system.

Perhaps Canadians made the most striking contribution in the construction of the £60,000,000, 220-foot-high Volta dam, ranked with the giant Rhodesia-Zambia Kariba dam and Egypt's Aswan dam as one of the showpieces of Africa.

Frank J. Dobson of Port Credit, Ont., veteran of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, brought his talents to this project as chief executive, assisted by J. H. Rogers, Islington, Ont., and L. P. Klassen, chief accountant.

Ghost Town Perks Up

THOMPSON, Man. (CP)—Residents of this northern Manitoba mining town bought a disused radar station for $36,500 and turned it into a recreation centre. With a grant of $150,000 from International Nickel Co., a 2,000-seat arena, six-sheet curling rink, recreation hall and baseball park were built at a cost of $200,000.

Africans Seem More Proficient In Coups Than S. Americans

LONDON (CP) — Africans seem to have taken to the technique of military coups with greater gusto than even South Americans.

Ghana's military overthrow of President Kwame Nkrumah was to some extent encouraged by other coups in Africa in the last nine months, in the opinion of some Ghanaian exiles here.

Uganda's prime minister, Milton Obote, meanwhile, appears to have pulled off a sort of coup in favor of himself by firing ministers and suspending the constitution.

The theory of a chain reaction of coups does not mean that they are necessarily linked or even occur for the same reasons, although corruption, despotism, unemployment and political chaos have been basic reasons. Diplomats say news of one upset can trigger another if conditions are right.

All the coups have succeeded except in the tiny Central African country of Burundi, formerly ruled by Belgium, where army officers failed to overthrow King Mwambusta last Oct. 18.

KING TOOK HINT

More than 100 were killed and 50 executed. The king took the hint and has been living in Geneva, Switzerland, since November, enjoying the winter sports.

Of this year's four coups, two have occurred in former French territories, the Central African Republic, Jan. 1, and Upper Volta, Jan. 4, and two in former British territories, Nigeria and Ghana.

Last year there were revolts in Algeria and Dahomey, both formerly ruled by France, and Burundi and The Congo, both formerly Belgian.

Algeria, as the only Arab country involved, is in a category by itself. But Gen. Joseph Mobutu's coup in The Congo Nov. 25 seems to have been the model and the inspiration for Dahomey, which rebelled Nov. 29, the Central African Republic, and Upper Volta.

Virtually bloodless, the overthrows were accomplished without much difficulty. Mobutu, disillusioned with the Leopoldville politicians, took over the presidency and pushed aside the squabbling President Joseph Kasavubu and Premier Moise Tshombe.

GENERALS UPSET

Generals in the three smaller French - speaking countries, whose total population is little more than Ghana's 7,000,000, seemed equally disillusioned with quarrelsome and incompetent politicians. The countries are plagued by unemployment and poverty.

The new regimes of Dahomey and the Central African Republic promptly expelled Chinese diplomats. Some sources are convinced that China and Ghana's Nkrumah tried to aggravate the unrest among Nkrumah's West African neighbors.

Perhaps inevitably, consequences were far more tragic when the military takeover of Jan. 15 hit Nigeria, which, with 55,000,000 people, is the most populous country in Africa.

Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, highly respected in international circles, and two regional premiers were slain with many others, just after a conference of Commonwealth leaders had been held in Lagos, the Nigerian capital.

This followed a pattern of most emergent countries, election chaos, violence and death in the big country, which labored under a badly unbalanced federal system that aggravated tribal, regional and religious differences.

The intervention of the military in Ghana was easily understandable, since only the army could possibly challenge Nkrumah. Coherent civilian opposition was non-existent

African sources say the same applies in varying degrees to Obote's troubles in Uganda are described by reliable sources as the worst since independence was won from Britain in 1962, although the military was not initially involved.

Uganda had been moving towards a one-party state but now a split has occurred in Obote's ruling People's Congress. Obote's suspension of the constitution Thursday may have been a precaution in view of Ghana's revolt.

Hays, Argue and Davey Among Ten New Senators Named by Prime Minister

OTTAWA (CP) — Nine men from all walks of the Liberal party and a non - political scholar were named to the Senate Thursday by Prime Minister Pearson.

Best known among the new senators, who will receive $15,000 a year—$3,000 of it tax free—and retire at 75, are the following:

— Hazen Argue, 45, the last national leader of the old CCF socialist party, in 1960-61, who bolted to the Liberal party four years ago and was defeated as a Liberal in the 1963 and 1965 federal elections.

—Harry Hays, 56, plain-spoken cattleman and agriculture minister for 2½ years before being upset in the Nov. 8 election.

—Keith Davey, 39, who handed in his resignation as Liberal national organizer and campaign director after the 1965 election he had strongly urged failed to produce a Liberal majority.

—Dr. Norman A. MacKenzie, 72, constitutional law expert and former president of the universities of New Brunswick and British Columbia.

It was the longest slate of Senate appointments since 13 were named together July 28, 1955, by Liberal Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent. Five vacancies remain in the 102-seat upper chamber.

The appointments give the Senate a younger complexion and boost Liberal strength to 63 seats. There are 31 Conservatives, two independents and one independent Liberal.

DAVEY YOUNGEST

Average age of the new senators is 49.3 years and Senator Davey becomes the youngest member, taking over that distinction from Senator Orville Phillips (PC — Prince Edward Island) who is 41.

The other appointees are:

—Jean-Paul Deschatelets, 53, Montreal lawyer who resigned as works minister about a year ago for personal reasons and did not run in the last election.

—John Nichol, 42, Vancouver businessman and president of the Liberal Federation of Canada for the last two years.

—J. Harper Prowse, 52, Edmonton corporation lawyer and Alberta Liberal leader from 1947 to 1958 and defeated candidate in the 1962 and 1963 federal elections.

—Earl Hastings, 44, a Calgary oil businessman, former president of the Alberta Liberal Association and defeated candidate in the 1962 and 1963 federal elections.

—Charles McElman, 45, Fredericton, executive assistant and top political adviser to Liberal Premier Robichaud of NewBrunswick since 1960 and longtime Liberal organizer.

—Earl Urquhart, 45, West Bay, N.S., lawyer, former Nova Scotia Liberal leader and member of the legislature from 1949 to 1963, when he was defeated.

The appointments brought to 21 the number made by Mr. Pearson since he became prime minister April 22, 1963. John Diefenbaker made 37 appointments in almost six years as prime minister.

BOLTED NDP

Mr. Argue, a wheat farmer in Weyburn, Sask., sat in the Commons from 1945 to 1963 and was a leading debater. He was CCF house leader in 1960-61, lost the New Democratic leadership to T. C. Douglas in 1961 and bolted to the Liberals the following year.

Mr. Hays, a millionaire cattle breeder and exporter, became agriculture minister in 1963 after serving for the four previous years as Calgary mayor.

Mr. Davey was an advertising executive with radio station CKFH Toronto for 10 years before being named Liberal national organizer in 1961. His successor has not been appointed.

Dr. MacKenzie was born at Pugwash, N.S., and took post-graduate law studies at Harvard and Cambridge universities.

He taught law at the University of Toronto from 1927 to 1940, headed the University of New Brunswick in 1940-44 then served as president of the University of British Columbia until 1962.

He was chairman of the wartime information board in 1939-40 and a member of the Canada Council from 1957 to 1963.

The five remaining Senate vacancies all are in Eastern Canada. Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia have one each and Quebec two.

LIBERAL APPOINTMENT

OTTAWA (CP)—Ian Howard, 27, an eight-year man in Toronto advertising agencies, is the new public relations director for the National Liberal Federation, it was announced Thursday. He succeeds William MacEachern, 34, who left this month to become special assistant to Health Minister MacEachen.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

Before one Cassius Clay flipped over the Black Muslims he once proclaimed himself as the "Great American".

As far as this agent is concerned Uncle Sammy can wrap up his "great Yankee" in the folds of the star-spangled banner and put him in deep freeze. I want no part of him in my backyard.

With his latest blast against doing his duty as an American citizen by serving his stint in the army (and phooey on that weak-kneed apology) he has again proved himself to be an egotistical loud-mouthed ignoramus.

He is rapidly lowering the sport of boxing to its original saloon-brawl back-alley fisticuffs.

Back in the days when Viet Nam was a name that westerners had to look up in the dictionary or consult a map or globe, this handsome youngster bragged about his splendid physical condition. He had the perfect body. "I am the greatest."

In other countries military service candidates are just "John Does" as far as selective service is concerned. If you are of age, physically equipped, you're "in" regardless of whether your dad was a ditch-digger or a bank president.

I am not trying to imply the Americans pick and choose — far from it. But their draft boards do leave loopholes through what they call a "system of appeal." How a perfect physical specimen which I presume world heavyweight champions are — can appeal a draft call, is more than this weak Canadian mind can fathom.

An athlete has to be almost one hundred per cent physically perfect in every phase of sport with the exception, perhaps of baseball. The Yankees Mickey Mantle rode the injury jinx through his career, and football's Johnny Namath the $400.000 beauty has a game knee. Both have proved their worth.

By appealing his selective service draft re-classification from punk to perfect, the "Great American" (self-dubbed) is not only hurting his own crumbling public image but he is pointing the finger of suspicion at every other unmarried athlete of military age who has not been "sworn in".

Clay's ignorance was never more pronounced than when he stated "We (Black Muslims) fight no wars except Allah,'." I wonder what the loudmouth would do if his "Allah" declared war on some unsuspecting principality.

His ignorant statement was ill-timed with American opinion divided on the Viet Nam situation. His love of the almighty dollar — and don't believe all you hear about his fabulous wealth — far exceeds that of his sense of duty to his country.

After his professional debut he was astute enough with the help of a syndicate, to introduce a new publicity gimmick. He was money-hungry. He had to sell himself as a new type of champion.

He called upon his greatest asset. A large pair of tonsils (a built-in radio). This was the high-powered motor that drove his money-quest to great heights.

But Louis-like, Clay does not realize the value of a dollar. Babe Ruth one said "money is made to be spent."

The syndicate backing Clay knows that his big mouth has done more to hurt "the gate". He struck unwisely as was noted about his army stint. He struck at families whose boys are fighting a war, not a mint.

There will be closed circuts of the upcoming Clay-Terrell fight. There will be probably a million suckers pay to see Clay beaten. That is what the Black Muslim wants.

I wouldn't go across the road to see it. And if millions of fans, through sheer curiosity want to pay to see it — that's their business.

Leafs' Al Smith * * * * * * * * * * May Play Saturday

Quit Marlies Then Got Big Chance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Al Smith, the rookie netminder who played a standout game for Toronto Maple Leafs against Chicago Black Hawks Wednesday night, came close to quitting hockey earlier this season.

Smith, 20, is a netminder with Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A circuit, but he wasn't the Marlies' starting goalie.

He quit the team in disgust for about a month. However, he was talked out of giving up his hockey career by team-mates.

Injuries hit the Maple Leafs netminding corps, paving the way for Smith's first full National Hockey League game against the Black Hawks Wednesday. He had played five minutes for Toronto against Detroit Red Wings last Sunday.

The Leafs were without regular goalies Terry Sawchuk and Johnny Bower, who had been sidelined with injuries.

GETS HIS CHANCE

Gary Smith had been called up from Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League to fill the gap left by Bower and Sawchuk, but he suffered a leg injury in the first period Wednesday night and Al Smith was pressed into service.

The six-foot-one, 190-pound Toronto native made 29 saves as the Leafs put on a solid defensive performance to edge the Hawks 3-2.

It was not known whether he will see action when Toronto plays host to Boston Bruins Saturday night. The other Saturday games have Montreal Canadiens playing host to New York Rangers and Chicago visiting Detroit for an afternoon game.

Sunday's scheduled games have Montreal playing at Detroit, Toronto at New York and Boston at Chicago.

Doug Barkley, Detroit's towering defenceman, underwent surgery Thursday at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary to correct a detached retina.

It was the second time Barkley has undergone surgery since he was struck in the eye in a game at Chicago Jan. 30. He is expected to remain in the hospital about 10 days.

World Records Threatened

Canada, Kenya Meet Feature

TORONTO (CP)—World records could be tied or broken in any of six events at the Maple Leaf indoor track meet tonight.

Promoters have been promising a flock of records and several coaches from around the world agree.

Many feel the best chances for records to be tied or broken are in both women's and men's 50-yard sprints, the women's hurdles, the men's 1,000-metre race, the men's three-mile run and the pole vault.

Most of the attention is centred on the 1,000-metre race which matches two world-ranking runners: Bill Crothers of Toronto and Wilson Kiprugut of Kenya.

The two have met twice before with Crothers finishing ahead of the 26-year-old army sergeant from Nairobi both times.

"I'm in record shape," Crothers said, but he doubted that he would run the race in 2:06, the world mark held by retired Peter Snell of New Zealand.

Tonight's meet will be preceded by one involving athletes from the Ontario-Quebec Intercollegiate Athletic Association and a high school meet bringing together competitors from across Ontario. Both preliminary meets are scheduled for the afternoon.

Schoolboy Curling

Five Rinks In Close Battle For Lead

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Atlantic provinces, perennial underdogs in national curling competition, are making an unprecedented splash in the 1966 Canadian schoolboy curling championships.

Only one of them—Nova Scotia—was involved in the five-rink scramble for the title as the championships went into their final two rounds today. But the other three figured prominently in halting the expected runaway by the favored Western Canada entries.

The five battling for the lead at the end of Thursday's three rounds of the 11-rink round-robin competition were Alberta and Saskatchewan, with 6-3 won-lost records, and Northern Ontario, Nova Scotia and Manitoba, all tied at 5-3.

Ontario and Prince Edward Island, at 4-4, had a bare mathematical chance of catching the leaders. They were followed by British Columbia and Quebec at 3-5 and New Brunswick and Newfoundland at 2-6.

The Bill Ross entry from Humboldt, Sask., tangled with George Wilson of Winnipeg in the key match of the 10th round at 8 a.m. EST. Wayne Steski's Northern Ontario representatives from North Bay faced Doug Engstrom of Prince George, B.C., and the Don Glinz foursome from Truro, N.S., met Mike Boyd of Kingston, Ont.

HOWES HAD BYE

The fifth contender, Brian Howes' Alberta quartet from Calgary, drew the bye while Prince Edward Island's Dan MacEachern of Charlottetown clashed with Bev Groves of Edmundston, N.B., and Leslie Hollands of Arvida, Que., was pitted against Danny Herder of St. John's, Nfld.

In the 11th round at 1 p.m., it was Northern Ontario vs. Alberta, Manitoba vs. Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia vs. New Brunswick, Quebec vs. Ontario and British Columbia vs. Newfoundland with Saskatchewan drawing the final bye.

Arrangements for tie-breaking playoffs were to be announced after completion of the final draw.

It was the Groves rink, with only one victory in its previous seven starts, that turned the tournament upside-down Thursday night by defeating Saskatchewan 11-10 in an extra end.

Earlier in the day, Ross had survived another extra-end battle to defeat Newfoundland 8-7 and Nova Scotia had also carried the Humboldt foursome into an 11th end before losing its second-round game 10-9.

Ottawa Selects Ten

Snowmobile Race

Search For 20 Contestants

TIMMINS (CP) — The first half of a two - part cross-country snowmobile race between Sudbury, and Timmins ended Thursday night with an organized search for 20 of the 21 contestants.

The only contestant to arrive at the finish line here was Lionel Beaulieu of Sudbury, recent winner of the world snowmobile championship, who travelled the 175-mile course in just under six hours.

Three hours later, when none of the other vehicles had arrived, a search party of snowmobiles set out to find them.

Five contestants were found deep in the bush where they had run out of gas. A further search located 12 more snowmobiles and their drivers in a 20-mile area of two-foot-snow-deep woods.

It was close to midnight when the last three contestants made their presence known, two of whom bedded down in woods after reporting in by wireless. They are being picked up this morning

A meeting of drivers and officials tonight will decide if the second leg of the race, a return - run to Sudbury, will be carried out as scheduled Saturday.

City Bantams Do-Or-Die Tonight!

Belleville Kinsmen face a "win or else" situation against Kingston here tonight in the third game of their OMHA Bantam playdown series.

The game is scheduled for 7.30, at Memorial Arena.

Kingston won the first encounter here 5-4 and the Kinsmen came up with a 3-3 tie in the Limestone City last Saturday. Thus, even a tie would give Kingston the series.

If Belleville can pull out a win tonight, the next game will be played, in Kingston, tomorrow.

Meanwhile, no word has been received here as to when the Riteway novices or the Rollins peewees will commence their second round OMHA play. Both clubs won their opening rounds.

Win Playoff Opener

Quinte Cagers Upset BCI

Quinte Secondary School's senior basketball team ended a season - long drought against B.C.I. as they thundered their way to an over - whelming 54-39 victory yesterday evening at Quinte.

The game was the first of a home-and-home total points playoff between the schools for the Bay of Quinte Championship and the right to represent the area in the COSSA finals. Quinte thus carries a healthy 15 point bulge into B.C.I. territory next Tuesday for the second game.

In two previous meetings of the teams this year, B.C.I. had swept to easy wins.

For three quarters of this game the visitors from across the river maintained a fluctuating lead. They led 11-8 after the first quarter, 24-19 at half-time, and 34-32 after the third. But then the roof fell in on B.C.I. In the final quarter Quinte outshot and outhustled their opponents by a big edge to score 22 points to five for B.C.I.

The turning point came after two minutes of the fourth quarter when Quinte at last pulled even, 34-34.

Tony Meddings was undoubtedly the finest all - round performer on the floor, especially in the second half. Providing almost all of Quinte's rebounding strength, and scoring 12 points as well, he was the key to the win.

Jack Reppard was also outstanding for the winners, hooping 18 points to lead the team in that department. Reppard was the chief instigator of the fourth quarter riot, pumping in 10 points in a six minute span.

For the losers, Ron Walsh was the shining light. He passed, dribbled and banged in 22 points in an excellent effort. But without any help from his team-mates, his endeavor came to nought.

Rocky Taylor and Bob Moon of Quinte also played good games. Moon had the trying job of guarding Walsh.

Quinte — (54): Reppard 18; Meddings 12; Taylor 10; Moon 8; Valyear 4; Wright 2.

B.C.I. — (39): Walsh 22; Lornie 8; McCreary 4; Adams 2; McFarland 2; Bouma 1.

Death Takes Hawks' James D. Norris

Famous Sportsman

CHICAGO (AP) — James. D. Norris, 59, co - owner of Chicago Black Hawks hockey team and former head of the defunct International Boxing Club, died early today at Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital. Norris had been confined to the hospital for 10 days with a heart condition.

The hospital said Norris was being treated for a coronary heart disease complicated by repeated disturbances of heart rhythm.

Norris had had two previous heart attacks.

A dark, well - spoken man, Norris was president of the IBC for nine years starting with 1949. He resigned in April, 1958 when the U.S. Supreme Court forced the breakup of the IBC, charging that it was a monopoly in violation of anti-trust laws.

Norris, a multi - millionaire prompted numerous championship boxing matches, including heavyweight titleholder Rocky Marciano's fights with Jersey Joe Walcott, Ezzard Charles, Roland LaStarza and Archie Moore.

INTERESTS DIVERSE

In addition to his hockey interests, Norris owned a racing stable, was a member of the New York Stock Exchange and directly or indirectly had a large share of the Norris Grain Co., a fleet of Great Lakes freighters, the Rock Island Railroad, the Norris Cattle Co. plus the Chicago stadium and the St. Louis Arena.

His personal holdings were valued at $250,000,000.

As the owner of Chicago's National Hockey League club, Norris offered $1,000,000 for Frank Mahovlich, Toronto Maple Leafs' star left winger, four years ago. He was turned down.

Norris assumed ownership of the Black Hawks in 1952 after the team had finished in the cellar of the six - club NHL in each of the previous three years.

He and a partner, Arthur Wirtz, reportedly poured more than $2,000,000 into the stumbling franchise. The Hawks have finished no lower than third during the past seven seasons and they won the Stanley Cup in 1961.

FATHER CANADIAN

Norris inherited both his fortune and his interest in sports from his father, James Norris Sr., a 6-foot-2 Canadian, who was a squash rackets champion and a good tennis player. Hockey always was the elder Norris' favorite sport, though.

Norris Sr. bought the Detroit Red Wings' hockey club and at one time, the Norrises, Jim Sr., Jim Jr., Bruce and Marguerite, owned the Black Hawks and Chicago Stadium, the Detroit Olympia and the Red Wings, and had a majority interest in Madison Square Garden, which owns New York Rangers of hockey's big league.

The situation was resolved after Jim Norris Sr. died in 1952 when the younger Norris and Wirtz sold their one-third interest in the Olympia and the Red Wings to Bruce and Marguerite Norris.

Norris is survived by his widow, Mary, and a daughter, Susan, both of Coral Gables, Fla., and Chicago, his mother, Ethel Norris, of Lake Forest, Ill., Bruce Norris, a half brother, and half sisters, Mrs. Marguerite John Ricker of West Palm Beach, Fla., and Mrs. Arthur Kneibler of Chicago.

Greenwood Opens Saturday

Strike Action May Halt Meet

TORONTO (CP) — Harness racing will open as planned at Greenwood Raceway Saturday, but after the day's first race steps will probably be taken which could lead to strike action.

Unsettled is a dispute between the horsemen and the Jockey Club Ltd. over purse money.

"I hope it doesn't deteriorate to the point where we'll have to strike, but unless this thing is settled, we'll have no choice," said Leslie Ehrlick of Toronto, president of the Ontario Harness Horsemen's Association. "It's time for a showdown."

But under a ruling of the Canadian Trotting Association, no strike may be called within eight days of a track opening.

The horsemen are seeking a written contract calling for 50 per cent of the track's share of the mutuel handle, but the Jockey Club refuses to discuss it.

The Jockey Club operates Greenwood, Garden City Raceway at St. Catharines and Mohawk Raceway near Campbellville.

WILL FOLLOW RULES

The horsemen will follow the Canadian Trotting Association rules which govern this type of situation.

The rules state that after the first race Saturday a notice must be pinned on the bulletin board in the backstretch entry room advising owners, trainers and drivers of a meeting to pick a new purse negotiating committee to continue negotiations with the Jockey Club.

The meeting is to be held five days after the committee is picked. Next Friday will be the earliest day for the meeting.

If the purse committee is unable to reach an agreement with the Jockey Club, a telegram will be sent to the CTA and the racetrack, requesting the CTA to act as mediators during a 72-hour period.

All horses entered on the program during the 72-hour mediation period will race. If the committee reaches an impasse, a strike will take effect and members will be advised not to enter their horses.

Ter-Haar, SACO Game From Finals

Ter-Haar Daubers and SACO moved to within one win of a berth in the Quinte Hockey League finals last night.

SACO whitewashed Grant's Realty 3-0 and Ter-Haar upended Stinson-Horlock Combines 6-4. Both winners took 3-0 strangleholds in their four-of-seven semi-final sets.

Both series continue next Thursday night, at Memorial Arena.

The Daubers scored two goals late in the first period to erase a 1-0 Combine lead. The losers tied it again early in the second but Ter-Haar took a 5-2 lead by period's end and made it 6-2 before the Combines bagged a final pair.

Ron Urch scored the first and last Ter-Haar goals with Frank Cris, Jack Calnan, Jim Muir and Don Moore notching the others. Hubert Pointer had three assists, Garry Duggan, Ron Pointer and Muir one each.

LeRoy McBrien and Bill Genereaux scored two goals apiece in defeat. Bruce Symons, Reg Ell, Bill Taylor, Doug Weese, Larry Soule and Genereaux had assists.

The winners took four of six penalties, including a misconduct to Cris for using foul language.

SACO scored a goal per period against Grant's.

Art Deline fired the first, aided by Jack Lucas. Don Forsythe made it 2-0, with Garry Genereaux helping, early in the middle frame. Jack Lucas closed the scoring, assisted by Deline, with three minutes left in the contest.

SACO collected five minor penalties. The Realty squad took four minors, plus a game misconduct to Howard Skelly, for fighting, and a misconduct to B. Lattimer, for throwing his stick.

Federal Decision

Braves Play In Atlanta

HOUSTON (AP)—A federal judge ordered Thursday that baseball's National League Braves play their 1966 home games in Atlanta.

A temporary injunction signed by Judge James Noel ordered the nine other clubs in the league to play the 1966 schedule as planned.

Courts in Wisconsin and Georgia have ordered the Braves to play in both Milwaukee and Atlanta. The club played in Milwaukee from 1953 through 1965 but the National League approved a transfer to Atlanta in 1964.

The Braves contend they lost $3,600,000 in Milwaukee during the past three seasons.

Wisconsin officials also have filed state anti-trust actions against the Braves and the National League. Trial of the case is to begin Monday in Milwaukee.

Atlanta and the Fulton County Recreation Authority took the dispute into federal court last Monday by asking Judge Noel to enjoin the other nine clubs from complying with the order that the Braves continue to play in Milwaukee.

The petition alleges Wisconsin is trying to force the Braves to stay in Milwaukee, force the National League into placing another team there, or force the Braves into bankruptcy so they can be purchased by Wisconsin interests.

ONTARIO TRADE CRUSADE

Cassius Faces 'Big Foe'

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay, undefeated in 22 professional fights, today faced the biggest foe in his controversial career—public opinion.

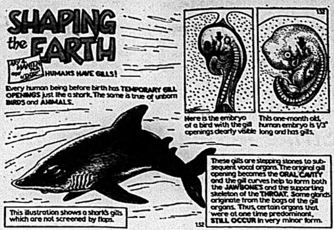
Clay was to appear before the Illinois State Athletic Commission which must decide whether his recent anti-draft outburst should cancel his title bout with Ernie Terrell here March 29.

The three-member commission was ordered by Governor Otto Kerner to reconsider its Feb. 8 approval of the bout in view of the 23-year-old Clay's reaction last Friday when his Louisville, Ky., draft board reclassified him 1-A from 1-Y.

Clay offered to make a formal apology to the commission and the public generally for "big mouthing" such remarks as that the Viet Nam war was none of his affair because he is a Black Muslim and that he has more value as a civilian taxpayer than a soldier.

His offer to apologize came prior to the draft board's announcement Monday that Clay would not be included in the March draft call, technically clearing the way for the fight.

Last weekend Kerner said Clay's remarks were "unpatriotic" and "disgusting." Other political leaders voiced the same opinion.



SHAPING the EARTH
ART & MANTEN and DIRK
HUMANS HAVE GILLS!
Every human being before birth has TEMPORARY GILL OPENINGS just like a shark. The same is true of unborn BIRDS and ANIMALS.
Here is the embryo of a bird with the gill openings clearly visible
This one-month old, human embryo is 1/3" long and has gills.
These gills are stepping stones to subsequent vocal organs. The original gill opening becomes the ORAL CAVITY and the gill curves help to form both the JAWBONES and the supporting skeleton of the THROAT. Some glands originate from the bags of the gill organs. Thus, certain organs that were at one time predominant, STILL OCCUR in very minor form.
This illustration shows a shark's gills which are not screened by flaps.

Waiver Rule Is Changed

CALGARY (CP)—The Canadian Football League Thursday changed its waiver rule to prevent a powerful club having an early pick of available players.

In past years, the club finishing last the previous season has had first call on players placed on waivers by other teams. This year, in accordance with a suggestion made by Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Conference, precedence will be based on inverse order of standings at the time waivers are asked.

Last year, Winnipeg Blue Bombers rebounded from a last-place 1964 finish to reach the Grey Cup. Despite a fast start in which they won their first four games, Bombers had first western pick of players on waivers all season.

The Trots

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Ra Ra Putney made his debut at Windsor Raceway Thursday night by winning the order of Alhambra Pace, featured eighth race before 3,999 fans.

The four-year-old owned by Del Duare of Three Rivers, Que., returned $15.80, $5.10 and $3.10.

MORE DIE

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bureau of Statistics said Thursday incomplete figures for 1965 showed 4,792 persons were killed and 147,477 injured in traffic accidents. Complete figures for 1964 were 4,632 killed and 139,632 injured. The 1965 figures lacked information from Saskatchewan for the last three months. The death toll in December, lacking Saskatchewan returns, was 419, up 12 per cent from a year earlier.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A minor-league city Thursday got its first look at plans for its $6,000,000 major-league arena.

The Pacific National Exhibition unveiled plans for the trade fair and sports building, a circular structure originally intended to house a National Hockey League team.

The building will be built despite the failure of the Vancouver application for an NHL franchise.

Construction is scheduled to begin in May and by the time it is completed in October, 1967, there will be 15,120 seats.

Senior Title Up For Grabs

GALT (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association senior scoring championship and a playoff berth will be on the line this weekend when Oakville Oaks and Galt Hornets meet in a home-and-home series.

Left-winger Jack Price and centre Joe Hogan, tied for the scoring lead with less than a week remaining in the schedule, collide in the series.

Hornet captain Hogan scored nine points in three games last week to tie for the lead with Oakville's Price. Each has 65 points, five more than Woodstock centre Bob Robinson.

Boat Hurley of Guelph, who missed three of his club's last four games, has a 3.42 average to lead goaltenders by half a goal over Lynn Zimmerman, (3.94), of Galt and Al Bennett (3.95) of Oakville.

Austrian Skate Champion

LEAD Figure skating

DAVOS, Switzerland (AP)—Emmerich Danzer of Austria, skating with ease and grace at the sun lit Davos open rink, won the men's world figure skating championship today.

Austria swept both the gold and silver medals for the first two places as Wolfgang Schwarz second while Gary Visconti of the United States took the third-place bronze medal.

Nationals Blanked By Czechs

PRAGUE (CP) —Czechoslovakia defeated Canada 4-0 Thursday in a warmup game for the world hockey championships in Yugoslavia next month.

The Canadians played a defensive style most of the game, with the Czechs carrying the attack and scoring two goals in the first period and one each in the second and third.

Goalie Seth Martin, who took over from Ken Broderick in the 11th minute of the second period, allowed only one goal and drew the applause of the crowd of 18,000 fans as he came up with good saves under heavy pressure.

The Czechoslovakian news agency CTK commented that "judging by the performance neither team appeared to be strong enough to challenge the Soviet Union" at the world championships at Ljubljana.

Amerks Blast Blades

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Four goals by the American Hockey League's highest-scoring line was the margin of difference Thursday night as Rochester Americans bombed Los Angeles Blades of the Western League 8-4.

Dick Gamble scored his 36th and 37th goals and assisted on Jim Pappin's 29th as the pair raised their point totals this season to 77 and 68, respectively.

Linemate Mike Walton's goal and three assists hiked his season total to 62 points.

The Americans, leaders in the AHL's Western Division, had little trouble scoring their fifth win without a loss in an interlocking schedule with the fifth-place blades.

Willie O'Ree, Marc Boileau, Bill Orban and Ray Larose scored for Los Angeles.

For the women, the distance was four miles, with Miss Crawford finishing in 28:01. Second place went to Pacie McCullough of Sudbury in 28:35, followed by Allison Foutain of Sault Ste. Marie in 29:09.

Jane Fitzgerald was next in 29:12, with Helen Gillespie fifth in a time of 29:38. Both are from Sault Ste. Marie.

The championships continue today with the downhill, followed on Saturday with the slalom and the jumps on Sunday.

Belleville Re-Enters Soccer Loop

Representatives of Belleville Parsons Cleaners attended the annual meeting of the Kingston and District Soccer League, in Kingston, last night and report a bright outlook for the coming season.

Peter Crowle and Bob Main represented the Belleville entry at the meeting.

"We are in, along with six Kingston entries and others from Batawa and Brockville, making a nine-team league," Crowle said.

Brockville is a new entry while Smiths Falls, a member of the league last year, has dropped out and entered the Ottawa league. Kingston entries are Hungaria, Italo-Canadians, Dunbriks, Dutchmen, Crusaders and the German Sports Club.

Crowle also said that four other Kingston clubs sought entry but the league decided upon a relegation system, whereas the two bottom clubs from the 1966 season will form a second division with the four new Kingston entries next year.

It was also announced that a new soccer field is being built in Kingston and should be opened around the first of August.

Speaking of the Belleville team, Crowle said: "We should have a strong entry right from the start this year. We have most and possibly all of the players back from last year while in other seasons we have had to start from scratch."

Parsons will hold their annual club meeting to finalize plans shortly.

CALGARY (CP)—Premature talk of retirement was frowned on officially Thursday by representatives of the nine Canadian Football League clubs.

'Authors of Year' Reception Attracts Really Varied Cast

LONDON (CP)—There was 79-year-old Baroness Asquith, spry in a scarlet dress, reminiscing about Sir Winston Churchill: Oxford historian A. J. P. Taylor describing the fast-reading technique that enables him to devour 35 books a week; David Cornwell, alias John Le Carre, author of The Spy Who Came In From The Cold, confiding the latest menace in his life—women who ask his opinion on manuscripts of turgid, unreadable novels.

Seldom could so much literary talent have been packed into one room as when Hatchards, the Piccadilly booksellers, held their first "Authors of the Year" reception for the writers whose books had most consistently ranked in the best-seller lists.

Forty novelists, biographers and historians, 17 publishers and some 110 assorted guests from the literary and political worlds mingled, martinis in hand, in a penthouse 17 storeys above Trafalgar Square.

Talk ranged from gourmet cooking—inspired by the presence of Raymond Postgate, author of The Good Food Guide—to the plight of Russian writers Andrei Sinyavsky and Yuli Daniel, now awaiting trial on charges of publishing anti-Soviet propaganda abroad.

RECALLS BUCHAN

Janet Adam Smith, the lively, grey-haired biographer of John Buchan, launched into an enthusiastic recollection of her researches in Canada for Buchan's period as governor-general, 1935-40.

"The Canadians seem to have taken to Lord Tweedsmuir as to no other British governor-general. I think it was because he was so interested in them and in the country. He had this voracious interest in everything he touched."

Miss Adam Smith, in private life the wife of Westminster School headmaster John Carleton, first met Buchan when she was an undergraduate at Oxford. She liked him at once, but found his extraordinary gift for self-organization rather daunting.

"He might be having tea with you at four-thirty and suddenly get up at five-fifteen and say 'It's been nice seeing you, but I have an appointment with the prime minister at five-thirty'—and he'd just go. Of course this was what enabled him to produce his fantastic output of books as well as carry on his parliamentary career, but it made you feel sometimes that if you were only worth 45 minutes of his time you couldn't count for much with him.

"On the other hand he went to immense trouble to help young people get started with whatever they wanted to do in life."

BEST-SELLING BOTANIST

Almost submerged in the throng of fashionable novelists and somewhat startled to find himself a literary figure was a small, stooped old clergyman from Devonshire, Rev. W. Keble Martin, who has spent 60 of his 88 years compiling an encyclopedia of British wild flowers. To his amazement, The Concise British Flora in Color leaped into the best-seller lists on publication last May and has stayed there ever since, selling more than 100,000 copies.

The clergyman, who studied botany at Oxford in the 1890s, was accompanied at the party by his wife, both wearing sprigs of Devonshire heather plucked from their garden in the village of Woodbury, near Exeter.

"I didn't think anything I could write would interest so many people," said the white-fringed clergyman shyly as literary celebrities pressed in to meet him.

"It has really been my recreation all these years."

Need Nonchalance For Essay Writing

By N. D. MORRISON (BCI).

Now far be it from me to pretend to any enviable faculty for English, (albeit, not far enough to keep me from the writing and submission of this arcticle); but I do feel that with respect to the composition of an essay, any essay, I have several suggestions to offer; which, although they are not entirely my own, are indeed worthy, or if you like, meritorious. Rule one: do not overload your sentences. Incidently, you will find the happy consequence of heeding this simple rule to be a straightforwardness and lucidity of style which seems to be sorely lacking in the writings of today.

Which brings to mind another point — key words. Everyone knows (especially senior biology students), that key words are "in". Allow me to make myself clear. I do not mean key words in your essay; I mean rather, key words to facilitate the actual grammatical construction, or pieceing together of your essay. Well, there are none. It is unfortunate that the subject of essay-writing does not readily lend itself to key words. Nonetheless, if I had to, I would probably select "organization" as a key word; but I do not have to, and I won't. I will simply say that an organized essay, like hair, is vastly superior to one that is in short, disheveled.

Our primary consideration, however, is really none of the mechanical aspects of essay-writing. We must assume the student to have already accumulated a working knowledge of these basic concepts. Rather, we are concerned with your essay as a whole; your appeal, not to the reasoning prowess of the reader (as far too many do), but more to his attention, his undivided attention. A law, my own, states this with a cruel clarity: there is no point in saying something if no one is going to listen.

And in the writing of essays this is all-important.

You will notice that already you have waded almost to the middle of this article, and still I have refrained from revealing anything noteworthy on the art of essay-writing. This is called getting the attention of the reader; and I might take a moment to warn you that in the last quarter of this disquisition you will be asked to accept something that you will most assuredly consider to be a supremely ludicrous, out-of-this-world, and all in all assinine proposal; and accept it without question.

Now of course it is not enough to attract the reader's attention, we must hold it — and I have just done that.

As far as topics go, they are really unimportant. That is, it's not what you say, it's how you say it. A fundamental law, my own, puts this very nicely: Interest varies inversely with the A.Q. (That's Academic Quotient, which is a neat way of expressing how academic or learned the piece of literature may or may not be. Binet did something of this sort with intelligence).

Now don't let that mislead you. I certainly do not mean the nature of the material, I am referring to the manner in which it is presented. (In accordance with another of my essential principles: something is only what it appears to be.

When used consistently the pointers given herein will enable even the unbearably enervating writer to compose an essay on the most scholarly thesis, and render it unbelievably appealing, interesting, light (to a warranted degree), and maybe even enlightening.

And yet the most basic idea to bear in mind is that in writing an essay, we expect someone to read it; unless it was written solely to satisfy some narcisstic urge in the author, written only for his benefit. No, we are in fact, addressing someone. This being the case, for heaven's sake address him. Even a simple "Hi there!". But of course we must be subtle. A spasmodic "Hi there!" is about as subtle as a series of rabbit punches.

In all seriousness though, in reading this you get the impression that I am standing right here in front of you, talking; right? Certainly. Now this is precisely what we are after You will never win an argument if you neglect to look your opponent, (in this case, your reader), squarely in the eye. And this, regrettably, is the manner in which most essays of today are presented. The author seems to be standing there all right, but he is staring blankly into the far-off somewhere, and reciting a tediously long, high-sounding, monotonic piece of garbage. He isn't going to influence anybody. An example should make this clear.

Suppose I were to extract from an English grammar text, a paragraph on essay-writing; and then were to submit it, still dripping, for publication. Two people, just two people, myself and the proofreader, would read it. And judging from the typographical errors to be found on this page, I'm not even sure of him. As for your part, I could hardly blame you for shying away from such a cold, listless and deathly academic monstrosity.

But turn this, shall we say "frozen material", over to an expert essay-alterator (the next step after expert essay-writer), and the result would be a warmly satisfying piece of literature. And to illustrate the tremendous potential we are dealing with — you are now reading what was once a treatise studying the economic retardation of Southern Rhodesia. Never would have guessed it, eh?

In short, it matters little whether you beg or beguile, only seize your reader's attention, and hang on for dear life.

There. I guess that about wraps it up. Just remember the basic laws and rules; and when you are preparing your next essay to hand in "for marks", try adopting an easy-going, nonchalant almost careless attitude in your style. This mood, once created and maintained, will render your works as enjoyable to the reader as they were to their author.

Uniforms Stir Russian Argument

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—When a Russian girl gets tired of her school uniform and starts dreaming of wearing dresses to class she is, says a Leningrad teacher, betraying "bourgeois spirit."

And the only way to eradicate it is to give the girl something more important to live for than fancy clothes.

The teacher, Natalia Dolinina, jumped into a debate that goes on more or less continuously in the Soviet Union: What to do about the school uniform.

A minority of citizens would like to see it abolished. Many others want it retained but would like to see it dressed up a bit. Give the poor, suffering pupil a break, they say.

At present the uniform for girls consists of a brown dress of wool or cotton and a pullover black apron—all in all a pretty drab outfit. Boys wear a grey suit made of heavy cotton.

Talk about introducing a light, cheap sports-like uniform had been going on for years. But a change of uniform would provide only a "superficial solution" to the problems of young people."

LIFE IS EMPTY

"The endeavor to be distinguished by dress appears not from the absence of a uniform but from the emptiness of internal life, from a bourgeois spirit—this is the main, dangerous shortcoming of some contemporary young people."

The teacher was replying to a Leningrad mother who had complained in a letter to the newspaper that her daughter, after passing Grade 9 at one of the city's best schools, had not only refused to wear a uniform but also took to wearing nylons, high heels and tall hair styles.

"And she says everybody is dressed like her," the mother added disapprovingly.

Dolinina asked how it happened that school, parents and teachers all had so failed to "fill the girls' souls" that their interests lay in dresses.

The teacher went on to say that no uniform could eliminate this tendency. "There is only one way—to give other, more important things to youth."

It was necessary to understand the "complicated processes" acting on young people and try to influence them wisely. It was necessary to show interest in youth's "inner world, understand its searches, doubts and joys."

But that was as far as the teacher went. The "more important things" were left unidentified.

Kampus Kapers Opens Today At B.C.I.

Kampus Kapers '66 opens tonight at B.C.I. Curtain time is 8.15 both tonight and Saturday night for this, the 20th Annual Kampus Kapers.

Emcees Mee Kin Seto and Andrew Armstrong introduce the 15 exciting acts.

Entertainment ranges from Pamela Thornton's fire baton dance to the comedy of the Class of '66, the songs of The Harmonettes and The Tradewinds, the piano music of Scott Bradford and the parallel bars, box horse and high bar acrobatics.

The B.C.I. band is also in on the act, along with the dancing Strollers, Tom Gill and Gary Chaplin on the trumpet, and The Twirlettes with their batons.

And don't think that staff members were ignored. They weren't. A clever staff act rounds out the evening.

Ed Sullivan Beware! MSS Actors Ready

By JIM WRIGHT (MSS)

Well, perhaps Jed Clampett struck it rich when he discovered his black gold, but Ed Sullivan can top that — he's got a well of inexhaustible talent right at his fingertips. Where? At Moira, of course! Moiranties '66 was on the stage, and what a success!

Playing to a packed house both Friday and Saturday nights February 18 and 19, 200 performers, both teen and teachers, produced a top-rate program. Comprising 29 acts, the three-hour show had for its theme, "It's a Teenage World", and as proven, what a world!

Our program opened with the driving new sounds and the exciting new dances of our modern age, but there was a quick switch and we were back to the times of our good friend B.C.—the era of the caveman and the epoch of Cleopatra. The winding road of teen life continued through times of glorious France and England until the twentieth century, the flicker films, and the present-day Hootenanny. The zany cycle was complete. No particular acts can be featured: they were all great — what else can be expected of Moira!

Behind the scenes, too, there was cooperation to the end. Thanks must be expressed to the makeup group, the stage crew, the Key and Keyette Clubs the cadets, caretakers and secretaries, to all who helped produce such an outstanding show.

Following the Saturday night performance, there was a general get-together of all the cast, a general hashing over of the show, and a welcome time to relax.

It was a shame if you missed the show, but there is always next year; or perhaps better still, inevitable Moira talent on the big "shoe": Ed Sullivan, here we come!

Dave's Hideaway

By

Dave Charles

The candle is burning low, and only 10,000,000 more pages to go-go-go-go-go . . . review, study, memorize, most time consuming and hard work . . . Who needs it? . . . You do ! ! ! Yes sir there Batmen and Batwomen let's get ready steady for those important Easter Exams.

The next general meeting of the newly formed Belleville teen organization will take place on Monday night, February 28, at the Belleville Recreation Hall starting at 8 p.m. sharp. The selected committee of 10 will present many things for the approval of the majority . . . that's you there Roger. If you really care enough about this organization I suggest that you make the scene and have a say in what goes on. The suggested names for the Teen Coffee House are as follows . . . "The Quiet Noise," number two "The Fifth Dimension" and the final suggested name is "Botch" standing for Belleville Organized Teen Coffee House. Whatever the name, this project will be a success only if you "Voice your choice in its affairs."

QUESTION AND ANSWER SECTION:

Q. Is it possible for Mods to obtain good grade at school and still listen to "At The TOP?"

A. Yes . . . Double Yes. Why? . . . Because . . .

Q. Is it possible to do all your homework and listen to "At The Top?"

A. Why of course . . . did you know that "At The Top" music acts as a stimulation to the brain and widens your horizons. That's why mom and dad think you're out of this world.

SECTION 13A:

I have been vigorously eating macaroon cookies for the past few weeks in an attempt to gain weight. I have a fat head but the rest of me has been cut off from the supply wagon. Notice it's getting lighter out around suppertime, and the days are getting longer; gee no kidding . . . Yes, this means that you will have to wait longer to sneak out of the house at night. My orange suit is in the final stages of design and should be real crisp when it is finished.

Mod Music Concert Number One "The Sound Of Music 66" is the talk of the teens for the last week or so. I have talked to many on Voice Your Choice and all are anxiously awaiting March 18. This is a perfect time for this Quinte district Mod Presentation. Dee and the Yeomen and the Shays from Toronto will be headlining the show with two sets of Go-Go dancers and "Sound Incorp." with 800 seats available. The following week Belleville will follow with our first Mod Concert at Quinte High School.

The Belleville Recreation Commission will be sponsoring this concert. The groups to be featured are the "Just Us," Quality recording artists and that show band with an unbelievable act the "Toronto Counts" consisting of . . . get this . . . eight guys no less, no more.

So you see we're still bouncing along.

Believe me when I say that material on the pop music market is out of sight. Never can I recall so many crisp sounds and all at the same time. At present I have exactly 105 45's all worthy, in my opinion, of a "File Listing." Another Canadian break through — Chad Allen and the Expression otherwise called "The Guess Who" group — have struck the music scene States side again with another "knock-out" record. "Believe Me" is a rocking, mod sound that has the Yanks jumping. Watch for a new album by the Big Town Boys. Superman has moved up to challenge Batman . . . as Dino, Desi and Billy score with this new musical sensation, "Clark Kent is Coming Home or Superman Is Homeward Bound"

There are many new local bands in the Quinte district according to my Spys in the Sky. I will attempt to acquaint you with each band by interviewing each one of them on my "Weekend Show." These bands I feel deserve your support . . . They are Canadian too and perhaps will achieve greatness someday . . . you never know . . . There seems to be a lack of spirit among Belleville and Trenton mods when it comes to attending a dance where a local band is playing. Next time your school is running a Tea Dance or School Dance and a local is playing, why not attend.

The Rolling Stones and the Beach Boys have been under fire from the world and me to. I have received several letters about speaking out against the Rolling Stones and have received comments that I am right, and they deserve it. Personally what I think about such a group is not worth mentioning. But what I do care about is that such a group has a foul mouth, ignorant ways which are much too extreme. I'm not in favor of conformity by any means, but let's be civilized, we're in the space age no Cave Dwellers. I think the Rolling Stones' music is fabulous and gear even, but they make me ill . . . End of comments . . . It will rest in peace. I hope.

DIDDO FOR THE BEACH BOYS . . .

In Dave's Cave we find Music Mod Style what else . . . "Shake Me, Wake Me" by the Four Tops is receiving reaction on "Voice Your Choice" and could be a Monster motown sound to watch. "19th Nervous Breakdown" by far the best for the Stones to date. "Don't Mess With Bill" is a Zoot record for the Marvellettes. "A Little You" by Tom Jones is a potential File Finder. "This Hour Has Seven Days" for the Shays is heading for File "A." Elusive Butterfly is a Kangaroo song this week from 34 to number 9 . . . via the (old math) Fred.

"Sounds Incorp." with yours truthfully and Walter H. West (H stands for "how are you") will appear at the Wellington Winter Carnival this Saturday night with records a-go-go and colorful costumes yet . . . It all happens at 8 p.m.

One late call to interested Mod Music Makers. The fate of your teen world will be decided this Monday night at 8:00 p.m. at the Belleville Recreation Centre. It can either be decided by you or for you, which is it . . . In any case something is going to be done. As Hideaway sinks slowly in the western skies of your memories this elusive D.J. says . . . Shangri-La.

Lawyer, Broker, Writer Pick Teacher as Choice

By JACK HUTTON

Several guests at a dinner party were asked the other night (I heard about it, of course) which occupation they'd choose if they were starting all over again.

Sitting around the table were two lawyers, one broker, a teacher and two writers.

The crazy thing is that they all chose teaching — except the teacher.

"You must be crazy," he said "You've all done so well financially. I couldn't afford the house we're in. If I saved for one year I couldn't afford even one of the two holiday trips you take every summer."

The others, I hear, rattled their coffee cups in amazement. Didn't this fellow know what an exciting, challenging, rewarding occupation he had joined?

"But I work such long hours," he said. "I get home every night and have to mark papers until I go to bed every second or third night"

"Every second or third night" the lawyer chuckled. "I haven't had a free night all this winter. And the potential isn't anywhere near the same as your profession."

MARKET EXCITING

"Nor is the market as exciting," said the broker.

"Potential? Exciting? What do you mean?" asked the teacher. "Really, I don't come on like Perry Mason in the classroom. And I don't read exciting ticker tapes to see what's happening in New York."

"Who else around this table," a female writer asked quietly, "understands the homework that our children bring home?"

The teacher was silent. He couldn't argue that point.

"The future of this country depends upon whether we stay abreast of the fantastic developments in science, engineering, marketing — so many other things," said the broker.

"Which one of us around this table will prepare the next generation for that? The lawyers? The brokers? The writers, even though they will help? It's a simple fact. The teacher is the only one."

"Not only that," a lawyer said excitedly. "Just look at the potential. If I were doing it all over again, I'd major in a single subject and teach either secondary school or university. They can't meet the demand."

"No, no," said the female writer. "The crying need is for more good teachers in primary grades. That's where children get the basis for everything else. That's the foundation right there."

"When they write the history of the second half of this century," said the second lawyer, "the credit for what we've done or haven't done will go directly to the classroom teacher."

"You know," said the teacher, "I might feel different about marking my Latin translations tonight."

I don't know whether he did or not. But spring is around the corner — the time to look ahead to a career if you're still in the classroom. And you're picking the finest career of the next decade if you choose teaching.

Jackie Gleason's Show Costs $300,000 a Week

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Television shows cost of a lot of money, even poor ones.

Jackie Gleason's Saturday night hour, for example, has a production budget of around $180,000 a week and the bill for the show when the cost of airtime is added, brings the tab well over $300,000.

The so-called "inexpensive" shows—those with $40,000 production budgets like To Tell The Truth and I've Got A Secret—build up expensively. With time costs they come to well over $100,000 an evening.

This season's crop of hour-long programs have budgets ranging upwards from around $130,000 an episode. Weekly variety shows with their needs for new sets and costumes, not only run high, but do not have much rerun value. The half-hour situation comedies, knocked out for sums ranging from $55,000 to $90,000, are like money in the bank. They can be rerun during the summer season and later sold and resold profitably as syndicated series.

About 40 per cent of the network shows are dropped each year. When a variety show goes down the ratings drain after a short run, it is likely ~~to be~~ in a flood of red ink. Thus the fact that Mitch Miller will be able to bring back some of his old, abandoned Sing Along shows for NBC summer reruns is an enormous piece of good luck.

REDUCES NEED

Next season, the usual need for 30-odd new series has been further reduced by CBS' decision to have two nights of feature films instead of only one, as it had this season. With NBC devoting two nights to movies, and ABC one, the public will be treated to five nights and 10 hours of films a week.

Movies, TV has found, do very well in the ratings—although the audience sizes rise and fall rather dramatically with the power of the star names and the reputation of the movie.

But the old movie supply is running out in the face of the demand while the cost of acquiring recent good ones is increasing. Recently CBS paid $1,000,000 for The Music Man and another, lesser effort, but presumably will be able to run it several times.

Last year Hollywood produced about 300 hours of moving picture entertainment. At the same time the three networks filled 3,500 hours of evening time alone.

Liberace a Phenomenon In Entertainment Industry

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Liberace calls himself Mr. Showmanship. His detractors have called him the wizard of ooze. By any name he is a phenomenon in the entertainment industry.

By all logic, his career should now be limited to playing club dates in retirement cities. During the height of the Liberace craze his appeal seemed centred on the geriatric set who wanted to grandmother him.

Yet Liberace is entering his second quarter-century as an entertainer and he possesses a large and diversified audience. He recently returned from a theatre-in-the-round at San Carlos, Calif., where he drew almost $90,000 a week from teenagers as well as the geriatric set.

"My image in the beginning . . . was mocked and mimicked," he says. "But as the years went on, people began to realize that I myself kidded the Liberace image.

"I make an act out of my image. As soon as people understand that I don't really walk down Sunset Boulevard in a gold lame cape and pants, then they come over to my side. They're always surprised to find out I'm a nice guy."

Nice - guy Liberace did not come down Sunset Boulevard in gold lame; he wore a pearl-grey suit with Eisenhower-type jacket. Among his jewelry were heavy cufflinks of diamond-studded candelabra with a large, matching ring.

During his silver-anniversary year, Liberace says he expects to work less and earn more. His concerts during the last year grossed $800,000.

Nkrumah Will Return to Ghana Soon

PEKING (Reuters) — Ousted President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana said here tonight he was still his country's constitutional head and declared: "I am returning to Ghana soon."

In a statement made on his behalf at a press conference by his foreign minister, Alex Quaison - Sackey, Nkrumah ordered soldiers and police involved in Thursday's coup to return to barracks.

He called on the Ghanaian people "to remain calm but firm in determination and resistance."

Nkrumah did not appear at the press conference, held in the Ghana Embassy.

Quaison-Sackey said it was not certain when Nkrumah will leave Peking or whether he is going to Hanoi.

Unconfirmed reports circulating among diplomats here said that instead of going to Hanoi Nkrumah will fly to Cairo where his Egyptian-born wife Fathia arrived early today with their three children after a flight from Accra.

Meanwhile, the Chinese apparently continued to recognize Nkrumah as president. He was described as such in today's newspapers and banners welcoming him to Peking were still stretched across the main street which were also decorated with Ghanian flags.

Today's newspapers and this morning's broadcasts by Radio Peking did not mention the coup.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

2ND NAPANEE CUBS AND SCOUTS

NAPANEE — Parents and friends gathered in Grace United Church Sunday school rooms Tuesday evening to see at first hand what the boys of the 2nd Napanee Scouts and Cubs have learned, and how it is being taught to them.

The program was divided into two parts, the first in the form of a meeting where the boys had an opportunity of demonstrating their accomplishments, and the second as a camp fire, where they entertained their guests.

Two features of the demonstration of skills impressed everyone. The boys have a new tent, and they erected and then took it down and put it away in a matter of minutes, showing team work and speed. Later they demonstrated the three forms of artificial respiration. The cubs demonstrated the tying of knots.

Games and scout songs around a camp fire made up the entertainment. Some of the fathers were called on to participate, and the joke was usually on them.

Scout Peter Exley was presented with his proficiency badge as a despatcher, and badges were awarded to several cubs. Donnie Hamilton received his first star, Larry Mattis his artist's badge, and Paul King his badge as a house orderly. Collectors' badges went to David Normile, and Bobby and Donny Longmuir. Donny also received his badge as a team player, along with Jamie McConnell and Brian Luffman.

FATHER - SON BANQUET

NAPANEE — Mrs. Donald Hart is chairman of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the 2nd Napanee Cubs and Scouts which prepared the father-son banquet in Grace United church Monday evening. The table featured a low arrangement of 'mums in the scout colors, white, yellow and purple, for which Scout Master Stewart McConnell and Mrs. McConnell were responsible.

Some changes were announced. Scout Master William Exley has been promoted to District Scout Master, and his assistant, Stewart McConnell will take Mr. Exley's former position. Lesley Schenk, a newcomer to the area with wide experience in scout work, is to be the assistant.

Two Queen's Scouts of the troop were present, David Hutchison and Douglas Winter, and it was announced that David Hutchison has been selected from the district to attend the scout jamboree in Iceland. The troop has two brothers, Fred and Ricky Pixley, who hope to become Queen's Scouts in the near future.

Among the other guests were William Finley, district president, and Robert Casey, district commissioner. James Eadie, a member of the group committee, was chairman for the evening. The minister, the Rev. Guy Case, was appointed padre of the Scouts and Cubs. Mrs. Floyd Denison, who has retired as assistant Cub leader, and Mr. Exley, were presented with gifts from the Ladies' Auxiliary, and from the group committee. One member of the group committee, Norman Hutchison, has stepped down, and James Tucker has taken his place.

Mrs. William Harachka is the Cub leader, and her assistants are Mrs. Wayne Longmuir and Mrs. Tom Normile.

James Ives of the Department of Lands and Forests showed two films on outdoor life, one illustrating survival in the wilds with no equipment except an axe; the second was of a canoe trip.

Crop Insurance Likely Within Year or Two

NAPANEE — When the directors of the Federation of Agriculture for this county met in the County Memorial Building Tuesday evening, most of their time was taken up discussing the proposed crop insurance plan for farmers. There were mixed feelings on the matter, but all felt that it is sure to come, probably within a year or so.

It was decided that the safest and wisest thing to do is to co-operate with the Ontario Federation of Agriculture in its actions.

There was discussion also regarding the Rural Learning Association, and Donald Stover of R. R. 1 Odessa, was appointed to the board as the representative for this county. Mr. Stover is the first vice-president.

The Rural Education Association will attempt to fill the vacancy left when the Farm Forums disappeared.

A meeting of the board will be held in Aurora March 20 through 23, inclusive.

Deseronto Personals

DESERONTO — The Women's World Day of Prayer will be observed in the Deseronto United Church Friday. Ladies from the Presbyterian, Anglican, United and Pentecostal churches of Deseronto and of the Tyendinaga Reserve, and of the Salvation Army are participating. The children of these churches will gather for a children's service in the United Church at the close of school.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric G. Bartlett of Main St., were weekend visitors of Mr. Bartlett's mother, Mrs. J. H. Purvis of Lyn.

Harry Oliver of the Deseronto Road is receiving the congratulations of his friends on having celebrated his 82nd birthday last week. Among his callers were his old friends, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Dowling and Mrs. Edward Roach of Deseronto.

Church Groups

TRINITY 50-50 CLUB

NAPANEE — Members of the 50-50 Club of Trinity United Church met Wednesday evening at the parsonage for a social evening. Chief feature of the meeting was a story of adoption put together by the minister, the Rev. E. Irvine Johnstone and Mrs. Johnstone. Photography is one of Mr. Johnstone's hobbies, and he and Mrs. Johnstone selected pictures of their own children through the years to illustrate the story which they had written and tape recorded.

Contests and friendly conversation, and refreshments served by Mrs. Johnstone and Mrs. Roy Lawrence, co-president with her husband, rounded out the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ford were welcomed as newcomers to the club.

Citizens Await Setting of Tax Rate

NAPANEE — Napanee is something like the man waiting in the dentist's office to have a tooth extracted. He knows it is going to hurt, but he wishes he could get it over with. In other words, when is the public going to find out what the tax rate is for 1966? Citizens are reconciled to the fact that it is bound to be higher, but by how much? As a rule the budget is arrived at by the middle of February. The tax bills can be sent out not long afterwards and money will begin filling the town coffers from then on. But this year there is a holdup. The budget for education is not yet available.

Mayor Lorne Smart is understanding. "Those people at the school (the NDSS) have a tremendous job," he says. 'They know there is to be an addition to the school and that new teachers will be required. This must be set in the budget. All sorts of complex questions must be answered to their own satisfaction before they can come up with a figure. There is also the question of grants, to take into consideration. All one can do is wait until they are ready with an estimate of what they will require from the town."

SCIENTISTS GETTING BRAIN WAVES — This volunteer is providing National Research Council scientists at Ottawa with recordings for their growing library of "brain music." Using a new instrument developed at NRC, scientists are able to play back and listen to sounds given off by the brain. The research is expected to lead startling medical developments including ways to explore deep into the brain itself for trouble spots in surgery. (CP Wirephoto)

Governor's Wife Will Seek Nomination

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Lurleen Wallace, wife of the Alabama governor, announced to a throng of cheering followers Thursday that she will be a candidate for Democratic nomination as governor.

The 39-year-old Mrs. Wallace, accompanied by her husband, George, promised that if elected next year she would continue to fight for "free enterprise and local government."

If elected, the present governor would be her "No. 1 assistant at $1 a year."

"My election will enable my husband to continue the policies of his administration."

Wallace cannot succeed himself, barred by the state constitution from seeking re-election to a second four-year term.

His term expires next January.

His wife will seek the nomination in a May 3 Democratic party election to choose a candidate.

Nkrumah's Last Allies Are Warned

From Reuters-AP

ACCRA (CP)—The last pocket of die-hard support for ousted President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana had until noon today to give in to the new regime or face the consequences.

The National Liberation Council, set up after opposition military elements took advantage of Nkrumah's absence on a visit to Peking to overthrow the government Thursday, issued the warning to members of the presidential guard Friday night.

Some hand-picked guardsmen were reported to be making a last-ditch stand at Nkrumah's residence, Flagstaff House, in the suburbs of Accra.

Relatives cheered Friday as Ghana's new military leaders released 450 political prisoners from Nkrumah's jails.

Thousands crowded around the massive Ussher Fort and other jails to greet with kisses and tears those coming out. Many were feeble and ill after years in prison.

Shouting crowds celebrated Nkrumah's overthrow Friday as they watched a larger-than-life statue of the former president fall to the force of a crane.

NAME EXPERTS

Even as special police loyal to Nkrumah put up a last-ditch stand at Accra's radio station, Lt.-Gen. J. A. Ankrah, chief of the new National Liberation Council, appointed a seven-man group of experts to get Ghana's economy moving again.

A number of special police were reported killed during the battle at Broadcast House which, informants said, erupted during a visit there by Col. E. K. Kotoka. Kotoka is believed to have led the revolt that overthrew Nkrumah Thursday.

Otherwise the country was calm today, but army and police pressed their hunt for officials of Nkrumah's Convention People's party which was outlawed after the coup.

Among those being sought was Geoffrey Bing, 56, a left-wing British lawyer who has been Nkrumah's close friend and adviser since before independence in 1957. Some called him the power behind the ousted president.

In London, the Commonwealth relations office said Bing, a former Labor member of the British House of Commons, had surrendered voluntarily to the new regime.

A spokesman said Bing was picked up by a police escort at the Australian high commission.

Saturn Fails To Ignite

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) The engines of the giant Saturn I-B rocket failed to ignite today when the countdown reached zero on the first attempt to launch an Apollo moon ship into space.

The U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration said that four seconds before the 22-storey rocket was to lift off an automatic signal cut off an electronic sequence system which controls the countdown in the final minutes.

The blockhouse continued the countdown to zero, but for practical purposes it had been halted at four seconds.

The control centre said the countdown shutoff was ordered when the sequence system detected that the fuel tank pressure in the first stage of the Saturn I-B was below acceptable limits.

The shot was not postponed, but there were indications it might have to be if the trouble cannot be pinpointed and corrected.

Farm Prices Rose an Eighth

Bankrupty Frauds Flourish Erik Nielsen States in House

OTTAWA (CP) — Bankruptcy frauds are "flourishing and growing" in Canada and the government should answer his questions on the situation, Erik Nielsen told the Commons Friday.

The Conservative MP from the Yukon tangled with Justice Minister Cardin as the House studied 1965 - 66 spending estimates of the department.

Mr. Nielsen said he would not get specific in this field until the justice minister answers questions he has placed on the Commons order paper.

The series of questions seeks names of bankruptcy trustees in Vancouver, Edmonton, Montreal, Toronto and Hamilton. It also asks whether there were complaints about estates in these areas and whether investigations were conducted.

Mr. Nielsen said bodies are being dug up all over Quebec.

That has nothing to do with bankruptcies, Mr. Cardin interjected.

Mr. Nielsen asked whether Mr. Cardin meant to say the shooting death of Montreal law-

Says U.S. Water Diversions Could Lower Great Lakes

TORONTO (CP)—The United States government has passed legislation authorizing diversions from northeastern river basins which could cut water levels in Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence River, says Thomas W. Kierans, Sudbury water resources expert.

In an interview Friday Mr. Kierans said the diversions could result in damage to downstream interests.

Mr. Kierans, author of the Grand Canal scheme for recycling arctic waters to the Great Lakes, said the law was passed last October without attracting attention in Canada.

He said the Canadian government took the matter under study after he drew it to the attention of Jean - Luc Pepin, minister of mines and technical surveys.

He said the U.S. government has authorized more than $70,000 for study of projects covered by the law, which provides for construction, operation and maintenance of resevoirs in river basins draining into Chesapeake Bay, the Atlantic, Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence River

Mr. Kierans said the river basins involved all lie within U.S. territory and the ones affecting Canada lie mainly in New York State. They do not come under the Boundary Waters Treaty of 1909, he said.

But he noted that a section of the treaty requires that where flows are diverted away from boundary waters, downstream interests must be compensated. No such compensation is provided for in the U.S. law he said.

Keeping Water Fit to Drink To Be Costly

TORONTO CP — Keeping water in the Great Lakes fit for people to drink is going to cost as much as the United States space program, says a director of the Great Lakes Institute.

But Dr. George Langford says there is no alternative Canadians and Americans are "face to face with a very serious situation" caused by water pollution.

Dr. Langford made his remarks at a meeting of the Toronto branch of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

Pregnancy Is More Dangerous Than Pills Says U.S. Expert

OTTAWA (CP)—Even if the worst charges about the health hazards of birth control pills are true the hazards of pregnancy are "several thousand times greater," the medical director of the American Planned Parenthood Federation said Friday night.

Dr. Richard Day of New York City, who was taking part in a panel discussion on family planning as an attack on poverty, sponsored by the Ottawa Planned Parenthood Association, said there is no proof that the pills cause cancer.

"Statistics show no evidence there is an increase in cancer incidence among women taking the pills.

"Some people have asserted that there may even be a decrease in the incidence of cancer and there is evidence to suggest this may be true."

Dr. Day, who is a past president of the American Board of Pediatrics, said other dangers of the pills have yet to be proved, including the charge that they may cause coronary thrombosis.

"If there is any danger it is miniscule."

He later told a reporter that recent U.S. statistics show that about 36 women in 100,000 die from child birth. "The number of women who may have died through taking the pills is a very, very tiny figure. It is infinitely smaller than the maternal death rate.'

Dr. Jack Lippes, inventor of the "Lippes loop, an interuterine contraceptive device now being widely used in many countries, told the audience of 100 Canadian Family Planning Organization members he believes his device or others like it can satisfy "traditional Roman Catholic objections" to artificial birth control methods, but that the way in which it works has not been fully discovered as yet.

"We will know for sure in about a year."

George Cadbury, of Toronto, vice-president of the International Planned Parenthood Federation, said knowledge of contraceptive measures is "a right of every human being."

He said government action is needed to ensure that the poor as well as the wealthy have access to birth control information.

Bishop E. S. Reed, Anglican Bishop of Ottawa, was the panel's moderator.

P.M. Goes "Underground" With Ontario's Premier

TORONTO (CP)—"This is the first time I have ever met underground with a provincial premier," said Prime Minister Pearson.

He looked over at Conservative Premier John Robarts of Ontario and the two broke into broad smiles as a crowd of more than 1,000 laughed.

Mr. Pearson was continuing the tone Friday of a light-hearted expedition to his hometown to open the city's new $200,000,000 east-west subway.

The public had its first chance today to ride the new eight-mile underground and is expected to be happy at the chance to leave the car at home and whiz downtown in half the time it took by streetcar. Streetcar service on the Bloor-Danforth line ends today.

The Pearsons mingled with a good-natured crowd of some 1,300 guests at a buffet lunch at the Greenwood subway stop.

Earlier, in a nostalgic peep at his boyhood, Mr. Pearson said

Government States Moscow Reports Wishful Thinking

JAKARTA (CP)—Reports circulating in Moscow and elsewhere Friday that President Sukarno of Indonesia had been overthrown were merely "wishful thinking," official circles here said today.

An air of tension prevailed in Jakarta today with tanks and army units present and Sukarno moving to stem the rising tide of student unrest and demonstrations since his cabinet reshuffle Monday.

However, the opinion in official circles was that reports of a coup betrayed "a lamentable ignorance of President Sukarno's unique and special position in Indonesia."

Sukarno's cabinet reorganization and his dissolution Friday of the militant pro-army, anti-Communist Students Action Front (Kami) were pointed to as evidence of his complete mastery of the political scene.

The Indonesian armed forces were reported completely loyal to the president.

In a decree Friday night, Sukarno dissolved Kami, banned demonstrations of any kind and outlawed the assembly of more than five persons throughout the far-flung island republic.

EXPECT FURTHER ACTION

Immediate Kami reaction to the presidential decree was not known, but most observers expected the students to form a new organization.

Radio Jakarta, monitored in Singapore, said strong action would be taken against persons who disobey the decree.

Radio Jakarta said Friday Sukarno had imposed a curfew on the capital. A broadcast today indicated that the curfew has been extended 2½ hours—from 9:30 p.m. to 6 a.m.

From Singapore, The Associated Press quoted reliable sources as saying Sukarno's crackdown on student demonstrations may have succeeded in weakening army support for the anti-Communist rallies.

The students, angered by the ouster of Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution as defence minister, are expected to continue their protests, "but the army is not really giving them enough support for the demonstrations to make much difference to Sukarno," one source said.

Suspects Sabotage In Mishap

TORONTO (CP) — Contract negotiations between the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) and representatives of 55 Ontario trucking companies were adjourned Friday until Monday.

At Meaford, about 30 miles east of Owen Sound, town police said they suspected sabotage in an incident involving a 10-ton tractor-trailer owned by Peed Transport, an independent trucking company not involved in the six-week old trucking strike.

Peed Transport's garages at Meaford were burned about three weeks ago with a loss estimated by the company at about $20,000.

An empty tractor-trailer Friday plunged down an incline into Meaford harbor. Driver Earl Wilson told police he had parked his vehicle with the motor running and the brakes set.

Peed Transport and Sprung's Transport and Movers are the only truckers serving the Owen Sound area since the strike started Jan. 13.

The negotiations in Toronto started two weeks ago with federal and provincial mediators.

Negotiators have been dealing with non-monetary issues between the union and the companies that normally haul about 70 per cent of the province's general road freight.

Still to be tackled are issues of wages and hours of work.

About 8,500 Teamsters are on strike to support demands for a reduction in the work week to 40 hours from 48 with no reduction in pay. In the previous contract, city drivers received $2 an hour and highway drivers received a mileage rate.

Also still at issue is the union's demand that the companies withdraw damage actions, notably against the Hamilton local, as a result of wildcat strikes last fall.

Spy Case Inquiry Sought

OTTAWA (CP)— Eric Neilsen, Conservative MP who rocked government benches a year ago with disclosures that brought about the judicial inquiry into the Lucien Rivard affair, also joined two Liberals and a host of opposition MPs in calling for an in-camera inquiry into the case of Victor Spencer of Vancouver, alleged to have provided information to Soviet embassy officials.

Bryce Mackasey, parliamentary secretary to Labor Minister Nicholson, and Ralph B. Cowan (L — York - Humber) joined the criticism of Prime Minister Pearson's decision not to hold such an inquiry into the case of the former post office employee.

PROGRESS SLOW

The Commons made little headway in debate on the justice department's spending program for the year ending March 31. The program is the first item of business facing MPs Monday.

Mr. Mackasey said the handling of the Spencer case "raises the question in my mind as to whether the rights of Canadian individuals are properly protected."

Mr. Cowan, known as a maverick, said he took part in the debate "in defence of civil liberties."

In taking away Mr. Spencer's job, his pension rights and subjecting him to constant RCMP observation, the government was trampling on the rights of all Canadians.

He criticized justice minister Cardin for naming Spencer as the civil servant involved in turning information over to two Soviet embassy employees, later expelled. It was "absolutely improper, unjustified and unjustifiable."

War Against Injunctions' Use Now Moved Into Court Room

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Organized labor's battle against the use of injunctions in labor disputes moved into the court room and the conference chamber this week.

Massed assemblies of union members near the picket lines at Tilco Plastics Ltd., where 36 female workers have been on strike since Dec. 14, stopped Friday after Attorney-General Arthur Wishart announced in the legislature that contempt of court proceedings had been taken against 28 persons.

There were these developments:

—A spokesman for the Textile Workers Union of America (CLC), which represents the striking workers, said the union was meeting with the labor relations board in Toronto to seek permission to prosecute Tilco management for "failing to bargain in good faith."

—The United Auto Workers union (CLC) local in London, Ont, urged the Ontario Federation of Labor to "get every union in Ontario to send men to Peterborough" to demonstrate against the use of injunctions.

—Peterborough and District Labor Council leaders met in Toronto with lawyers who will defend them against the contempt of court charges when they are heard March 7.

—The OFL pledged itself to pay legal fees of Peterborough unionists charged with violating the injunction, —Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree announced he will meet Tilco management and textile workers leaders Monday in an attempt to get contract negotiations started again.

The injunction against the Tilco strikers, granted in December, limits pickets at the plant to 12.

For two days this week, the 12 textile workers pickets have been joined by large numbers of other unionists who claimed they were not picketing but exercising their right to peaceful assembly. While the numbers varied from a few dozen to 400, Peterborough police said the demonstrators were generally peaceful.

OFL officers met members of the Peterborough and District Labor Council in Toronto Friday. David Archer, president of the OFL, said the federation is convinced "the demonstration was a reasonable protest against the unfair use of court injunctions which interfere with legal collective bargaining procedure."

"It will be interesting to see if the government will act with equal haste and severity against management which refuses to bargain in good faith with the union," he said.

A Tilco management spokesman said the company's stand when it meets Mr. Rowntree Monday will be that it will not negotiate with the union under the threat of violence.

Mr. Rowntree said in his announcement he would try to "ascertain the present status of negotiations and the issues which are keeping the parties apart."

The UAW in London, at a meeting Thursday night, shortly after Mr. Wishart made his statement in the legislature, offered to send 50 demonstrators to Peterborough.

"If labor is going to get anywhere it has to show it doesn't frighten easily," said Local President W. J. Froude.

Only 60 demonstrators showed up near the Tilco plant Friday, and they turned back after speaking with the pickets.

Tilco, a manufacturer of plastic products, has continued operations with non-union workers since the strike began.

Melvin Empey's Last Run Is Made on Crack Rapido

More than 37 years as a railroader, the last 18 of them as engineer, were ended for Melvin Empey, 48 Craig Street, as he pulled the Rapido, crack Montreal-bound passenger train, to a stop at the north station last evening.

As he stepped down from his diesel cab Mr. Empey was greeted by his wife, immediate family members and friends who had gathered on the station platform to offer congratulations.

Mr. Empey's son Norris worked as fireman for his father on his memorable last run. Another son, Jack, also a railroader, is employed as assistant supervisor of car control.

Starting as fireman at Belleville in October, 1928, Mr. Empey was classed as an engineer in 1948 and during his more than 37 years with the railway has also worked out of Stratford, Niagara Falls, Toronto, Lindsay, Montreal and Cochrane.

Now looking ahead to retirement, he plans to do some travelling other than up and down the CN mainline, and also to devote more time to hunting and fishing.

Tribune Editor Retires at 48

WINNIPEG (CP) — Eric Wells, 48, retires today as editor of The Tribune which for the last 20 years he has imprinted with his personal and exacting philosophy of journalism.

He plans to do some writing and attend to a fly-in fishing lodge in northeastern Manitoba in which he is a partner.

During his tenure, The Tribune broadened from a rather local approach to a sharply-edited metropolitan daily with a national and international outlook.

As night editor, news editor and managing editor before becoming editor, he needled his staff constantly with humor or acid as the occasion demanded.

He expounded his ideas in newsroom chats, pungent memos and late-night bull sessions at his home.

Asks Egg, Hog Support Fixed For 6 Months

OTTAWA (CP)—A Saskatchewan farmer asked the government Friday to establish guaranteed prices for eggs and hogs every six months and not yearly as is the practice now.

Reynold Rapp (PC — Humboldt Melfort - Tisdale) also called for regional stabilization prices for the two products in a bill debated during private member's hour.

Debate was still going on when the hour elapsed and the bill will be discussed later in the session.

Mr. Rapp said Prairie farmers in particular lose money when base prices are established on an annual basis.

Confusion Reigns, but Staff Morale at Hospital Is High

NAPANEE — Questioned Friday afternoon as to the arrival of equipment for the Lennox and Addington County Hospital, Administrator J. C. Hepburn replied: 'Lots of it has come in, but it is the quality and not the quantity which is most frustrating. For example, we could set up all the patient rooms right now, linen, furniture, everything but the mattresses.

"The beds and mattresses are an improvement over those in general use in hospitals. There are no springs," he said, "instead each bed has a metal deck divided into four sections which fold back over each other when the bed is raised at head or foot. Springs break under such treatment; these will not. They are comparatively rigid, but 45 percent of patients who enter hospital require fracture boards."

To compensate for the lack of conventional springs, extra thick mattresses are being used. These are of 6" thick Polyurethane, an improvement over sponge rubber. In spite of best efforts, bacteria may linger in the conventional mattress. The ones being used in the new hospital can be rid of bacteria completely, Mr. Hepburn explained. Some feather pillows will be used, but there are pillows of foam rubber for those who are allergic to feathers.

Mr. Hepburn is indifferent to the fact that no equipment has yet arrived for his office. "I can use an orange crate for a desk," he said. "I won't catch my nylons on it, but we can't get along without our anaesthetic machine. Once we have the equipment for good patient care, we will open," he added.

A week from Monday the hospital will be able to serve meals, both to the patients and in the cafeteria, Mr. Hepburn stated. "The kitchen will be ready the Friday before, but we will want a few days to try it out. The Dietitian is Miss L'Estrange, and we are fortunate to have her," the administrator said. "She has years of experience in such work."

Although there is confusion and frustration on every hand, Mr. Hepburn says that the morale among the employees in the building is high. A pharmacist who was hired this week to set up the pharmacy told the staff that he had never seen such cooperation and good humor under similar circumstances. No staff pharmacist has yet been found and a local pharmacist could not be borrowed until a permanent one is hired, Mr. Hepburn stated. In studying pharmacy, the student must decide before his last year whether he wishes to be a hospital or a retail pharmacist, he explained. He specializes in one or the other in his final year.

Mr. Hepburn acknowledges thing will have worked at least 26 days without one day off, Sundays included, before the first patient arrives.

District Governor Visits Lions

NAPANEE — The dinner meeting of the Napanee Lions Club early this week was marked by the official visit of the district governor, Herbert Wark, governor of district A-3, whose home club is Brockville. Mr. Wark is a retired pharmacist.

In his address, the speaker analyzed Lionism in general, its purpose and accomplishments. He dwelt on the advantages of attending conventions, both district and international, and urged the members to attend if at all possible. He pointed out that the international convention in 1969 is in Tokyo.

Three members accompanied the district governor from Brockville, and a delegation of six Havelock members was in attendance.

There was discussion concerning the forthcoming novice boys' hockey tournament to be held in Napanee March 12. It will run all day. Committees were set up to look after various phases of the work connected with the tournament.

Two curling teams will take part in the Lion bonspiels, one in Lindsay and one in Gananoque, it was decided.

It was reported that the rifle team is practising in an effort to win back the Harry Skitch trophy donated by the Napanee Lions Club, and now held by the Verona Lions Club. This will be decided at a regional rifle shoot.

ST. MARY MAGDALENE FATHER-SON BANQUET

NAPANEE — Mrs. Roy Robertson is the president of the Ladies Auxiliary which provided turkey and all the trimmings for the father-son banquet of the 1st Napanee Scouts and Cubs last Tuesday evening in St. Mary Magdalene's Anglican Church.

Leaders of the Scouts are Ed Ford and Gordon Craike, and of the cubs, William Thompson and Carman Thompson.

Geoffrey Smith was the proud recipient of three coveted badges. In the absence of Robert Casey, district commissioner, who was attending a similar banquet in Camden East, Geoffrey Smith received his badge as a Queen's Scout from his scout master, Ed Ford. From William Finlay, chairman of the district council, he received badges as Pathfinder, and for the Gold Class in First Aid.

Two other Queen's Scouts were among the guests, Clive Whitfield and Billy Robertson.

For entertainment a film was shown demonstrating safety in handling fire arms.

GRACE CHURCH FATHER-SON BANQUET

NAPANEE — Close to 100 3rd Napanee Scouts, Cubs, their fathers and their leaders sat down to a turkey dinner last Wednesday evening in Trinity United Church. Mrs. George DeMill, president of the ladies' Auxiliary, is loud in her praises of the assistance given her by the mothers.

Mrs. Kay Snider was responsible for the floral table centre, and the Cubs for the cleverly made tents which served as place cards.

George Demill, chairman of the group committee, was in the chair for the evening.

Kenneth Coleman, the Scoutmaster, has the assistance of Clive Whitfield, a Queen's Scout who is not old enough to be appointed officially. Cub leaders are Mrs. Eleanor Tack and Mrs. Dorothy Dibb.

In addition to the leaders, other notables at the head table included: Mayor Lorne Smart; the Rev. Guy Case; the Rev. E. Irvine Johnstone, minister of the church; Envoy Phelps of the Salvation Army; Jim Ives, of the Department of Lands and Forests; George Demill; Robert Casey, district commissioner; Gerald Day, student minister of the Bay charge; William Finlay, president of the district council and Henry Schermerhorn, secretary-treasurer of the group committee. In each case a son accompanied the adult, although in some cases, the son was borrowed for the occasion. Mr. Casey, for example, was temporary father for a little chap who had lost his own father lately.

After the banquet, Mr. Ives showed two films on outdoor life, the one of survival in the woods with only an axe.

Awards had been presented to both Scouts and Cubs on Parents' Night the week before.

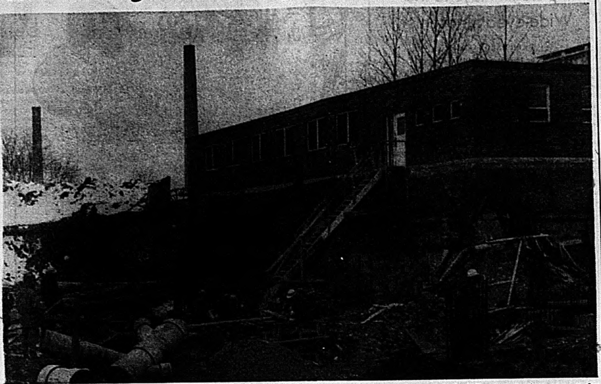
Work on New Building Leaves Hospital Lab 'Hanging In Air'



HIGH AND DRY is what the medical laboratory at Belleville General Hospital appears to be left, as excavators prepare for foundation of new multi-million-dollar hospital wing. The new hospital building is being erected "around" the present laboratory building which will later be razed to make way for the remainder of the new structure.

With excavation for Belleville's new seven and a half million dollar hospital wing continuing apace, it might be said that the medical laboratory at the Belleville General Hospital is being left in a precarious position.

Outside what only a few months ago was the laboratory front entrance there is now a 25 foot drop (straight down) and the whoomph of dynamite blasts are being heard just outside lab workers windows.

Eventually when construction is completed there will be labratory facilities provided in the new hospital building.

But in the meantime dirt and rock excavation has to go ahead and at the same time the present hospital laboratory must remain in operation.

Laboratory director Dr. A. Rota admits that the building "shakes a little" when the dynamite blasts go off and, with tongue in cheek, says his workers occasionally expect the ceilings to come down.

WORK CONTINUES

"But despite the noise and confusion, the work of the laboratory department is still being carried on normally", he says.

What actually is happening is that the new multi-stroey hospital is being built 'around'" the separate laboratory building at the rear of the present hospital.

The new hospital will surround the old laboratory building on the east end on the south and when these sections of the new structure are completed the laboratory will be moved into the new building.

Then the present laboratory structure will be torn down and the space filled in as the new hospital building is completed.

FAMILIAR PROBLEM

Keeping all present hospital facilities in operation while a new addition is built around it, of course, is one of the big problems which hospital planners are faced with.

There was just such a problem with the hospital boilerhouse last year.

As was the case with the laboratory the old hospital boilerhouse was smack dab on the proposed site for the new building.

The problem with the laboratory is being solved by building around it until facilities are provided in the new building. The boilerhouse problem was solved by building the new facilities on a different site. Then just before construction of the new hospital wing was started last fall, the old boiler house was demolished.

PARKING DISRUPTED

It was the same with the hospital maintenance shop. Before construction of the new wing could be started, a new temporary maintenance shop on a different site had to be provided and also the regular hospital parking was disrupted.

Of course, all this causes inconvenience to hospital personnel.

In the case of the medical laboratory it means the workers have to put up with blasting operations close by and their building has been, in one sense, turned around.

Where the front entrance formerly existed there is now a rear emergency exit stairway leading into the excavation for the new hospital. Employees have to use an underground tunnel connecting with the main hospital to get to and from work.

Alkenbrack Hits Plan to Use Convicts

OTTAWA (CP)—John R. Matheson, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, suggested in the Commons Friday that convicts be employed to repair the stone walls of the Ottawa-Kingston Rideau Canal and build wharves on islands in the Arctic.

The MP for Leeds said during a debate on justice department appropriations the convicts should be given a chance to see the "glories of the north" instead of the inside of a cell. They could be taken north by aircraft and live under canvas.

Such a challenge would uplift the prisoner and change his attitude.

Erik Nielsen (PC — Yukon) asked Mr. Matheson whether he had discussed his suggestion with Bud Orange (L — Northwest Territories).

Mr. Matheson said he hadn't.

Douglas Alkenbrack (PC — Prince Edward - Lennox) said Mr. Matheson's convict - labor suggestion was "folly." Public works should be done by contract to the lowest bidder.

Two Killed, Seven Injured

GRAVENHURST, Ont. (CP) Two persons were killed and seven injured in a three-car accident on icy pavement for miles south of here Friday.

Dead are Edward Gondor and Mrs. Leslie Gondor of Cooksville, Ont.

Mrs. Gondor's husband, 55, was taken to hospital in Toronto in critical condition with a fractured skull.

Two adults and three children from Cooksville and a man from Toronto were taken to hospital in Bracebridge. All were in fair condition.

Bankrupty

yer Francois Payette this week had nothing to do with bankruptcies.

Mr. Cardin asked whether Mr. Nielsen could say that it had.

Mr. Nielsen said he could name five "companies" with which Payette was connected. But he would not do so until Mr. Cardin answers his order-paper questions.

Bankruptcy frauds are an essential ingredient of organized crime, Mr. Nielsen said. If there is doubt about the extent of organized crime, Mr. Cardin could refer to the RCMP background report on the subject presented at the last federal-provincial conference on crime.

The paper said organized crime rings have lucrative rackets in Canada in liquor, bankruptcies, drugs and other fields.

He also read from a report prepared for the Quebec government which said federal trustees were themselves involved in the bankruptcy frauds.

NEEDS AUTHORITY

Mr. Nielsen said the RCMP as the only national police force should be given authority to fight the gangsters on a national scale. Provinces with other forces should co-operate to help the Mounties.

He noted a Quebec government official's statement that arson and bankruptcy frauds are not connected. But he said a study of them brought him to the conclusion there is "a positive connection."

John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) said federal failure to revise the 17-year-old act despite numerous briefs asking change is shocking.

The act was designed in 1949 for failure of unincorporated companies. But bankruptcies now were taking place mainly among incorporated companies.

Kingston Area Residents Ill With Hepatitis

KINGSTON, (CP)—Nine persons in a nearby subdivision have been stricken with infectious hepatitis, Kingston township's medical officer of health, Dr. D. G. Workman, said Friday.

He said wells have been polluted and all drinking water must be boiled.

Hepatitis is an inflammation of the liver. Dr. Workman said he believes human waste had polluted the water supply.

Electric Arc Caused Fatal Fire

QUEBEC (CP)—A fire that ravaged Bois-de-Coulonge and killed Lieutenant - Governor Paul Comtois, 70, Monday was caused by an electrical fault, a preliminary report of the provincial fire commission says.

In a report prepared by Fire Commissioner Francois-Xavier Perrault for Pierre Laporte, municipal affairs minister, the source of the fire was said to be a basement room used for storing apples.

The report also said: "The theory that the fire had a criminal origin is not justified by the facts."

Mr. Perrault found that the basement room was insulated by cork smeared with tar, which was set on fire by an arc of electrical current between two bulbs, one inside the room and one outside

Inquiry experts said an arc of electric current is a bright discharge between two conductors, always accompanied by intense heat

This discharge pierced the floor of the cloak-room and immediately started the fire

He referred to explosions reported to have been heard at the time and said they "could be explained by natural causes"

Gases and fumes had accumulated in the basement room and had forced their way through a hole in the floor above, "causing a strong blast of air accompanied by a loud noise"

Charge 60 Dogs Were Fed Only Every 10 Days

JOLIETTE, Que. (CP) — Officials of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals said Friday they hope to get a police warrant to arrest a kennel owner for wilful cruelty to animals and causing unnecessary suffering.

SPCA Director James St. Onge said more than 60 dogs were moved to Montreal from a kennel near Joliette, 35 miles to the north, after police granted a search and seize warrant Thursday.

The keeper would feed the animals about every 10th day by throwing them dead chieckens which still had their feathers, he said.

Some dead animals were still chained to their posts while live ones had to clamber over them.

hearing, I won't have much respect for Canadian justice."

DIEFENBAKER CURIOUS

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker was curious about Spencer's statement that heads "would swim" if an inquiry was held into his case.

"Where are the heads that are going to fall or swim?" he asked.

David Lewis, deputy leader of the New Democratic Party, said the prime minister was guilty of "outrageous disregard for the basic principles of justice and liberty."

Mr. Pearson had said that the country's security would be weakened if a public hearing was necessary.

Mr. Lewis disclosed that Davie Fulton (PC — Kamloops), when Conservative justice minister between 1957 and 1962, set up an in-camera royal commission to hear a security charge against an employee of a federal Crown corporation.

Mr. Lewis said the employee was a client of his and had been judged guilty by both the RCMP and the justice department. But the royal commission had cleared the man.

DEAN INVESTIGATED

Mr. Lewis gave no other details, except to say that the commissioner was the dean of law at the University of British Columbia.

"What possible harm to the security of Canada conceivably could occur if the dean of the University of British Columbia or a member of the judiciary of Canada was given the information which the minister has, listened to Mr Spencer and his counsel in camera, and then told the members of this House and people of Canada what his conclusions were?"

The matter would end there for the NDP if this came about, said Mr. Lewis.

Gerald W. Baldwin (PC — Peace River) wondered whether he would be placed under constant surveillance if he made an inflammatory speech in the Commons. The Spencer case indicated the government thought it had this right.

John B. Matheson, parliamentary secretary to Mr. Pearson, said there are certain facts in the Spencer case that prevented an inquiry.

Mr. Matheson said there are certain facts in the case not known to Mr. Lewis and they never will be known to him.

Food Research Expert Speaks On Processing

BRIGHTON — Dr. Norman Tape of the Food Research Institute in Ottawa, speaking on "Processed Foods of the Future", gave the Quinte Professional Agrologists a good deal of food for thought. The February meeting, held at the Agricultural Service Centre in Brighton, was in charge of A. O. Dalrymple of Bowmanville and courtesies were looked after by Vice President Wright of Prince Edward County and Director Blair Heeney of the Smithfield Experimental Station.

The picture of plenty in one third of the world while the other two thirds are hungry seems hard to evaluate, said Dr. Tape, a graduate of Rutgers University in New Jersey. There seems no end to our ability to preserve foods via new processes. Terms like "the fluid ice bed", liquid nitrogen", "micro waves", irradiated foods", were added to the better known canning and freezing processes. Various algae and sea plants are being evaluated and anything may soon be good food. Via slides Dr. Tape's associates were shown working with modern equipment to turn out mashed products in a dried form, including potatoes and turnips. Fast frozen slices of tomatoes were suggested as the future way of getting good taste and quality into the menu. Many of the food processors of the area attended.

"The subway price of $200,000,000 is about the size of the federal budget when I was a boy," said Mr. Pearson.

Premier Robarts suggested that TTC Chairman Ralph Day, "the man who is keeping costs down," be made chairman of Expo 67.

Prayers were offered for nine workmen killed during construction of the line, which is linked to the existing north-south Yonge Street - University Avenue route.

Toronto now has 15 miles of subway in service. 5

Job Retraining

Adult retraining programs are not making much impact in Canada, if we are to believe United Steelworkers of America official Mike Fenwick of Toronto. At a manpower training conference in Ottawa the other day he said "the man on the street hasn't a clue that they exist."

Mr. Fenwick had other interesting things to say at the conference sponsored by the Canadian Labor Congress. He said education departments are so overloaded with other problems that they are giving low priority to vocational courses.

Yet these departments, he said, are unwilling to turn the field over to labor departments because they are jealous of their jurisdiction.

The education people's attitude is understandable. This is scarcely a field for the labor department. On the other hand, unions and employers might be supposed to know more about the type of work that is involved in retraining men who have been displaced by automated processes.

And yet, according to Mr. Fenwick, unions and employers, as well as the man in the street, are unaware of the programs available.

Obviously the jurisdictional disputes Mr. Fenwick alludes to must be eliminated if job retraining is to be placed on a proper basis. The labor official made two suggestions along these lines: the creation of provincial manpower departments similar to the federal government's, and the establishment of a national conference of labor, management and governments to formally launch on-the-job training programs.

Publicity of some sort is clearly needed. The lack of knowledge of the programs is apparently at provincial level, but it should not be beyond the competence of government, whether provincial or federal, to launch some campaign to acquaint Canadians with these programs.

Flying Saucer Mystery

The mystery of what constitutes "flying saucers," or what have come to be known offcially as "unidentified flying objects" (UFO) is a frustrating one.

Frustrating because there have been innumerable sightings and yet no one, official or otherwise, has presented any positive explanation of the phenomenon. Both the United States air force and Space Agency officials, who might be supposed to know something about the subject (since most of the sightings have been in the United States) remain notably silent.

George Adamski published a book some years ago claiming the saucers are real and are manned by intelligent beings. He even claims to have photographed the occupant of a saucer which landed in the California desert.

Just now there is revival of interest in flying saucers. Look Magazine recently ran an article on sightings of a UFO — a brilliantly-lighted object — at Exeter, New Hampshire, last year. The object scared the wits out of a youth who saw it as he walked along a road near Exeter in the early hours of the morning. Police officers summoned to the spot by the youth also saw it, as also did a woman newspaper correspondent. In all 60 people in the Exeter area said they saw it.

Animals in this rural area of New England were reported to have been restive as the object rose from behind trees and hovered in the sky before moving off at "tremendous speed."

Accompanying the article is a photograph of a UFO taken at night in another part of the United States. The same photograph, along with others taken in Massachusetts and Texas, appear in the current issue of the magazine, Pageant. They show clearly, lighted objects in the sky. The objects appear to have definite substance, their brilliance alone indicating that the human eye is not being deceived.

But what are these objects? That remains the great mystery. Is there something sinister or other-worldly about them? The Pageant article suggests that the earth is definitely being watched by beings from "up there".

And there is the extraordinary book by Gray Barker, of Clarksburg, West Virginia, called "They Knew Too Much About Flying Saucers." The book describes how leading figures among flying UFO researchers, who have challenged the U.S. government's denial that saucers come from outer space, have been silenced. Not in the manner of the Stalinist era in Russia, of course. The men are still around, says Barker. However, after a visit by "three men in dark suits," their identity unknown, the researchers no longer publish UFO research material and no longer speak of UFO.

Strange, is it not? Yet the book is based on the author's own experiences of the phenomenon, as well as those of other reputable people, civilian and military, who have witnessed it.

Pickersgill Plays to the Wide-eyed Innocents

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — It might be terribly impressive if it weren't so hilariously funny to see and hear Transport Minister J. W. "Jolly Jack" Pickersgill putting on his pious face and swearing by all that is politically holy that never never never could he intervene, much less interfere with any supposedly "independent" Federal agency.

Would he so much as nod to the Board of Broadcast Governors or wink to those in High Government Place to influence the switching of a television channel worth several million dollars?

Heavens, no!

Gracious, not only would such a thing never occur to him, but he wouldn't really know how to go about doing it, even if his lily-white halo did, by sheerest accident, slip for just a moment.

That is what, utterly deadpan, he has been telling Parliament.

And strange new minority Parliament that it is, with so few Members who have been around for enough years to know better, a surprising number of wide-eyed innocents appeared, incredibly naively, to believe him.

Crazy!

For there isn't a man in Parliament — not one — who better knows how to do things, including the kind of things that involve people with influence "leaning" on Federal agencies, "independent" or not.

THE DRILL

For "Pick" almost certainly stands alone as the most select of the select few in the inner circle of the Cabinet who knows the Government and its complicated ways backward, forward, sideways and upside down.

To others in this charmed circle — Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp, Industries Minister "Bud" Drury, Citizenship Minister Jack Nicholson, Labor Minister Alan MacEachen and even Prime Minister Pearson—were mere Deputy Ministers, Directors-General of Special Aides in their Senior Civil Service days when they first learned the mechanics of the Federal administration.

And "Pick?"

Well, he was the Boy Wonder, the Super-Deputy, the Clerk of the Privy Council, in short, Number One in the Bureaucratic pecking order.

And more important in knowing how, who, why, where and what makes things click, the late Prime Minister Mackenzie King's trouble-shooter.

For years "Pick" was the Grey Eminence, who in his final days as Mr. Big in the Privy Council office, could set off loud alarms in the House of Commons — with John Diefenbaker, then Conservative MP for Lake Centre, raising the hue and cry — by simply appearing, perched high in the Galleries of the House, watching the drama on the Floor.

Pickersgill better than anybody in Parliament knows precisely what administrative buttons to push to turn what wheels to which purpose in any Federal agency anywhere in the land.

He wouldn't know how to "lean" on the Broadcast Governors or any other Federal Department, Board, Bureau Commission, Crown Corporation?

Man, you must be kidding!

THE FIX

And if the right wheels don't turn in the designated places to do the expected job when our Mr. P. presses the button — or more realistically, picks up the phone and murmurs into it — then who knows better what to do? Somebody wakes up dead.

Nobody in any Federal agency can "snow" him.

He knows, by now almost instinctively, what the Bureaucratic reaction to his political action should be — and it better be the right one.

And that second joke, that even if he did know how to put the pressure where it would do the most good, he just wouldn't think of doing it?

Even funnier.

Remember the time, not so long ago — back around 1952 or '53 — when he was still Privy Council Clerk and accompanying former Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent on a western tour?

And they reached the Fort Garry Hotel in Winnipeg where somebody had forgotten to roll out the Red Carpet for "Uncle Louie" quickly and luxuriously enough to please "Pick?"

The poor old hotel manager, Robert S. Pitt, didn't know what hit him until he found himself banished to the Prince Edward in Brandon, Man., a dead end, if there ever was one, in the CNR hotel chain.

It was "Pick" he found out when the affair, exploding into something of a cause celebre, reached a Commons Committee for investigation. There it roared on for weeks with the Opposition screaming for the Pickersgill scalp.

But "Pick" came out of it safely, if not exactly smelling of roses, and poor Robert Pitt started on the long road back to the management of one of the major CNR hotels. Today he runs the Macdonald in Edmonton, and if he's heard Pickersgill's protestations of innocence, even ignorance in the fine art of "the fix," he must be laughing himself sick.

An Anachronistic Custom

Brantford Expositor

Though Queen Elizabeth was born on April 21, her birthday is officially observed in Britain on the second Saturday in June. By contrast, her Canadian subjects ignore the present royal birthday in favor of a holiday that honors the birth of her great great grandmother.

There is even a further inconsistency in the Canadian observance since the holiday is no longer necessarily taken on May 24, the actual date of Queen Victoria's arrival in the world, but since 1952 has been held on the Monday immediately preceding May 25. For some time, too, the Friday before the May holiday has been celebrated as Empire (later updated to Commonwealth) Day, though correctly it should fall on May 24.

Just as some parts of the early Christian world celebrated Easter at different times, so Canada and Britain may now be observing Commonwealth Day on different dates, unless a change is made. Prime Minister Wilson recently declared that Britain will celebrate both Commonwealth Day and the Queen's official birthday on the second Saturday of June.

The British practice of combining the two dates is not likely to find favor in Canada. For many students, who are the most conscientious observers of Commonwealth Day, school is out by the second week of June, and it is not to be expected that their parents will devote a Saturday in June to parades, pageants and the like. Few people bother now to spare time for ceremony on Dominion Day which follows a few weeks later.

Canada will probably continue to follow the anachronistic custom of taking the mid-May break in honor of the new long dead Victoria, though of course in Montreal the day will be in memory of that hero of New France, Dollard des Ormeaux. As for Commonwealth day, surely an arrangement could be worked out with Britain to transfer it to a convenient Monday in February. It seems a long time now since we had our last break from work on Jan. 1.

Sun Worshipper

St. Catharines Standard

Now it is known that even a Canadian butterfly can become fed up with the Canadian winter and fly to California. At least a tagged butterfly released in this country was captured in Southern California recently, and by a former Canadian.

Both the butterfly and Reginald Hensley of the Santa Barbara area, beat the odds against such occurrences. The chances are reported five million to one that a tagged butterfly will be captured in California, and the odds are even more astronomical that an ex-Canadian would make the find.

The monarch butterfly was released in 1965 and at last reports was attempting to escape from its container to continue its flight in the California sunshine. In its escape attempts, the butterfly is akin to many who feel they are caged by the Canadian winter.

Sun Anyone— And No Tax!

Ottawa Journal

There's a well-timed article called "Tax Havens" in Chitty's Law Journal for January. Written by Toronto lawyer W. H. Giles, it discusses tax structures or lack of them in several popular "havens" for Canadians and other heavily-taxed people.

Not even reading about a sunny Bermuda beach in February can beat this passage of quiet prose for pure dreaminess:

"Bermuda levies no income tax, capital gains tax, dividends withholding tax or estate tax of any kind . . . Bermuda has no succession duty tax, inheritance duty or death tax . . ."

Other havens described are The Bahamas, Haiti, Liberia, Luxembourg, Panama and Uruguay, most of whom look kindly on income earned outside the country. There are taxes on businesses but most of them seem mild by North American standards.

But Mr. Giles adds that "in recent times most of these countries have been re-examining their positinos to a greater or lesser degree . . ." He also mentions the matter of "stability," naming Bermuda, Switzerland and Uruguay as having "reasonable safety."

So a Canadian fleeing taxes must be prepared for more of the same if the government of a haven decides it's time to follow the Canadian government's example of taxes. Or even worse, an "unstable" haven government might just decide it owns every penny in the country, never mind the taxes. There's no faster route from haven to "help!"

Lake Shores Under Threat

Kingston Whig-Standard

For many years these columns have noted and commented upon, with growing consternation, the relentless and steady swallowing up by private interests of the shorelines of our lakes. Public access even to the Great Lakes, particularly in the more densely populated areas of Ontario, has become increasingly difficult to attain; and, in this area, the situation is even worse with regard to the hinterland lakes with which this part of Canada is blessed—in fact, in many instances it is all one can do to find space for a car or two in the immediate vicinity of the lock-areas along the Rideau Canal.

We have implored citizens and elected officials to take action before it is too late, usually to little avail. Public apathy has been the rule. Two notable exceptions being the Quinte Association which has fought for nearly a decade to protect at least some of the Lake Ontario shoreline from private development, and the Eastern Ontario Development Association which has been attempting to have lands along the Rideau Canal designated as public park areas.

To Your Good Health

Toes Are Killing Her, Gout Possible Cause

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My toes are killing me. Friends tell me it is gout. What should I do? — Mrs. A. B.

• • •

Pain is a sign of trouble. In your feet, it could be, among other things, faulty arches, arthritis, gout, bunions or injury.

Rather than let your friends guess what the trouble is, go to your doctor for an accurate diagnosis.

If it is gout, the first procedure is medication to help the acute attack subside. Second comes other medication to prevent a new attack from occurring, by preventing uric acid from accumulating in your system.

Your doctor may in addition advise certain precautions in what you eat. Diet apparently is not as important in treating gout as was once thought, particularly since the discovery of modern medicines now in use, but care in choosing your diet is still helpful to some degree.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I had a tumor of the womb removed, and when I asked the doctor what kind of a tumor, he said "uterine." My husband and I looked it up in the dictionary and it said: "pertaining to the womb; born of the same mother but by a different father."

Now my husband is accusing me of things and says no one has come up with a good explanation of that definition, so please tell me what it means. — Mrs. L. H.

Your husband's obtuseness has gone too far. Those are two definitions, 2 different uses of the word, and he ought to know it.

"Uterine" means related to the uterus or womb. It also has been used for several hundred years to describe half-brothers or half-sisters, who have the same mother but different fathers.

Obviously a tumor doesn't have a mother or father, so obviously the only meaning of the word in this case is that you had a tumor of the uterus. I suggest that your husband begin being more sensible and more gentlemanly.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: After the birth of my daughter four years ago I developed a blood clot in my lung. Fear of another clot has kept me from having another baby.

I had a gall bladder operation without such trouble. Why do clots occur after childbirth? What is your opinion of another pregnancy? I am overweight but otherwise in good health. I am 32. — Mrs. M. G.

Prolonged congestion of veins in the pelvis and legs during pregnancy could be the cause of such a clot. If a clot forms and is carried along by the bloodstream, it could, of course, lodge in the lung.

Such prolonged congestion would be unlikely to occur from a gall bladder or other operation. (Early ambulation is important in preventing clots.)

Your excess weight might be a factor in congestion of veins in pregnancy, and thus might have contributed to the clot.

I can't predict whether another clot might form in a future pregnancy, but I doubt it if you are active. (And it would be helpful to know how much overweight you are.)

Your doctor can't predict definitely, either, but he can give you a reasonably dependable opinion after considering these and other matters: Presence of varicose veins or phlebitis would be important points.

• • •

Note to T. Y.: Exercise will not correct a "fallen bladder." Surgical correction is not difficult, however.

Charles, a French count, had been offered the kingdom by the Pope, in return for a yearly payment. The battle of Benevento secured his claim and Charles had Frederick II's last descendant, a youth named Conradin, hanged as a rebel. Now one of the most powerful rulers of Europe, Charles's personal cruelty led to the revolution known as the Sicilian Vespers and the decay of his kingdom.

Opening a new provincial police detachment office in Picton to serve the Prince Edward County area has been announced through the district headquarters office in Belleville. In charge of the Picton detachment office will be Constable Jack A. C. Rogers, recently discharged from the Canadian Army.

The fame of Hastings County's vacation spots and holiday resorts is apparently far flung if the inquiries at the Chamber of Commerce can be judged a criterion. Requests for information is the largest for this time of year, in the history of the organization.

February 26th, 1946

Mr. Herbert McCabe, Victoria Ave, has been appointed fish and game inspector for the County of Hastings.

Mr. Ben Pratt, Elmer Street, has left for Toronto where he has obtained a position with the Ontario Hospital at New Toronto.

From our file copy at this time in 1896: "The residents of this city who compose the Belleville Harmony Club with Walter Mils and Howard Green as banjoists, gave an entertainment at Roslin last evening. The audience was delighted with the program presented by the club.

Mr. W. S. Dyer, of Ottawa, son of the late Rev. Dr. W. P. Dyer, formerly principal of Albert College for many years, is in the city, accompanied by his wife and child. They are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Allan R. Schryver, Highland Ave.

Last evening the Yoke Fellows of the Baptist Church and a team representing the Sons of England met in the first game of the second round in a carpet ball match. A good game was played by both sides and resulted in victory for the Yoke Fellows, the score being 46 to 32. The umpire was George Barlow and he gave entire satisfaction to both sides.

Unnecessary Extravagance

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

A letter to the editor in a metropolitan newspaper dealt rather brusquely with the taxation increases called for in the 1966-67 Ontaio budget. In part, the letter was as follows:

"I would accept the new Ontario taxes with a little more grace if the politicians would refrain from using the expression "the public demands".

"I am part of the public and I don't demand escalators in schools, murals on the walls, rugs in hte offices, deluxe Board of Education buildings, imported Swedish furniture, an architect for each new building, swimming pools only available for students, and college education for those who can't benefit by it.

"I don't demand modernistic city halls and other unrealistic public buildings.

"I don't demand medicare, but I would willingly help those who can't afford proper medical attention.

"I didn't demand of the federal government $18,000 a year for men whose only apparent duty is to raise their hands and be counted when a vote is needed."

There will be many who will agree with the letter writer. But the government has spoken and Ontario residents must bow to its will.

Ann Landers

Pregnant Prisoner Being Mistrusted

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My best friend is 15. Kitty (made [illegible]) was always a shy girl and had very few dates. I was [illegible] when she swore me to secrecy and admitted she was pregnant.

ANN LANDERS

The boy responsible is a sailor who shipped out last month. Kitty wrote to you for advice and you suggested she tell her parents at once. Well, she took your advice and now she is like a prisoner. Her parents made her quit school. They will not let her out of the house even to hang out clothes. She must stay in her room, out of sight, when friends or relatives come over. Everyone has been told that she is out st in a T.B. sanitarium.

Arrangements have been made for the baby to be delivered home. Kitty is bitterly resentful that she is caged up like an imal. What can be done to help her?—HEARTSICK FRIEND.

DEAR FRIEND: Ask her to let you contact a clergyman. An adult who has some standing in the community should intervene in Kitty's behalf. Her parents are doing the girl a horrible injustice.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'd like to tell "Massachusetts other" a thing or two. She said nurse's aide work is degrading d that she was ashamed her Boston socialite daughter was ending her time that way.

I am a nurse's aide because I learned too late that I should ve been a nurse.

[illegible] I cared for six patients, did things for them that the [illegible] have no time to do. One dear old lady in her 70's, the ctim of a stroke, is my special pet. I carried her breakfast in d fed her. I gave her a bath, changed her bed linen and ushed her lovely hair. She was undoubtedly a rare beauty in r time — the signs are still there. Today the woman is tally helpless.

"Massachusetts Mother," this could be you in 10 years. ould you then think nurse's aide work is degrading?—PROUD.

DEAR PROUD: I received hundreds of letters from nurse's aides describing the satisfactions and rewards of their jobs. Thanks to all who wrote and especially you!

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a widow 59 years of age. A idower who is 62 has been extremely attentive. He is a wonder l man and I am very fond of him.

We have talked about a great many things — but not of arriage. Close friends of his confided that he would like to arry me but his children are against it. They do not dislike me ut they don't want me to inherit any part of their father's tate since it is largely money that belonged to their mother.

I have a lovely home and considerable holdings of my own. am not interested in this man's money. I'd be very happy to gn a pre-marital agreement leaving everything to his children. [illegible] leave what I have to my daughter.) All I want is his love nd companionship.

How can I tell him without appearing to be rushing him nto marriage? — MIAMI.

DEAR MIAMI: Unless you converse with him better in another language, tell him in English. And promptly. As I see it you have a great deal to gain and nothing to lose.

HAWAIIAN HIGHLIGHTS

"The life of the land is perpetuated in righteous ess." — Hawaiian motto.

* * *

February 12, 1966:

"We had a tremendous day yesterday," continues Mrs. [illegible] H. (Helen) Ketcheson, 248 Bridge Street, East, who with her husband is visiting the latter's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Ketcheson, in Honolulu, Hawaii, "when we drove around the Island (Oahu.)

"Our first stop was at the Dole Pineapple planta ion where we purchased luscious ice-cold sections of ineapple arranged on covered plates to eat in the ar.

"Then on to a Banana Compound where we ought Bluefields and Apple Bananas which are a uch different flavor than what we get (in Belleville.)

"'Then we had a picnic at a beautiful park under Chinese Banyan tree, filled with a type of nut the Minor birds feed on and they were chattering like magpies. But their tongues have to be cut when very young for them to talk.

"We drove on next to the Polynesian Culture Centre which was our real destination. A pamphlet explains: '. . . consists of 6 enchanted villages of the South Pacific—Samoa, New Ze[illegible]d, or the Maori village, Fiji, Tahiti, Hawaii and Tonga. Each of these villages has been reproduced authentically by Polynesians brought from their islands in an advisory capacity . . These gracious people invite you to sit and talk with them about their customs and their way of life . . . you will see the ancient arts and crafts displayed, many of which now have almost become a lost art . . .'

"The admission was $2 per person, then 50 cents per person if you wished to cover the 16 acres by vehicle — or you may walk. We rode.

"You may also travel around by Warrior Canoe along the Lagoon. The conveyance is somewhat like a 'surrey with the fringe on top,' a la 'Oklahoma' —[illegible]ly palm and coconut-leaf to[illegible].

"The money (paid in) is used for maintenance and education.

"At each settlement they gave demonstrations of how they have survived regarding food, clothing, housing and ended with a Ceremonial Dance.

"In the question period one man asked where they completed their university education? The answer: Oxford or Cambridge.

"Second question: 'Do you have out houses?' Answer: 'We are learning.'

Concerning canoes, the pamphlet reads: "There was no man of greater importance in a Polynesian community than a master canoe maker, except a high chief. For canoes and the sea on which they rode were most intimate factors in Polynesian life.

"It was canoes which brought them to this particular island from some distant land, it would be canoes which would take them back again when the time fixed by tradition should come. They went hunting large fish in canoes, journeyed to neighboring islands in canoes, and went to war in canoes.

"The simplest Polynesian canoe was a log hollowed out by stone adzes and chisels and steadied by an outrigger float attached. Another larger type was made of planks carefully shaped, snugly fitted together and calked by various substances. These also were outriggers.

"And then came the double canoe, two of the largest type and lashed together fairly close. It was in these canoes that Polynesians made their incredibly long voyages such as one from Hawaii to New Zealand . . "

Mrs. Ketcheson concludes: "Then we purchased armfuls of white and coral antherium and arrived home tired but very happy."

Mrs. Ketcheson's vivid and intimate glimpses of the Hawaiian scene are much appreciated.

Know Your Antiques

A bird box made in England about 1750, this enameled piece was probably made at Battersea. Colors decorated the white enameled metal.

Collectors Liked Boxes —Some Are Still Around

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

Boxes of all sizes and shapes have always intrigued collectors. The most famous of the small boxes are the Battersea enamels. Tiny boxes for patches or snuff were made at York House in London, England, in the Battersea district about 1750.

The firm, headed by Stephen Janssen, went bankrupt in 1756.

Other enameled boxes were made in England. None was ever considered as fine as a Battersea enamel.

The box was made from copper covered with a white enamel. Hand painted or transfer designs in colors were added. The boxes were beautifully decorated. They often were cleverly shaped to resemble birds, beads or animals.

INSTANT ANTIQUE EXPERT

Antique authorities can tell at a glance if a dish is old or new, English or American. To help you become an expert here is our "Instant Expert" tip for today.

If it is necessary to hurriedly study a dish, first turn the dish over and look for a factory mark. There often is a diamond shaped mark printed or impressed on the bottom of the dish.

The letters RD meaning "registered" are in the centre of the mark. The mark was used in England from 1842 to 1883. If there is a letter at the top inside the diamond the dish was made from 1842 to 1867. If a number from 1 to 31 appears inside the top of the mark the piece was made from 1868 to 1883.

If the dish has the words "Rd No" printed on it, it was made after 1883. If the registry number is over 360,000 the plate was made after 1900. If the word "England" appears, the dish was probably made after 1891. The words "Made in England" are printed on twentieth century dishes.

Q. A full-size cast iron piece that looks like a dining room sideboard is in my grandfather's New England barn. It is old and very rusty. How was it used?

A. Sheraton style cast iron sideboards were made to serve as radiators about 1850. The New York Steam Heating Company installed hundreds of them in homes. The heat was produced in a basement boiler and carried through pipes to the iron sideboard radiator. If you didn't want another sideboard you could purchase a radiator that looked like a statue.

Mexico Can Offer Tourists The Finest of Everything

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

MEXICO CITY — What is Mexico really like?

Every tourist who has ever been here — more Americans and Canadians for more days than any country in the world—thinks he knows. What he knows, usually, is what the blind man knew about the elephant: only the part he had explored. The result is that more impressions than facts are avaiable about Mexico.

Right on our continent, lies the most varied, most contrast-laden, most colorful country in the world, after India. Perhaps the most amazing thing about it is that despite its proximity, its culture is almost wholly uninfluenced by the United States.

Where staid England has adopted American Rock 'n Roll as its own and re-exported it over the world, where Japanese ladies have started to discard their kimono in favor of Fifth Avenue fashion, Mexicans still do the Mexican hat dance, droopy-mustached mariachis still twang guitars and wail goopy love songs of centuries ago, and no farmer would be caught going out for the day without his big sombrero on his head and his serape slung over his shoulder.

YOU NAME IT!

For the tourist, Mexico has virtually everything he goes to far corners of the earth to find, and often doesn't: unchanged traditional life patterns, archaeological wonders comparable to Egypt's some of the world's best hunting and game fishing, water sports, bullfights, tropical beaches, fine food, unbelievably delightful hotels, magnificent varied scenery, near-perfect climate, low prices, superb arts and crafts . . . you name it.

But we're itching to dispel the cliches. To wit:

Altitude: — Much of Mexico is 5,00 to 7,000 feet above sea level, and people start huffing and puffing just thinking about it. But chances are that if you're in good health and no one told you about it, you'd never notice it. You don't gasp for air in a jet airplane, though at average flight altitudes the cabin is pressurized to similar levels. You ought to see all the senior citizens here without oxygen masks. But they take it easy.

Food, Water and Health — The most standard cliche about Mexico is that you've got to come down with Montezuma's Revenge — dysentery. Well, you don't, not anymore.

It is most likely at the higher altitudes, where digestion is retarded. The surest preventative is eating and drinking moderately. As for hygiene, it is vastly improved all over Mexico in recent years. For a long time now it has been safe to drink the water out of the tap in Mexico city hotels. Elsewhere, hotels provide bottled drinking water in your room without your having to ask for it. And forget all that nonsense about the ice not being made from purified water; Mexicans are not stupid.

Everywhere a tourist is likely to eat these days even in smaller centres, the long-suspect fruits and vegetables are thoroughly disinfected and washed before being served. Perishables are always refrigerated.

ACQUIRED TASTE

Mexican food is an acquired taste (though American food is available everywhere). If you like it, you love it. But it's best not to eat it three times a day.

The beer is as good as any in the world. Tequila is another acquired taste, but is probably the most versatile hard liquor available anywhere. It goes down well straight with a dash of salt and a squirt of lime or in almost any mixed drink you can think of. It tastes a little like an exotically flavored gin.

If you're still worried about La Touristica, ask your doctor for a prescription. Paregoric and a product called Entero-Vioform, preferably the compound with sulfa (made in Ciba) are highly regarded.

Hotels — The going cliche about Mexican hotels is that they are all cockroach-infested adobe shacks with crumbling walls by the side of a dusty road.

Generally, almost the exact opposite is true. Even the most modest Mexican hotels are impeccably clean. And even in the smaller tourist centres there is a variety of highly imaginative fine hotels unmatched anywhere in the world, all individually conceived and drawing on Mexico's history and art for their style.

Oaxaca, with only 700,000 inhabitants, has at least four places we'd hang our hats any time: the inn-like Monte Alban, old-worldly Marques del Valle, scenic and modern Victoria, elegantly colonial Oaxaca Courts. Morelia has four: the world-renowned little gem called Villa Montana, and only steps below it, the Villa San Jose, Vista Bella, and Virrey de Mendoza. There are little Ajijic's romantic Posada Ajijic and remote Yelapa's postcard Tahitian village, Lagunita.

San Jose Purua's huge spa is an idyllic Shangri-la. Near Cuernavaca is the classic Hacienda Vista Hermosa. Right in Mexico City are such authentic little jewels as the former convent called De Cortes and the Montejo, more Spanish than anything in Madrid. And this is only a random smattering of what the country has to offer.

COSTS STILL LOW

Costs — Once you could pay $2.50 for a double room in a good hotel; now you may have t pay as much as $5 or $6. With meals, one of the fine rural hotels, such as those mentioned, may scalp you as much as $10 per person. Mexico City is higher, though nowhere near New York. Even in Acapulco, only the handful of deluxe hotels (the Acapulco Hilton, Pierre Marques El President, Villa Vera and Las Brisas, all, again, quite different from each other) begin to approach Miami Beach prices.

A good meal will cost you $2 to $3 in most places, a fine one in one of Mexico City's elegant spots like Rivoli, El Refugio, Colonial Laredo, Cordin (home of the creator of Caesar salad), Ambassadeurs, Focolare, Jena and Villa Fontana, may run $6 to $8, half or less than what comparable restaurant charge in New York, Chicago or San Francisco.

Not to belabor a point, Mexico is still the cheapest major tourist country in the world.

Getting Around — if you choose to drive your own car, remember you need special insurance, most roads are only fair, filling stations are an average of 50 to 150 miles apart in many areas, and gas is not as good as ours. Mexicana Airlines and Aeronaves de Mexico fly to most major centres, and smaller airlines DC-3 elsewhere. where.

Cities — including Mexico City — have no public transportation system as we know them, only rickety private buses. But taxis are cheap, and in Mexico City you can ride the length of the Paseo de la Reforma, the main drag, in a jitney for one peso (eight cents). Watch for the driver with his forefinger extended.

MONTREAL (CP)—Some 600 guests attended the inauguration Friday of a new plant in nearby St. Bruno for the assembly of two makes of French automobiles, Renault and Peugeot. C. M. Drury, federal minister of industry, said it is the only Canadian-owned plant producing passenger cars in Canada.

Readers' Saturday Column

NOTE FROM EMEM: This is strictly readers' day again. Every mail brings me requests for casseroles to freeze. Since we are now at the beginning of the Lenten season the casserole we worked on this week calls for salmon and is easy to make. My secretary Shirley did the testing and both of us did the tasting. Shirley made it twice and froze both efforts. She says it takes about 15 to 20 minutes to assemble.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu by Mary Moore

Beef Meat Loaf; Brown Gravy; Yorkshire Pudding; Whole Onions in Cheese Sauce; Shredded Green Beans; Orange Charlotte with tor Cookies; Tea.

SALMON - RICE CASSEROLE

(will freeze)

NOTE: These amounts serve 8 people and make two 1-quart casseroles. Serve one for the current meal and freezer-wrap and freeze the other for a future meal.

2 cups raw long-grain rice
4 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
2½ cups milk
3 cups grated Cheddar cheese (1 pound)
1½teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
one 1-pound can salmon, flaked (include liquid)
½ cup chopped salad olives (or 1 cup fresh frozen peas cooked 1 minute).

Cook the rice, covered, in the water and 1 teaspoon salt one-half hour or until tender, when all water will be absorbed. In heavy pan or double boiler combine milk, cheese, salt and pepper and heat until cheese melts, stirring frequently. Do not boil. Chop olives (or parboil peas). Flake salmon, discarding bones and adding liquid to milk-cheese mixture.

Have ready two 1-quart casseroles lightly buttered. Into both put a layer of rice, using half. Cover each with a layer of salmon, using half. Cover each with half of the olives or peas, then half of the hot sauce. Repeat all of these layers in both casseroles finishing with sauce. If desired for current meal bake one casserole at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes and serve. To freeze remaining casserole cool to room temperature and chill. Cover tightly and freezer-wrap and freeze. To serve frozen casserole bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 1 hour or until bubbly.

A wonderful ready-in-advance main course for those observing Lent.

Lines on Life

We Need to Celebrate

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Time runs out—and so we need positive moments to celebrate what time there is. We need to order our life in accordance with a calendar in which joys can be preserved like a rose in a book long after the scent has gone, to renew the old and to make it come alive again.

Too many of us do not know the joys of celebration. We anticipate no festivities because even when we celebrate such days we do not sense the joy which we are to enjoy. Wedding days become moments when we are worried about seating arrangements. We forget birthdays, anniversaries regularly, times that could be made reverently beautiful to celebrate the single, simple joy — "to be alive."

How many times have we visited people in hospital who vowed that if they should be well again they would make different and better use of time; then the day comes, and it is not such a day at all. They return to "business as usual." We need to know how to celebrate life.

To color our long, arid stretches of time, we need festive days. And we also need days of memory and remembrance.

We go along for years and life seems to be in joint, when suddenly the world caves in. A husband or a wife dies, a father or a mother is taken and the whole world seems to die with them. Something inalterable happens to us when death strikes our territories. Hear what the late Ben Hecht wrote about that day when he buried his Mother: "I can recall the hour in which I lost my immortality, in which I tried on my shroud for the first time and saw how it became me. The knowledge of my dying came to me when my Mother died. There was more than sorrow involved. I felt grief enough, and my heart felt the rip of a dear one dying. I carried her image in my eyes, seeing her when she was no longer seeable. Her vanished voice echoed in my head and the love she bore me struggled painfully to stay alive around me. But my heart did not claw at the emptied space where she had stood and demand her return. I accepted death for both of us. I went and returned dry-eyed from the burial, but I brought death back with me."

Yes, this happens to each of us. Once we have known death intimately our lives are never quite the same. The delights of the world do not deceive us as once they may have. We wish only for one thing, to hold on to those moments we have shared, with our beloved who are gone. There seems nothing that we can do for the dead, and this startling, real fact of life is what crushes us all the more.

And yet there is something we can do, for them. We can remember them in exalting ways. We can approach life more reverently because of our memory of them. We can let them speak again — to us and through us. We can let them walk our way, on our road, and not detour too far from them.

To have but not to hold, this is the great tragedy. But to have had moments and to hold them remains open to those who can still celebrate life, whose serenity has not been deeply impaired because they have festivals and days of remembrance.

Even in the midst of their tears, they can say, "This is the day the Lord hath made. Let us be happy and rejoice therein."

Many Churches Represented At World Day of Prayer

"More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of".

Again, another year has rolled round, and again, the women from the different churches of Belleville met yesterday afternoon, filling the nave of Eastminister United Church; mingling their prayers, their supplications, and songs of praise with those of their sisters around the world. This was the one day in the whole year that church women met together as a body for prayer, and at the same hour.

CHURCHES REPRESENTED

Representatives were present from Victoria Avenue Baptist; St. Thomas' Anglican; St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill; Bridge Street United; Tabernacle United; College Hill United; Halloway Street United; Holy Trinity Lutheran; St. Columba Presbyterian; St. Andrew's Presbyterian; Eastminster United and St. Michael's.

The full choir consisted of two members from each of the Protestant churches with Mrs. G. H. Rennie as organist. Those who extended the hand of welcome at the entrance included: Mrs. George Brown; Mrs. Owen Clark; Mrs. A. McDowell, wife of the minister of Eastminster and Mrs. Harold Edy, while Mrs. Tom Riley, and Mrs. James Barnett were ushers.

ORDER OF SERVICE

The order of service, and the world theme "Ye are my Witnesses", was prepared by the Scottish Committee for the World Day of Prayer. The call to worship was in charge of Mrs. A. L. Glover, of Eastminster United, with Mrs. Ken Wormald, also of Eastminster, taking the Adoration and Thanksgiving portion. Mrs. Dunlop of St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill led in Confession and Penitence, and Mrs. Hales of Victoria Avenue Baptist, in Act of Dedication.

PRAYER REQUESTS

Mrs. Voteary, of Wesleyan Methodist, lead in the Intercession, and Mrs. A. S. McConnell, wife of Archdeacon A. S. McConnell, of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, lead the Requests for Prayers from the women of other lands. These included: Africa, for those in authority, and for special needs and concerns; from the women of Asia for those in south Asia, for church related schools, the difference between totalitarianism and democracy; for freedom of education, and that all nations be resolved to live in peace and freedom; for the women of the British Isles and of Europe that the aged and lonely may find comfort and strength in God, and that Christians may visit them, help bear their burdens; and for the women of Latin America who request prayer for their young people.

CHRIST'S WITNESSES

Mrs. Needham Throop, of Eastminster United, gave a brief address on the theme, "Ye Are My Witnesses," stating that as remote as 700 years before the birth of Christ, that God, through His prophet Isaiah, had made this statement, which is as true today, as it had been in those early times, that in those early times the belief was that nothing on earth was worthwhile unless it be properly related to God, the Creator of the universe. They used self analysis, the every act; thoughts, tendencies. This they did to obtain grace and power from God to live aright. They desired to know the true motivation of their existence. Their unshakable belief was in a God who reigns on high, and who yet cares for man.

DAILY CONCERNS

"In the course of each day there are concerns, anxieties, troubles, which are with us; concerns about our work — the basis of our existence. We are concerned about our standing with others; about our loved ones; we have fears without and doubtings within. The philosophers, Plato and Socrates, aimed to get men to think higher thoughts, to turn from base things. Socrates taught, "Know thyself."

In later times the apostle Paul taught somewhat the same; but from the spiritual angle, saying that the soul is renewed and strengthened we think (for as a man thinketh in his heart so is he) and that we should think on these things "Whatsoever things are true; whatsoever things are just; whatsoever things are pure; whatsoever things are lovely; whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any praise, think on these things". That the greatest good is love toward God, and toward our neighbor; that love never faileth."

OUR RESPONSIBILITY

Mrs. Throop closed with the thought: "Spiritual heights are here for us to reach, and are as lofty as ever they have been, and the consciousness is dawning of the strange and tremendous realization that upon us depends the living reality of Jesus Christ. God puts the proof of Himself into our hands by saying: "Ye are my witnesses".

Four lovely old hymns of the church were sung during the hour of worship.

The offering received is used for the proclamation of the Gospel throughout the world.

A Lift for Living

God Reservoir of Strength For Those Who Have Faith

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

In our day George Washington is regarded with almost worshipful reverence by multitudes of people in America and across the world. We see him as one unblemished by common, crude human faults and as one who built a nation out of lesser men. Statues of this dignified, gallant, heroic figure stand in cities of America and in countries across the seas as monuments to the esteem in which the great man is held.

But in his own day the real George Washington was not universally considered a hero or a savior of his people. He suffered defeat in the earliest battles he fought, and all his life he was plagued by the unfair, caustic criticism of his contemporaries. Worn and spent in battle, he had to withstand the abuse of those who blamed him for heavy losses.

In 1754, while George Washington was still in his early 20s, he measured the meaning of despair. He had been in command of British soldiers fighting the French, and he and his troops were badly defeated at Fort Necessity. Washington was forced to surrender the fort and to sign a paper in which his ignorance of the French language betrayed him into confessing the "assassination" of an ensign named Jumanville.

CALLED GLORY-SEEKER

Furthermore, Washington's critics accused him of taking hasty and unwise action before reinforcements could reach the fort so that he could claim all the glory of victory for himself. And his accusers contended that the officers under young Washington were "drunken debauchees" and undisciplined.

When Washington carefully prepared a detailed report on French military plans, his enemies claimed it was only a crooked scheme to build riches for the owners of a private land company.

Regular British soldiers were prone to be jealous of young Washington, some openly snubbing him and others overriding his authority. So Washington's earliest adventures as a soldier were marred by defeat and suspicion.

Many years later, when Washington was leading the Revolutionary forces, his popularity fluctuated sharply, and the confidence placed in him by the public waxed and waned with his successes and failures. He was accused of being brutal to his soldiers. He was given insufficient backing by the Congress that had made him commander of the armies.

After he became President of the new nation, attacks upon his leadership and character continued. He was accused of being cold, haughty, aristocratic, severe, an oppressor of the many for the benefit of the few and a miser. When his second term of office as President was completed, Washington was glad to return to his beloved Mount Vernon, where his vast plantation stretched in a great sweep of green under blue Virginia skies.

CRITICS PERSISTED

Even then, when his heroic work as a warrior and statesman was done, his critics were not finished with him. One of the leading newspapers in America declared on the day after George Washington retired from the Presidency that if "ever there was a period for rejoicing, this is the moment. Every heart ought to beat high with exultation that the name of Washington from this day ceases to give currency to political iniquity and to leg[illegible] corruption."

What was the secret of Washington's endurance? What wa[illegible] the faith that sustained him an[illegible] made him victorious amidst d[illegible] feat and couldn't discourage [illegible] him amidst the assaults of fa[illegible] and the attacks of his enemies[illegible]

George Washington once to[illegible] a friend, "No man has a mo[illegible] perfect reliance on the all-wis[illegible] and powerful dispensations [illegible] the Supreme Being than I hav[illegible] nor thinks His aid more nece[illegible]sary."

"Staying power" is associat[illegible] with having a cause that one b[illegible]lieves is more important th[illegible] one's reputation, life or fortune[illegible] and the secret of endurance [illegible] the quiet confidence that the[illegible] is a Power beyond our limit[illegible]tions upon which we can dra[illegible] for strength to serve that [illegible]

We are not self-contai[illegible] [illegible]terns that quickly go dry in [illegible] drought; we are artesian wel[illegible] linked with an invisible and [illegible] exhaustable reservoir [illegible] strength. The reservoir is Go[illegible] Washington had such a faith.

Lighting the Way

CHURCH THIEVES

Churches are rather popular places for thieves whose main objective is money However, many churches never seem to have much money around, and as a consequence, thieves must content themselves with stealing such items as fountain pens, office supplies, flags, and even Bibles! One church we recently heard about lost an office desk, filing cabinets, two typewriters, and a mimeograph machine.

There is one thing no one has ever stolen from any church That is, its religion. Long ago, Jesus taught the church that her real assets were not material things, but those spiritual resources which never should be kept under lock and key.

Divine forgiveness, justification by faith, the blessed hope of immortality, peace of mind and the love of God, are all precious spiritual realities. We can have them for the asking. No man can steal them from us!

TEXT FOR TODAY: "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where thieves break through and steal . . . but lay up for yourselves treasures in Heaven" (St. Matthew 6:19,20)

King Herod's Dead Sea Palace Is Restored by Archeologists

By MEL SUFRIN

INSPECT PALACE — A palace and fortress on Mount Masada overlooking the Dead Sea, built by Herod the Great 2,000 years ago, has been dug out and restored and will be opened to the public as a historical tourist site in April. David Astor, editor of the Observer of London, and his son inspect walls of the ancient mountain hideout. The Observer was a major contributor to the expedition that restored the site. (CP Photo)

MASADA, Israel (CP)—When Herod the Great decided to erect a mountain - top palace overlooking the Dead Sea a couple of thousand years ago, he was acting largely from fear.

He was afraid (a) the Jews might decide to depose him and (b) he might be attacked by Cleopatra's troops.

Herod (73-4 BC, wanted a hideout but it had to be one fit for a king, with lavish quarters for himself and family and even such luxuries as a Roman-style bath for his troops.

As things turned out, it wasn't until nearly 70 years after Herod died that the palace and other installations on top of Mount Masada were put to anything resembling the use he envisaged.

A group of 960 Jewish zealots—men, women and children—held out there against a Roman siege for three years until, on the eve of their defeat, they committed mass suicide rather than be captured. Masada was left in ruins.

Today, after two winters of archeological excavation and reconstruction by experts and several thousand volunteers from 28 countries, Masada has been mostly restored.

In April it will be opened to the general public and by summer it will be swarming with tourists and Israelis.

SITE IS UNIQUE

Masada is impressive even if only as one of the few archeological sites in Israel that has been completely excavated. Herod's buildings and walls, his three-level palace at the mountain's northern rim and his storerooms have been uncovered.

The ritual baths and synagogue built by the zealots are the only ones thus far dating back to the time of the Second Temple, rebuilt by Herod but destroyed in 70 AD when Titus captured Jerusalem.

The setting is awesome. The Dead Sea and the earth's lowest stretch of land, a rocky, treeless desert 1,286 feet below sea level, lie on one side, a hump of barren mountains on the other.

But in modern - day Israel, Masada has a special significance. As Prof. Yigael Yadin of the Hebrew University, director of the excavation, says in the preface to a booklet:

"In many eyes Masada was and is first and foremost a symbol. It signifies the stand of the few against the many, of the weak against the strong, the last fight of those who gave their life for political, religious and spiritual freedom and chose death rather than slavery and submission."

It's at Masada that recruits to the Israeli armored corps are sworn in. And it has become a traditional place of pilgrimage on Hannukah, the festival of light, which usually falls in December.

CLIMB IS TOUGH

The first time I climbed Masada was in the summer of 1961 at 4 a.m. on a day when the temperature was to rise to 114 above. A group of 24 of us made the 35-minute hike up a 900-foot serpentine path on the east face, puffing as we reached the top just in time to see the sun come up over the mountains of Jordan across the Dead Sea.

The ruins were much as they had been when they were rediscovered in the 19th century. We could see where Herod's palace had been but it was impossible to reach the lower two terraces.

Today there's a much easier route to the top, thanks to the siege hill built by Roman slaves and the addition of steps carved out by the archeological expedition of the last two years.

Our latest climb was early in February on an overcast day in topcoat weather, a relatively easy 15-minute ascent up the west face after a bouncing half-hour ride in a Land Rover from the nearby town of Arad.

A system of stairways now takes you down to the lower terraces of the palace, and guides are on hand to conduct you on a two-hour tour of the mountain-top

Relics of the past, including 4,000 coins and fragments of scrolls, have been removed, but probably there are other finds to be made, perhaps even some signs of the bones of the 960 zealots. For, as visitors are told:

"The whole mountain is covered with remains of historical value. Please leave them exactly as they are: Don't collect souvenirs. . . ."

Employment News

By J. R. STAVELEY
Public Relations Officer

The employment trend this week responded to the milder weather, showing an increased local labor demand which covered the construction, financial and services fields, in addition to some industrial vacancies. Indication of rural activity is the familiar sight these days of truckloads of logs being transported to meet the insatiable demands of sawmills, veneer and wood products firms.

Within the next four months, our high school students will be graduating and it is estimated that in this community, 870 such students, both male and female, will be seeking permanent employment. In addition to this number there will be an increasing number of high school students and university undergraduates seeking temporary summer employment this year.

The National Employment Services Offices across Canada are already receiving employment orders from those farsighted employers who desire to make sure that they obtain their share of the 1966 high school graduates who are looking for permanent work. The local National Employment Service Office is no exception to this modern hiring trend. Students likewise are quick to appreciate the advantages of being interviewed for a suitable position ahead of graduation.

This trend has been further stimulated by the special services officers of the NES visiting the local high schols and advising the graduating classes of all phases of the current labor market, and taking applications for the type of employment for which these young people can best qualify.

Last year, the demand for high school graduates far exceeded the supply, and a great number of employers were disappointed in not obtaining their full requirements.

From the present labor market data now on hand, this coming summer will be no different. Local employers therefore are urged to make an early appraisal of their requirements for this year's crop of high school graduates. If these additional labor needs can be ascertained they are invited to list them at the local NES office. Here arrangements can be made to conduct early employment interviews and hirings ahead of graduation to the mutual benefit of the employer, and to the prospective employee.

JOBS OPEN

Jobs available through the local NES office include, in the female division locally, that of a clerk - typist with some bookkeeping experience, with good starting salary. A clerk-typist is also required for a credit department in retail trade locally, shift work.

A dictaphone typist is required by a local employer, five day week.

An assistant cook is needed for an industrial cafeteria.

In the male division locally, a national communications system has asked NES to assist in obtaining suitable young men for career jobs. Collegiate graduates with a high degree of initiative, capability and self-discipline will find in these opportunities most satisfactory goals.

One of our best hotels has a position as a desk clerk open. A gentleman in his 50s or early 60s, who may have reached the retired list and now wishes to occupy himself in a respectable and undemanding job will find this opportunity of interest.

An agriculturist in the county is looking for a reliable single man to assist with chores on his 25-acre farm. Experience with live stock is a requirement.

Management-training careers are open in several large merchandise chains as well as continuing opportunities offered by the banking interests.

Fully experienced gas-burner operators are urgently required by one of the large industries in a neighboring city. Any flame cutters in this area who may be interested are asked to phone the Belleville office immediately.

A publicly owned corporation has a permanent job opportunity for a Belleville resident. Experience as a mechanic, stability and the knack of being able to cope with the travelling public are prerequisite.

An instrument man is urgently required for a local organization. A very attractive salary commensurate with the qualifications goes with this positions, seeking employment or thinking of re-entering the labor market, please contact the local National Employment Service Office at 324 Church St., Belleville, Ont., or telephone 962-8681.

Big Losses Among Bank Stocks Feature General Price Dccline

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Heavy losses among bank issues highlighted the general price decline on Canadian stock markets this week.

Analysts attribute the decline to various factors, including uncertainty over effects of the U.S. guidelines on economic growth, declining profits in many companies, and falling prices on the New York exchange partially influenced by the Viet Nam war.

At Toronto volume was 23,883,342 shares compared with 29,288,808 last week.

The bank index dropped 2.47 to 143.89.

Imperial-Commerce fell 1⅜ to 66⅜, Toronto-Dominion 1½ to 62¾, Royal and Montreal 1 each to 76 and 62, and Nova Scotia ½ to 72.

REPORT LOWER PROFITS

Many industrial companies reported decreased profits in 1965, blaming higher costs.

Interprovincial Pipe Line lost 2½ to 83½, Westcoast Transmission and Burns 1⅜ each to 23½ and 13⅝, Great Lakes Paper and MacMillan Bloedel 1 each to 22⅞ and 27, and Distillers Seagrams ⅛ to 37⅝.

Price Brothers was up 1⅜ to 43, Levy ⅜ to 19⅛ and B.C. Forest Products ½ to 23.

Western oils was the only major group to score gains.

Banff Oil, which holds property in Alberta's Rainbow field, climbed 1⅜ to 17⅞. Hudson Bay Oil was ahead 1¼ to 20½, Central Del Rio 1 to 14 and Murphy ¼ to 9. Dome slid ¾ to 18.

In speculative oils, Dynamic rose 45 cents to 4.30 on 1,335,410 shares and Canadian High Crest 15 to 70 cents.

PINE POINT UP

Pine Point Mines made the most spectacular gain among base metal. It was up 3 to 62½ following a government announcement Friday allowing the company to increase its export quotas of lead and zinc to the U.S.

The government also said it was going to undertake a feasibility study to determine the possibility of building a smelter on the company's property near Great Slave Lake, N.W.T.

Cominco, which controls Pine Point, was up 1 to 46¾. In other base metal activity, Falconbridge rose 1½ to 103, Hudson Bay 1 to 83. Inco slid 4¼ to 102½ and Rio Algom 1¾ to 19¾.

Golds suffered the largest loss with McIntyre down 3 to 96½, Giant Yellowknife 1 to 13¼, Kerr-Addison ½ to 10⅞, Dome ¼ to 42 and Cochenour Willans 20 cents to 5.55. Dickenson added 25 cents at 5.25 and Teck Corp. 15 cents at 6.00.

On index, industrials were off 2.73 to 169.50, golds 4.02 to 174.64, base metals 1.16 to 87.50 and the TSE 2.43 to 16 .53. Western oils rose 1.80 to 116.87.

At Montreal, industrials were off 2.38 to 166.60, utilities 1.94 to 150.42, banks 1.87 to 124.61 and papers 2.35 to 120.45. Volume was 6,534,193 shares compared with 8,303,981 last week.

NEED SUPPORT

TORONTO (CP) — The government can only provide special services for the deaf and blind if citizens are willing to give their support, W. K. Clarke, administrator of schools for the blind and deaf, told the annual meeting of the Canadian Hearing Society Thursday. He said schools such as the school for the blind at Brantford and for the deaf at Belleville are expensive, but if people want them they must support them.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Visionaries, true perhaps, but not the type that clutches at and takes for granted the first picture that flashes across the mental screen.

If they appeared flushed with success it was a justifiable reaction for the Bay of Quinte Country Club has reached a new status built upon the foundation of the stones of success over the past few years.

The directors held their annual meeting the other day, an enthusiastic gathering of some 50 executive and membership representatives.

I'm told there was a decided air of optimism pervading the meeting heightened no doubt by the announcement that the club has purchased 26 acres due east of the property and which, for the time being will be used as a practice area.

Adding to the brighter look for the future was the meeting's authorization of a directorate move to proceed with expansion plans and explore all aspects of bringing the club into a year-round operational organization.

President Everett Fairman who stepped down after a year of guiding the club to another season of success paid fine tribute to his directorate, membership, working officials and the press and radio.

The pat of the presidential hand rested on the shoulders of the women's division president Mrs. Eva Ketcheson, her directors and the distaff side organization as a whole.

"The girls did an excellent job" he said, "and they contributed in no small way to the general success."

Another important contribution to the general success of the season, President Fairman pointed out was the general harmony that was evident at all times.

Mr. Ernie Gurnett, on behalf of the membership, expressed its whole-hearted appreciation of the untiring efforts of the president and his board of directors.

If columnar comment is permissible in a piece like this, it should be added that the more or less meteoric rise of the club to its OGA tournament status over the past few years, has been in no small way due to the efforts of the club professional and course superintendent George Balazs.

The comment is my own and I'm sure there will be no dissenting voice in the ranks of directorate and membership. George's knowledge of the working of tournaments, his experience and friends gained through his directorship on the OGA board of directors contributed much to the success of the annual Festival of Golf inaugurated three years ago.

The meeting gave the green light to the continuance of the Festival this summer.

While it was mentioned last summer that there would be a possibility of the OGA "Champion of Champions Tournament" being played at the club, nothing has been definitely laid down. However the success of the Associations "Two-Ball Tournament" last summer augurs well for official tournament play here.

Don Lamb, a tested director is the 1966 president of the club with past-president Fairman taking on the greens chairman duties.

Art Bridge is the new vice-president and games captain with G. H. (Bud) Trill heading the house committee. Don Stanton will again look after membership with George O'Brien named general chairman of the building program committee. Bob Michaud will look after public relations while Les Lennox will again be in charge of the secretarial desk.

Bower To Play ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Bruins Fill Vacancy

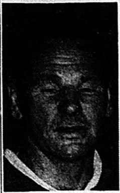
Abel Shakes Lines; Maxner Recalled

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When coach Milt Schmidt sent young Wayne Maxner of Halifax down to San Francisco Seals of the Western Hockey League this season, it looked like an early end to his National League hopes, even with Boston Bruins.

But when Ron Murphy retired Wednesday after being traded by the Bruins to Detroit Red Wings, it was the 23-year-old Maxner general-manager Hap Emms tabbed to fill the vacancy, despite his having scored only seven goals and six assists in 54 games for Boston last year.

Maxner will be with the Bruins tonight in Toronto when they tackle the Maple Leafs while New York Rangers visit Montreal Canadiens after Chicago Black Hawks play a matinee in Detroit.



JOHN BOWER

* * *

Sunday's Scheduled games have Montreal at Detroit, Toronto at New York and Boston at Chicago.

Leafs will have veteran Johnny Bower back in goal tonight after being sidelined for three games with a cut over his eye.

Defenceman Marcel Pronovost also is likely to see some action after being out with a leg injury.

Leafs' coach Punch Imlach said he will probably use four forward lines against the Bruins, moving Tim Horton to right wing from defence.

The death of James Norris early Friday will not cause any disruption in the NHL weekend. Clarence Campbell, NHL president, said the league does not plan to postpone Chicago's weekend encounters.

Bobby Hull, held off the scoresheet Wednesday by rookie Toronto goalie Al Smith, will be looking for his 48th goal of the season.

He has 16 games remaining this season to score four goals to become the first player in the history of the league to score more than 50 goals in a season.

Hull shares the mark of 50 goals in a season with two retired Montreal players — Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion.

WINGS PLAN SHUFFLE

The Wings plan to shuffle their lineup for this afternoon's game in an effort to get back on the winning track.

Sid Abel, coach and general manager, said he will reunite Gordie Howe, Norm Ullman and Alex Delvecchio on one line. The three played on one line earlier this year and the Wings went on a long winning streak to move from last place into top spot in the standings.

Parker Macdonald, a left winger, will be moved to centre between Dean Prentice and Floyd Smith. The other line will be made up by Val Fonteyne, Bruce McGregor and Paul Henderson.

Montreal coach Toe Blake said Lorne Worsley is still in hospital suffering from a virus infection. He said Charlie Hodge will start in nets against the Rangers.

Ted Harris, the defenceman returning from a shoulder injury, will dress, but may not see action as long as Jacques Laperriere, Jean - Claude Tremblay, Jean-Guy Talbot and Terry Harper play well.

Ontario Seventh

Alberta Rink Schoolboy Champs

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—An all-important 7-4 victory over Northern Ontario in the final round Friday gave Brian Howes Alberta's fourth Canadian schoolboy curling championship.

It was the seventh win in the 11-rink round-robin tournament for the hard-sweeping Calgary team, but the title wasn't settled by that game. On an adjacent sheet, Manitoba was desperately trying to gain a win over Prince Edward Island and earn a playoff chance against Alberta.

But Keith MacEachern's strong Charlottetown foursome tied the score in the 10th end went on to count three in the extra end for a 9-6 decision over George Wilson's Winnipeg quartet.

The losers of the key 11th draw games — Wayne Steski's North Bay rink and Manitoba—finished the five-day bonspiel in a five-way tie for second place with Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and Saskatchewan, all with 6-4 won-lost records. Bill Ross' Humboldt, Sask., rink had the 11th-round bye after suffering a 22-2 trouncing at the hands of Manitoba earlier in the day.

Ontario, skipped by Mike Boyd of Kingston, placed seventh with five wins and five losses; Newfoundland's Danny Herder of St. John's and Leslie Hollands' Arvida, Que., rink tied for eighth each with 4-6 marks; British Columbia, skipped by Doug Engstrom of Prince George, finished 10th with a 3-7 record; and New Brunswick's Bev Groves of Edmundston collected only two wins against eight defeats.

In other 11th-round matches, Quebec defeated Ontario 10-5, Newfoundland downed British Columbia 11-6 and Don Glinz's Nova Scotia rink from Truro took an 8-4 victory from New Brunswick.

Alberta was presented the Pepsi-Cola Trophy by Sir Leonard Outerbridge, former lieutenant-governor of Newfoundland and honorary chairman of the host bonspiel committee. The Calgary rink—Howes, vice-skip Blair Pallensen, second John Thompson and lead Chris Robinson—are students at William Aberhart senior high school.

Five Meet Records Set

TORONTO (CP)—Five meet records were broken and one tied by Ontario high school athletes competing at the indoor Maple Leaf Games Friday.

Records were broken in the mile, the high jump, the two-mile and the girls' relay events. A fifth record was established in a heat of the 440-yard girls' relay when Toronto Parkdale high school broke their own mark, set last year, of 3:31.9. Their time was 3:30.0.

Charles Francis of Jarvis Collegiate, Toronto, tied a meet record of 5.4 seconds in the 50-yard dash.

Ken How of Toronto's T. L. Kennedy secondary school shaved 4-5 of a second off the meet record of 4:25.6 in the mile run.

The two-mile record went to Phil Payett of Toronto York Mills Collegiate. His time of 9:20.8 shattered the old mark of 9:54.9.

BEATS OWN MARK

Another Toronto athlete, John Hunter of Richview Collegiate, cleared 6 ft., 4½ inches to better his own high jump record of six feet set last year.

Parkside high school of Dundas accounted for the other record in the meet in the girls' 4 by 80 relay, covering the distance in 38.8 seconds 1.2 seconds better than the previous record.

'Sudden Death' For Title

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—University of Waterloo Warriors and University of Windsor lancers meet tonight in a sudden-death game for the Ontario-Quebec Intercollegiate Athletic Association basketball championship.

In semi - final play Friday night, Waterloo stopped Queen's University Golden Gaels 55-32 and Windsor whipped University of Toronto Varsity Blues 93-67.

Windsor is bidding for its fourth consecutive O - QIAA crown. The winner of tonight's game will qualify to represent the O-QIAA in the annual Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union championships at Calgary next weekend.

The semi - finals of this first annual championship tournament were a picture of contrasts. Waterloo and Queen's hooked up in a cautious, slow-moving game in the opener. Then, Windsor and Toronto tangled in a rough, free-wheeling affair.

World Hockey

Same Tie-Break Rules

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tie - breaking procedures for the world amateur hockey championships March 3-13 at Ljubljana, Yugoslavia, are unchanged from those used in recent years.

Canada and seven other hockey powers are competing in the class A (championship) round-robin, from which the world titleholder will emerge. Russia is defending champion.

The rules, published in the championship program at Tampere, Finland, last year for the first time, provide that if two teams tie for first place, the champion will be whichever of the two won the game between them during the round-robin.

If that game ended in a tie, the champion will be decided on goal spread—the difference between goals scored and goals against—in games involving the first four teams.

If three teams are tied in points for first place, the goal spread is used, still using the games among the first four.

USE ALL GAMES

If two or more teams are tied for other places, the same goal-spread, tie - breaking formula will be used, but it will be based on all seven games each tied team plays in the round-robin.

If there still is a tie, then a goal-average—goals scored divided by goals against—formula will be used, and the team having the higher quotient will receive the higher placing.

Commons Gets NHL Bill

OTTAWA (CP) —Vancouver Liberal MP Ron Basford Friday introduced a private member's bill in the Commons to bring the National Hockey League under the Combines Investigation Act.

Mr. Basford said his bill would force NHL owners to act in the public interest "whether they want to or not."

The six - team pro hockey league announced recently it is expanding to 12 clubs. All six new franchises are in the United States and a Vancouver bid was turned down.

Mr. Basford's bill provides for a two-year jail sentence for persons "operating a combine in any professional sport which limited or restrained opportunity of players to participate or spectators to observe in such a way as to operate to the detriment or against the interest of the public."

The bill said pro sport has become a big business in which the public has a large interest.

The bill was given automatic first reading and will come up for debate later.

Junior A Race Tightens

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With a neck-and-neck race under way for first place in the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A series, the second-division teams aren't making it any easier for the leaders.

A 3-3 tie was the best Niagara Falls Flyers could manage Friday night against sixth-place Toronto Marlboros.

Seventh-place Kitchener Rangers downed fourth-place Oshawa Generals 3-0 in the league's other game.

The Flyers' tie—their third in four games — brought them within one point of first-place Peterborough Petes.

But the Petes, idle Friday, haven't fared much better in trying to widen the gap They've had a tie and a loss in their last two games.

Both teams have four games left in the schedule.

The Flyers had to come from behind twice on goals by Derek Sanderson to earn the tie. Dave Woodley scored the first Niagara Falls goal. Brent Imlach, Garry Meehan and Jim McKenny were the Toronto scorers.

In Kitchener, Gary Kurt registered his first shutout of the season for the Rangers. Bill Hway, Jack McCreary and Bob Jones were the scorers.

Teachers Versus No-Stars

The Stirling District Teachers will tangle with Kingston's CKWS "No Stars" in a game for a good cause, on Thursday, March 3.

The game is slated for 8:15, at the Stirling Arena

Stirling Branch No. 228 Royal Canadian Legion is sponsoring the game in aid of the Stirling Centennial Arena Fund. Plans call for a cement block building to be constructed at the present arena, housing new dressing rooms as well as improved canteen facilities and rest rooms.

Fans of the Stirling District have been invited to support the cause and see a "fun" hockey game to boot.

25-Win Streak Clipped

KITCHENER (CP)—Laurentian University Voyageurs' 25-game winning streak in the Ontario Intercollegiate Athletic Association Hockey League ended Friday when they were held to a 2-2 tie by Waterloo Lutheran University Hawks.

The tie clinched first place for the Voyageurs. Waterloo finished second.

Laurentians streak stretched over three seasons. They now enter the Canadian intercollegiate hockey championships next weekend in Sudbury.

Stan Flesher and Roger Howness scored for Laurentian and John O'Flaherty and Allen Hagerman replied for Waterloo.

Apple Kings Trounce Cobourg 12-3

Taking no chances on the outcome of the Belleville-Oshawa game, Trenton Apple Kings trounced Cobourg Cougars 12-3 in Trenton last night to clinch a spot in the OHA Eastern Junior "B" playoffs.

The win tied the Apple Kings with Peterborough each with 35 points. Trenton's only remaining game is in Kingston tomorrow while Peterborough plays Cobourg, in Port Hope, on Tuesday.

Trenton took a slim 2-1 lead in the first, made it 5-1 in the second and outscored the tailenders 7-2 in the wide-open third.

The winners drew 11 of 19 penalties.

Terry Hutchinson snapped a scoring slump with room to spare by scoring four Trenton goals. Al Ferguson boosted his season output to 42 by scoring three and Dan Dixon added a pair. Barry Turner, Tommy Glover and Andy Teeple notched the others. It was Teeple's first game back after a shoulder injury.

Frank Godfrey, Brydon Elinesky and Harris were Cobourg's marksmen.

CFL Opens Way For Ball-Carriers

Many Rule Changes

CALGARY (CP)—The Canadian Football League, making slow progress clearing a path for its reorganization plans, is having better luck opening the way for its ball-carriers.

While the CFL's annual meeting decided Thursday to let a nine-man steering committee tackle the touchy problem of merging its Eastern and Western Conferences, there was unanimous agreement on rule changes encouraging more offensively-minded football.

The most important legislation permits unlimited interference on running plays—blocking was previously limited to 10 yards beyond the line of scrimmage—and downfield blocking by eligible receivers after completion of a pass.

In the constitutional department, the CFL agreed in principle to weld its two autonomous conferences into a single unit, bogged down in discussions over details and eventually turned the problem over to the steering committee, including a representative of each club.

The committee, to be named by March 14, was directed to draw up recommendations for implementation of a report submitted to the annual meeting by its Committee On One League, "subject to a formula . . . that will be fair and equitable to all current members of the CFL."

CALLS FOR TV SHARES

The C.O.O.L. report called for a nine-way split in television revenue, a gate - equalization plan, a central CFL office in Toronto, consideration of a fifth franchise in the East and a clear-cut definition of the commissioner's authority.

Ted Workman of Montreal Alouettes, the incoming league president, is scheduled to call the first meeting of the steering committee before April 30.

The changes in the rules weren't all in favor of the offensive platoon

The no-yards penalty, for failure to give five yards to the receiver of a punt, was reduced from 15 yards to 10 and the harsh rule on roughing the kicker was amended to allow incidental contact by a defensive player when the contact has no bearing on the play.

Another amendment gives the team blocking a kick the option of accepting a single point if the ball rolls over the deadline or into touch-in-goal. Previously, the team blocking the kick was automatically awarded a first down at the previous line of scrimmage.

CAN HAVE TALK

Two other changes permit a coach to talk to a player during time-outs and require officials disqualifying a coach of player to notify him personally on the ruling.

The new regulation on downfield blocking on running plays wipes out restrictions on players lined up outside the offensive end or more than a yard behind the line of scrimmage.

Previous rules limited blocking on pass plays to one yard ahead of the line of scrimmage until the pass was completed or blocking after completion of a pass.

The CFL meeting deferred until June a decision on the site of the 1967 Grey Cup game when Ottawa requested a delay pending clarification of plans to construct an $8,000,000 stadium at Lansdowne Park.

The meeting was told that 30 American cities will see telecasts of CFL games provided by the Fourth Network, which showed them in 21 cities when it purchased United States distribution rights last year.

Bantams Win 5-4, Tie Series

Terry Meagher's goal just 15 seconds into overtime gave Belleville Kinsmen a thrilling 5-4 OMHA Bantam playdown victory over Kingston here last night.

The victory was a "must" for the Kinsmen, tying their two-of-three series at one game apiece and one tie. The deciding game will be played in Kingston today. at 4:15.

Meanwhile, word was received late yesterday that Belleville Rollins will open their OMHA Peewee playdown, second-round series in Peterborough today.

Belleville leaped ahead 2-0 in the first frame last night and it was 3-1 after two heats. Kingston ripped back to tie 4-4 in the third, on three goals by Evan Clark. The last two came at 18:36 and 19:00 of the period.

Meagher had the Kinsmen's lone third period goal and lost no time in getting the winner in the ten-minute overtime. Allan Genereaux, Pat McKenzie and Dennis MacCormack scored Belleville's other markers. MacCormack also gained assists on the final two goals, with Jim Potts, Brad Atkinson, Meagher and Steve Moore each helping on one.

Clark had three Kingston goals and assisted on the other, scored by Brent Childerhose. John Dover and Tom Nesmith also got assists.

Kingston took ten penalties, including a misconduct to Barry Sands, while Belleville drew eight minors in the rugged contest.

Belleville's Brad Atkinson suffered a triple fracture of his left wrist in overtime when crashing into the boards with a Kingston player.

Norris' personal holdings were valued at $250,000,000.

Toronto Track Meet

Two World Marks Set; Big 'Duel' Flops

By JIM CRERAR

TORONTO (CP) — Madeline Manning, a 20-year-old quarter-miler from Cleveland, shattered the world record for the women's indoor half mile Friday night at the Maple Leaf Indoor Games and was so excited she kept right on running to her hotel to phone home the good news.

Miss Manning had never run the 880-yard race indoors until her record - breaking performance of 2:10.2. And she had competed at a half-mile outdoors only once.

Miss Manning's world mark was one of two set in the meet. Wyomia Tyus of Griffen, Ga., running for Tennessee State University Tiger-Belles, clipped one-tenth of a second from the 50-yard dash mark with a 5.6 clocking in the final.

The 1964 Olympic 100-metre champion was running on a sprained left leg she picked up in practice last week.

"I could feel the pull on my leg," she said, adding that she didn't want to put pressure on it for fear of ruining her chances in next week's U.S. indoor national championships in Albuquerque, N.M.

She broke the mark of 5.7 seconds set in 1957 in Cleveland by Isabelle Daniels of the U.S.

BEATS TORONTO GIRL

Miss Manning, who won the U.S. junior 440 title last summer and captured the 400-metre race at an international meet in Mexico City last October, finished ahead of Roberta Picco of Toronto, who was timed in 2:13.0. Mrs Szabo-Nagey was third in 2:13.1.

Bob Seagren of Los Angeles nearly became the first man to pole vault 17 feet indoors. He missed narrowly on his second attempt when his chest grazed the cross bar and brought it tumbling down behind him. He reached 16 feet, seven inches, breaking the Canadian open mark of 16 2¼ set here last year by Dave Tork of Fairmont, W.Va.

Wilson Kiprugut of Kenya, competing on an indoor track for the first time, failed to give Bill Crothers of Toronto a close battle over 1,000 yards and finished a disappointing fourth.

Crothers, surprised that Kiprugut didn't pull away quickly at the start, had no trouble winning in a slow 2:10.9. Jan Kasal of Czechoslovakia was second in 2:11.8, George Germann of South Orange, N.J., was third in 2:11.9, followed by Kiprugut in 213.3 and Ray Tucker of Hamilton, last in 2:20.4.

ISN'T DISAPPOINTED

Kiprugut wasn't disappointed. He said the purpose of running was to see how he could do indoors.

"It was very difficult," he said. "I like to win, but it was very difficult."

It was a great night for sore-legged athletes. George Anderson of Southern University in Baton-Rouge, La., tied the Canadian open record of 5.2 seconds while outduelling Tom Robinson of The Bahamas and Harry Jerome of Vancouver in the final of the men's 50-yard dash. Anderson was running on strained ligaments in his left leg.

Jerome ripped off a 5.2-second clocking in his heat to equal the Canadian open mark and break the native record, but finished third behind Anderson and Robinson, who won the event here the last two years. Jerome and Robinson were both timed in 5.3 in the final.

Jenny Wingerson, blonde English-born beauty from Toronto, won the women's 50-yard hurdles in 6.4 seconds over second-place Cathy Chapman of Toronto and Tammy Davis of Frederick, Md., both clocked in 6.7.

Blanked 7-0 By Oshawa

Curtain Falls For Juniors

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

OSHAWA — Rollins Construction Juniors hung up their gear for the season here last night when they capped a month-long losing streak by absorbing a 7-0 whipping at the hands of the Oshawa Crushmen.

The defeat officially killed any hopes Belleville had of catching a spot in the OHA Eastern Junior "B" playdowns.

Oshawa's home game, which had been transferred to Belleville on Monday, has been cancelled since it can have no bearing on the final standing.

Rollins gained only a tie in their final seven games to drop from third to fifth, behind Kingston, Oshawa, Peterborough and Trenton.

The club turned in one of its most listless displays of the season in the beautiful Oshawa Civic Auditorium last night. The Crushmen were in command, even without any great display of talent, all the way. They scored two in the first, two in the second and three in the third.

Belleville showed only rare flashes of life, gave Wayne Brant very little protection and completely lacked an organized attack.

Oshawa took eight of 11 minor penalties in the dull affair but Rollins failed to do anything about the manpower opportunities, twice enjoying two-man advantages without mustering a serious threat.

Frank Sawyer, with a goal and three assists, midget Jerry Welsh and Roger Knowles, each with a goal and two helpers, paced Oshawa's offence. Phil Solomon had a goal and assist, as did Mike Hewer, while Bob Dickson and Pete Nevin also scored. Gary Bradley helped on two, Jim Booth and Jerry Dionne on one apiece.

Dickson finished a perfect pass play when unchecked in front for the first goal at 6:45 and Welsh steered a mate's drive home for the second at 7.22. Boyle, Fleming and Muir jammed all around the Oshawa net, with Gavel down, late in the period but could not score on three shots.

The losers didn't come close when up two men early in the second but shortly after Nevin and Sawyer were left uncovered to make it 4-0. Knowles at 1:21, Hewer at 7:54 and Solomon at 15:03 finished it in the third.

Potts, Boyle, Townsend and Healey tried to lead the occasional Rollins rush and Muir gave it his usual drive but most petered out with a weak shot or a missed pass. Brant stopped enough hot ones to prevent the score from reaching double figures.

The teams:

Belleville: Brant, Townsend, Potts, Boyle, Fleming, White, Healey, Summers, Boomhower, Stewart, Pringle, Duval, Smith.

Oshawa: Gavel, Horton, Bowen, Ayotte, Edmunds, Nevin, Solomon, Knowles, Dionne, Hewer, Bradley, Dickson, Sawyer, Welsh, Booth.

Referee: Sandy Proctor, Toronto.

Linesmen: Peter [illegible] and Dan Tureski, Oshawa.

Clay Refuses To Apologize

Chicago Fight Cancelled?

CHICAGO (AP) — Unbendin Cassius Clay and the attorney-general of Illinois today appeared to have killed Clay's scheduled heavyweight title match with Ernie Terrell here March 29 and probably chased it elsewhere.

Official cancellation of the bout is expected Monday when the Illinois athletic commission is scheduled to meet again.

A spokesman for Main Bouts Inc., owning closed-circuit television rights to the Chicago match, said three cities are receptive to taking over the bout. A Pittsburgh promoter said he was offered the match by Clay interests.

In an incredible series of events Friday, the scheduled Clay - Terrell bout in Chicago was blown sky-high when:

1. Clay testily refused to apologize before the Illinois commission for his "unpatriotic remarks" in an outburst eight days ago when his Louisville, Ky., draft board reclassified him 1-A.

2. The three - member boxing commission hastily recessed until Monday after Clay's assertion that he didn't come from his Miami training camp to "make a showdown plea or apologize the way the press said I would."

3. Attorney - General William G. Clark declared the proposed fight was illegal anyway for violations of the Illinois Boxing Code.

Canadian Football League

Will Seek Halter Replacement

CALGARY (CP) — Establishment of a four man committee to seek a replacement for G. Sydney Halter as commissioner of the Canadian Football League highlighted the final day of the CFL annual meeting Friday.

Past-president Pat Mahoney of Calgary was named chairman of the group, which includes Don McPherson of Saskatchewan Roughriders, Jake Gaudaur of Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Lew Hayman, managing director of Toronto Argonauts.

Gaudaur's position on the committee ruled him out of consideration for the vacant position. The Hamilton general manager and Herb Capozzi of British Columbia Lions had been considered prime candidates to replace Halter, who announced last year his retirement would be effective Dec. 31 this year.

Ted Workman of Montreal succeeded Mahoney as CFL president and Al McEachern of B.C. was named first vice-president. Bob Gillies of Saskatchewan remained secretary-treasurer.

Workman told a press conference after his appointment he was pleased with progress of the meetings. "There wasn't a smidgin of disagreement" on East-West lines at the meeting.

Mahoney described his tenure in office as a year not of great progress but "a year in which the CFL has established a base from which great progress may be achieved in the immediate future."

RECOGNIZE GUILD

Delegates Friday also provided official recognition for the CFL players' guild and appointed Mahoney and Ian Barclay of Vancouver a two-man committee to meet players' representatives.

Canadian Legion Bonspiel

Two Rinks Tied For Lead

TRENTON (Staff) — Two rinks of the Royal Canadian Legion Ontario Command Bonspiel headed into the third day of play today tied for the lead.

Rudy Steski's North Bay rink and George Holborn's curlers from Sutton West led the pack at the end of the second day of competition.

Sutton West had won four and lost one and had one bye Thursday North Bay had won five and lost one and has a bye today in the round - robin tournament.

The bonspiel, sponsored by the LaBatt's Breweries Limited is being held at the RCAF 6 R.D. rink.

John Fraser's Forest rink went into the third day of the nine - round competition in second place with four wins and two losses.

Port Credit skipped by Al Kodelka has a 3-2 record; Guelph skilled by A. McGregor and Hallybury skipped by Jim Sargent had 2-3 marks with Highland Creek skipped by N. Plaskett a 2-4 record.

Prescott skipped by Don Irving and Bobcaggeon with Ted Shea calling the plays bring up the rear with 1-4 and 1-5 records respectively.

Highlight of the spiel will be the championship battles scheduled for Sunday morning. The handsome LaBatt Trophy and accompanying awards will be presented following the bonspiel by company and Legion officials.

Ottawa Will Build Centre

OTTAWA (CP)—A noisy city council meeting Friday night reversed its decision of four days ago and voted 15-10 in favor of building an $8,400,000 civic centre to include a stadium and arena.

Target date for completion is June, 1967.

Bisons, Barons Reds Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Eddie Kachur, who hasn't topped the 20-goal mark in five previous seasons in the American Hockey League, is ready to try for 30.

The 31-year-old right winger contributed two goals to Providence Reds' 5-3 victory over Hershey Bears Friday night, bringing his total to 11 in 10 games and 26 for the season.

Cleveland Barons hammered Pittsburgh Hornets 8-1 and Buffalo Bisons routed Baltimore Clippers 8-3 in the remainder of the night's schedule.

Kachur, in his second year with the Reds, has never done better than 19 in the AHL.

Bill Staub, Bob Leduc and Jim Bartlett were the other Providence marksmen Friday with Jeannot Gilbert, Pete Conacher and Howie Yanosik replying for Hershey.

The Barons, winning their fifth in a row, got two goals apiece from Tom McCarthy and Bob Ellett and the others from Joe Szura, Fred Glover, Ed Hoekstra and Keith McCreary. Billy Harris scored for Pittsburgh.

Pat Hannigan, Mel Pearson and Al Caron were double scorers for Buffalo, whose other goals came from Gerry Ouellette and Billy Carter. Ken Schinkel with two, and Bill Knibbs scored for Baltimore.

Czechs Shade Nationals

PRAGUE (CPAP) — Czechoslovakia defeated Canada 4-3 Friday to make it two straight over Canada's national team in warmup games for the world hockey championships.

The Czechs had beaten the Canadian squad 4-0 here Thursday. But the visitors showed to better advantage in the second contest, stepping up their speed and the hardness of their checks.

The first period was scoreless. the Czechs took a 3-1 lead in the second period and hung on to win, although outscored 2-1.

The Czech news agency Ceteka said 18,500 fans saw the game. Both teams are preparing to participate next month in the world amateur tournament in Yugoslavia.

Zdenek Andrst, chairman of the Czech hockey organization, said his countrymen still could learn from the Canadians.

"Anyone who has seen their power play," he said, "or their defensive skill against their opponents' power play, cannot but appreciate their qualities."

NEW TEAM HURT BRAVES

ATLANTA (CP) —Warren Giles, president of the National League, says one reason he wants Braves to play baseball in Atlanta instead of Milwaukee is the advent of an American League team at Minneapolis. He said Friday in a deposition to be used in a Wisconsin anti-trust suit against the Braves that Milwaukee attendance gradually went down starting the year Minneapolis got a major league team.

Canadian Girl Dismayed

Petra's World Crown Threatened

DAVOS, Switzerland (CP-AP) — The reign of Canada's Petra Burka as world figure-skating queen was in peril today.

A coup engineered by American skater Peggy Fleming threatened to overthrow the 19-year-old Toronto girl during the completion of school figures today and the free skating Sunday.

Miss Burka, first female Canadian sovereign in the sport of figure-skating since the long reign of Barbara Ann Scott, came here as North American champion and a strong favorite to retain the world crown she won last year in Colorado Springs, Colo.

But Miss Fleming, the 17-year-old U.S. champion, gained a big lead over Miss Burka Friday, when the first two of six compulsory figures were performed.

LOOKED DISMAYED

The Canadian girl looked dismayed and had little to say when she left the Davos open-air rink.

"If anybody does better than I do, I don't deserve to win," she said.

Miss Burka was at some disadvantage in her second figure, on which she lost several points to her American rival. She was the last skater on the program and, because night had fallen, she had to perform under floodlight. This could have made it difficult to see her own traces in the ice, which she had to follow in completing the figure, a three-change, three - backward left.

PETRA BURKA

* * *

Miss Fleming and most of the other skaters skated entirely in daylight.

Emmerich Danzer of Austria gave a brilliant demonstration of free-skating ingenuity and grace to win the men's singles title, which now has stayed in Europe for three consecutive years.

LEADS PETRA

Miss Fleming's graceful performance in the first two figures gave her 333.2 points to lead the field of 20. Miss Burka had 317.6 and Gabrielle Seyvert of East Germany was third with 309.2.

In all competitions, the compulsory figures count 60 per cent towards the final standings.

Another Canadian, Valerie Jones, 17, of Toronto, was fifth in the women's event behind Nicole Hassler of France. Miss Hassler had 308.4 points, Miss Jones 299.2.

The 20-year-old Danzer had 11 ordinals, or judges' placings, and 2,247.9 points.

Best Canadian in the men's event was Donald Knight, 18, of Dundas, Ont., the Canadian champion, who finished seventh with 66 ordinals and 2,085.6 points. Knight was third in the world contest last year.

Dr. Charles Snelling, 29, a graduate student in surgery at the University of Toronto, was 10th in the field of 21 with 100 and 2,016.7.

On The Golf Trails

BOGOTA (CP) — Heraclio Valenzuela, little known Colombian pro, clung to first place in the Los Lagartos open golf tournament Friday by carding a three-under-par 69 for a 36-hole total of 134.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg, winner of the Panama Open, posted a five-under-par 67, and tied Wes Ellis of the United States for third at 138.

DURBAN (AP)—Jack Nicklaus, former United States open golf champion, fired an eagle three on the 471-yard eighth hole Friday and pulled to within two strokes of Gary Player after four matches of their 108-hole tour of South Africa.

Nicklaus posted a two-under-par 70 for his round over the 6,456-yard Durban County Club course. Player, a native of South Africa, had a 73. There are two 18-hole matches remaining.

Quebec Skiers Steal Show

STONEHAM, Que. (CP) — Quebec's junior skiers stole the show Friday in the second day of the Canadian junior ski championships at this community north of Quebec City.

Sue Clift of Montreal finished first in the girls' downhill event with a time of 144 seconds for two runs while Pierre Savoie of Quebec City took first place in the men's division with a time of 130.9 seconds for two downhill runs.

Carol Sevensma of Kimberley B.C., finished second in the girls' section with a time of 145.2 seconds, followed by Marylin Kelly of Banff, Alta., in 145.4.

Fourth place went to Judy Leinweber, also of Kimberley, who finished in 145.7. Bev Chambera of Fort William ended in fifth place with 145.9.

Williams' Innocent Looks Cover a Tough Interior

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Don't be deceived by that innocent air that Andy Williams exudes on his Monday night songfests. He can also be tough, as NBC is discovering.

Andy is engaged in the annual fencing match that most television stars face when they near the end of a season. It is the time when opposing sides parry and thrust to get the best possible terms.

The case of The Andy Williams Show is reported by its owner-star thusly:

"Kraft (his sponsor) would like the show for another year, which I am under contract for. NBC tells me that I must sign for another two seasons after next year—at the same price. I said forget it.

"Why, I lost $100,000 this year over last because production costs have gone up. Actually I lost $240,000, the reason being that Kraft doesn't want reruns. I figured to make $140,000 on reruns.

WANTS UNION DEAL

"I'm not saying that I've lost money over - all. Naturally I haven't done that. But I'd be silly to sign any deal without a five-per-cent annual increase; that's what the union raises are."

The singer declared he is willing to scrap the weekly show rather than sign on NBC's terms. He'd prefer to limit himself to a few specials and develop his movie career; he's up for a role in Any Wednesday with Jason Robards and Jane Fonda.

Another NBC demand that rankles Williams is that he must do 32 shows instead of his regular 26. "I don't know how we're going to get enough ideas, enough guest stars for 32 shows; we have enough trouble with 26," he said.

Probably both sides will give in a little, and Andy Williams will be back next season, displaying his innocent ease in living color.

Ten-Pin Tidbits

By GRACE POSTE

Our weekends are really busy ones at the Brunswick Belleville Bowl!

Doubles and singles are being bowled in the city tournament tomorrow, with the entry deadline tonight at midnight.

Then it's the women's turn with W.I.B.C. sanctioned Belleville Women's Association fifth annual tournament slated for Saturday, April 16. This is a team events affair, starting at 7.00 p.m.

Doubles and singles will be held Saturday, April 30, at Deseronto's Lucky Strike Lanes, at 1.00 p.m. with the entry deadline set for April 2. This is a handicap tournament and the organizers are hoping for a record number of entries. Other information can be obtained from secretary Dorohty Anderson or president Jessie Hunter.

Good luck to the Belleville women's teams going to the Watertown tournament on March 12. (Question to the "Adornettes": Do you still want the bowler who bowled 96? Yours truly is guilty.

Congratulations to the Sunday Student's League which had 17 teams taking part.

This is the fifth year of play on city ten-pin lanes and some fine local averages are being posted.

Men with 170 averages and over are: Mickey Moreau, Peter Drenth, Art Mansfield, Stan Royle, Joe DeGenova, John Morrin, Russ Poste, Randy Loewen, Dale Watson and Doug Reddick.

Women with averages of 150 and over are: Jessie Hunter, Marion Gelsthorpe, Kaye Moreau, Peg Ronsky, Carmel Miller, Barbara Begley, Alice Drenth, Kay Rutherford, Sandy Mofina, Doris Ford and Joan Liscum.

The Golden Years

Here's How Life Stacks Up Out in Retirement World

By THOMAS COLLINS

Things are getting rough out in retirement.

A pensioned gentleman recently moved into a small town in Florida where local laws, among other things, allow people to keep chickens in their yards.

The gentleman apparently moved into the town on the wrong foot Bad blood developed with the neighbors. One insult across the lot lines led to another.

In time, a next-door neighbor bought 15 roosters and penned them up in his side yard, right under the bedroom window of the newcomer.

Their crowing starts about 4 a.m.

FIX-IT MAN

Walter W. Keeler, who retired two years ago and grew bored, decided to capitalize on the almost universal need by housewives for a fix-it man. He set up "The Keeler Fix-It Shop" at an old desk in his basement, then gathered around it the tools he had accumulated over the years.

Then he had cards printed, announcing his service, and had boys deliver them to 500 homes in the community.

"I knew about as much about household repairs as the average man," he says. I certainly was no expert. I could fix a balky toilet, find an electrical short in a small appliance or replace a frayed cord, make a normal vacuum cleaner run again. And I usually knew just where to kick an automatic washing machine to get it started.

"That's about all I knew. But I had the experience, as most men living in a household until age 65 have to go find an expert who could repair anything that was over my head . . ."

Before setting up his shop, Mr. Keeler made contact with a nearby vocational school and lined up five top students in mechanical and electrical courses to be his assistants. "They were all put 'on call' between 4 and 8 p.m., when work would not interfere with their studies. I promised to pay them the going hourly rate . . ."

Mr. Keeler is a success. He's busy; he's useful; he's making money; and he has become a friend to half the families in the community.

"There's no sense in a retired man wasting away," he says. "He just has to go after a business of his own, because nobody is going to give him a job. And he has to have the courage to be an oddball. In setting myself up as a fix-it man, after the white-collar career I had had, I was indeed a nut. If you don't think so just ask some of my old colleagues who are sitting around turning into vegetables."

"C-PLUS CLINIC"

Miss Mary R. Castleton, retired school teacher, didn't think much of her pension, and even less of the wasted days retirement brought her. She had been an English teacher. She scouted around town until she found a retired math teacher (a man) and a retired woman Spanish teacher. She then organized them into "The C-Plus Clinic" to guarantee a C-Plus average in any subject in which a high school student was failing. She has been so successful that the organization has grown to five retired teachers, and the local schools are recommending her to their failing students.

PART-TIME MECHANIC

Walter B. (Bucky) Greene, still alert and fit when he retired from the wholesale business at 65, went to the service department of the car dealer where he had been buying his cars for the last 12 years. He said he wanted to be a mechanic and was willing to put on overalls and work free for four months in order to learn what he didn't already know about this particular make of car. The dealer took him on, and at the end of two months put him on the payroll. Mr. Greene works four hours a day, which is all he wants, and at his suggestion is working from 3 to 7 p.m. to serve drivers who run into trouble driving home from work. The service department before had always closed at 5 p.m. The extended service has brought so much extra business the dealer is about to give Mr. Greene an assistant.

Successful Living

Smoking Hazards To Unborn Cited

DEAR DORIS: In answer to H.R.D. about the danger of smoking by the expectant mother, there is a vast research project in the U.S. called the Collaborative Prenatal Research Project, started in 1959 and involving 50,000 pregnant women; each year 8,000 expectant mothers will be selected.

DORIS CLARK

Records now demonstrate that women who smoked as few as half a pack of cigarettes daily or less had 50% more premature deliveries than non-smokers; women who smoked more than a pack a day had more than double the premature deliveries of non-smokers.

Dr. Allan C. Barnes, chief gynecologist of John Hopkins University states: "For heavy smokers, the problem of what to do is difficult. To force an addicted cigarette smoker to cease may create increased tension and eating problems which could multiply fetal hazards. But even such women, motivated by the desire to protect their child, may be persuaded temporarily to reduce their cigarette consumption."

DEAR R.I.C.: Sounds pretty conclusive. Thank you, on behalf of the women across Canada who read this column.

Income Tax Tips

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax office.

By D. W. DAVIES, C.A.

ASSETS PURCHASED IN WIFE'S NAME

Many taxpayers have the erroneous idea, that if they transfer revenue producing assets to their wife or purchase stocks and bonds in their wife's name she will be the one responsible for the income tax on such investment income.

This is not correct as Section 21 of the Income Tax Act, states that the husband must report on the income on any asset he transferred to his wife or purchased in her name, as long as he lives or she remains his wife, and he remains in Canada.

A taxpayer who operates a business or is in a profession is not permitted to include in his expenses any salary or wages he pays to his wife. On the other hand the wife receiving income in the form of salary or wages does not have to file a return, if this was her only source of income. This applies only to a wife. The taxpayer is allowed to claim as expenses, the wages paid to a son or daughter.

If the taxpayer is one of two partners who operate a business on a equal share basis and the taxpayer's wife is employed by the partnership, then she must report one half of her salary and the other half must be added to the husband's income. This is done when the wife's total salary is charged as an expense against the partnership.

If a husband and wife operate a business as partners, the Minister of National Revenue, may at his discretion, tax either the husband or wife on the entire income from the partnership.

For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: My wife and I operate a small variety store, and we have no outside help as we run it ourselves. The business is in my name. Can I deduct the money my wife takes from the business as an expense?

Answer: No.

Question 2: I purchase bonds on a payroll deduction plan and have them in my wife's name. I was told I had to report the interest received from the bonds, on my income tax return. Is this correct?

Answer: Yes.

Seeks Man With Rare Cancer So They Can Trade Tumors And Cure Each Other

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Sometime in the next six months, maybe in t[illegible] weeks, Robert F. Allen is going to die of cancer, the doctors say.

They offer one way out—if Allen can find "the right person."

So Allen, a Tucson insurance executive who will be 29 on March 9, is looking for someone with osteogenic sarcoma — a rare type of bone cancer.

There aren't many of them alive. Those who are face the same fate Allen does: Impending death.

To make things more difficult, the person Allen seeks also must have O positive blood.

If that person can be found—and agrees to try a new cancer treatment with Allen—both may live.

Last fall, two Roswell Park Memorial Institute physicians from Buffalo told the annual clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons about a successful tumor transplant treatment.

One of them, Dr. Sigmund M. Nadler, has agreed to try the operation on Allen and the person he is seeking.

Nadler and Dr. George E. Moore said they have found that antibodies can be generated to combat tumors by transplanting the tumors from one victim to another.

Later, white blood cells—which carry the antibodies—can be withdrawn from the patient and given to the other to destroy his cancer.

Nadler and Moore reported that their experimental treatment worked in the case of a 25-year-old woman who had skin cancer.

Vietnamese Throw Back Viet Cong

SAIGON (AP)—With fighter-bombers and artillery backing them up, 470 South Vietnamese infantry troops and militia beat off a Viet Cong attack by twice their number earlier today in a fierce fight around a refugee resettlement area 75 miles northeast of Saigon.

The estimated 900 to 1,000 Viet Cong struck from three directions against the hamlet of Vo Xu, in coastal Binh Tuy province. Prongs simultaneously hit a 120-man militia post and 350-man infantry battalion, both part of the village's defences.

It was the first regimental-size attack by the Viet Cong against a government resettlement area in months. They used mortars and 50-calibre machine - guns, setting huts aflame and killing an undetermined number of refugees.

The Viet Cong charged the hamlet three times. A government spokesman said at least 20 Viet Cong were killed. Government casualties were described as moderate.

HURT PARATROOPS

The Viet Cong attacked the hamlet after knocking out a company of American paratroops in a six-hour fight 20 miles north of Saigon during the weekend. Fire from other guerrillas drove a ship aground temporarily in the Saigon River Sunday.

The Viet Cong smothered a company of the U.S. 173rd Airborne Brigade with a blanket of fire. When the Viet Cong finally retreated under the attack from U.S. planes and troop reinforcements, the paratroop company was described as no longer an effective fighting force. American casualties were heavy, officials said. Such companies usually average about 200 men.

The 3,373 - ton Panamanian freighter Lorinda came under heavy fire from recoilless rifles and machine-guns as she sailed up the river 20 miles south of the capital Sunday. The ship ran aground after her Chinese master, helmsman and one crew member were wounded. The ship freed herself and reached port with seven shell holes in her hull. She brought general cargo from Hong Kong.

Can Meet Calls for Troops Without Great Strain - - LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said Saturday his desk is clear of all requests for more troops in Viet Nam. And he said he thinks he can meet additional requests expected next summer "without any great strain on our forces."

This was Johnson's way of stating, at a well - attended news conference in his office, that he sees no need now to consider mobilizing reserve or national guard units.

Johnson expressed his satisfaction with the battle plans and evaluations of Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander in Viet Nam, but declined to predict any easy victory.

"It is not going to be easy and it is not going to be short," said Johnson. "It is going to be difficult and it is going to require sacrifices."

The chief executive, who said he has no quarrel with Congress over recent public debate on Viet Nam policy, indicated also he does not expect to ask for tax increases or wage - price controls in the foreseeable future.

Votes in Congress this week are expected to uphold Johnson's conduct of the war in Viet Nam. But they are unlikely to still completely the clamorous debate which has been swirling around his policy.

The central legislative testing ground will be an administration request for $4,800,000,000 in emergency funds to support the U.S. effort in Southeast Asia between now and July 1.

It is before both Senate and House of Representatives in separate authorization bills. The actual money would be provided later in an appropriations bill.

Before getting to the authorization bill, the Senate is expected to go on record in support of Johnson by rejecting an effort to clip his power to conduct the undeclared war.

More South Korean Troops To Go to South Viet Nam

SEOUL (AP)—The South Korean cabinet voted today to send about 20,000 more troops to South Viet Nam.

Meeting with President Chung Hee Park and other leaders of the ruling Democratic Republican party, the cabinet approved a government proposal to send a regiment in April and a division in July.

South Korea already has 20,000 troops in South Viet Nam. The government is expected to ask the national assembly Wednesday to approve the troop movement.

Government officials said the U.S. government, in exchange for the decision to send more South Koreans in Viet Nam, had agreed to:

—Increase the pay of Korean troops in Viet Nam by 25 per cent

—Maintain its military assist-

Nkrumah Leaves Peking Aboard Russian Airliner

PEKING (Reuters) — Ousted Ghanaian president Kwame Nkrumah left here today on a Russian airliner for an unknown destination, declaring he was on his way back to Ghana.

However, a statement he issued before departure did not make clear how or when he planned to return to the country where his regime was overthrown by a military coup Thursday. It said he was "determined to stamp out the rebellion without delay."

The Chinese head of state, Liu Shao-chi, and Prime Minister Chou En-lai gave Nkrumah a top-level send-off, although the Chinese tried to keep his departure secret.

The presence of the Russian ambassador at the airport, where Nkrumah took off in an Aeroflot airliner, led observers to believe he was going to Moscow.

In Moscow, the Ghana embassy said it had not been told whether Nkrumah was heading for the Soviet capital. If he came to Moscow the embassy would have nothing to do with him, a spokesman said.

"We are taking purely the civil service point of view," he said. "We have no truck with the Nkrumah regime. We have taken down all his portraits in the embassy and we carry out instructions from the new regime. We serve the government in power."

Soviet foreign ministry officials were not immediately available for comment. Aeroflot said

ACCRA (Reuters)—The Marxist editor of Kwame Nkrumah's paper The Evening News has been arrested by the military government which toppled the Nkrumah regime, Ghana radio announced today.

The editor is Eric Heyman, one of Nkrumah's close advisers. The paper he edited was founded by Nkrumah himself.

Heyman and the editor of the government morning paper, T. D. Balfour, were both on the wanted list put out by the National Liberation Council after Thursday's coup d'etat. Heyman was generally considered in Ghana to be one of the inner circle of officials of Nkrumah's Convention People's party who made the main national policy decisions.

The liberation council today legalized all laws passed by the Nkrumah regime except those superseded by a decree of the council.

A proclamation the council also ruled that all judges and civil servants were to remain in office and legalized all acts and decrees made by its members since the coup.

The army announced Sunday night that the chief justice and other judges had sworn an oath of allegiance to the new regime.

Meanwhile, the country was quiet following a weekend of celebrations welcoming the new government. Everywhere the legend of Kwame Nkrumah, built up since Ghana gained independence from Britain in 1957, was being systematically crushed.

Portraits of the "Redeemer" which stared down from walls everywhere were destroyed and the giant bronze statue of Nkrumah which stood in front of the Parliament buildings was toppled and broken up.

The coup, carried out by the military and supported by the nation's police, was thought likely to give a big boost to the country's near - bankrupt economy.

Astronauts Die In Plane Crash

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Astronauts Elliott M. See Jr., and Charles A. Bassett II, the primary crew for the Gemini 9 space flight scheduled this summer, were killed today in a St. Louis plane crash.

The identifications were announced at the Manned Spacecraft Centre, the training base for astronauts, about 1½ hours after the T-38 jet crashed while making an instrument landing in a light fog at the McDonnell Aircraft Corp. plant.

May War To Oust Sukarno

SINGAPORE (AP) — Anti - Communist students in Indonesia may go underground and wage guerrilla war in an effort to topple President Sukarno, informants said Sunday.

Military forces loyal to Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution, the ousted defence minister, may support the students, the informants said.

Radio Jakarta said today, however, that Nasution has declared his support of Sukarno. It said that Nasution, in a recent written message to a Moslem Mohamadian party conference, said the Indonesian people "must always maintain and defend the unity of the armed forces, the masses, and the great leader of the revolution, Bung Karno (Sukarno)." Nasution was removed as defence minister last week.

The Singapore informants on the students' alleged anti-Sukarno plans said they gathered the information from a statement broadcast by a clandestine Indonesian radio and "more confidential information" received directly from Jakarta.

Sukarno outlawed the anti-Communist student organization KAMI after the group carried out demonstrations last Wednesday and Thursday protesting Nasution's ouster. Nasution, who had been leading a crackdown on Communists, is reported to have left Jakarta.

Say Nkrumah Has Secret Army Waiting

LONDON (Reuters)—Two exiled Ghanaian politicians claimed here Sunday night that ousted president Kwame Nkrumah has a 1,000-strong secret army hiding near Accra and will almost certainly try to return to Ghana in disguise.

They said the secret army, which includes Russians and Chinese, has an underground hideout, enough food for six months, and 10 times as much ammunition as the whole Ghanaian Army.

Dr. Kobina Taylor and Kojo Mensah, members of the United party, which was banned under the Nkrumah regime, addressed a London press conference.

Russian Deep Space Probes Soon Will Pass Near Venus

MOSCOW (AP)—Two deep Soviet space probes are nearing Venus, with the first scheduled to pass the earth's cloud-draped sister planet within the next few days, perhaps Tuesday.

The second, launched into an orbit around the sun four days later, is due near Venus about Saturday.

The Russians have made no official announcements on the probes since Dec 24, when they were about a third of the way to Venus.

But Mstislav Keldysh, president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, told a press conference Feb. 10 that both were due near Venus about March 1. The unmanned satellites Venus II and Venus III were launched Nov. 12 and 16.

The most spectacular scientific data on Venus to date has come from the U.S. Mariner II satellite, which passed within 21,648 miles of Venus Dec. 14, 1962.

The first Soviet attempt, Venus I, passed within 62,000 miles of Venus in 1961, but its radio went dead shortly after launching and it failed to provide data.

The two latest Soviet probes were both launched while Venus was relatively close to the earth, about 25,000,000 miles away.

Mariner II showed that Venus has a surface temperature of about 800 degrees farenheit, hot enough to melt lead and too hot for any form of life known on earth.

Mariner II also showed that Venus has little water vapor in its atmosphere, that its cloud cover prevents surface heat from rising and escaping, that it has a low magnetic field, and that it rotates very slowly, once in 250 days.

"Mechanical Meteorologist" Soars Into Orbit Today

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) Essa II, a mechanical meteorologist designed to snap and transmit cloud and storm pattern photos almost in the twinkling of its camera eyes, soared into orbit today to complete the world's first operational space weather reporting network.

Together with the earlier ESSA I, the new weather watcher will provide a combination of global coverage every day and instant pictures to local forecasters in 22 nations.

Dubbed "everyman's satellite" because of its potential usefulness to all countries, the new weather observatory thundered away from Cape Kennedy on schedule at 8:58 a.m. EST atop a Douglas Delta rocket that drilled it into orbit about 850 miles above the earth.

The national aeronautics and space administration announced the success of the flight and officially named the satellite ESSA II, for Environmental Survey Satellite. Ground stations planned to activate its cameras Wednesday, after first checking out all payload systems

Each of the two cameras is to take and transmit a picture every six minutes.

ESSA II packed two cameras labelled APT, for Automatic Picture Transmission. The cameras were to send pictures directly to more than 80 stations manned by professionals and amateurs in 22 countries.

The instant pictures could be used to improve local weather forecasts, to issue warnings of severe weather and to help select the safest routes for aircraft in flight and ships at sea.

APT receiving sets cost up to $30,000. But some amateur have put workable sets togethe for as low as $600.

Some television stations in the United States plan to feed ESSA II pictures directly onto home screens during weather programs.

Little Flood Threat Seen, Moira Open to CPR Bridge

Any likelihood of a flood in the Moira River at Belleville was being discounted today following the mild weather of recent days and a break-up of the ice in the lower river channell.

Angus Duffy, Emergency Measures Organization coordinator for the Quinte district, said the river was in "good shape" with little likelihood of flood danger unless there was a prolonged rain.

The river is running open from the Upper Bridge to Cannifton, while a channel is opening up in the river between the C.P.R. bridge and the Upper Bridge.

The river current is escaping easily beneath the ice into the Bay and the water level has dropped several feet from the high point reached about three weeks ago when frazil ice backed up the river in the downtown district causing flood threat to Front street store basements.

It is 30 years ago this month that the last serious flood occurred in Belleville.

At that time a several days' rain lifted the ice above the Corbyville dam, the ice jamming up in the downtown area of the river causing the water to flood over onto Front Street.

Behind the "Glass"

A crew of members headed by the ice committee chaired by Jack Olaveson took to the shovels last night after curling was completed at the local club to prepare the ice for the coming Tri-Quinte bonspiel opening on Wednesday evening. The Arena Commission assisted in loaning their ice-shaver to the club and when the spiel is officially opened by the mayors of Belleville and Trenton and the O.C. of RCAF station, the curlers will have a brand new sheet of ice to perform on. It is hoped that all of the runs will have disappeared and the ice will be clean and clear white.

Bill McPherson and his crew were on hand and the banners and flags were placed, the clubhouse decorated and everything took on a festive air.

On Saturday night the finals for two trophies, Corbys and Elliott Motors will be played at the local club and two at the Trenton club, while on Sunday night the finals for four trophies will be played at the RCAF station rink.

There are 72 rinks entered, evenly divided between the local and outside rinks and some excellent curling will be seen during the week. The public is cordially invited to attend at any of the rinks to watch the boys perform. For the curlers, a round of entertainment has been provided, with a banquet on Thursday being the highlight. A fine program has been provided for this event.

The colts rink of Ken Monson, Wilfred Weymark, Reid Giffin and Neville Burroughs failed in their attempt to win a berth in the provincial finals. They journeyed to Ottawa on the weekend to play a rink from the Civic club of that city and lost two games after winning the first contest. The boys had the series all locked up but two key misses in the latter part of the contest put them in a hole from which they never recovered. In the deciding game they dropped a 9-7 decision. The boys are to be congratulated for going so far and next year the result could be different.

A successful men's spiel was held at the Quinte Club on Saturday under the direction of "Goldie" Livingston. Sixteen rinks were entered and three eight-end games were played.

A rink of Carl Charlton, Dr. Jim Nelles, "Goldie" Livingston with Dr. Finley McCorquodale as skip had the three-game high score with a rink of John Woodcroft, Bill Spinelli, Al McCullam with Ron Benn as skip, a close second. "Corky" had to win five ends of his third game to win and he had one to spare.

Ernie Wilkinson skipped his rink of Bill Gault, Fred Maund and his son, Wayne, to the high two-game score.

A rink of Rae Swansbury, R. J. V. Hopwood-Jones, "Skit" Skuce with Mac White as skip finished in second place in this group. The one-game high was won by a rink of Harold Parks, Hal Emerson, Lloyd Lantz with T. A. Carruthers as skip. Al Chatland and Art Bannon conducted the draw and Mrs. Connie Wilkinson was in charge of the kitchen that fed the hungry curlers.

Find Last-minute Rush For Licences Is Lacking

That feared last minute line-up of motorists waiting to purchase their 1966 auto markers has apparently failed to materialize.

The reason apparently is that most motorists have already acquired their new markers.

Local licence issuer George Olsen said today that there would not be more than a few hundred sets of new auto plates still to go out.

"We had our biggest day on Friday," said Mr. Olsen. "During Friday and up until about four o'clock Saturday afternoon when we closed the office we sold about 1,500 sets of plates but the rush was over by Saturday afternoon.

Boy Scouts, Girl Guides Observe 'Day' at Gardens

TRENTON — Sunday was Boy Scouts' and Girl Guides' "Own Day" at the Trenton community gardens.

The Trooping of the Queen's Colors by Guides and Scouts opened the afternoon ceremony, which was followed by the singing of O Canada and remarks by W. J. Wilkinson, chairman of the Trenton District Scout Council and Miss Eva Baker, Quinte Area Commissioner.

Civic greetings were brought by Mayor James MacDonald, and this followed by the singing of a special Guiding and Scouting hymn and a prayer, led by Richard Burnet.

A renewal of Promises was led by Brownie Olga Goodsell, Marilyn Sweanor, representing Guides and Rangers, Eric Hay for Cubs and Rod Work man for Scouts.

The guest speaker, high school principal, John Garrett was introduced by Scout John Hicks.

Mr. Garrett advised his youthful listeners to "keep happy," above all. Not everyone could make marked scholastic success or be a success in a material way, Mr. Garrett said, but said, but everyone could bring to life an optimistic determination to see the best in everyone and to do his "bit", cheerfully.

Mr. Garrett was thanked by Guide Karla Kuklis.

An offering for the Girl Guide and Boy Scout Friendship Funds was taken up from 200 persons attending the ceremony.

Wolf Cub Pack of Trenton in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Friday night. Ceremonies were opened by Cub Eric Hay. The blessing was asked by the chaplain, Douglas A. Wilson, and a toast to the Queen was proposed by F/L E. F. Jackson, a member of the Group Committee. A delicious dinner was served by the Ladies' Auxiliary of St. Andrew's, under the direction of president Mrs. Jack Olesen.

At conclusion of the dinner, the Cubs entertained their parents with a program entitled "An Evening With Radio Station CUBS." A planned tour of RCAF Station Trenton and several aircraft had to be cancelled, but the boys enjoyed films screened by F/L Jackson. Cub Bradley Trimble expressed thanks to the Ladies' Auxiliary and to the Group Committee.

Mr. Douglas will speak at a banquet in the Club Canara, sponsored by the new riding of Quinte N.D.P. association.

Boy Scouts Have Busy Weekend

BRIGHTON — A church parade to St. Andrews' Presbyterian Church, Sunday afternoon, the annual father-son banquet Saturday evening and a Rover weekend campout at Presqu'ile provided a busy weekend of scouting activity in Brighton.

A capacity crowd of cubs, scouts, their fathers and guests, attended the Saturday evening banquet at the Masonic Temple. Presentation of a "thanks" badge to Brighton's "Scotty" Broughton, was a highlight of the banquet. "It is a great honor to receive this 'thanks' badge," said Mr. Broughton. "It marks the end of a career in scouting that began in Brighton in 1937." Previously, he recalled, his interest in scouting began in a Salvation Army scout troop in his homeland.

The presentation was made by Rev. E. A. Slemin, retired Aglican clergyman. He was one of the pioneers of the movement locally, that dates from 1912.

"Scouter" Broughton, appropriately marked his retirement from active scouting by camping out with a group of senior Rover scouts at Presqu'ile. He invited anyone interested to join the group and bring their sleeping bags along, or to come around in the morning and see how the boys weathered the night-out. "If Canadian boys can't prove they can camp out in winter I don't know who can," he said in giving scouting credit for "a great lack of juvenile delinquency, locally."

Reeve Ed. Solomon extended a civic welcome and commended scout leaders "whose energy and leadership have made it a large part of our community."

Following the dinner and program at which District Commissioner Jack Lisle presented a training certificate award to scout leader Dan McKendrick and Mrs. Audrey Simpson presented a new troop flag for Brighton's newest cub pack "C" pack that was received by leader McKendrick on behalf of the pack, the scouts and cubs provided a scouting entertainment program under the direction of Robert Raymond.

A log campfire was the focal point of the program in the centre of the auditorium. In the light of the "electric" campfire, scouts and cubs, gave fathers and guests an illustration of their group programs and activities, with fathers being invited to join in the singing of a number of scout songs.

On behalf of the group Committee, Claude Thompson presented the nominating committee's slate of Committee members for the coming year: Jim Buck, Carl Hewton, Frank Goodrich, Max Williamson, Neil Taft, Rev. C. P. Aspell, Frank Cullin, Arnold Goodrich, Gordon Moulton, Claude Thompson, Bob Heiver, Tom Guy and Charles Wheeler.

Tom Guy, chairman of the Brighton Group Committee was master of ceremonies. Frank Goodrich thanked the Scout Mothers' Auxiliary which catered for the banquet.

Cub Robert Gardiner played the piano for O Canada and the sing song, led by Mrs. Ed Panke.

Scout Robert Baxter proposed the toast to the fathers. Don Swain gave the reply.

Police Seize Air Rifles

BRIGHTON — Brighton Constable Ray Grogan has two air rifles in the Police Department office, seized from two youngsters this weekend. One has a telescopic sight.

It is an offence under the Criminal Code for any youngster under 14 to have possession of one of the guns which is classed as a firearm.

In taking the air gun from one of the boys, Constable Grogan inquired why the gun was being held in the direction of another lad and the reply was "just for kicks."

Constable Grogan points out the air rifles are powerful enough to cause injury if a child is struck with one of the pellets in the face or other part of the body not protected with heavy winter clothing.

Bank Manager Clever at Bill Detection

BRIGHTON — If counterfeiters, suspected of trying to pass bogus $20 bills in Brighton, push their phony twenties on to the unsuspecting public, the deft fingers of Brighton Bank Manager Harvard J. MCMullen can detect the flaw in the best of the counterfeiter's art.

When handed a stack of bills by OPP officers who had been checking on a couple of suspect bills, Mr. McMullen closed his eyes, quickly thumbed through the stack and with a once-through flip, pulled out two bills. On further checking with numbers on file, the check proved the bills were false.

Common Mart Lands Seek Way to Renew Trade Talks

By CARL HARTMAN

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Europe's Common Market countries meet today in its first full session in nearly eight months, looking for a way to get going again on the Kennedy round of talks for breaking down barriers to international trade.

The Kennedy round derives its name from the Trade Expansion Act which the late president Kennedy put through in 1962. It seeks to reduce customs duties by half.

The scheduled two-day Common Market session will be held as usual behind closed doors. It will be attended by cabinet members for the six member countries — France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

There is a new interest in bringing in Britain and other West European countries and Britain's membership will be a subject of lively discussion in the corridors.

MUST GIVE SIGN

But nothing new can happen until President de Gaulle of France gives some official sign that he has changed his mind. He blackballed Britain three years ago.

First order of business at the meeting is to determine how to share the burden of subsidizing the export of farm surpluses, mostly grain produced in France. There is little doubt that West Germany will bear a considerable part of the burden but the exact percentages are still in dispute.

Closely connected with this problem is the question of harmonizing prices for beef and dairy products throughout the six countries. Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's government will strongly resist efforts to cut subsidies to its dairy farmers, but will probably have to yield.

President Johnson's authority to make the tariff cuts will expire in mid-1967, and a lot of hard bargaining will have to take place even after the Common Market makes its proposals.

New Fish Concentrate

Protein for Billion People Would Cost Half-cent a Day

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall asked the food and drug administration today to approve for human consumption a protein concentrate made from whole fish.

Udall describes the concentrate as "a new source of food for the world's hungry."

The bureau of commercial fisheries developed the concentrate, using a hake, a fish found in the Atlantic ocean.

Virtually odorless and tasteless, it has been successfully tested as an ingredient in beverages, noddles, gravy, bread and cookies, he said.

Four years ago, commercial fishing interests asked the food and drug administration to approve for human consumption a flour made from whole fish. The administration declined, instead setting a standard for fish flour requiring use of cleaned fish—those with heads, tails, fins and intestines removed.

In his petition to FDA, Udall said bureau scientists worked for three years to develop procedures for manufacturing a nutritious and completely wholesome product.

Donald L. McKernan, bureau director, said if the unharvested fish in United States coastal waters were made into the concentrate, it would provide the protein to balance the diet of 1,000,000,000 persons for 300 days at a cost of about one-half cent a person a day.

UN Chief's Son Wins Support For Quebec

COOKSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—A mock parliament of high school students exploded in an uproar Saturday about a resolution to give Quebec equal representation with the rest of Canada in a strengthened Senate which would have a veto power over legislation.

But shortly afterward, the students settled down to pass the resolution, introduced by Marc Johnson, 18, son of Daniel Johnson, leader of Quebec's Union Nationale party, by a 73 to 67 vote.

The heated debate about the resolution broke out during a recess.

Mr. Johnson had told the session Canada is composed of two nations, not two cultures. He said the reform would give French - speaking Canadians equality as a nation they lack now. Quebec would be willing to separate from Canada if its demands for more autonomy were not granted.

QUESTIONS PLAN

David Moulton, an 18-year-old student from Brampton, said: "How are you going to create a bi-national country when there is only a small minority in one province?

"Are you planning to sacrifice Canada as a nation so that a few separatists will be satisfied in their idiotic notion that separation will cure all ills?"

After the resolution was passed, the students pounded their desks, and cheered as teachers named Marc Johnson the outstanding speaker of the day.

The mock parliament, held in this Toronto-area community, was sponsored by the Peel County United Nations Association. About 150 students, including about 30 from Quebec, participated.

Jamaica's Myrtle Bank Hotel Burned

KINGSTON (AP) — Jamaican officials are looking for a new press centre and ballroom for this week's visit of the Queen, following a fire early today that destroyed the Myrtle Bank Hotel.

All guests in the three-storey hotel were reported safe. The fire gutted 62 rooms and caused damage estimated at $420,000.

Men from two visiting U.S. Navy ships — the ammunition ship Suribachi and the destroyer Johnston — helped the Kingston fire brigade fight the blaze. A man from the Johnston was slightly injured by falling debris and a fireman also was hurt.

Cause of the fire was not known. The 56-year-old building was one of the Jamaican capital's oldest hotels.

The Queen arrives here Thursday as part of her four-week Caribbean tour. A ball in her honor was to have been held at the hotel Friday night.

U.S. Considers Quebec Revolt Consequences

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says that "within the past year, U.S. officials engaged in a military intelligence project to study the consequences of a Quebec separatist revolution that would split Canada."

"Several Canadians — university teachers among them—took part in the project, which began in 1962 under the code name Task Revolt, the newspaper says.

"The U.S. - Army-sponsored study apparently put Quebec in the same category as 22 or so other turmoil-ridden areas of the world, including Cuba, Yemen, The Congo and parts of Latin America.

"The study was made by the Special Operations Research Office of the U.S. Army."

The story quotes a U.S. state department official as "confirming" that studies had been made of the Quebec situation but adding that these now have been completed.

White Miners In Zambia Go on Strike

KITWE, Zambia (Reuters)—More than 250 white miners at Zambia's biggest copper mine today defied President Kenneth Kaunda and staged an unofficial strike.

Altogether 1,300 whites are employed in the Anglo-American corporation-owned Nchanga Mine at Chingola, 250 miles north of here.

Of the 260 involved, some did not report for work at all, others walked out shortly after arriving at the mine.

During the weekend, President Kaunda announced the restriction of an official of the Mineworkers' Society at Mufulira, one of seven mines hit by unofficial one-day stoppages this month. He also promulgated regulations making it an offence for miners to stay away from work.

The strikes began early this month because of claims by some of the miners that negotiations over new contracts were not going fast enough.

Move to Give OAS Council New Powers

PANAMA (AP)—A U.S. proposal to give broad new powers to the council of the Organization of American States to settle disputes appears headed for tough sledding in a special 20-nation committee which opens a four-week meeting here today.

The committee is to draw up reforms to the OAS charter to revitalize the inter - American system's political, economic and cultural action.

The draft amendments will be taken up by a special meeting of inter-American foreign ministers to be held in Buenos Aires in July.

Breast Cancer X-ray Program Encouraging

CHICAGO (AP)—A massive x-ray screening program to detect early breast cancer in women has shown encouraging preliminary results, a team of New York doctors reported Sunday.

Sixty thousand women between the ages of 40 and 64 are taking part in a cancer-detection program under the auspices of the U.S. National Cancer Institute.

The program is designed to determine whether a massive screening program helps reduce the number of cancer deaths. Final results may not be known for five to 10 years.

In a report in the current Journal of the American Medical Association, the doctors say 23 breast cancers have been detected in the first 10,000 women who received x-ray checkups under the screening program which started in December, 1963.

Birth Control Prohibition Denounced

OTTAWA (CP) — Prof. Jacques Henripin, head of the demography department at the University of Montreal, has denounced the "hypocrisy" of the federal government for failing to abolish legislation prohibiting distribution of birth control literature.

Speaking to a symposium set up by the Family Planning Society of Ottawa, Prof. Henripin said Saturday the state has an obligation to permit its citizens to find out the methods of planning a family.

Prof. Henripin said about 25 per cent of the families in Quebec have "a very modest income" and it is these families who have the greatest problem because of their great number of children. "I cannot see why the country doesn't help these people with adequate information," he said.

Dr. Serge Mongeau of Montreal, who also addressed the symposium, said the absence of family planning among the poorer class commits the country to poverty because the parents of large families are not able to educate all their children.

Dr. Paul-Andre Meilleur said the problem of planning a family is a problem of the married couple alone and they are not able to resolve it.

He suggested that a war on poverty would help to correct the problem of families with too many children.

Three 'New Wave' Liberals Creating Stir in Ottawa

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — The three "new wave" Liberals from Quebec have created a stir in Ottawa even though they have said little or nothing inside the Commons so far.

The three intellectuals who dramatically leaped into party politics for the Nov. 8 election have peppered government figures with critical comments in newspaper columns, television interviews and speeches outside Parliament.

Their blunt statements, both past and current, have provided gleeful opposition speakers with ammunition to fire at the cabinet.

The trio's unofficial leader, Immigration Minister Jean Marchand, told a national television audience last week he personally favors a new tax on capital gains, an idea that is anathema to businessmen and investors

Asked whether this reflects government policy, Prime Minister Pearson ducked the question. Mr. Marchand repeated that he is in favor of a capital gains tax.

PASS QUESTION

Conservative House Leader Michael Starr asked: "Is there now a government policy evolved by which ministers take on a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde identity?"

Mr. Marchand's two cohorts, Pierre Elliott Trudeau, parliamentary secretary to Mr. Pearson, and Gerard Pelletier (Montreal Hochelaga), had plenty to say in another TV interview Wednesday night.

They said they still believe Guy Favreau, Privy Council president and the Liberals' Quebec leader, should resign from the cabinet because his judgment was criticized by the Dorion report on the Lucien Rivard affair.

They added that Quebec should not have a special constitutional status as demanded regularly by the Liberal provincial government.

"You can't have an operative . . . system of federal government if one part of it, province or state, has a very different set of relationships toward the central government than the other provinces," said Mr. Trudeau, formerly a law professor and journalist.

After the Dec. 17 cabinet shuffle announced by Mr. Pearson, Mr. Pelletier commented that it could have been better. Too many old guard ministers had been retained.

All three newcomers have harshly criticized the Pearson government in the past for acquiring nuclear arms.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker quoted their 1963 statements and editorials with relish in a defence debate Tuesday. He quoted this excerpt by Mr. Trudeau from the April, 1963, issue of his magazine, Cite Libre:

"The helping hand came from the Pentagon and demanded that Mr. Pearson betray his party program, along with the idealism with which he was identified. Funds were plentiful . . . power was within Mr. Pearson's reach—he had nothing to lose except honor. And he lost it—and his whole party lost it."

WHY DISCUSS IT?

Shortly later Mr. Trudeau spoke for the first time in the House to ask why Mr. Diefenbaker was raising the nuclear issue now. He recalled that the Conservative leader had said last October that nuclear arms no longer were an issue.

Mr. Pelletier has attended Commons sittings regularly but has not made any speech or asked any question as yet. Mr. Marchand has taken part in the debates only to reply to opposition questions, mostly about winter works.

Last March, he accused the Pearson government of disastrous and extreme weakness and chronic instability in its dialogue with the provinces. Mr. Marchand then was head of the Confederation of National Trade Unions and a member of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

Ghana Guns Kill Eleven Russ Advisers

LAGOS, Nigeria (Reuters)—At least 11 Russian security advisers were killed in gun battles between deposed Kwame Nkrumah's presidential guard and and army units during and since Thursday's Ghana coup, usually reliable sources said here today.

The Russians were security specialists recruited by Nkrumah to assist his personal security officers in guarding Flagstaff House.

Ringed with high walls and guarded by defence bunkers and electrical safety installations, it was said to be one of the most up-to-date maximum security buildings in the world.

Most of the Russians working there were said to have been recruited privately and unofficially from the Soviet Union.

One doctor reported seeing the corpses of three whites, presumed to be Russians, among bodies at the main hospital mortuary after the coup.

West Ontario Farmers Seek $4 Milk Price

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — More than 250 farmers from four counties converged on the farm home of Agriculture Minister William Stewart Saturday to press for higher milk prices, but their spokesman said later, "It was just a waste of time."

Their next step, the spokesman said, will be to invite Ontario farmers to storm Queen's Park to back demands for a minimum milk price of at least $4 a hundredweight.

The "drive-in" at Mr. Stewart's Denfield area farm was sponsored by the Ontario Farmers' Union and drew supporters from Middlesex, Perth, Oxford and Lambton counties. Mr. Stewart invited seven representatives into his house.

HE'S IN FAVOR

"I'm just as much in favor of $4 milk as you are, boys," the provincial minister told the farmers. "But there's nothing I can do about it." He said the milk marketing board and the milk commission are in control of prices.

W. T. Langdon of Lakeside, spokesman for the farmers, said the hour-long discussion "was a waste of time and we're getting nowhere at this level."

"We'll ask all Ontario farmers to join us in a march on Queen's Park next month."

Mr. Langdon said he told Mr. Stewart: "We're not concerned with excuses. We know farmers must have more money and we feel it is your responsibility to get it for us."

Shed Fire Threatens Victoria Ave. Dwelling

The threat of a serious fire was averted Saturday afternoon by the prompt response of Belleville firemen to a Victoria Avenue alarm.

About a dozen calls were received by the department when a wooden shed was seen burning adjacent to the brick dwelling on the north-west corner of the Victoria Ave. – John St. intersection. Flames were licking at the side of the dwelling, which houses several upstairs and downstairs apartments, when three fire trucks arrived on the scene.

The shed contained heaps of old clothing and furniture stuffing, which neighbors called "junk", but which Chief Poste of the fire department referred to as "an accumulation of combustible materials."

Fire Inspector Darvel concurred with the department's report of the incident which suspects "carelessness on the part of a person or persons unknown" as being the cause of the mishap. Chief Poste said that the wiring in the building "checked out okay" and feels that some children must have been playing with matches or smoking in the shed.

The tenant of the apartment adjoining the shed was Mr. W. Storms who, along with his three sons, was absent when the fire broke out. An upstairs tenant, Mrs. C. M. Lapanne, and 13-year-old Ross McKenna came down to investigate after discovering smoke seeping through kitchen drawers and cupboards in Mrs. Lapanne's apartment. The McKenna youth said he didn't open the door to the shed, but heard the crackling of flames and immediately put in an alarm to the fire department, one of a spate of calls ,as it turned out.

Chief Poste said that if the fire had spread, the cement block partation in the building might have reduced any damage.

"However it was lucky it wasn't a frame house" and that the firemen were summoned without delay.

Aside from smoke damage to the interior of the dwelling, little in the way of property loss was incurred. There were, however, a few anxious moments until a pet hamster owned by one of Mr. Storms' sons was located safe and sound.

When Mr. Storms returned home to find firemen inspecting the smoke-filled apartment and charred shed debris, he commented: "Funny that didn't start before - its been like this ever since I've been here."

Wilson Opens Election Drive

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Wilson has signalled the unofficial start of Britain's general election campaign with a major speech setting out his Labor government's policies on a wide range of domestic issues.

He made plain his party's theme will be to ask Britain's 36,000,000 voters for mandate to go ahead with its plans.

Wilson is expected to announce the election date today or Tuesday. Most widely tipped date is March 31.

The prime minister, who came to power in October, 1964, with a five - vote over - all House of Commons majority, was clearly confident Saturday that he will win a clear margin over the Conservative and Liberal opposition.

He said Britons would see that his party was fulfilling a massive program of social change as the years went by. Present standing in the House of Commons is: Labor 314; Conservatives 302, Liberals 9; non - voting officers 3; vacancies 2; total 630.

Rhodesia To Ghana

The news from Rhodesia these days is so scant that it may be pertinent to ask if the rebel government of Ian Smith has won the day, despite the trade sanctions and the hullabaloo which Smith's action touched off around the world.

More than three months have elapsed since Smith made the unilateral declaration of independence, in defiance of Britain. Trade sanctions by Britain, brought into effect gradually to achieve maximum effect and culminating in the oil embargo, have had a serious effect on the Rhodesian economy but apparently have failed to bring the Smith regime to heel.

Recent reports from Salisbury indicate that substantial quantities of gasoline are reaching Rhodesia from South Africa and the Portuguese territory of Mozambique, and this, despite the fact that neither South Africa nor Portugal has given official approval to such shipments. Unofficially, though, their sympathies lie with the Smith government.

Rhodesia declared its independence November 11 and it is interesting to note the comment of U.S. News and World Report as early in the crisis as November 29.

"South Africa, Portugal, maybe France," said the U.S. journal, "will resist efforts at boycott (of Rhodesia). If history is a guide, the boycott effort will fail to topple the government in power in Rhodesia as it has failed in other instances when tried. Outside efforts are expected to be made to stir revolt within Rhodesia . . ."

But as yet no "outside" effort has materialized. The other, black, African nations are virtually powerless. And in any event many of them are hopelessly divided. Look at Nigeria — and now Ghana, which was the first African nation to achieve its independence from Britain. Its leader, President Nkrumah, has long cherished ideas of a union of African states.

But Nkrumah has never been popular, and has survived a couple of attempts on his life. His government, now overthrown, was dictatorial, leftist. It is ironic he should be visiting Peking when the coup occurred. One who is likely surveying the divisions among African governments with satisfaction is Ian Smith of Rhodesia.

Moderate Tone

Soviet Embassy representative Vladimir Gregorovich made a useful contribution to Soviet-Canadian relations when he spoke at the Jaycees' Citizen of the Year testimonial dinner.

His address was notably free of any propaganda flourishes in the form of say references to Soviet space achievements or the war in Viet Nam. Rather, Mr. Gregorovich, who is second secretary and press attache in Ottawa, spoke almost deprecatingly about his country.

"Our standard of life is not on a par with that in the United States, Sweden, Canada and other western countries, but we have embarked on a 20-year plan to improve the situation and we shall live as well as all the other countries some day."

"Don't compare our country with yours . . . just try to understand us," he urged.

Contrast Mr. Gregorovich's moderate tone and his references to overall Soviet progress in industry and education with observations by another Soviet official, N. I. Popov, at a brotherhood dinner in Cornwall.

Mr. Popov, also described as a press attache, criticized American policy in Viet Nam, saying the United States had made "an unprovoked attack on the democratic republic of North Viet Nam" and was trying to mislead the people by giving a false picture of the war.

As a result of Mr. Popov's attack some 30 of the 200 guests at the United Services Clubs' dinner, walked out.

The walkout was justified. A function of this nature was not the proper place to discuss the Viet Nam policies of our neighbor.

Oswego Gesture

Belleville's assistance to Oswego, N.Y. during the recent paralysing storm in the American city is already earning dividends in goodwill. State College, Oswego, has offered to assist Belleville in the provision of teachers for the ensuing year.

The U.S. college wrote to Belleville public school board referring to this city's help with snow removal and offering to assist in providing teachers, particularly for industrial arts and crafts.

This is an unusual and generous offer which could result in a good deal of traffic between Belleville and Oswego in future, particularly in the summer months. Considering how little is taught in American schools about the geography and history of Canada, it is safe to assume the people of Oswego and neighboring communities now know something about Belleville at least.

The offer of teachers in arts and crafts is of course a matter for the public school board here. Certainly, if such positions were vacant in Belleville and if there were difficulty filling them there then Oswego's offer should be particularly valuable.

Eyewash Not Needed, Avoid Boric Acid

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: You oppose boric acid as a home remedy, but what do you suggest for an eye-rinse? Also what about borated baby powder? They contain some boric acid, don't they? — J. P.

• • •

Yes, I think boric acid might better be discarded as home remedy. Its danger is too great a price to pay for its occasional usefulness.

As an eyewash, there is no need to use boric acid. Rinsing the eyes is a function of tears and the natural moisture of the eyes. Medicated washes interfere with nature's normal irrigation. If a safe irrigant is desired, one can use a weak salt solution: One quarter teaspoonful of salt dissovled in six ounces of warm water.

If, in severe cases, medication is needed, salves can be used on the lower lid, as directed by your doctor, or drops can be applied with a sterile dropper — also according to instructions.

The familiar eye cups are not always clean and sterile, and may introduce a harmful germ when you are hoping only to do some good.

As to baby powders, yes, some are borated, but in my opinion there are non-borated ones which serve the purpose just as well, and do not introduce the risk of boric acid poisoning. The borate, from borated powders, can be absorbed through irritated skin.

I'm not trying to make a campaign of this, but I certainly think that it is wise to take the safer course, especially when the riskier course offers no advantages.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Is carrot juice good for the eyes and in what quantities should it be drunk? — F. M.

Carrots (along with a great many other foods) contain carotene, a forerunner of Vitamin A. We all need Vitamin A, and except under most unusual circumstances, we all get it. An extreme lack of it can interfere with night vision, in which case, naturally, Vitamin A helps correct the trouble. But for anyone eating an anywhere-near-normal diet, a surplus of carrots, or other forms of Vitamin A won't do the eyes any good.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Why do some doctors refuse to give people more than one flu shot a year? Where can I go to get two shots annually? I am 52, and the flu shots help me a great deal. — Mrs. J. B.

Other than in epidemic conditions, two shots annually are needed only when a person has not been previously vaccinated for flu. The first is a sensitizing shot, and the second builds immunity.

After that, for all practical purposes, one shot a year (a booster) will maintain protection. If a flu epidemic comes along, a second shot is a safeguard, bringing you up to maximum safety at that time.

Dear Sir: I take exception to your answer to the woman asking at what time she would feel quickening. You said after the fourth month a slight pressure was used to provoke movement of the baby in a pregnant woman. With my third pregnancy I felt movement at 10 weeks, and in my fourth at 11 or 12 weeks. Is this very unusual? — P. D.

Take all the exception you want. I try to give sensible averages. You may not be average. Or you may have mistaken a muscle quiver for movement. Whatever you felt, your babies were all right, and that's the important thing. The purpose of pregnancy is to have healthy babies. It isn't a contest to see who feels the first kick.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible for young people of around 20 to have stomach ulcers? — A. T.

Yes, it is possible. Even very small babies have them, but this is rare.

Says Indians Are Libelled

(Letter to Brantford Expositor)

I read with interest the article "Author Claims Indians Libelled by Whites" in a copy of your paper sent to me by a friend. I am inclined to agree with the author.

My name was given me by a direct descendant of the Indian Princess Pocahontas, daughter of Powahatan, mighty Weroance of the Chickahominy. She who gave me my name also bore the name of that great lady. I learned early to admire the Indian Americans, a race who through acts of disposession, etc., became a minority. They are a proud people who had a good society centuries before the coming of Columbus and who fought bravely to keep their homeland. Our fault was in letting the interests of others overshadow our obligations to the First American.

Like the author of the article, I think it high time the Indian in TV or movies play the role of himself. There are many of the Indian race who have distinguished themselves. We should give more recognition to the fact.

As one person recently stated, "Most of us have been so thoroughly brain-washed by historians concerning the American Indian that the truth about them is difficult and hard to believe."

Costa Rica Stands Firm

Milwaukee Journal

Little Costa Rica has a new president, a 49-year-old economist — Jose Joaquin Trejos-Fernandez.

This development would be worth only passing interest were it not that this nation of 1.4 million is something of an anomaly.

Unlike much of Central America, where violent government upheavals and military coups are regular fare, Costa Ricans freely choose their leaders — and do it with amazing exuberance.

Weeks before the latest balloting, San Jose, the capital, resounded with blaring horns. Two blasts signaled Trejos supporters; three stood for his main opponent. Low flying airplanes dumped blizzards of campaign propoganda. Colorful flags of the respective parties flapped all over town.

Colors are important because voters mark their ballots by putting thumbprints in spaces under the party design and candidate's name of their choice.

A 1948 revolt overthrew a demogogic alliance. The country has had an orderly transfer of power to the opposition in free elections five times since.

One possible explanation for Costa Rica's democratic success is that, while still a relatively poor country, it has the highest standard of living in Central America, the least illiteracy and the greatest economic and social advance since 1950.

There may be another reason: The army was abolished in1948.

Must Prepare for Automation Now

Saskatoon Star-Phoenix

A United States presidential commission on automation is heading toward a consensus report on the problems of changing technology. The New York Times reports that the union members of the commission are now about to endorse the findings after certain changes.

One of these was the inclusion of advice that now is not the time to cut back on the work week because the nation needs its full productive power. The labor members objected and this important paragraph will be eliminated. Labor is vigorously attempting to lower the standard hours from 40 to 32.

The report will include recommendations that the U.S. seek to meet the challenge of advancing technology, or automation as it is more widely called, with a far-ranging combination of private program and public steps. It will emphasize a substantial boost in government spending, government employment for all those who may be put out of jobs, and some tax cuts.

It seems to us that these are incompatible. More government employees must logically demand heavier taxes, not lighter ones.

As more and more men and women depend upon the government for their living, does it not follow that the government becomes more powerful and that the entire political system begins an accelerated path toward socialism? Would not we in Canada be wise to consider what alternatives there are to such a trend?

Automation has become a bugaboo. People see it as a threat to their livelihood, are fearful that the time will come when labor of man is replaced by labor of machine.

They hear learned talks on how all of us must be conditioned to a life of leisure time rather than working time. Only a few recognize that machines can do only what they are told and that there will always have to be human intelligence to feed these machines, operate them, update them.

Putting men on standby crews, i.e. paying them for work they do not do and for which they are not needed, is not the answer. Inventing jobs for them to do on government payrolls is not the answer. We shall have to dig deeper into the possibilities before settling for any pat solution. The entire course of society must inevitably be changed and we must know not only which way we are going, but what consequences are waiting at the end of the road.

Although it does not seem a part of the commission's precincts, one other recommendation will be made. This rated only one line in stories released elsewhere but strikes us as equally imporant with the automation question.

The report will call for 14 years of free public schooling and a commitment to provide every qualified person with a college education.

Educational emphasis and curricula will have to change in order to keep pace with the shifting strata of society. Reluctant as they sometimes are to admit change, educators will be faced with drastic revisions.

As the demand for qualified persons increase, more colleges will have to be built and contemporarily educated teachers will have to be found. More interest will undoubtedly be shown in the arts and literature; science will continue to receive a decided accent; personal creative skills will be treated more fully and with more respect. It will be necessary for qualified students to receive the benefits of education in universities in order that the burden of unfilled time may be used well and in a satisfying manner.

We in Canada would do well to consider automation, education and allied topics now instead of later. Increased technology is no longer a theory, it is a fact. Nothing can stop it. We should prepare for it.

First Choice Was Medicine

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The death of Somerset Maugham not long ago reminded me that never again during his long life did he equal the artistic success of his early novel, "Of Human Bondage," which seemed to have been written at a deeper level than his later work.

One of the reasons may have been the large autobiographical element in the book; Maugham himself, as you may know, had attended medical school, planning to be a doctor — and "Of Human Bondage" drew largely upon this experience.

It is singular how many literary men have been doctors, or on their way to becoming one, when their careers became derailed into writing. The preeminent example, of course, is the great playwright, Chekhov, who once said that "Medicine is my wife, and writing is my mistress."

Arthur Conan Doyle began penning his Sherlock Holmes stories while waiting for patients as a new doctor; his practice languished, but his stories caught on, and he soon gave up medicine entirely. Sherlock Holmes, indeed, is generally believed to have been modeled on a doctor named Bell, who taught Doyle in medical school.

Both Keats and Shelley were headed toward medicine, when they turned instead to poetry, much to the benefit of English literature. The contemporary American poet, William Carlos Williams, was a practising physician all his life, combining the two careers with unusual adeptness.

Oliver Goldsmith, Charles Darwin, John Locke, Havelock Ellis, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Zane Gray, James Joyce, Gertrude Stein, Robinson Jeffers, Michael Arlen, A. J. Cronin, Thomas Huxley, William James Frank Slaughter, and Warwick Deeping — all these varied writers of poetry, fiction, philosophy psychology and science were either doctors or medical students at one time.

It is no accident, I think, that the kind of temperament and training that lead toward medicine also can make for the clearest and most incisive and descriptive writing. Freud, it should be remembered, did not win any great awards for his medical research (although he should have); but he won the Goethe Prize and other high honors for his fine literary style of exposition.

One of the saddest aspects of modern medical education is that future doctors are trained so narrowly and technically, unlike the broad liberal education given to European doctors in the past, which made them truly educated men, able to relate their field to the broader tapestry of their times. Medicine is both wife and mistress to most of them.

Over in London early this month, Mrs. Edith Balcombe was granted a divorce on grounds that her husband, William, never shaved, never bathed, rarely changed clothes and used a pillow case to clean his shoes.

Here in Canada Mrs. Balcombe couldn't get a divorce even if William had taken a swipe at her with his shaving gear, tossed her into a bathtub, ripped her clothes, and pulled a pillowcase over her head.

Presents Case For Railroaders

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

On behalf of the non-operating railway workers in Belleville, I would like to present a few facts about the negotiations for a new working agreement now being conducted between railway unions and the major railways. I think some comment is required to offset the all-too-common notion that railway workers are already overpaid and are now seeking additional exorbitant increases.

The fact is that the average railway member of our union, the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, receive an annual wage of $4,300.

The fact is that this princely sum averages out to only $2.07 per hour. The Toronto Welfare Council's study indicates that $2.22 an hour is the absolute minimum necessary for the average family. But the Council emphasizes that this amount provides only "a standard of living sufficiently above the subsistence level as to be consistent with the maintenance of good health and a sense of self-respect, yet considerably below any level of living that could be called luxurious."

Even the poor "underpaid" postal workers, who went on strike last year for salary increases receive nearly $1,000 more a year than most non-op rail workers in our union.

Railway workers' wages have been lagging behind those paid in other industries for many years. The rulings of conciliation boards and federal government intervention to prevent or curtail the use of our economic strength have forced us to accept wage increases that were much lower than we wanted — and certainly much lower than pay boosts in other industries.

The non-ops' demands this year are exceptionally high, ranging from 65 cents to more than $1 an hour on a two-year agreement. But even if they were obtained in full, they would still fail to bring railway workers up to the wage level they deserve, and to which they are entitled.

There ought to be considerable sympathy for our aspirations in this community, if only from the standpoint of self-interest. The more we receive in wages, the more we'll be able to spend here, and the greater th boost to the local economy.

H. W. Pointer,
Local Chairman, Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers.

At Kingston last night Belleville Juniors travelled all around the famous Kingston Collegiate team and won with a score 8 to 2. The rink was crowded to the doors and the bunch of 50 Belleville fans made themselves heard and cheered lustily; they also sang the war songs published in the Intelligencer last week which took well. At times the excitement was intense. It is some distance from the Kingston rink to the station, but it was not half far enough for the returning heroes to let the Limestone City fans have a taste of the bitter dose we received last year after 30 minutes overtime.

Arthur Orton, the Tichborne Claimant, was sentenced to 14 years imprisonment 92 years ago today—in 1874—in London. For several years he had made himself out to be Sir Roger Tichborne, who had been lost at sea in 1854. Tichborne's mother had never believed her son was dead and advertised for him throughout the world, thus suggesting the masquerade to Orton, who was "acknowledged" by the old lady in 1867. When he pressed his claims to the Tichborne family money in court, it was thrown out after a 100-day trial. Orton was then charged with perjury and convicted in a trial lasting 188 days, the sensation of the year in London.

Dawn March Is Staged by Teamsters

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto teamsters staged a dawn march today in a new move to support demands in the strike of truckers which began six weeks ago against 55 Ontario companies.

A spokesman for Local 938 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) said he men assembled at 6:30 a.m. and marched two miles to the Front and Simcoe streets intersection, near waterfront railway freight sheds.

The spokesman said the men "would make their presence known," but did not elaborate.

At 9 o'clock about 200 men were walking in a circle, watched by about 25 policemen. The union is seeking a new contract with the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, which represents the 55 companies.

Van drivers and garagemen, members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers (CLC) remained on their jobs.

Three strikers were charged with causing a disturbance.

A Teamster spokesman Sunday night announced today's march but refused to give its objective because if the destination were known "they might pull the troops in."

Doctor Killed In Plane Crash

TIMMINS (CP)—Dr. P. B. Purdie, 44. of nearby South Porcupine, died in the flaming wreckage of his light plane Sunday after the aircraft crashed on takeoff from Lake Azure, about 30 miles southwest of here.

William Newell, 40, a passenger also from South Porcupine, was believed thrown clear in the accident. He is in satisfactory condition in hospital with facial burns.

Constable John Craig of the provincial police at Gogama, 50 miles southwest of here, said Mr. Newell told him he tried to free Dr. Purdie, trapped in the plane cockpit, but was driven back by fire.

The men had been ice fishing on the lake. About 30 other ice fishermen came to the scene after the plane failed to clear trees at the edge of the lake.

Denies Water To Be Diverted From Ontario

OTTAWA (CP)—Mines Minister Pepin said Saturday United States legislation on northeastern river basins relates to water storage and not diversion from Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence River.

"This is not water taken away —it's storage water only," Mr. Pepin said.

This was the conclusion of initial reports to him of studies of the United States legislation. However, further examination is continuing.

Mr. Pepin said reports to him indicate no violation of Boundary Water Treaty provisions.

The minister was commenting on reports quoting Thomas W. Kierans, a water resources specialist, as saying action on the U.S. legislation could cut water levels in Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence River.

Mr. Pepin said he had informed Mr. Kierans of the results of inquiries into the U.S. legislation.

Auto accidents in the U.S. are taking 50,000 lives a year, and 80 per cent of the time it's not the car or the road—it's the driver at fault. He may be loaded with drugs, alcohol, noxious gases or human emotions making him unfit.

By BERNARD GAVZER

When there is an automobile death or injury—and there is one every 18 seconds in the United States — it usually is blamed on one, or a combination, of three things: The car, the road, the driver—mainly, the driver.

If this is the culprit, what makes him that way?

For years, he was usually described as the decent chap who turned into a holy terror the minute he got behind the wheel. Or he was pictured as the guy who had one too many at a party.

Research shows: He may be affected by a poisonous gas and not recognize it; may be ill with alcoholism, not merely a social drinker; may be unable to handle his emotions; may be determined to kill himself.

"That a deadly epidemic is raging on our highways is by now beyond dispute," concludes Dr. Melvin L. Selzer of the University of Michigan, co-author of a report, Study in Futility.

"Well over 1,000,000 lives have been taken by this epidemic since 1900 and if the present toll continues its upward spiral another 1,000,000 persons will die of traffic injuries in the U.S. in the next 12 to 15 years."

ACTION PROMISED

Federal action has been promised by President Johnson.

In 1965, 49,000 persons were killed, 3,500,000 maimed and injured. The loss in dollars: $8,500,000,000.

The finger usually has been pointed at the driver. But practices within the automotive industry now are being challenged in federal and state hearings with the one theme consistently stated: Detroit thinks more about style than safety.

What would happen if there was an overnight miracle and suddenly all autos and all roads met the highest standards of safety?

"The impact on reducing fatalities wouldn't be greater than 20 per cent," answers James PM Economos, director of the American Bar Association's traffic court program. "That leaves the human element to deal with. This is probably greater than 80 per cent."

Howard Pyle, president of the National Safety Council, says "statistics do show that driver fault was present in about 85 per cent of all automobile accidents, but this does not mean that other factors may not also have been present."

DRUGS INVESTIGATED

The widespread use of drugs came under scrutiny.

Briefly, the medical-pharmaceutical breakthrough which produced stimulants, anti - histamines, hypnotics, tranquillizers, and pain - killer or sleep-inducing synthetics of all sorts, also made it possible for millions of people to get easy aid for the things that bothered them.

Since there are 96,000,000 licensed drivers in the United States, it follows that these pills, capsules, tablets, elixirs and what-not are being consumed by people who at one time or another operate a motor vehicle.

Says the Medical News Letter, a non-profit reporting service for doctors:

"There are hundreds of drugs available through prescription or over-the-counter which could impair driving ability."

Dr. L. E. Hollister, conducting a 90-day observation of 60 patients receiving tranquillizers reported in the U.S. Navy Medical News Letter his subjects had 10 times more traffic accidents than would have been predicted for a normal population.

Two other researchers report "hypnotic doses of many barbiturates impair over - all efficiency for as long as 14 hours, so that their effect still is present when the patient drives to work in the morning."

DRINKER BLAMED

Alcohol has been the most universally condemned factor in terms of driver impairment. But researchers now are saying that the so-called social drinker has been taking more blame than is properly due him.

Dr. Selzer, who, with his colleagues, has been involved in a number of in-depth investigations, reports "it is becoming clear to us that a substantial number of alcoholized drivers who precipitate grave traffic incidents are chronic alcoholics."

One study of 72 drivers responsible for fatal accidents, says Dr. Selzer, shows that "40 per cent were alcoholic, 10 per cent pre-alcoholic.

A California survey showed of 266 cases of single-vehicle fatal accidents, 67 per cent of the drivers had been drinking.

Carbon monoxide poisoning "is not a factor to be dismissed," says Dr. Edwin Levine, a chest surgeon of Chicago's Edgewater hospital.

"When carbon monoxide is present, and it is most apt to be in winter, in closed automobiles with the heater operating and the driver or occupants smoking, it has a cumulative effect so that one day of exposure may not be especially meaningful, but four, five and six successive days can possibly produce an extremely dangerous condition."

NO MENTAL TEST

Mental illness as a factor has relatively little statistical documentation. There's no chemical test of a body, for instance, that could indicate if the person were emotionally unstable.

Psychiatric studies conducted by the University of Michigan's Dr. Selzer and his associates showed more than half the drivers involved in a series of fatal automobile accidents suffered from some form of mental illness. This was based on the study of 72 drivers in fatal accidents.

There has been suspicion that suicide-bent drivers have used the automobile to conceal the nature of their deaths.

Life insurance company actuaries have expressed concern over the disproportionately high number of fatal automobile accidents in the first effective year of double indemnity life insurance policies. They have speculated this may be due to "simulation of accidental death conditions by persons who actually committed suicide," according to a report to a society of the actuaries meeting in Chicago.

What's the answer?

"The preventive medical approach to the accident epidemic . . . should be initiated," says Dr. Abraham Mirkin, Cumberland, Md., who heads the AMA's committee on medical aspects of auto safety. "But, until that day, let us stump for better packaging of the occupants in more crash - worthy cars."

Indians Oppose Provincial Role In Services

SARNIA (CP) — Representatives of five Western Ontario Indian bands Saturday expressed fear the proposed transfer of their services from the federal to provincial government might interfere with their treaty rights.

Fred Plain, chief of the Sarnia band, said following the closed meeting delegates were almost unanimous in objecting to the fact Indians had no say in the agreement.

Mr. Plain said further action on the part of the bands will be left to the Union of Ontario Indians.

Council representatives from Sarnia, Walpole Island, Kettle Point, Moravian and Oneida bands attended the meeting at the Sarnia reserve council hall.

Gross energy demand from Ontario Hydro in 1965 was 43,600,000,000 kilowatt-hours.

WINNERS and LOSERS

Results prove that long term business winners are the firms with (a) heavy passing trade (b) plenty of free parking. Conversely, long term losers are those lacking adequate parking.

Long term winners like the Bank of Montreal, Royal Bank of Canada, GM, Ford, Chrysler, RCA Victor, Esso, Shell, BA, Sunoco, BP, Amodeo, etc., are now benefiting from 50,000 motorists who pass their place of business every week of the year. When thousands of new homes have been built along the highways northwards and the weekly traffic count passes the 100,000 mark the ascendancy of these leaders will be even more apparent.

Downtown firms, now confident of their future will be secure until one of their competitors builds a better and more modern store (with more free parking than they can ever hope to match) on Belleville's four lane artery. Then it will be too late. When these losing concerns try to sell out they will meet the same fate as have other downtown firms suffering from lack of free parking space and fading net profits.

Are you a winner planning for the future or a loser clinging to a shrinking past?

Contrary to general opinion — land can still be bought reasonably on North Front. While some of my owner-clients wish to wait for the inevitable price rise — others are ready to sell now below market price for an immediate if smaller profit. They are more ready to listen to your offer now than in the future when great new shopping developments on North Front will drive prices upward.

If you have any intention of joining the above far-sighted winners on the Golden Mile, now is the time to make your move before intruding major industry sends North Front land prices skyrocketing!

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

A boy has been described as "noise with legs attached" and the cubs, scouts and rovers of 1st Belleville did their utmost to live up to this definition on Tuesday evening, Feb. 22. It was the occasion of their annual father and son banquet. Proceedings started out very sedately with Tom Smith, Group Committee Chairman, acting as host. Archdeacon A. S. McConnell, asked the grace and after the "Flag Break" and the singing of "The Queen" a very enjoyable turkey dinner was held. After the introduction of the head table and the thanking of the ladies by Group Committee Secretary, F. Newman, H. E. Occomore, chairman for publicity, District Council, brought greetings on behalf of A. Glover, District President. D. C. "Art" Fort took care of greetings from the "uniform side" of District Council David Yaeger proposed a "Toast to the Fathers" which was ably replied to by Mr. Doug Bolton. Fred Newman then proposed a "Toast to the Ladies" which was replied to by Mrs. Gadd for the Auxiliary.

Presentations of awards, merit badges, service badges and other earned insignia were much enjoyed by the leaders, boys and fathers. Before the entertainment part of the program, Cub Terry Rogers shook hands with his pack members and friends for the last time as a cub and went up to scouts, where he was welcomed by the scoutmaster and introduced to his new patrol and patrol leader.

The Rovers really let their hair down for the rest of the evening with jokes, songs and a take - off on the Smothers Brothers." While the cubs particularly enjoyed the "Laugh Here" and "Boo" signs the fathers discovered with considerable gratification that cubbing and scouting and even rovering "can be fun".

Miss Sandra Purdy of Belleville, as maid of honor, was dressed in a full-length red velvet gown with an Empire waistline. She wore a matching wedding-ring headpiece and carried a cascade bouquet of verigated red and white carnations.

Mr. Peter Golding of Whitby attended the bridegroom and Mr. George Nowers and Mr. Gerald Arthur were ushers. Charles Moor, brother of the bride, was ringbearer.

At the reception at the Balmoral Room of the Glenburnie Motel Mrs. Moor received the guests, wearing a two-piece cranberry satin brocade ensemble with matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Blackburn was gowned in a two piece pink sheath of lace over taffeta, with matching accessories and a corsage of white roses.

For her wedding trip the bride chose a jade green sheath dress of silk crepe with a scoop neckline and full-length slit sleeves. She wore matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

On their return, the couple will live at St. Mary's, Ontario, where the bridegroom is employed on the police force.

Today Parisian Designers Unveil Fashion Pictures

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Within the month since designers introduced new collections in Paris the fashion industry has built up suspense with the craftiness of an Ian Fleming.

Today the mystery comes to a solution. This is the official release date for fashion photographs.

The secret to the French suspense-creating technique is to act cloak-and-daggerish about the matter, but to let their secrets leak like a government-planted rumor.

Even before the press is invited to visit the collection opeamgs at all but the newsshy houses of Gvenchy and Balenciaga, Paris is rife with guesses—some of it supplied by the designers themselves—as to what budget - wrecking style revolutions are in the making in those workrooms.

Once the shows are on, the press is invited and encouraged, to write, talk, sketch hazily. But no pictures, please.

The purported purpose of the delayed photo deadline is to protect the copying rights of well - paying customers until they can rush their Paris-style purchases to cutting rooms, sewing machines and ready-to-wear racks as line-for-line or adopted French fashions.

GOAD CURIOSITY

But the bonus of this practice has long been a Madison Avenue type publicity build - up, goading the curiosity of women who must see for themselves whether all those fashion rumors are true.

As of today these truths will be self-evident:

The waistless dress is here to stay. A catastrophe when the Dior house introduced it a decade ago, it is now a success as a trapese - like doll baby dress, a tent, a tubular affair, a smock, a skimmer or a shift.

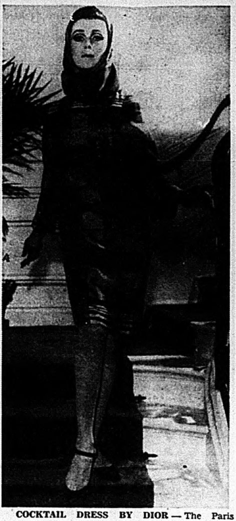
This is not a year to be modest. The plunged neckline is de mode. Now the style motto is "The Nuder the Newer" as dresses bare shoulders, midriffs, backs, much of the abdomen and nearly all of the legs. There are a few holdouts for knee-length hemlines but only a few. Transparent dresses are for girls with nothing to hide.

This is the season to be noticed. Not one, but two and three bright colors clash with each other like thunderballs. There is Op art and still much of Mondrian's hard line designs to jar eyeballs.

This is the time to be young, whatever your age; with baby dresses, booties, bonnets, Mary Jane shoes, knee socks, leotards and rompers.

This is a fashion season to be uninhibited; with wild, multicolored wigs, hats that cover the face, earrings to the shoulders, bells on shoes, and hanks of hair over the eyes.

The picture is not always pretty, but it's different.



COCKTAIL DRESS BY DIOR — The Paris fashion house of Dior offered in its spring collection this cocktail dress of printed dark blue, white and green. The wrists and skirt hemline are trimmed with dark blue stripes and the sandals are dark blue.

DECORATED CANDLES

Dinner for two, in some quiet rendezvous, like maybe your apartment?

Soft music, pale wine, and candlelight, enhanced by these delicate decorative candlestick collars.

He'll never guess you made them yourself by sewing the flowers and fruit from those old hats onto a double circle of buckram that was cut just the right size to slip over the candles. Centres are split but not removed.

All the better maybe, if he does find out. Might make him feel domestic instead of just romantic. Enough to make him want to . . . uhm . . . share every rendezvous . . . with you . . . ad infinitum? — SUSANNA

SHAMROCK PARTY PLACE CARDS

Sure, and b'gorrah, it's almost the 17th of March! What could be quainter for our St. Patrick's day party place cards than a Paddy green thimble no bigger than a leprechaun sittin' on a white doily-cut-out, right in the centre of an emerald colored paper shamrock?

Mould a mite of dough or plasticine into the thimble to hold a few tiny artificial flowers — or, florists clay and parsley sprigs would be grand, if you would be havin' any flowers on hand.

Then, if you can just place MacNamara so that he's sittin' right next to Kathleen at the table, it's bound to be a fine day for the Irish! — SUSANNA

FELT TOPPERS

Hi ho everybody! Going high hat? Then join us mad milliners in glueing together a floral-trimmed felt topper for that pretty powder room at home.

No need to tell you what's under our hat — but you might like to be clued in on a few of the brief facts about how to whip one up yourself:

Same exchange as always. A hint of yours for a pattern of ours. However, we'd understand of course, if you simply could not come up with a single idea. It happens. — SUSANNA

Ann Landers

Hubby's Billfold Held More Than Money

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope your readers will learn something from my bitter experience.

Last week my husband was driving home on slippery pavement. His car went out of control and he hit a telephone pole. They called me from the hospital and said he was in critical condition. When I arrived my husband was in surgery, where he remained for almost two hours. I prayed the whole time.

ANN LANDERS

I was in the corridor when they brought him down. The doctor said he had a good chance to recover. Then a nurse handed me his watch and billfold. Well, Ann he has recovered, but I don't know if I ever will.

In his billfold were two letters, from a woman with whom he obviously had had an affair. She was begging him to come back. I did not recognize her name and don't know if she lives in this city or elsewhere since there was no envelope.

I am crushed to think that my husband would have deceived me this way. Our 22-year marriage was considered ideal by everyone who knew us.

Yesterday he asked for his billfold. When I handed it to him he wanted to know if I had seen the contents. I said, "Yes." He told me how horribly ashamed he was and swore that he had not seen the woman since December and that he would never see her again.

I am trying to believe in him and trust him once more. I guess the real lesson to be learned here is this: Never carry anything with you that you would not be willing to let the whole world see. Lord alone knows when your next of kin might be handed the damning evidence. — VICTIM OF FATE.

DEAR HUSBANDS: How many of you could hand your wallet to your wife at this very moment and not be concerned about what she may find?

If you can't, you'd better do something about it. Like now.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Maybe I'm a nut to let this bother me but it does and I want your opinion.

My name is Florence and I like the name. When anyone calls me Flo I bristle inside because I detest that nickname. And I absolutely despise the nickname Flossie.

Our daughter's name is Katherine. I loathe the names Kathy, Kate, Katie, and Kay. My daughter loathes them also. She is only eight years old but she knows what she likes.

Yesterday Katherine came from school and told me that a new girl named Katherine joined the class and the teacher has decided to call our Katherine Kathy in order to avoid confusion.

This infuriated me. I want to write a note to the teacher telling her to call our daughter by her correct name. My husband says I'm making too much of it and to leave things as trey are.

What do you say? — LIVID.

DEAR LIVID: Yes, you are a nut to let this bother you but at least you admit that your hostility is grossly out of proportion to the "injustice."

Now that you have effectively transferred your nuttiness about nicknames to your daughter, please let the poor, innocent teacher in on it. She can then call the other Katherine Kathy and everyone will be happy.

New Florence Nightingale Hospital Built in Suburbs of Istanbul, Turkey

By MARGARET NESS

ISTANBUL (CP) — It seems odd in this fascinating Turkish city of more than 500 mosques [illegible] the ornate palaces of former sultans and their harems to find a link with an English nurse.

But it was here that Florence Nightingale came in the autumn of 1854 to organize the care of the wounded from the Crimea and to found modern nursing procedure.

Ask about Florence Nightingale here and you will be proudly told of the new hospital in the city suburbs named after her. But if you want to see where she actually worked you have to be a sleuth.

You learn from An Encyclopedic Guide to Istanbul that you can make a round trip from the city by ferry to Uskadar with its sensational mountain-top view and drive along he Asia Minor side near "the barracks of Selim where Florence Nightingale during the Crimean War (1854-57) started the nursing profession." You continue to [illegible] town of Kadikoy and then [illegible] another ferry back to the bustling harbor of old Istanbul.

This reporter planned to stop off and see both the barracks and the "Crimean cemetery with the memorial of Queen Victoria."

BARRACKS WAS HOSPITAL

The 20 - minute boat trip to Uskadar (called Scutari by the English during the Crimean War) and the local bus ride to the barracks was simple. These barracks, built during the reign of Sultan Selim III (1789-1807), had been hurriedly turned into a hospital for the wounded, brought across the Black Sea from the Crimean Peninsula where England and Turkey were fighting Russia.

An officer later informed the writer they are the largest in the world. It was easy to be[illegible]ve. The four wings, built [illegible]und a large open courtyard, are three to four blocks long. When Florence Nightingale and her 38 nurses arrived, there were four miles of beds jammed side by side along the corridors. The bloody battle of Balaclava was just over.

In the barracks an English-speaking Turkish officer said they had maintained Florence Nightingale's room. But visiting hours were over. Besides, that wing was being redecorated.

But he relented and escorted the writer personally to the third-floor corner room in one of the four solid towers that give the barracks a fortress-like appearance.

The room is comparatively small. From one window Florence Nightingale could have watched the landing wharf and seen the stretchers being car[illegible]d up the quarter-mile steep [illegible]pe. She could also have looked across the water to Istanbul's minaret skyline. On one wall is a framed photograph of Miss Nightingale. Underneath is a bowl of everlasting flowers.

CEMETERY WELL HIDDEN

Here, in this room, this heroic 34-year-old woman managed, by determination and independent funds from well-wishers, to bring order out of chaos. As the poet Longfellow wrote, she was the Lady of the Lamp, a ministering angel who glided through the hospital at night, bringing comfort to the wounded. But more important was her ability to fight stupid government red tape and a slipshod medical system.

Then the writer set off to find the English cemetery. No one at the barracks knew how to get there, although they said it was somewhere on the hill behind [illegible]e nearby big general hospital. [illegible]inally the search was abandoned for that day.

Next day brought better luck. At the Haydarpass railway station near the barracks there was an English-speaking guide. He led the way to a tree-obscured, narrow path which led uphill to the first of two English cemeteries. This was for the First World War dead. Separated from it by trees and shrubs is the old Crimean section. Both are cared for by a resident Turkish caretaker and his eight dogs.

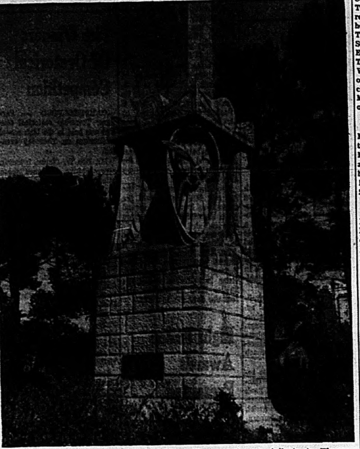
REFUSED PAY

After a long chat the caretaker invited the writer into his cottage where his wife served Turkish coffee, sweet and thick and served in small cups. He refused to accept any pay for [illegible]is time, saying he was paid by the Queen and was delighted to entertain any of Her Majesty's subjects.

The next objective was the memorial column. At the four corners of its base are symbolic angels, encircled by their folded wings. On the base is a plaque, placed there on the 100th anniversary of Florence Nightingale's arrival at Scutari. It reads:

"To Florence Nightingale whose work near this cemetery a century ago relieved human suffering and laid the foundation of the nursing profession 1854-1954. This tablet cast in the coronation year of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II has been raised by the British community in Turkey in her memory."

Florence Nightingale is indeed the founder of nursing. For until then, nurses were poorly educated and often drunkards. Her well-to-do background and her Crimean reputation brought "gentlewomen" into the nursing ranks. And here, on the Asia Minor side of modern Istanbul, Florence Nightingale is still remembered.



BRITISH NURSE REMEMBERED — Monument pays tribute to Florence Nightingale for caring for the wounded during the Crimean War (1854-57) and laying the foundations of the nursing profession. It is located in a out-of-the-way English cemetery in Istanbul. (CP Photo)

Playing the Field Often Sensible Course

DEAR DORIS: I was sitting here in my room this Friday night thinking about life and other things. When it hit me that I might be able to help other girls.

Girls, never lead a boy to think that he is the special one. I have done this and it has gotten me into a spot.

DORIS CLARK

I fell hard for a boy whom I will call R. Then he dropped me for no reason at all. A few weeks later he started going with another girl. So to get back at him I was with his brother one night. Now I like his brother and I don't think his brother likes me.

Anyway just to get back at R again I had a bottle of pop with another boy and R was in the next booth. Now this other boy likes me and he is not even my type. Another boy likes me also because I let him walk me home every Friday after school. Another boy who I used to always get a ride with any place I wanted thought I liked him and now likes me. I have stopped taking rides from him.

If you think this might help other girls, would you please print this letter. You have helped me many times before. — A PRINCE GEORGE FAN.

DEAR P.G. FAN: So the idea is to play the field and keep them all at arm's length? There's much in what you say.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: Can you send me a booklet which tells the calories and proteins and other food elements in foods? — HEALTH FIRST.

DEAR HEALTH FIRST: I can't, but the Queen's Printer can. Write for the booklet entitled "Healthful Eating," to Queen's Printer, Ottawa, Canada, enclosing 25 cents with your request. Another one, called "Nutrient Value of Some Common Foods" may be had from your local health department or by writing to the Director of Information and Publicity, Parliament Buildings, in the capital city of thé province in which you live.

Confidential to GRADUATING: By no means go to your estranged father for the money. After these years of neglect and separation your mother deserves more loyalty than that. Her work and support and care have brought you to this happy moment. Why not find a way to earn the money yourself?

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parm Celebrate Golden Wedding

A family dinner at the Tops Motor Hotel attended by approximately 80 relatives and other guests, marked the golden wedding anniversary Saturday for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parm, 390 Cannifton Road.

The anniversary dinner planned by the couple's two sons, William and Richard was attended by many out of town guests, among them Thomas Mason, of Buckhorn, long-time family friend who acted as master of ceremonies.

Among the guests at the couples anniversary were the two attendants at the 50 years-ago ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Curlett of Rossmore. Mrs. Curlett is a sister of Mrs. Parm.

FARM IN CITY

Former residents of the Corbyville area, Mr. and Mrs. Parm have the distinction of operating a cattle feeding barn within the city limits, where about 80 steers are currently being fed.

Some years ago Mr. Parm and his two sons operated a piggery north of the city and during the war years kept as many as 1,000 hogs for fattening.

Mr. Parm is a native of Toronto but about 1913 moved to the Belleville area, where he and his father managed the Corby Distillery cattle feeding barns. After the Corbyville barns were closed down, Mr. Parm farmed briefly in Thurlow before starting the piggery just south of where 401 highway now passes.

MARRIED HERE

Mrs. Parm, the former Ruth Johns, was born in the city and has always lived in the Belleville area. The couple was married by a then Methodist minister of Tabernacle Church, but now belongs to St. Margaret's on the Hill Anglican Church where Mrs. Parm is a member of the women's guild.

Although no longer in business partnership with their father in the cattle feeding operation, the two Parm sons still live almost next door to their parents.

Among the dozens of anniversary messages received was a telegram from Ontario Premier John Robarts. Lee Grills, M.P for Hastings South, extended personal congratulations.

HUNGARIAN STEW WITH ROLLS

In cooking school days Hungarian Stew, which our brother teasingly called Royale Buda-Pest, was one of my sister Peady's specialties. It has a rich wholesome flavor and in those days was cheap. Now the stewing beef costs 79c a pound and that puts it in the middle-cost bracket.

Traditionally it is served with noodles but it could be served with rice. Our guest menu for six consisted of Hungarian Stew (see below), Minted Peas (see below) Diced White Turnip and Hard Rolls. The hard rolls were particularly good, especially if you are a mopper-upper.

Education Costs Boost Tax Rate by 9.5 Mills

NAPANEE — Well, it is worse than Napanee expected.

Thursday night, Napanee council meeting in special session, passed a by-law approving an increase of 9.5 mills on residential property, and 9.8 mills on commercial and industrial property. Earlier, Reeve Claude Knight had warned ratepayers of a higher tax rate in 1966, but the figure mentioned was about three mills.

Council members were taken by surprise when the estimated budget for the Napanee District and Secondary School was presented to them, $90,000 as against $49,000 for 1965. The auditors have not yet finished, but their estimate is even higher, Dr. A. E. Fyffe told council. Dr. Fyffe is chairman of the Napanee District Collegiate Institute Board.

The council had pressed Dr. Fyffe for the school budget, but he could not give a correct one until the auditors had finished. The amount be quoted is "an educated guess", as he put it.

The increase is due largely to three factors: an increase of approximately $8,000 more for the pension fund for teachers, mandatory salary increases in teachers' salaries, and $15,000 for the second and final payment on the Gibbard Ball Park.

Reeve Knight, chairman of the finance committee stated that the increase really should have been 10.6 mills, but that the town has a surplus of between $16,000 and $20,000 on hand from 1965 which it can utilize to make up at least part of the difference. "Better to keep it under 10.6 mills and operate with a financial debit near the end of the year," was his opinion.

Broken down, the increased rate is due to several factors. For administering the town, its general upkeep, the raise is a mere 1.2 mills. Hospital debentures increase it by 2.5 mills, but the secondary school by 5 mills. The public school budget necessitated an increase of .5 mills and the county rate 1.4 mills. This makes a total of 10.6 mills, and to be safe the increase should have exceeded this estimate, perhaps to a total of 11 mills.

"There is not a thing we can do about the school budget but accept it," Reeve Knight stated. "We have no control over it."

Mayor Lorne Smart suggested that council wait until the high school presented a definite budget before passing the required by-law. when voted on, however, the by-law was passed with an 8-1 majority, with Councillor Donald Reid voting in the negative.

Boy Scout Week Success In District

PICTON (Staff) — Boy Scout week in Picton and Prince Edward County has probably been more successful this year than any in the past.

The scout movement in this island county has been in the past and still is very active. Winding up a round of father and son banquets and various other scouting activities a Scouters' Conference was held in the Hall of St. Mary Magdalene Anglican Church in Picton all day Saturday. Lectures, discussion groups and demonstrations were conducted all day Saturday and most of the scouters were enthusiastic about the success of the conference.

A banquet was held in the Hall in the evening and was highlighted by the presentation of Queen Scout certificates to six Queen Scouts by Lt.-Col. J. G. W. Haynes, Commanding Officer of the First Canadian Guards of Camp Picton.

In speaking to the gathering Col. Haynes said, "I'm sure all of these boys and their parents, realize how important it is to be faced with challenges — how proud and confident you will feel on overcoming them." The Boy Scout movement provies these challenges and is instrumental in making real men. Also present at the banquet head table were Provincial Field Executive Wally Harpur, Bernard Hepburn representing Mayor McFarland who is in hospital and Reeve Donald Bond who represented the Warden of Prince Edward County. Reeve Bond said "We of the council are proud of you, and we need more of Scouting in our County. I want you to know, he added that the whole of County Council is behind you one hundred per cent.

Wally Harpur, Provincial Field Executive in speaking to the boys said they were an honor and a credit to their parents. That their main obligation now was to complete their education as useful, resourceful citizens. He urged that once they had gone into adulthood that they return to Scouting to assist the younger ones and to give them some of the fun and adventure they themselves had received.

Fire Destroys Tools in Town Barn

PICTON (Staff) — Picton voluntter fire department answered a call Sunday evening at 6:25 to the residence of Mrs. German Seeley of 5 Maple Ave. in Picton where a barn was burning.

The fire department showed exceptional ability in controlling the blaze which was at its height when they arrived. The barn was located only thirty feet from the rear of the frame residence. Fortunately there was little wind and temperatures were moderate so fire-fighting was not hampered by weather.

Carpentry tools, lathe, saws, etc belonging to the son Howard Seeley of Picton were stored on the ground floor of the barn and were lost in the fire.

Centennial Speakers Are Available

PICTON — With Canada's Centennial year only ten months away, most Prince Edward County communities are casting around for projects to honor the occasion and to attract tourists to the area.

Mrs. Dorothy Burrus, of Wellington, chairman of the visiting artists' and performers' committee of the newly-formed Centennial Committee, says that a service had been made available through the Ontario Centennial Planning Branch which would be of interest to various groups in Prince Edward interested in learning what other communities are planning.

Speakers will be made available through the provincial agency to any organziation, civic, women's groups, youth groups, professional clubs or Chambers of Commerce, to offer suggestions or to outline the approach of other groups.

In order to accommodate requests for speakers, Air Canada, the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and the Toastmasters' Clubs have agreed to assist, at no charge to the local organization.

At the Prince Edward County level, the visiting artists' committee consists of men and women from various parts of the county: Roy Stevens of Waupoos, Howard Mallett from Northport, Mrs. Harold Bonter of Carrying Place, Norman Sword of Ameliasburg, B. H. (Bev) Gibson of Picton, and the chairman, Mrs. Burrus, in Wellington.

To obtain a speaker, any organization may contact the committee member nearest it, give the necessary information, and the committee will make all the arrangements.

PICTON (Staff) — An one-car accident took the life of a 53-year-old West Lake man Sunday afternoon at approximately 1:30 p.m. Dead is Ralph Rutter, whose car went out of control on Ridge Road some 3 miles west of Picton, and crashed head-on into a tree. The accident scene was near the farm of C. Moore and road conditions in that area were said to be wet and slippery. The 1963 Buick driven by Rutter was a complete write off, and so badly smashed that the body could not be removed at the scene of the accident. According to officials there were no witnesses to the accident.

There were no other passengers in the Rutter car and Mr. Rutter was unmarried. He is survived by a brother Percy of Bloomfield and two sisters Mrs. Fred Hook and Mrs. Roy Crawford both of West Lake Rutter was employed as an engineer at the Baxter Canning Company of Bloomfield.

The body of Mr. Rutter was taken to Belleville General Hospital for an autopsy and an inquest into the death of Mr. Rutter will be forthcoming. O.P.P. of the Picton detachment investigated the accident.

Suspect Fox Was Rabid

PICTON (Staff) — The head and carcass of a fox shot by John Shelley at R. R. 1, Cherry Valley, has been sent to the Federal Health of Animals Laboratory at Hull, Quebec, to see if it is rabid.

The same fox is believed to have bitten a collie owned by the Frank Wait family at R. R. 10 Picton, before it set off towards Cherry Valley, where it attacked two dogs owned by Mr. Shelley.

Mr. Shelley said he first spotted the fox about 200 yards from the barn at supper time. The animal started towards the farmer's two dogs, and the dogs also attacked the fox.

The dogs overpowered the fox and Mr. Shelley said the animal was lying on the ground when he brought his .22-calibre rifle and shot it.

He said his own dogs were not bitten.

Dr. J. F. McCorquodale, sub-district veterinarian with the Federal Health of Animals Division in Belleville, visited the Shelley farm on Monday and sent the dead fox to Hull.

Nkrumah had been in the Chinese capital since Thursday, the day his government was overthrown by a military coup. He was on his way to Hanoi on a North Viet Nam peace mission which was later cancelled.

His foreign minister, Alex Quaison - Sackey, arrived in Frankfurt, West Germany, earlier today on his way to Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, where it was thought he might plead the cause of the overthrown president at a meeting of African foreign ministers opening today.

Russian Ambassador Sergei Lapin said "nobody knows that" when he was asked where the ousted president and his delegation were going.

There were no flags at the airport, and none of the usual ceremonial for a departure.

Nkrumah's statement, telephoned to the Reuters office here by Nkrumah's secretary, said:

"As I go back to Ghana, I know that every friendly nation and men of good will will support any action I take to restore the constitution of the Republic of Ghana."

Nkrumah and Chou arrived at the airport together in a black car which flew neither the Ghanaian nor Chinese flags.

A few minutes earlier, Liu Shao-chi arrived, also without a flag, and entered the airport building by a side door.

Syrian Regime Moves Closer To Red Bloc

DAMASCUS (AP)—Syria will move closer to the Communist bloc under the left-wing socialist regime that seized power in a coup d'etat last week, the official newspaper of the new leadership reports.

In the first declaration on foreign policy made since Wednesday's military revolution, the government newspaper Al Thawra declares Syria's new regime "will look more positively to the socialist (Communist) countries to bring about a practical formula for a joint struggle against world imperialism."

Syria, the newspaper says, "will also try to consolidate economic and technical co-operation within the socialist experiment with the socialis teamp."

The official editorial appears to confirm reports that the military leaders who staged the coup did so to cancel any relaxation of socialist policy under the old regime, as well as to restore the military to powe

Belleville Rollins Junior "B" hockey team didn't win a championship or even make the playoffs this year — but they left some pleasant-tasting moisture in the drought-dried hockey mouth of the city and district.

Perhaps there is room for criticism of the club but there is also room for a few pats on the back.

If the crowd attendance of the last few games —and these not playoff affairs — can be judged a criterion, the youngsters inserted the thin end of a better-days-to-come hockey wedge.

It seems a shame that the hockey fates did not allow them to acquire a playoffs berth. I don't imagine the club's exchequer is heavily lined with silver and a few playoff games with increased attendance would have helped the financial status in some way.

As standing go, the Rollins youngsters did not prove themselves to be the best team in the Eastern Onario Junior "B" circuit.

They lacked consistency, at times defeating the upper level clubs and at others going on protracted losing streaks.

Hockey observers here saw flashes of collective brillancy that bespoke potential — and at others lethargic play — a sports hazard that develops in other phases of athletics.

One thing both the club management and the team as a whole lacked was bench suport. Employment and other reasons at times forced the youngsters to play with a near-skeleton squad. But even under such trying conditions they gave the best they had.

The experience of the season saw development of individual players, a couple to the extent where they drew the attention of professional scouts.

They proved on not a few occasions they had the spirit and desire to win. This was evidenced in the games that saw them roar back from a goals-deficit to snatch victory out of defeat.

Indirectly, whether they won a playoff berth or not, their performance this season has given hockey a much-needed shot in the arm. As our man Garry Alexander says "It was the best junior hockey season I've covered in years". And Mr. A. has been a faithful devoted servant to his junior buddies through an accurate typewriter.

He "called 'em as he saw 'em" giving praise when it was due and just criticism when it was necessary.

Since the fateful days of 1959 when the Belleville McFarlands emblazoned a "golden trail" to the world championship and the ensuing dismal days, upper brackets hockey has been sunk deeply into the doldrums.

Whether it was an aftermath of the McFarland's post-winning expose, I do not know. But suddenly John Fan clamped down on anything that resembled this type of hockey.

Glaring exidence of this was seen in Lammy Lamirandes effort to put hockey "back" with an intermediate team composed mostly of ex-Macs. They won the title — but fandom here looked down its nose. If a crowd over 400 turned out it was something approaching a miracle.

As was noted, taking fan interest as a springboard, the Rollins juniors have given the game the "needle". The fans turned out at first in from 100 to 400. Later five and six hundred went through the turnstiles while at the latter part of the season gates up to 1,000 and 1,200 bought tickets.

This augurs well for next year in particular and hockey in general.

Gordie Howe, Jim Mathews, Red Mavety and company did a fine job at the helm of the hockey ship, and I hope they realize that their efforts have been rewarded, if not in dollars and cents, but in the fact that they have started what appears to be a new era of hockey in this city.

Hull Two From Record; Scores 48, 49

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three milestones were passed in weekend National Hockey League action.

First there was Jean Beliveau who scored the 378th and 379th goals of his career Saturday night to tie him with Ted Lindsay of Detroit Red Wings for third place on the all-time list of NHL scoring leaders.

Then came Frank Mahovlich who scored the 250th goal of his career and finally, Johnny Bucyk scored his 200th.

Don Marshall with two goals and a single by Reggie Fleming accounted for New York's goals.

Mahovlich, now in his ninth season with Toronto and the club's all-time goal scorer, got his milestone marker early in the first period.

Bob Pulford and Peter Stemkowski added the other Toronto goals.

Bucyk, now in his ninth season with Boston after two years with Detroit, counted his 200th to give the Bruins a temporary 2-2 tie early in the second period.

HULL GETS 49TH

Hull shook loose again Sunday night for his 49th goal of the season. In addition to his goal, which left him one shy of the season record of 50 goals which he already shares with former Montreal stars Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion, Hull picked up four assists to boost his league-leading point total to 84.

Hull now has 14 games remaining to tie and break the NHL goal-scoring record.

Phil Esposito and Chico Maki each scored a pair of goals while the other Chicago markers went to defenceman Elmer Vasko and Ken Wharram.

Bucyk scored the lone Boston goal in the first period.

Phil Goyette tipped Bill Hicke's pass into the Toronto nets with less than eight minutes to play to give the Rangers their Sunday tie.

Marshall scored the other New York goal while George Armstrong and Mahovlich found the net for Toronto.

Claude Larose slipped in an easy goal mid-way through the final period Sunday night for Canadiens' victory margin.

Gilles Tremblay scored his second goal of the game into the empty Detroit net with two seconds to play to seal the victory.

Rousseau and Henri Richard scored the other Montreal goals as the Canadiens won for the 10th time in their last 14 games. They have lost only twice in that span.

Floyd Smith, Dean Prentice and MacGregor scored for Detroit which has won only three times in its last 16 games and now face a seven-game road trip.

No games are scheduled in the league until Wednesday, when Montreal will play in Toronto, Boston will visit New York and Detroit will be at Chicago.

Priest "Tells Them Off"

Leafs Get 'Holy' Tongue Lashing

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs won Saturday night but all they got from a Saskatchewan priest was a tongue lashing in the dressing room.

Leafs downed Boston Bruins 3-2 in a National Hockey League game and Rt. Rev. Athol Murray, founder of Notre Dame College in Wilcox, Sask., and an outspoken coach, teacher and theologian for 40 years, didn't think much of their efforts.

"I don't tell people what they want to hear," he said. "I tell them what they ought to hear."

So the 74 - year - old priest marched into the Toronto dressing room and told the players exactly what he thought.

"I'm all for you," he said, "but tonight you acted like you were playing down to Boston."

The Leafs hadn't heard anything like it since Conn Smythe, former manager, was in his prime as a dressing-room orator.

REPRESENT ENGLISH

"You represent English Canada," Msgr. Murray said, his glasses steamed up. "You're not just Toronto, you're the hockey soul of 12,000,000 people from Ontario west. I wish to God you'd remember that."

"You've got to be like the Canadiens. They assert the political idologies of French-Canadians and you've got to do it for the rest of us."

Msgr. Murray spotted veteran goaltender Johnny Bower, a native of Prince Albert, Sask., also the home of Conservative Leader Diefenbaker.

"Hey John," the priest shouted, "you can come back home now. We've finally got rid of the Socialists out there."

"I'm from the wheat fields, too, Father," he said. "I've still got the kernals between my toes."

American New Queen

From AP-Reuters

DAVOS, Switzerland (CP)—Peggy Fleming of the United States was crowned world figure-skating champion Sunday after a decisive victory over defending-champion Petra Burka of Toronto, who finished third behind Gabriele Seyfert of East Germany.

Miss Fleming, dark-haired high school senior from Colorado Springs, Colo., was awarded first place on the cards of all nine judges after a flawless free-skating performance.

The slender 17-year-old led both the free skating Sunday and the compulsory figures Friday and Saturday.

Skating in brilliant sunshine Sunday at Davos' outdoor rink, she got a total of 1,058 marks for her fast and exciting program while Miss Burka, who skated first, got 1,042.

Miss Fleming finished the over-all competition with 2,291 points and only nine ordinals, judges' demerit points.

FALLS TO THIRD

Miss Seyfert ended with 2,228.7 points and 22 ordinals while the 19-year-old Miss Burka, Canadian and North American champion who was born in Holland, received 2,226.2 points and 23 ordinals.

It was the first time in figure-skating history that a world champion had placed as low as third in trying to defend her title.

The bronze medal won by Miss Burka, Canada's outstanding female athlete in 1964 and 1965, was the only medal won by Canada.

U.S. skaters took home five medals. The Americans have rebuilt their figure-skating forces since their 1961 team was wiped out in Brussels by a plane crash.

Miss Burka was robbed of a silver medal by the brilliant free-skating display of Miss Seyfert, a 17-year-old student. The East German received 1,054 marks for her performance.

The Americans won one gold medal, two silver and two bronze medals. Austria, Russia and Britain got one gold medal each and Austria, Russia and East Germany one silver each.

PETRA UPSET

Miss Burka, nervous and upset ever since she slipped well behind Miss Fleming on the second of the six compulsory figures, said:

"I couldn't feel my feet and that's why I also failed the double flip figure."

Miss Burka was also said to be suffering the effects of losing 35 pounds in recent months.

Ellen Danby Burka, Petra's mother and trainer and a former Dutch champion, said the open-air rink handicapped her daughter.

"It's an open-air rink and has unusually hard ice," Mrs. Burka said. "She would need a month to get accustomed to the ice. She would need a different grind on her blades too."

Miss Fleming was a tense, lip-biting girl as she went before the capacity crowd of 5,000 and was fatigued after she had captivated that crowd with her spectacular performance.

Alberta Rink—

Has Mother, Two Daughters

VANCOUVER (CP)—A sportswoman whose hobby is "baby-sitting my grandchildren" will lead the Alberta assault on the Canadian women's curling championship which begins here today.

Hazel Jamieson is the registered leader of the Edmonton rink that will tussle through nine draws against nine other provincial champions.

And she has brought along two of her daughters to help.

Gale Lee is skip and June Coyle plays lead. Like their mother, both are championship golfers.

The fourth member of the Alberta rink is second Sharon Harrington, 19. Her father makes the ice at the Balmoral Curling Club.

If the Edmonton crew comes through, it will be the first time an Alberta rink has won the Canadian championship in the five years the competition has been staged.

B.C. WON TWICE

Only British Columbia has won it more than once—the Ina Hansen rink out of Kimberley taking it in 1962 and 1962. Saskatchewan won in 1961 and New Brunswick in 1963.

Trying for a third B.C. win is the Vancouver rink of Marg Cooke, president of the Canadian Ladies' Curling Association. She has one newcomer on her power-packed rink, Ruth Hebert, wife of Leo Hebert who played third on Lyall Dagg's world championship rink of 1964. At third is Eva Glover with Marion Ellison.

The championship is a nine-round, single round robin affair. Each game will be 10 ends. Two rounrs will be held today.

Only two rinks are back in the championship from last year—the Delisle, Sask., crew of Barbara MacNevin, and the rink from Bathurst, N.B.

The Bathurst curlers will be without last year's skip, Joan Callagnan, who is replaced by Shirley Pilson, last year's third.

The 1965 champion, the Winnipeg rink of Peggy Casselman, didn't make it to the finals this year. Manitoba is represented by the Dauphin rink of Joyce Beek, a southpaw who has been curling for 17 years.

Wellington Whips Madoc 10-1

Dance results included: Dutch Waltz: Lola Reid, Laurie Lightfoot and Linda Beare; Canasta Tango: Lola Reid, Bruce Kellar, Linda Beare and Laurie Lightfoot. Swing Dance: Nancy Kellar, Linda Beare, Sandra Scott, Roberta Driscoll, Paulette Coglin and Louise Bourdeau.

Alberta Rink—

Has Mother, Two Daughters

VANCOUVER (CP)—A sportswoman whose hobby is "baby-sitting my grandchildren" will lead the Alberta assault on the Canadian women's curling championship which begins here today.

Hazel Jamieson is the registered leader of the Edmonton rink that will tussle through nine draws against nine other provincial champions.

And she has brought along two of her daughters to help.

Gale Lee is skip and June Coyle plays lead. Like their mother, both are championship golfers.

The fourth member of the Alberta rink is second Sharon Harrington, 19. Her father makes the ice at the Balmoral Curling Club.

If the Edmonton crew comes through, it will be the first time an Alberta rink has won the Canadian championship in the five years the competition has been staged.

B.C. WON TWICE

Only British Columbia has won it more than once—the Ina Hansen rink out of Kimberley taking it in 1962 and 1962. Saskatchewan won in 1961 and New Brunswick in 1963.

Trying for a third B.C. win is the Vancouver rink of Marg Cooke, president of the Canadian Ladies' Curling Association. She has one newcomer on her power-packed rink, Ruth Hebert, wife of Leo Hebert who played third on Lyall Dagg's world championship rink of 1964. At third is Eva Glover with Marion Ellison.

The championship is a nine-round, single round robin affair. Each game will be 10 ends. Two rounrs will be held today.

Only two rinks are back in the championship from last year—the Delisle, Sask., crew of Barbara MacNevin, and the rink from Bathurst, N.B.

The Bathurst curlers will be without last year's skip, Joan Callaghan, who is replaced by Shirley Pilson, last year's third.

The 1965 champion, the Winnipeg rink of Peggy Casselman, didn't make it to the finals this year. Manitoba is represented by the Dauphin rink of Joyce Beek, a southpaw who has been curling for 17 years.

Wellington Whips Madoc 10-1

Wellington completed the OMHA novice schedule with an undefeated record by whipping Madoc 10-1, in Madoc, on the weekend.

The club will now start playoffs.

H. McDonald scored three goals, L. McQuaid and B. Brown two each against Madoc. S. Doxtator, D. Wight and F. Hardy also scored.

H. Bailey was the lone Madoc marksman.

Sutton Wins Ontario Bonspiel

TRENTON (Staff) — Curling consistently since the start of the three - days nine - rounds Royal Canadian Legion Ontario Command bonspiel, George Holborn's Sutton West rink captured the title here Sunday in a sudden-death playoff.

Holborn's rink of Gerald Pollock, vice, William Stubbins, second and Harvey Schneider, lead, will represent Ontario in the Canadian Legion curling championship at Kamloops, B.C. March 21st.

Rudy Steski's North Bay rink challenged Holborn right down to the wire emerging Saturday with an identical 7-1 record.

Both rinks led the field from the start of the round-robin tournament on Thursday. Holborn looked a cinch to win Friday evening but dropped a key match while Steski scored an important win to tie the records.

With the pressure on Holborn maintained consistent play winning the titular playoff by 6-4.

The bonspiel was held at Trenton RCAF's 6 R.D. rink under the sponsorship of LaBatt's Breweries Ltd. which donated the handsome title trophy and accompanying awards.

The LaBatt Trophy was presented to the winning rink by company official Don McDougall.

Visiting curlers were loud in their praise of bonspiel arrangements, condition of the ice and the social events that interspersed play.

Carmen Livingstone of Canadian Legion Branch 110 Trenton did a fine job organizing the various phases of the spiel. Sutton appeared to be in trouble on Saturday night when they hooked up with the Prescott rink skipped by Don Irvine but managed to roll past the district G representatives while North Bay had no trouble in defeating Bobcaygeon on the adjoining sheet.

Sunday the first end was blanked with Sutton picking up a hard earned poin in the second frame to take the early lead. North Bay came back with another in the second end on a takeout shot by Steski.

Sutton counted two in the fourth end by virtue of some good takeout shots to take a 3-1 lead. North Bay kept pecking away however with a counter in the fifth end.

The score after eight ends was 5-3 for Sutton as both teams applied pressure right down to the final shots in each end.

In the ninth end, Steski missed a draw shot that went through the house and allowed Holborn to mark up one to widen the gap to 6-3. It was just too much for Steski as the big man from North Bay came in with one point in the final frame to take the second seat to Holborn.

Members of the runner up rink were Rudy Steski, skip, vice - skip Bob Coward, second, Robert Studholme, lead Glen McKee.

Records for participating rinks: Sutton 8-1, North Bay 7-2, Guelph 5-3 Forest 4-4 Port Credit 3-5, Prescott 3-5, Haileybury 3-5, Highland Creek 2-6, Bobcaygeon 2-6.

Trenton Minor Teams Win Two Series

TRENTON — Two Trenton teams moved to Ontario Minor Hockey Association third round playoff series on the weekend but a third team was pushed to the brink of elimination.

The Lorne Keech-coached Trenton RCAF Peewees nipped Lindsay, 3-2, on Saturday to take the home and home, goals-to-count series, 4-3.

Coached by former Trenton Intermediate star Doug Beale, the local Kiwanis Bantams also sidelined Lindsay opposition. The Kiwanis squad won the third game of a best of three series in Lindsay on Saturday, 5-2.

In Trenton last night, the home town Legion Juveniles were edged 6-5 by a well-balanced West Rouge squad. The win gave West Rouge a 2-0 lead in the best of five series with the third game scheduled for Whitby tonight.

JAZY SETS RECORD

LYON (AP)—Michel Jazy of France set an indoor record for 1,500 metres Sunday, clipping off the distance in a brilliant 3:40.7 in a French-West German meet. The time—roughly comparable to a 3:57.7 mile—eclipsed the indoor mark of 3:41.9 set only last week by East German Jurgen May in Berlin.

On The Dotted Line!

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Buzzy Bavasi isn't talking and he's got plenty of company today as baseball's battle of the pen reaches the showdown stage.

Bavasi, Los Angeles Dodgers, general manager, continues to fight the good fight with ace pitchers Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale but Sunday said he won't discuss the situation again "until I have had a chance to negotiate with them."

Koufax and Drysdale are holding out for reported identical three-year contracts that would cost the Dodgers a total of $1,000,000. Apparently the money involved isn't as much of an issue as the length of contract.

"Koufax and Drysdale are entitled to everything they can get," Bavasi said Sunday, "but under no circumstances would any player on this club get more than a one-year contract."

Joining Bavasi in silence was pitcher Ralph Terry, who is battling Cleveland Indians' general manager Gabe Paul over some $7,000, and assistant general manager Phil Seghi of Cincinnati Reds, who is after signatures from pitcher Jim Mahoney and infielder Deron Johnson.

WANTS $7,000 RAISE

Terry is asking for $38,000 from the Indians, a boost of $7,000 over last year's salary, but he's having trouble convincing Paul. Terry was 11-6 last year.

Maloney, who pitched two no-hitters and had a 20-9 record last year, and Johnson, the major league's runs - batted in champ with 130, are seeking sizable boosts over their 1965 salaries.

Communications also have apprently broken down between Atlanta Braves and ace right-hander Tony Cloninger, a 24-game winner in 1965. Braves' president John McHale said he hasn't heard from Cloninger in almost a week.

A cluster of other front-line pitchers including Juan Marichal and Bob Shaw of San Francisco Giants, Jim (Mudcat) Grant of Minnesota Twins, John Wyatt of Kansas City Athletics and Jack Fisher of New York Mets remained unsigned.

They could be awaiting the outcome of the Koufax-Drysdale derby.

Russians Win, Quit, Go Home

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Russian track team is defecting . . . defecting from the United States indoor track circuit for a premature trip home.

Coach Gabriel Korobkov and his eight athletes arrived in the United States Feb. 9 for a series of meets expected to wind up with an appearance in the National Amateur Athletic Union's indoor championships March 4-5 at Albuquerque, N.M.

But after his team won five events at the Sunpapers Indoor Games Saturday night and set three meet records, Karobkov revealed that the team would head home immediately.

"It's been too long," he said. "We have to go home and get ready for the U.S.S.R. championships in mid-March, and then the European Games."

The timing was perfect as Russians pulled out on a winning note.

Old Serial About Batman Draws Record Audiences

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Will Batmania bring back the Saturday serial?

They're hoping so along film exchange row, where salesmen for the movie companies hang out. For years the film sellers could no more sell a serial than they could a William S. Hart western.

Batman may be changing that. The success of the TV show caused the local Columbia exchange to dig deep into the vaults and come up with a Batman serial made during the Second World War.

The 12 chapters were spliced together and booked into Hollywood's Cinema Theatre. Running time: 4½ hours. What happened? Crowds broke the house record.

The Batman serial was scheduled for test showings in nearby cities. if the tests prove as profitable as the showing in Hollywood, the serial may receive continent - wide release. Columbia also has a sequel serial, Batman and Robin.

The Batman serial is good for laughs, though not the intended ones of the TV series. The heavy is a hissing, taped-eyed J. Carroll Naish who plans a takeover of Gotham City.

Lewis Wilson is an overweight but earnest Batman, Douglas Croft a bushy-haired, earnest Robin.

Marty Kwiatkowski, the association's Western Division scoring champion, paced the Windsor attack with 19 points while team-mates Angelo Muzzuchin scored 18 points, Doug Brown 16, Bob Navetta 13 and Gary Polano, Gerry Horner and Mike Taranczuk 11 each.

Captures Freestyle Swim Title

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Bob Bourne, 19, showed some of his father's former style Saturday by setting a meet record in 500-yard freestyle swimming in the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association championships.

The third-year science student at McGill University had a time of 5:24.5, well under the former mark of 5:26.4 set in 1963 by Toronto's Tom Verth who passed up the event this year in favor of the 100 yard freestyle and relays.

Bob's father, Munroe Bourne, now a Montreal doctor, represented Canada in freestyle swimming in three Olympic Games—1928, 1932 and 1936.

University of Toronto won the team title in the two-day event to stretch its victory string to six in a row. McGill edged University of Western Ontario for second spot. Toronto won seven of the 11 events and McGill the other four.

Toronto's Mike Chapelle broke the 200 - yard breaststroke record twice in the meet. After going 2:25.0 in Friday night's heat to lower the standard set in 1959 by Toronto's John Deacon, he was clocked in at 2:23.3 in Saturday's final.

Goalie Scores In Own Net

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ross Brooks would have been better off if Marcel Paille hadn't been ill with flu Sunday night.

Brooks filled in for the regular Providence Reds goaltender and scored on himself as Baltimore Clippers won 5-3 in an American Hockey League game.

The goal was credited to Baltimore defenceman Ken Block whose long shot bounced off the backboards before Brooks, taking a backhand swipe at the puck, deflected it in.

In other games Sunday night, Pittsburgh Hornets defeated Springfield Indians 3-2, Quebec Aces trampled Hershey Bears 10-3 and Buffalo Bisons downed Cleveland Barons 5-4.

Saturday, Cleveland beat Quebec 3-1, Hershey dumped Springfield 6-0, Buffalo edged Pittsburgh 3-2 and Victoria Maple Leafs of the Western League won 6-4 over Rochester Americans in an interlocking game in Victoria.

Other Baltimore goals Sunday went to Ken Schinkel, Ted Taylor, Jean Cosette and Marc Dufour. Scoring for Providence were Dave Creighton, Jim Mikol and Jim Bartlett.

Well, Well Yanks Beat Our Side

BELGRADE (CP-AP) —The United States national hockey team defeated Canada's national team 2-1 Sunday night in a warmup match for the world championship tournament in Ljubljana, Yugoslavia, beginning later this week.

Canada will meet the United States again Thursday in its first match in the world tournament. Prior to Sunday's game, the United States was not considered a top contender for the title.

Defending - champion Russia, Czechoslovakia, which has beaten Canada twice in warmup matches, and Canada were considered the best prospects for medal honors.

U.S. coach Bill Bozak said Sunday's game was proof "we now rate ahead of Canada."

"I believe the Russians, Czechoslovakia and Sweden will place ahead of us at the championships, although, it's perhaps too early to talk about that."

Rev. David Bauer, special adviser to the Canadian team, said: "We are disappointed, indeed, but there is still the championship in Ljubljana."

AT THE PARK — The lovely international star, Ingrid Thulin, shares stallar honors with Maximilian Schell in the Mirisch Corporation's J. More Special Programs Would Improve TV Image

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Network television's almost-official recipe for eating their cake and having it too has been made public.

Robert E. Kintner, in his long letter of resignation as NBC's board chairman Friday, said in part:

"To 'trade up' the quality of night-time programming, I suggest that there should be greater pre-emption of regular prime time schedules by special programs and that network managements must be prepared from time to time to sacrifice over-all rating leadership in favor of an increasing number of dramatic entertainment programs dealing with controversial social, economic and political problems."

John C. Schneider, shortly before he was elevated from CBS network president to vice-president in charge of broadcasting for the parent CBS organization, said that he thought there was less excitement in television these days and that people were talking about it less. The solution, he said, was to stimulate more interest by presenting special programs—dramatic, documentary and cultural.

The theory, which has been quietly in practice for some time, is to build big ratings and thereby produce happy sponsors with shows such as Bonanza, Lucy and Batman while breaking the rhythm occasionally with Death of a Salesman, the Lunts in a biographical drama or a recreation of Custer's last stand.

WANT OPINION MAKERS

Television, while it is most concerned with reaching a mass audience with its run-of-the-mill shows, still doesn't want to lose that smaller group of viewers whom Schneider recently called "the opinion makers."

One program designed to stir up the opinion-makers was Friday night's Sixteen in Webster Groves which pre - empted a dramatic series. This documentary focused on the 16-year-old high school students who live in a prosperous, upper - middle-class St. Louis, Mo., suburb.

These were not the sullen youngsters so often studied by television—the slum kids, the dropouts, the delinquents. These were teen-agers aiming for college, concerned with their social lives and their parents' opinions of them.

Making good grades, getting along with others and coping with parents seemed to be their deepest concerns. Girls were concerned about their dates. Boys worried about getting into college so they could earn more later.

Charles Kuralt, the narrator, seemed worried that 99 per cent could identify Dick Van Dyke but only 20 per cent knew of Ho Chi Minh.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For March 1

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Reserve final judgment on most matters. You can afford today to overlook faults of others. If too insistent . . . setback is likely. Key is moderation, good will. Emotional cross-currents appear.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): You can receive truth in questions concerning money, possessions. Base actions on this knowledge. Don't expect too much aid from friends. Be calm self-reliant.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Disputes can be settled if you take long-range view. Otherwise, conflict results between domestic, business duties. Adhere to basic goals, principles. Don't waver!

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Avoid reaching too far afield. Take conservative course. Keep travel to a minimum . . . concentrate forces. Open your eyes! What you seek is close at hand.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Study Cancer message. Emotional stability very important now. Be strong . . . don't indulge whims. Budget resolution must be kept. Otherwise you invite adversity.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Utulize reasoning powers to avoid actions based on impulse. Think through plans, projects. Don't be afraid of delay. Time actually is on your side. Act like you know it!

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Good chance to achieve harmony. Means gather thoughts, gains best results. No time to invite opposition. Bide time. Study Virgo message for hint.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Tendency is to reach high — to push goals out of reach. Mate or partner tends to be extravagant. Be fair but firm. Keep eye on possessions. Others could covet your assets.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Pressure of added responsibility may become evident. Ride with the tide. Be observant. Check legal aspects of special project. Break with past likely. Look ahead!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Greatest success now comes when you gain co-operation of co-workers, associates. You must take trusted friend into confidence. Kindness today will be doubly repaid soon.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Whatever you do . . . go all out. Halfway measures don't get off the ground. Accent the positive. Be creative. Give of yourself. . . then you also receive.

PISCES (Feb 19 — Mar. 20): Pleasure indicated at home. Don't let pride upset plans. If you require aid of family members . . . permit facts to be known. Then you attract successful conditions.

• • •

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . .you have excellent sense of humor, are able to think on your feet — would make fine teacher, attorney or publicist.

• • •

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Gemini. Special word to Taurus: Take new steps. Add to independence of thought, action.

MUSLIMS GATHER

CHICAGO (AP)—The whites don't want to fight for "their America" and the Negroes don't have an America to fight for, the head of the Black Muslims, a Negro-supremacist sect, said Sunday as Elijah Muhammad spoke to 6,000 cheering faithful. Cassius Clay, the heavyweight boxing champion who prefers his Muslim name of Muhammad Ali, cheered loudly from his bleacher seat.

Thermostat Aids Engine Operation

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

As always, at this time of year, the cooling system thermostat is the subject of many inquiries and warrants some discussion.

The thermostat is a self - operated temperature regulator to aid engine warm-up. Its function is to prevent the coolant from circulating through the radiator until engine heat reaches the temperature at which the thermostat valve is designed to open.

This is usually 180 degrees for winter 'stats and 160 degrees for summer types. The results are faster engine warm-up, less wear on engine parts, better gas mileage . . . plus quicker heater warmth for the chilled interior.

A faulty thermostat may cause the valve to stick open or closed. The former causes the engine to run abnormally cool, whereas a closed valve results in overheating troubles.

It's a simple matter to remove and test the thermostat. It's also possible to clean one that may be clogged, but generally rust and corrosion is at the bottom of such clogging; thermostat replacement is then advisable

R. D. asks: The oil breather cap has nothing to do with the oil filter, has it?

No — the breather is the ventilated cap on the oil filler pipe through which crankcase fumes can escape.

M. H. writes: Are brake master cylinders repairable or must they be replaced?

Many times they can be repaired. Infact, you can buy a master cylinder rebuilding kit which simplifies the overhauling job.

From A. I.: On hard snow or ice, what driving techniques can minimize chances of skidding?

Avoid fast or sharp steering wheel action, sudden turns, quick stops, jackrabbit acceleration and high speeds.

J. McF. writes: Even on the worst winter mornings, my car starts promptly and seems to run well. But, if I have to stop and kill the engine after driving about a mile, I can't re-start unless I wait for 15-20 minutes.

Apparently, the choke valve is opening too slowly or sticking in a partially closed position, causing an over-rich mixture and thus mild flooding.

Clamor About Car Safety Resurrects Ancient Debate

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The huge American automobile industry, which otherwise has never had it so good, is facing a rising clamor about auto safety.

It resurrects a debate almost as old as the horseless carriage itself. Who is responsible for the United States highway death toll, which reached a record 49,000 last year and totals an estimated 1,500,000 since auto driving began?

The driver bears his or her share of guilt, statistics show. But critics say the vehicle itself has been fashioned by Detroit with far more regard for style than safety.

President Johnson, who shortly will send Congress a $400,000,000 highway safety proposal, has called road deaths an American problem second only to Viet Nam, a suicidal rate which, at its present tempo, will one day deal death or serious injury to one of every two U.S. citizens.

The auto industry is a favorite target for many reasons, including its size. With a record production year in excess of 10,000,000 vehicles just behind it, it is heading for fresh heights. The General Motors Corporation, for example, grossed more than $22,000,000,000 last year.

Snipers at the American auto's safety record began warming up last year and the sniping continues in various state legislatures as well as a Senate subcommittee investigation.

Robert Wolf, director of the Cornell University injury research program conducted for the last 13 years at Buffalo, has said that recommendations are sent to the industry but "stylists are on a higher level in the pecking order than the safety guys, and stylists seem to think that safety is a dirty word."

However, a Ford spokesman recently complained about the company's experience in 1956 when it offered padded dashboards and non-rigid steering wheels as safety extras and sold exceedingly few. His argument: The public doesn't like to be reminded that driving is increasingly hazardous and cares far more about style.

There is also this statistic advanced by one critic: The U.S. auto industry last year, with 50,000 road deaths, spent $8,000,000 on safety research. The U.S. aviation industry, with 1,200 deaths but a lot more headlines per death, spent $50,000,000.

Income Tax Tips

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By D. W. DAVIES, C.A.

RAILWAY MEN'S EXPENSES

An allowance for away from home expenses is not just applicable to the running trades but also to relieving telegraphers and station agents as well as maintenance workers such as "extra gangs" and the bridge and building employees.

In regard to the running trades, it is only the expenses incurred after they take their train away from the home terminal. All costs of meals and lodgings incurred at the away from home terminal are deductible no matter how long the layover may be. Any cost of transportation or a meal on their way to work is not deductible no matter what hour of the night thet employee must report for duty. No expenses are applicable at the home terminal.

A relieving telegrapher or station agent may deduct the cost of mals and lodging while employed away from home. If the railway cannot provide transportation to his next assignment then he may deduct his cost of transportation if it appears reasonable. Such deductions are never allowed on a mileage basis. The taxpayer must show the actual costs and verify them by as many receipts as possible.

Maintenance workers, bridge and building employees, etc., who are usually supplied lodging in boarding cars may not claim any deduction for lodging as that is supplied by the railway. They can deduct the amount they pay for their food.

A railway employee who is transferred to another location and expects to be there permanently cannot deduct anything while employed at the new location.

Deductions apply only to those railway workers whose jobs necessitate them moving from place to place.

For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: I live in Hamilton and my home terminal is now Toronto. At certain times I cannot get transportation by rail to Toronto so must drive my car. Can I deduct this cost?

Answer: No.

Question 2: Due to a bad winter storm I was forced to lay over for 3 days at my away from home terminal. I stayed in a hotel near the railway depot. Am I allowed to deduct this cost?

Answer: Yes. If you were not reimbursed by your employer.

HE'S DAD AT 62

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actor Cary Grant, 62, became a father for the first time Saturday night. His actress wife, formerly Dyan Cannon, 28, gave premature birth to a 4½-pound girl.

Point Anne

POINT ANNE — The Point Anne Ranger Company held a euchre at the Club House on Wednesday evening.

In observance of the official Scout Week, many of the young people attended special church services on Sunday.

The Point Anne Guide Company had a unique idea to remind the public that there were a number of Guides in the village. They made a large trefoil and using a yellow background, they placed these in the windows of their own homes with a light behind it and the results were most effective. The Guides will leave their lights on for the remainder of the week.

Mrs. Ronald Sedore has been a patient in the hospital.

Mrs. Mabel Cox is reported improving following surgery.

Miss Janna King spent the weekend with friends in the village.

The ladies of St. John's Friendship Group served a pancake supper for the choir, Sunday School and junior church members on Tuesday in the Parish Hall.

Mr. Murney Green, Senior, is a patient in hospital.

On Friday evening the local union 219 held the annual dance and banquet.

Bloomfield

BLOOMFIELD — Mr. and Mrs. Holmes Matthie called the Bloomfield fire engine to their home to extinguish a pipe fire. A small portion of a storeroom floor was torn up and some water damage done.

Unit 4 of the Bloomfield United Church catered to the A.O.T.S. banquet last Tuesday evening. There were 43 men attending to enjoy the pictures of Russia which Dr. McQueen had taken during his and Mrs. McQueen's tour last July.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Parks are spending some time in Florida.

Friday, is World's Day of Prayer at the Christian Reform Church.

Wallbridge

L.O.B.A. MEETING

WALLBRIDGE — Wallbridge L.O.B.A. No. 1168 held its monthly meeting in the Orange Hall with Worthy Mistress Helen Lane presiding. The hall was decorated with Valentine motifs. Guests present included members from Cannifton and Plainfield lodges. Mrs. Holmes, Deputy Mistress for Ontario East and Mrs. Rollins, Worthy Mistress of Cannifton lodge, were presented with corsages by Sister Mona Tomalty and Sister Annis Dickens.

During the business period a generous sum of money was voted to Wallbridge L.O.L. The initiation ceremony was exemplified for two members by Wallbridge L.O.B.A. officers. At the conclusion Sister Annis Dickens sang a solo.

A silver entree dish was presented to the lodge by Mrs. Rollins and was received by Mrs. Lane.

Addresses were given by Mrs. Rollins, Mrs. Wilson, Mr. Grant Cole, Mr. Rollins and Mrs. Holmes.

Luncheon concluded an interesting evening. During the lunch hour, Mrs. Bertram, Mrs. Seeley and Mrs. Rollins contributed Valentine readings. Mrs. Shirley Stewart was the winner of the lucky plate.
